Also, during the year 1922 two loans had been made to shareholders although the company had made large profits and was in a financial position to pay dividends.

In answer to a question by Chief Commissioner Brown, Mr. Nash said that, even if these amounts were subject to income tax, it was probable that the amount overpaid the Government on sales tax would more than cover the tax on them.

Herbert Molson was called and asked if he had any explanation to make with respect to any of the items mentioned. Dealing first with the charge of the building which had been torn down, he said that it involved a loss of money and seemed a reasonable deduction. When it had been objected to by the auditors, the tax had been paid.

Used for Business Purposes.

"On what ground is the expense of a private yacht deducted?" asked Hon. N. W. Rowell, K.C., Counsel for the Commission.

Mr. Molson replied that the yacht was used for entertainment in connection with the business of the brewery. Those employed on board were employees of the brewery. The yacht was not actually owned by the brewery but was the property of a private individual.

Then he dealt briefly with the $21,000 charged to "mechanical account." This was an account which was charged with a number of items, he said, but later they were distributed among other accounts in the books. Some of the money was used for political funds. In answer to questions, Mr. Molson said that he was not referring to contributions to political parties but rather to payments in respect to plebiscites, etc. He said that in 1922, when the loans were made to two shareholders, the brewery did not feel like increasing the dividend. The loans were baring interest at five per cent.

Mr. Rowell merely suggested to the Commission that the evidence with respect to the items mentioned by the auditors be referred to the income tax department for whatever action semed appropriate.

Further Arrests Over Soviet Assassination

WARSAW, June 10 (A.P.)—The authorities have made further arrests at Bialystok, Crodno, Brestlitovsk and Slonim, mostly members of Russian monarchist organizations and former officers in Denikin's and Wrangel's armies.

It is considered certain that the assassin of M. Voikoff, the Soviet envoy, will be tried before a civil court. The assassin continues to maintain his composure and declares that he had no accomplices. He only tried, he explained, to 'do his sacred duty as a Russian patriot."

It is reported that while living at Vilna, Voikoff's assassin belonged to the White Russian organization and told friends before leaving that he wanted to go to Russia to kill Stalin and Rykoff and thus hasten the downfall of the Russian regime.

According to Moscow reports which are not yet confirmed, the Soviet government is preparing to send to Poland a second note, much sharper in tone than the first. It is understood that the note says among other things that "a great European power is also to be blamed for Voikoff's assassination."

WOMAN FLIER WOULD ATTEMPT FLIGHT ACROSS ATLANTIC OCEAN

GO IN TRAINING.

Will Discuss Professional Questions Relating To Jump With Chamberlain.

HAMBURG, Germany, June 10.—(Canadian Press.) — Thea Rasche, Germany's only licensed air pilot, is willing to be the first woman to attempt a Trans-Atlantic flitght, provided an aircraft is furnished her.

She will satrt from Hamburg at 3 o'clock this afternoon in her plane not only to attend the American colony's dinner in Berlin in honor of the American avaitors, but especially to discuss with Chamberlin professional questions relating to a trans-Atlantic flight.

"Why should not a woman be able to cros sthe ocean in an aerpolane, just as well as a man?" Fraulein Rasche asked yesterday in response to the Associated Press correspondents inquiry as to whether she was ready to make such an attempt. "I haven't the slightest fear—but who will give me a plane?"

"Supposing Chamberlin offerrd you his plane for the return flight," it was suggested; whereupon Fraulein Rasche remarked: "That would be fine indeed, though of course I would first have to try out his machine to ascertain whether it was suited to me. Machines have their individuality, you know, like humans."

Test Plane First.

"I realize that a flight to America would be much more difficult than one from America to Europe. Therefore I think it wold be wiser to take a mechanic along, instead of a mere passenger. But that is a question I could decide onl yafter knowing what kind of a machine I would be flying."

As to the endurance required, the fraulein said: "Naturally I would have to go in for training, as all of my flying has been of the stunt speci. But I feel sure that a woman can perfom the same feats as a man."

Thea Rasche is known as Germany's greatest "woman daredevil." She loops the lopo and performs the most hair raising stunts and is a familiar figure at all aviation meets in Germany, Austria and other countries. She recently had a plane built in which she skips about the country as other persons do in automobiles.

When informed about the American colony's dinner to the aviators, she asked, "What time does it begin?" When told eight o'clock, she said in a matter of fact way: "All right, I will start from her at three o'clock and be at the hotel about six. I should like very much to have a chance to discuss technical details of the trip with Mr. Chamberlin and Mr. Levine and hope then can reserve a little time for me."

REPORTED SAFE

Catholic Priest Believed Lost in Western Honan, China, is Safe.

OTTAWA, Ont., June 10—(Canadian Press.) — Rev. Father Martin O'Gara, native of the capital, who was believed lost in Western Honan, China, is safe, according to word received at the headquarters of the Passionist Order at Washington, D.C. The information reaching here yesterday was to the effect that Father O'Gara and a group of priests and Sisters of St. Joseph made their way overland out of the province of Honan and into the province of Kwelchow, which adjoins it on the west. They are now said to be at Chenquan in Eastern Kwelchow, at a French Catholic mission where conditions for the time being are peaceful.

OLD MASTERS

When I am dead and over me bright April
Shakes out her rain-drenched hair,
Though you should lean above me broken-hearted
I shall not care.

I shall have peace, as leafy trees are peaceful
When rain bends down the bough,
And I shall be more silent and cold-hearted
Than you are now.

—Sara Teasdale: "I Shall Not Care."

EMPIRE CABLE NEARLY READY

Last Seventy Miles of All Red Line to be Laid Shortly.

IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

VICTORIA, B. C., June 10. — On Wednesday afternoon the freighter Drechtwyk began to unload seventy miles of cable which will form the last link to the new cable that connects up Canada with Australia and New Zealand. The line, when completed, will double the capacity of the cable business between the units of the far-flung British Empire, will reach across Canada on leased Canadian Pacific Railway copper wire to Halifax, and then on across the Atlantic to the heart of the Empire.

While the Pacific Cable Board, representative of the Canadian, British, Australian and New Zealand Governments, laid the cable from Australia to Bamfield on Vancouver Island, the Canadian Pacific Railway now takes over the task of completing the second and last link of the all-red line.

The railway will lay the cable from Bamfield along the Alberni Canal to Alberni. From the latter point the line runs overland to Departure Bay and then the very last line of cable will be laid from Departure bay to Vancouver via Point Grey.

MILLBROOK UNITED W.M.S. MEETING

Allocation From Presbyterial for This Year is Accepted.

MILLBROOK, June 10.—The June meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the United church was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Thomas Douglas, Seventh Line, Cavan, about fifty members and visitors being in attendance.

The meeting gathered first on the lawn, but owing to the high wind it was impossible to hear the speakers, and adjournment was made to the house. The President, Mrs. (Rev.) F. H. Howard, brought up the matter of holding a regular meeting in July this year, though usually holidays are taken during July and August; but a number of the older members, and those living out of town, can attend best in the warm weather, and it was decided to have Group C take charge next month when the meeting will probably be of an open air character.

Miss Hetherington read a letter explaining that the total allocation for Cobourg Presbyterial this year is $17,200, and of this amount $370.00 is the local assessment. The year will be only nine months, closing on December 30, hence the allotment is less than that of last year, $476.00, though over $500.00 was actually sent to the Branch Treasurer. On motion it was decided to accept the allotment.

Mrs. H. W. Johnston was appointed convener of the Supply Committee, Mrs. F. P. Johnson having resigned, the other members being, Mrs. J. McKnight, Mrs. Weatherup, and Mrs. Moore.

Mrs. F. Smith, convener of Group A, took charge of the formal program, Mrs. A. J. Brown reading the Scripture lesson from Matthew 14: 25-36, and Mrs. C. W. Richards the devotional leaflet, "Faith and Its Obstacles."

Mrs. G. W. Sayles contributed a solo, "What Will You Do With the Saviour?" and Miss Estelle Hetherington, the official delegate to the Second Cobourg Presbyterial Convention of the W.M.S., gave a most comprehensive report of the proceedings; the gathering was recently held at Trinity Church, Bowmanville, with 250 registered delegates, representing 74 Auxiliaries, with an average membership of 45, and 32 new organizations during the year which closed in March.

The importance of giving by the envelope system was strikingly illustrated by the fact that the 19 Auxiliaries which used this method reached their objective; there was no other way except that of systematic living, even suggested or considered at the convention.

The aspect of patriotism in connection with the fine work being done by the women's missionary societies of all the churches was fittingly stressed at the convention because of the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation occurring this year.

Group A assisted the hostess, Mrs. Douglas, with the service of refreshments at the close of the meeting, the formal vote of thanks being moved by Mrs. (Dr.) Rae, and seconded by Mrs. William Mullen.

The ladies from the Auxiliary of the Cavanville United church were guests at Wednesday's meeting, two car-loads having accepted the invitation to be present and have a part in the gathering. This Auxiliary is one of the two in this part of the Presbyterial organized last year, the other being at Gore's Landing. Mrs. R. S. Staples, President, spoke briefly thanking the officers for their invitation to be present, and the hospitality extended, and expressing the pleasure and profit which had accrued from the association together. The Cavan Auxiliary has a membership of 19, and is growing in interest and numbers as experience widens, and the appeal of the work brings readier response.

Mrs. J. R. Eakins, and Mrs. (Rev.) Riddell were in Peterborough this week attending the sessions of the annual convention of the Peterborough Presbyterial Women's Missionary Society.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Johnston motored to Buffalo last week end and are visiting Dr. and Mrs. Lugsdin, and other friends in that city. J. A. Vance is looking after Mr. Johnston's business during the latter's absence.

Rev. F. H. Howard and Mr. James H. Might returned home on Tuesday after attending the sessions of the Bay of Quinte Conference at Oshawa.

BAD WEATHER DELAYS CROPS

WINTER WHEAT LESS

WASHINGTON, June 10 (Associated Press).—Drought and heavy rainfalls in different parts of the important farming regions of the country, combined with cold weather, have been detrimental to farm operations and growing crops.

A decline of approximately 57,000,000 bushels in the indicated winter wheat crop was shown yesterday in the Department of Agriculture's June crop report, which placed the probable production of winter wheat this year, based on June 1 conditions, at 537,001,000 bushels, almost 90,000,000 bushels less than was harvested last year.

Continued rains, the report said, have seriously delayed corn planting in nearly all sections of the corn belt where seeding usually was about completed by June 1. This year up to June 5 only a quarter of the intended acreage had been planted in some sections, one-half in other sections, and in other areas the planting was much later than usual.

The flooded condition of the lower Mississippi valley, the backward state of the season over great stretches of country to the north, north-east and north-west, due to continued rain and cloudy weather, and extreme drought in Florida and the south-west, were declared to be the outstanding features of the crop situation at the beginning of June. Weather conditions, as they develop during the next week or ten days, it was said, will have a major influence on many of this year's crops.

MAKE SETTLERS FEEL AT HOME

SUMMARY OF WORK.

WOLFVILLE, N.S., June 10.—(Canadian Press).—Reporting on the immigration work of the eastern provinces, at the convention of Federated Women's Institute of Canada here, Mrs. John B. Owens, national convenor of this committee, quoted W. J. Black, director of colonization for the C.N.R. He said: "There is no organization that is carrying on a more effective work in immigration, than the Women's Institute. They are making the new settlers feel at home."

"The members of this largely rural organization, which has branches in every part of the Dominion, have learned from experience, the time that kindness in word and deed is appreciated," said Mrs. Owens, "Is when one finds oneself a stranger among strangers, when the body is exhausted by a long and wearisome voyage, when the heart is crushed with loneliness, and home-sickened by the strangeness of the country."

Mrs. Owens then gave a brief summary of immigration work supplied by the various provincial conveners. Miss Emily Guest of Ontario stated that some W.I. branches had helped Armenian orphans by adopting boys and paying for their support at a training farm; that newcomers had been visited and welcomed; that the W.I. had arranged for a class at Kingsville where non English speaking men and boys had been taught the language. A relief committee headed by Mrs. D. J. Grant has also seen that where needed because of sickness, fire or unemployment, families have been supplied with food, clothing, bedding, furniture, etc.

Prince Edward Island reported thirty new families through the land settlement scheme and help and welcome given ten of these by W.I.'s, according to Mrs. Wm. Hutch, provincial convener.

Quebec's statistics showed a total of 16,279 immigrants, most of these coming from England, France, Belgium and Switzerland.

"For economic reasons the government has not been able to enter into any of the admirable schemes which have been placed before the Dominion, and as a province, we have lost the opportunity offered under the 3,000 family settlement and the assisted passage scheme," reported Mrs. Margaret Lawrence, provincial convener of the New Brunswick W.I.'s.

Another problem that confronts this province is the keeping of its own young people. The W.I.'s encourage High School pupils to attend agricultural colleges—also try to stir up enthusiasm for all Canadian achievements through the reading of Canadian books, papers and magazines. Above all they discourage "knocking" or decrying Canadian opportunity.

SCHOLARSHIP FOR ECONOMIC ESSAYS

Royal Bank Offers Choice of Awards To College Students.

TORONTO, June 10. Canadian Press—The Royal Bank of Canada will grant a $1000 Fellowship or a $500 cash prize to the graduate or undergraduate student at a Canadian university, who writes the best paper not exceeding 3000 words in length, on any one of certain specified subjects during the academic year of 1927-28. The student winning the prize may select either the $1000 Fellowship at any university in Canada or abroad, or $500 in cash. The papers must be submitted to the Economist's Department of the Royal Bank before March 1, 1928, accompanied by a sealed envelope containing the name of the student. Preference will be given to papers which are non-technical in terminology and most practical in their treatment. The subjects for the 1927-28 Fellowship will be as follows: (1) Does Canada need a Federal Farm Loan System? A study of the Dr. H. M Tory report and Federal Legislation; (2) Canada's optimum of population, and how it may be obtained. In this context the word optimum may be defined to mean the ideal number of people of the type which will be most satisfactory for the building of the nation; (3) The potential development of Canadian trade in one of Canada's foreign markets; (4) Economic possibilities of the Maritimes. A study of the Duncan report.

The papers will be judged first by the Economist's Department of the bank, and five of the best will be submitted for final judgment to a committee of prominent men not connected with the bank.

HAIL, HAIL, THE GEESE!

MACOCDOCHES, Tex., June 10. — Flocks of wild fowl have been winging over head for weeks, and farmers "hankerin' for a mess of geese" have been wishing the season wasn't closed. But just as a large flock was passing recently, a hailstorm came up. In a few seconds scores of geese hurtled into fields and farmyards, downed by the big hailstones.

COTTONIA LIBRARY IS STILL CURIOSITY

Southey's Collection of Volumes, Bound By Himself, in Museums.

VANCOUVER, B.C., June 10.—(Canadian Press). — The "Cottonia Library", compiled by Robert Southey during those industrious years of his life spent at Greta Hall, Keswick, remains one of the most intriguing curiosities of bibliography.

The greater number of these slim little volumes, several hundreds in all, stitched together and bound in white cotton by the hands of the poet are, of course, preserved in libraries and museums in Great Britain; but half a dozen have found their way to Canada and are at present in the possession of William Anderson, of Vancouver.

Southey was a tireless reviewer of books; and it was his habit to copy brief extracts from the volumes which came before his judgment. It is this intellectual gold, the reward of his pick-and-shovel work, which is preserved in the precious booklets comprising his Cottonia Library.

Mr. Anderson came into the ownership of these specimens, together with much other interesting Southeyana, through his grandmother who was a close friend of Edith Southey, the poet's niece. Chapters ninety-nine and one hundred of a "Life of Bacon", never completed, form an item of this collection which also include a snuff box and ink well used by Southey and two letters in his hand.

One of these epistles offers pious consolation to a daughter on the occasion of the death of her younger sister. Its paragraphs are crammed with excellent advice and are rich in a Biblically parental love, but the more mundane feelings of the natural father are held in strict restraint in conformity with the conventions of over a hundred years ago.

The second is more attractive to the student of literary relics as it is indited to "Walter Scott, Esq., Edinburgh," and was penned in 1809, immediately after the news of the disastrous victory at Corunna had reached England. Southey discusses the situation in the Peninsula at length, and indulges in a healthy criticism of the Government, in quite topical language. With fine political pessimism, he takes care to observe that the Opposition, from what he has read of their speeches, would certainly have bungled matters even more badly than had the party in power.

A copy of the judgment handed down in Southey's famous suit against the publisher of his poem, "Wat Tyler," rounds off his Canadian collection. In his hot-blooded youth, and burning under the inspiration of the French Revolution, he wrote a historical epic of fiery tone. This literary indiscretion came home to roost many years later, when the poet had long been a staunch supporter of Church and State. It was referred to in Parliament, chuckled over in the reviews; and generaly caused him no end of embarrassment. He sued the publisher, but without success.

This document bears the flowing signature of that Judge Winterbottom who was referred to by a wit of the day as "a cold stern man."

SEND IN THE NAMES.

The Examiner is already in receipt of a number of names of citizens who have lived in Peterborough since 1867, following the suggestion that all such citizens should be honoured by being given a place in the jubilee parade.

Whether or not the suggestion in regard to the procession is found feasible—and no obstacle has as yet presented itself—The Examiner in any case is very anxious to incorporate a full list of all residents of Peterborough since the first year of Confederation in its special Diamond Jubilee number, which is to be preserved among the Government archives at Ottawa.

We feel that citizens who have helped and shared in the development of Peterborough during the whole sixty years of Confederation should be especially honoured in the celebration of the jubilee, and we have therefore arranged for the publication of an honour roll in the special jubilee issue.

Will all citizens who should be included in such a list please co-operate with The Examiner by sending in their names as soon as possible, preferably by mail?

CANADIAN JUBILEE SONGS.

There has always been a dearth in this country of Canadian songs, although the war produced numbers by Lieut. Gitz Rice and other writers that achieved widespread popularity.

The announcement that the coming Diamond Jubilee has inspired Gordon V. Thompson, the Toronto song writer, who during the war provided such patriotic hits as "When Your Boy Comes Back To You" and "When You Wind-Up the Watch on the Rhine," to write two songs for the celebration of Canada's sixtieth birthday is interesting.

The music and English lyrics are by Mr. Thompson, while French lyrics have been provided by Maurice Morisset and L. R. Beaudry.

"Land of Glad Tomorrows" is an attempt to express the growing spirit of optimism prevalent in Canada today, and is primarily written for singing by the average person rather than for the trained vocalists, making it particularly suitable for community singing.

"At the Canada Jubilee" is a lilting waltz song of a nature that should be effective in generating enthusiasm for the celebration.

THE SAFETY CAMPAIGN.

The safety campaign that is to be launched next week by the Peterborough Kiwanis Club is inspired solely by the desire of the organization to be of service to the community, and is due to a realization that there is a real necessity for impressing upon the public generally the need of being careful.

Naturally the question of safer conditions so far as motorists are concerned occupies a prominent place in the campaign.

The Kiwanis Club, by inaugurating a Safe Drivers' League, providing facilities for testing and adjusting headlights and establishing a brake-testing area, is tackling the problem in a business-like and effective manner that should produce the results.

Attention by the drivers to traffic rules and to the Golden Rule, proper focusing of headlights and the assurance that brakes are in working order will do much to ensure better driving conditions.

At the same time the non-motoring public has to realize the necessity of caution on its part.

Parents especially should be unceasing in their warnings to children as to the need of being careful in crossing streets or in playing games on the roadway.

A very desirable way of celebrating the jubilee would be a general striving to make this a summer without accidents.

PETTY STUFF.

It must be distressing to have such a suspicious mind as that possessed by The Toronto Star, which finds in an advertisement from the Ontario Publicity Bureau published in The Saturday Evening Post an underhand attempt by the Ontario Government to advertise in the United States the sale of liquor in this Province.

"The Ontario Government cheapens itself and the Province when it publishes an advertisement in the United States inviting tourists to come here for Canada's Diamond Jubilee, and hints that they can celebrate it alcoholically. It makes good Canadians blush for their country."

Now let us see what all this fuss is about.

Here is the offending advertisement:

"Come and help us celebrate our Diamond Jubilee!

"This year, more than ever before, you'll enjoy your visit to Ontario. What a program!

"This summer Canada celebrates the 60th anniversary of the Confederation of all the Canadian Provinces. The great new Buffalo-Fort Erie bridge, commemorating 100 years of peace between the good people of the U. S. and Canada, will be opened . . . by the Prince of Wales. The Canadian National Exhibition will be held at Toronto in August, as usual.

"All these features, and . . . .

"Ontario's 400,000 square miles of playground and thousands of miles of smooth highways beckon you. Decide now to have the most enjoyable vacation you've ever known.

"Write for 'Ontario' the booklet."

The Star alleges that the blank after "All these features and" is an indirect way of advertising the sale of liquor, the reader to supply the missing words.

But surely if the English language means anything the special attractions mentioned first are to be considered in conjunction with Ontario's charming summer playgrounds, the break being merely to add emphasis, as similarly used in the preceding paragraph.

It should be apparent, even to The Star and The Advertiser, that the complete sentence is to be read as follows:

"All these features and Ontario's 400,000 square miles of playgrounds and thousands of miles of smooth highways beckon you."

Only newspapers blindly partisan could take any other meaning out of the advertisement, or could find an underground attempt to advertise Government sale of liquor in this innocuous publicity.

It is such crashly stupid endeavours to make party capital out of anything or everything that is fast driving the old-time party organs into disfavour as moulders of public opinion.

The ridiculous charge voiced by these papers is an insult to the intelligence of anyone who has read this particular piece of Government advertising.

CLEAN OUT THE SOVIET NESTS.

(From The Kitchener Record)

In an address before two hundred or more business and professional men at St. Thomas, Sir Henry Thornton warned the agents of Soviet Russia to steer clear of Canada and permit Canadians to build a united, contented and prosperous Dominion.

"We are essentially a law-abiding people," said Sir Henry, "and we want no element to come in and disturb that condition. Whatever others may think about other forms of government, and about visionary schemes of society, it may be conservatively described as distinct and unique, and if any communist wants to come here to rouse the slave we should inform him that we can do the awakening of these slaves ourselves."

While the proportion of communists in Canada is relatively small when compared with the population, it is nevertheless large enough to cause trouble. A boil is a small affliction, but it can make one feel sick all over. These radicals, inspired by Russia and possessed with the same fixed idea of disrupting authoritative government, find little ground for their machinations among native Canadians. They strike a responsive chord in the minds of foreign-born citizens who have not assimilated the idea that our government stands for the truest liberty and that they are safer under considerate laws than they would be under Bolshevism itself.

The Bolshevik is hampered by prosperous conditions and by the content of Canadian citizens. He finds a busy, satisfied man or woman poor material to work on. Those who have not had time to realize their privileges as citizens of the Dominion are more plastic and responsive to his mad theories. With these as his tools he may accomplish a certain amount of harm if left to his own devices.

The whole outfit should be cleared out, bag and baggage. If they are Canadian-born, as some of them are, they should be effectually muzzled and prevented from spreading their poisonous doctrines. Drastic steps are being taken elsewhere. They should also be followed in Canada.

DEFERRED PAYMENT FOR VOLSTEAD BOOZE.

The New York Sun carries an illuminating editorial, in view of Ontario's new system of Government control, on the operation of the Volstead Act in the big metropolis of New York. Such a thing as the deferred payment plan has been applied to the illicit trade in alcoholics, and The Sun makes the following interesting comment:

Liquor on the six payment plan has reached the East Side. One vital departure from the installment system is significant in the method of applying it to bootlegging: The instalments are all collected before the goods are delivered. The card furnished to the customer bears the printed numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6. Each number is punched out as the customer pays a dollar weekly or at such periods as his finances will permit. What he is buying is listed thus:

"One full quart Sherwood rye	$7.00
"One large bottle California port wine	1.50
"One large bottle California sherry wine	1.50
"Value	$10.00
"All three bottles for	6.00

"Money positively refunded if not satisfactory."

Delivery is made with the sixth collection. A new card is supplied so the consumer may begin again his accumulations. "I have had a couple of drinks of the Sherwood," writes The Sun's informant, "and to tell the truth I have drunk worse that cost more."

Imagine Tantalus on a Saturday night with five holes in his card and no coin for the sixth

It will be generally conceded that the Ontario cash and carry system is much more satisfactory than the above, although there may be certain features of the ticket plan which may possibly appeal to Strong Man Hanna. It is unfortunate, but true, that the very people who are forced to adopt a deferred payment plan to secure necessities as well as luxuries form the great majority of the bootleggers' customers. Perhaps it will always be so.—St. Catharines Standard.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Even flying 3,905 miles in two days is of little avail. Mrs. Chamberlin and Mrs. Levine are both hurrying over to Europe.

The Bishop of Fulham flew over the Baltic to address a meeting in Finland. When he started he was not sure whether he would see the Finns or the finish.

What's in a name anyway? A Rotarian named A. Sapp has just been elected a director of Rotary International.

It is to be hoped that the only things "lit up" in Peterborough for the Diamond Jubilee will be the buildings and the streets.

As a jubilee thought it is altogether likely that the Peterborough Town Council of 1867 spent considerable time discussing fixing the holes in the streets. And how interesting it would be to discover that some of those holes of 60 years ago are still to be found.

It is said that one of the weaknesses of the sewage disposal plant is too much sewage and not enough disposal. The experience of those who "tent on the old camp grounds" this summer should not be without its interest.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., June 10 (Canadian Press). — The foreign demand for Canadain grain continued inactive here yesterday, and the market was etremely dull. Owing to the weakness that developed in the Chicago future corn market yesterday, local dealers reduced prices for the cash article two cents per bushel, car lots of Argentine corn were quoted at $1.05, and American sample corn at $1.06 per bushel. The market for Canadian Western oats was quiet but firm.

On account of the further strength in the Winnipeg cash wheat situation, the local market for spring wheat grades of flour was stronger and the values were advanced ten cents per barrel.

There was no change in prices announced for winter wheat flour, but the undertone was firm in sympathy with wheat and on account of the small offerings from Ontario millers. The demand was fair.

A fair amount of business was done in all lines of millfeed and prices were unchanged. The demand for standard grades of rolled oats was steady and prices were firm.

Owing to the decreased demand of late from United States and Cuban buyers for baled hay at country points and the fact that purchases of sixty to seventy cars were made to the former and several hundred tons by the latter, prices in some districts have advanced $1.00 to $2.00 per ton, with the result that the undertone to the local market was firmer but no actual change in prices has taken place as yet.

The egg market was moderately active and firm. The receipts were 1,717 cases.

Under a continued good demand for potatoes and the fact that stocks on track have been reduced to twenty-five cars, the tone of the market was again strong yesterday, and prices scored a further advance. Sales of car lots of Quebec white B grade for shipment to outside buyers were made at $3.00 per bag, while the highest price realized on spot to local buyers was $2.80 per bag, and reds sold at $2.35 to $2.45 per bag of ninety pounds in bulk, e-track.

The feature of the butter trade yesterday was weaker feeling that developed and prices scored a decline of ½c per pound, which was attributed to the continued indifferent demand and the steady accumulation of stocks on spot. The receipts were 2,826 packages.

The cheese trade was quiet and values were easy. The receipts were 5,844 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 10 (Canadian Press). — Stimulated by predictions from Secretary Jardine that wheat prices would be better this year than last, the wheat market yesterday took a brisk upward swing. Government crop estimates issued after yesterday's trading had ended proved to be much more bullish than had been looked for. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 1¼ to 1⅝c net higher; corn, 1½ to 2¼c down; oats, unchanged to ½c off, and provisions varying from 2c decline to a rise of 10 cents.

Improved weather for field work led to declines in the corn market. It appeared probable that corn planting in Illinois would be virtually completed this week. Oats sympathized with corn ,the fact being unknown that the Government report on the condition of oats is lower than any of the private figures.

Provisions were firmer, reflecting strength of hog values.

CHICAGO CATTLE.

CHICAGO, June 10 (Canadian Press). — Cattle, 9,000; weighty steers very scarce, largely $11.00 to $12.50; market on steers with weight well finished heavy kinds $13.00 to $13.50; latter price top; best long yearlings, $12.10; vealers largely $11.50 to $13.00.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

DOESNT LIKE "SAINT AND SINNER."

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear sir:

Would you be good enough to explain to me why, in your paper that has had a good reputation for a number of years, it is necessary to publish such utter nonsense as Anne Austin's "Saint and Sinner." It seems a wicked waste of space.

Have all your "installment" stories been of the same kind?

In sheer curiosity I read most of it several nights and don't think even in the days of my foolish youth-time did I ever read such absolute trash. The tale had no point and not even pleasant reading, and most inane.

Is it not possible to educate even your most unscholastic readers to better things?

Trusting that you will reply.

Yours very sincerely,

M. M. B.

A REPLY.

Dear Madam:

The fact that in the same mail with your letter there came twenty-six requests from other readers of The Examiner for a continuation of "Saint and Sinner" is a sufficient answer to your letter.

But for good measure we would point out that what is to your mind "utter nonsense", may be very entertaining material, indeed, for hundreds of others. If a newspaper omitted everything that someone calls nonsense, The Examiner would publish blank sheets most of the time.

Perhaps you read the Horoscope daily—we know scores of men who think it is only balderdash.

Or perhaps you lean towards articles on dress—we have met hundreds who can get a hearty laugh over the alleged foolishness of women and dress.

Perhaps you read the comic strips—many otherwise intelligent people do not even allow their children to read them.

In our editorial capacity we believe it to be the duty of newspapers to inform, to amuse and—even to educate, but we believe that the education must be sugar-coated. We would not presume, for instance, to call our readers "unscholastic" as you do. In newspaper publishing, as in home life, it will be found that the rule of the nagging wife does not achieve very much.

However, we thank you for your kind suggestions.

C. E.

LIKES SAINT AND SINNER

A Thought For To-day

IN THE TWILIGHT OF LIFE.

An aged man, after retirement, has weighed carefully his situation in life and concluded a chapter like this:

"The sorrow in the twilight of my life is that I have discovered, that, though I have completed the programme of labor laid down for me, man does not find happiness in ending his life's work. Happiness comes only in continuation of work, and not in finishing your job."

There is not an intelligent, honest individual on earth that can continue to be happy in permanent idleness.

The enthusiasm experienced in trying to do some service worth while is ten times more exhilarating than arriving and then finding everything done.

A panama hat is the coolest of headwear, according to a group of Paris scientists who recently made tests. At 97 degrees Fahrenheit, the temperature beneath a cap was found to be 98.6, a felt hat 86, and a panama only 77.

Jubilee of Confederation Special Edition

AN INVITATION

The Examiner has been requested to supply two copies of its Special Jubilee of Confederation Issue to be preserved for all time in the Archives of the Dominion of Canada.

This special number, marking as it does not only the Sixtieth Birthday of the Dominion of Canada but the Eightieth Birthday of The Examiner, will be the biggest issue of a newspaper ever put out in Peterborough. It will be printed on book-quality paper instead of newsprint, and the reading matter and illustrations will be of a high order in keeping with the occasion.

In order to permit every citizen to participate in the special edition, The Examiner invites signed contributions, not to exceed 200 words in length. These may be messages of goodwill for Canada, inspirational messages, or, in fact, articles of any kind dealing with the general subject of the Jubilee.

They will be printed in The Examiner's special edition — the biggest ever issued in Peterborough — on specially good paper, and preserved with the most treasured records in the Dominion Archives.

MAN ESCAPES FROM LOCK-UP

CAUGHT SOON AFTER.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 10. — Smashing down the partition between the cell in which he was locked and an unoccupied cell, unlocked, and then squeezing himself through an 18-inch by 9-inch window, Bill Parcels unceremoniously left Campbellford's lock-up about 9.30 last night.

Parcels was placed under arrest about 8.30, to be charged with stealing from a till and some petty thieving. About 9.30 Constable Duncalf spotted Parcels, who he thought safely behind the bars, walking down the main street. Chase was given, but Parcels slipped between the buildings and made his way to the river bank. Crossing the bridge, he worked his way up the other side of the river and disappeared from view near the soldiers' monument. Around 10 o'clock Chief Light paid a visit to the lock-up, and finding the prisoner gone, and being informed of the direction in which he was headed, got a taxi and drove towards Parcels' home. On reaching the road leading to the house, Constable Duncalf was found on guard. On arrival of the Chief, both made their way to the darkened house some considerable distance from the road. On approaching the house Chief Light tapped gently on the door. It was opened by Parcels who held his right hand behind his back. He was immediately nabbed and handcuffed to Constable Duncalf, and brought back in the taxi to the lock-up.

As the constables brought their man to the taxi, they were met by the man's wife and brother, and a number of others, who protested the taking of Parcels to the local lock-up; stating that it had been condemned. Relatives assert that the prisoner has been acting in a strange manner of late and thought that he should be examined by a doctor. Fearing that an attempt might be made to liberate the accused, Chief Light remained throughout the night in the old building in which the cells are placed.

Parcels has done three months for sheep stealing, and only two weeks ago paid $8 in fine and costs on a charge of stealing chickens.

THEFT OF CAR IS PREVENTED

BOYS LET GO FREE.

TRENT RIVER., June 10.— Some excitement was caused on Wednesday night when it became known that a car owned by Francis Ruttan was being stolen. The noise of the engine starting was heard by one of the family and Mr. John Ruttan immediately rushed to the shed across the road from their residence, where he discovered two youths who hailed from Havelock, trying to make a "getaway" with the car. One of the lads escaped through the park grounds, while the other was caught and taken to Mr. Ruttan's home. Policeman Seaborne was sent for but on the plea he was an orphan the boy was allowed to go free for this time.

BREAKING DAM ACROSS BAYON

Atchafalaya Valley Floods Expected To Pass When This Is Done.

TEMPORARY BARRIER.

NEW ORLEANS, La., June 10.—(Canadian Press).—Residents of the Bayou black section in the lower Atchafalaya basin were awaiting with more confidence the passing of the greatest flood in the history of the valley as a result of the blowing up of a dam which held back the flood waters late yesterday.

Bayou Black, part of the Intrcoastal waterway system and the principal route of water travel between Houma and Morgan City, was dammed up several weeks ago when it was feared that the flood waters would inundate the fertile lands below. Four hundred men labored day and night closing the dam and the waters piled up behind it six feet higher than the level below.

WEDDING BELLS.

BEATTY—McDONALD.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 10. — On Wednesday morning, at the home of the bride, a very pretty wedding was solemnized by the Rev. M. L. Hinton of Hastings, when Charlotte Marguerite, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McDonald of Healey Falls, was united in marriage to Craig Beattie, son of W. C Beattie, of Yorkton, Sask.

The popularity of the bride was attested when on an evening last week she was tendered a shower at which over 200 of the young people of the district attended

Mr. and Mrs. Beatty will spend their honeymoon at the Pacific coast and en route visit Mr. Beattie's father at Yorkton, returning to this district in August.

ALL SAINTS' CHOIR GOING TO WARSAW

Will Lead Service in Anglican Church There Next Sunday.

WARSAW, June 10.—Rural Dean Rev. J. O'Conor-Fenton has arranged for a friendly visit from All Saints', Peterborough, on Sunday. Rev. Mr. Paterson will preach and the All Saints' surpliced choir with their own organist will conduct the service as they do in their own church in Peterborough. The service will be at three o'clock in the afternoon.

The United Church Missionary Society was entertained by Miss Clara Payne on Tuesday afternoon. A goodly number of ladies were present. Mrs. George Taylor read the report of the recent convention. Mrs. Arthur Edwards is away, but she had sent Mrs. Taylor her paper so that it could be read at the meeting, and it was very interesting. Misses Velma Payne and Eileen Hamblin played upon their ukuleles and sang. Mrs. E. R. Hamblin accompanied them. Arrangements were made to start a Mission Band, with Mrs. Digweed as Superintendent and Mrs. J. Hawthorne and Mrs. Henry Batten assistants. A lady, who does not wish her name mentioned just now, contributed $25, and having done so, automatically became a life member. The regular study book is to be used from now on. Refreshments were served, and a happy social half-hour was spent.

OBITUARY.

MRS. W. SCOTT

The death occurred this morning of Mrs. William Scott, 561 Gilmour Street. Funeral announcements will be made later.

JAMES D. WEIR.

KITCHENER, Ont., June 10.—(Special.)—James D. Weir, formerly of Peterborough, one of the most prominent men in the educational and Masonic circles in this city, passed away at his home, 45 Samuel street, yesterday morning, after an illness of about six months. The late Mr. Weir, who has been identified with primary school education in Kitchener since 1905, succumbed to pernicious anaemia. He was aged 47 years, nine months and 30 days.

In the death of Mr. Weir, Kitchener loses a man who because of his great teaching ability and personal attributes rose high in the graces and esteem of this community. Born in Peterborough county, August 10, 1879, the son of the late Rev. and Mrs. Robert Weir, he started his profession as a teacher in the schools of Peterborough county. In 1905 he came to Kitchener, where he was employed as assistant to the late Mr. Suddaby. He was later promoted to the assistant principalship of King Edward school and in 1912 was made principal of Suddaby school, which position he held until January of this year when he was forced to discontinue his work owing to ill health. Two weeks ago his condition became more grave as he rapidly declined.

The late Mr. Weier was prominent in the Masonic order, being a member of the Royal Arch Chapter of Kitchener, of which he was past principal, and the Grand River Lodge, of which he was Past Master.

He is survived by his widow, who before her marriage was Ada Smithson, of Peterborough county, two daughter and one son. He is also mourned by six brothers, John of Port Perry, Fred of Swift Current, Sask., William, Henry, George and Harold of Peterborough county, and five sisters, Mrs. B. Green and Mrs. Spencer, of Portland, Oregon, Mrs. Renwick, of Peterborough, Mrs. Loche of Toronto, and Miss Margaret at the homestead in Peterborough county. One brother, Thomas, predeceased him.

The funeral will be held from his late residence, 45 Samuel street, on Saturday afternoon to the Woodland cemetery, Kitchener, for interment.

KEENE, June 9.—A large crowd attended the field day at Keene on Friday last, and it was one of the most successful ever held in Keene.

In this game Keene defeated the Sixth Line team 10 to 4 in a spirited game. These two teams always provide fireworks whenever they play.

WARSAW FARMERS GROWING LESS CORN

Find It Poor Crop and Hard to Handle—Wheat Looks Good.

WARSAW, June 10.—Corn and potato planting is being done now. There is not nearly the acreage of corn that there has been in years past. Silo filling is very hard and expensive work, help is difficult to obtain, and the corn crops have not been very good. These reasons made several drop out of the crop, and among those who had planned to grow it this year, several have been forced out of it because of the wet.

Fall wheat generally looks well, even some that did not look so well in the spring is pulling up. There is promise of abundance of hay. The foliage on the trees seems so dense one wonders if another leaf could be there.

Some gardens already have lettuce, raddish and onions for use. Others on clay soil are little more than planted.

ENGINEERS WITH HIM.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., June 10.—(Candian Press).—Hon. Charles A. Dunning, Minister of Railways and Canals, is today paying his first visit to the Welland Canal and the Welland Ship Canal construction work. He arrived in the city this morning, accompanied by Mrs. Dunning, Major G. A. Bell, Deputy Minister, Col. "My visit is being made from the standpoint of governmental responsibility", Hon. Mr. Dunning stated, upon his arrival this morning.

In the report of the car accident on George street yesterday, the name of one of the owners was incorrectly given as Miss M J. Jory. The Examiner regrets the mistake and cheerfully publishes this correction.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid, and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

BRANDS "K" ON ACTRESS

Doris Dore Cut in Seven Places By Unknown Man.

HINTS AT TROUBLE.

HOLLYWOOD, June 10.—(Canadian Press).—Miss Doris Dore, 21-year-old actress, was branded with the letter "K" on her forehead, chin, breast, arms and hands with a razor blade wielded by an unidentified man who forced an entry into her apartment early yesterday.

The man, about thirty years of age, believed by police either to be degenerate or motivated by revenge, entered Miss Dore's apartment when she opened the door in response to a knock about two o'clock this morning. She told the police the razor wielder held her powerless while he slashed the letter "K" on her in seven places.

Hollywood police who questioned the young actress said she had been followed to Denver from New York City several months ago and that when she left Colorado City she was trailed here. She hinted also of some "trouble" in New York City several months ago but did not disclose its nature.

GROUP OF SEVEN HAD BUSY SEASON

Canadian Artists Exhibited Work in Paris and the United States.

TORONTO, Ont., June 10.—(Canadian Press).—The past season has been a busy one for the artists making up the Group of Seven. They have exhibited extensively in France and the United States, strongly impressing the critics of those countries with the fact that Canada has developed a native school of painting which interprets, in a modern spirit, the austere beauty of its wilderness spaces.

The group is now firmly established as the nucleus of a distinctly national art movement, and the path which it has blazed is being followed eagerly by a younger generation of painters. "It is interesting to note," remarked Frank Lismer, Principal of the Ontario College of Art and one of the most active members of the group, "that Paris, the art centre of the western world, hailed an exhibition of paintings by the Group of Seven held there recently, as an epochal event. French critics were quick to acclaim a new note in art; to see, in these ruggedly decorative pictures of mountain and forest, a national spirit finding expression in paint." The work these men contributed to this important exhibition is now on its way back to Canada.

Twenty-two pictures by the Group are included in an exhibition of twenty-eight Canadian pictures which has been touring the American galleries since it made its debut at the Philadelphia Sesquitennial last summer.

Their contributions to the art section of Wembley Exhibition carried into Great Britain the stimulating controversy to which their work had already given rise at home. When their work was omitted from a Canadian show held in London a few months ago British critics were loud in decrying the absence of the "national" note which they had come to expect.

While the seven pioneers who set out a decade ago toward a definite artistic goal have, during the year, been working rather as individuals than as a cohesive group, Mr. Lismer feels that they have been successful in carrying forward the message of the new Canadian school. During the coming summer a distinguished member of the Group, A. Y. Jackson, will work in a field hitherto untouched by any artist. Mr. Jackson will leave for Baffin Land in July with a Government expedition. He will paint the barren lands of the Canadian Arctic—the bleak, untimbered hills and grey seas within six hundred miles of the Pole. It is anticipated by the adherents of the new school that the fruit of this "farthest north" adventure will lend a fresh impetus to Canadian landscape painting.

Though the work of the Group of Seven is still regarded as a novelty by many art lovers, it is to a still newer body of painters, still students many of them, that Mr. Lismer looks for the most radical developments in our national art. Many of these, he declares, will be better artists than their leaders; almost all will be better draughtsmen. They retain the spirit of the Group of Seven, without necessarily adhering to its style. A striking feature of this movement, according to the same authority, is the important part being taken by young women. He mentioned, among others, Mrs. Bess Housser, Mrs. Gordon Mills and Miss Kathleen Munn, of Toronto; also Mabel Lockeby, Sarah Robertson and Marjorie Gass, of Montreal, as producing paintings peculiarly characteristic.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE POWER OF UNITED PRAYER

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for June 12: The Power of United Prayer.—Acts 12:5-17.

BY WM. E. GILROY—, D.D.

Text: Acts 12:5-17.

Peter therefore was kept in prison: but prayer was made without ceasing of the church unto God for him.

And when Herod would have brought him forth, the same night Peter was sleeping between two soldiers, bound with two chains: and the keepers before the door kept the prison.

And, behold, the angel of the Lord came upon him, and a light shined in the prison: and he smote Peter on the side, and raised him up, saying, Arise up quickly. And his chains fell off from his hands.

And the angel said unto him, Gird thyself, and bind on thy sandals: and so he did. And he saith unto him, Cast thy garment about thee, and follow me.

And he went out, and followed him; and wist not that it was true which was done by the angel; but thought he saw a vision.

When they were past the first and the second ward, they came unto the iron gate that leadeth unto the city; which opened to them of his own accord: and they went out, and passed on through one street; and forthwith the angel departed from him.

And when Peter was come to himself, he said, Now I know of a surety, that the Lord hath sent his angel and hath delivered me out of the hand of Herod, and from all the expectation of the people of the Jews.

And when he had considered the thing, he came to the house of Mary the mother of John, whose surname was Mark; where many were gathered together praying.

And when she knew Peter's voice, she opened not the gate for gladness, but ran in, and told how Peter stood before the gate.

And they said unto her, Thou art mad. But she constantly affirmed that it was even so. Then said they, It is his angel.

But Peter continued knocking: and when they had opened the door, and saw him, they were astonished.

But he, beckoning unto them with the hand to hold their peace, declared unto them how the Lord had brought him out of the prison. And he said, Go shew these things unto James, and to the brethren. And he departed, and went into another place.

The Christian church was facing, in its earliest days, the persecution which has done so much from the beginning to shape its course and to develop its strength. Peter had been thrown into prison at a time when he was the most conspicuous figure in the church, and when the fellowship of Christians depended very largely upon his presence and influence. It is a tribute to the strength of character and faith that these early disciples, though Peter had been snatched from them, did not weaken. "Though he was in prison, prayer was made earnestly of the church unto God for him."

The verses of the lesson proceed to tell the story of Peter's miraculous escape from prison. One thinks in connection with it of the experience of Paul and Silas in prison at a later day, with their feet fast in the stocks, singing psalms and songs of praise to God. There is a certain difference in the two narratives for which one cannot account. Though Paul and Silas had the opportunity to escape, they refused to leave, and they encouraged their fellow prisoners also to remain, in that way saving the life of the prison guard who was about to kill himself, and winning in him a devoted and intense convert for the church at Philippi

Miraculous Deliverance.

Here in our lesson Peter meets the opportunity differently. He responds to the angel's bidding to gird himself and bind on his sandals, and he follows the angel past the guards to freedom. At first, apparently, he thought that he was walking in a dream, but when he came to himself he realized that he had had a miraculous deliverance. Coming to the house of Mary, the mother of John Mark, he so astonished the little maid Rhoda, who responded to his knocking at the door, that in her excitement she ran back to tell the company, forgetting to let him in. Peter immediately told the story of what had heppened to him, and made it an occasion of thanksgiving to God.

A sad feature of the narrative, however, is that the keepers of the prison were condemned to death when it was discovered in the morning that Peter had escaped. One would almost like to believe that an element of tradition had attached itself to a story that is less noble and beautiful in its ending than the story of Paul's prison experience. However, each must interpret the lesson and its teaching according to his own sense of values.

The lesson has been one of considerable interest to mystics who have seen in the guards and in the iron gate the symbols of life's barriers and difficulties which disappear when they are challenged with faith and the guidance of God. There are iron gates that seem to make the way of escape in life impossible, but which open of their own accord when one comes really up to them. We are all disposed to see difficulties as we look ahead that cannot be surmounted, but when one comes forward with prayer and courage, not doubting the divine leadership, how often these things either disappear or become easy of conquest.

We all remember how in our childhood days, when we went bicycle touring if we traevlled a very hilly road, the appearance of every new hill in itself gave a discouraging sense of fatique. How often, however, one viewed a hilly road across the valley from the top of another hill. Seen from that angle the hill which one had to climb looked enormous, but when one got down to the foot of the hill which he was descending the road had often straightened out into a very slight slope. That is typical of the hills of life. There are mountain heights that are particularly hard to climb, but in the main it is the tendency of mankind, especially in the matter of moral and spiritual progress to make mountains out of molehills.

It was for this reason that the Scripture writers referred so often to crooked ways being made straight and mountains being brought low. They wanted to remind the people of the power of God to make straight the way of the soul.

Marvelube

now comes in a Handy Container

MARVELUBE MOTOR OIL is now obtainable in an attractive Quart Can—selling at an advance of only 5c per quart over the "bulk" price.

Marvelube—whether in large steel drums, in small cans, or in bulk—always adheres to the high standard which made it the choice of 200,000 motorists within twelve months of its introduction.

Not only is the quality of the oil rigidly maintained; the dependability of Marvelube extends also to the designation of its six distinct and separate grades.

Every container holds the exact grade that is marked on the outside. A careful system of grade separation ensures this very important safeguard—so that every motorist, no matter where or how he buys Marvelube, can be sure of having in his crank-case the exact grade specially selected by our engineers as affording the highest form of protection for his particular engine.

IMPERIAL OIL LIMITED

Advantages of buying Motor Oil in this SEALED QUART CAN

1 When you are going on a trip the sealed Quart Can — carried under the seat or in the package-compartment — is available as a replenishment of the same good oil that is already in your crank-case.

2 Keep a few Quart Cans in your home garage at all times — you will find both convenience and cleanliness in using them to replenish the oil supply in your car as needed. No fussing with a big clumsy can—no funnel—no oil drip. You just pour in the contents of a Quart Can—and the job is done.

3 It is just as important to have your car lubricated with the correct grade of oil as it is to have in your crank-case the proper brand of oil. Therefore, you should always keep in your car several of these sealed quart cans of Marvelube Motor Oil — to provide against the possibility of being suddenly so placed (on a long country run) as to find the grade you use not immediately obtainable.

4 This Quart Can is an absolute protection against substitution —it is sealed, and the seal must be broken before the contents can be poured out. If you wish to be absolutely sure you are getting genuine Marvelube, the sealed Quart Can is your safeguard.

of the veranda where the crib was. I'll show you."

She led the way inside. On the porch, near the screen from which the protecting blind had been lifted so that the sun could stream down, was an infant's crib of finely carved mahogany. On the shining linen pillow and the tiny white mattress was the unmistakable imprint of a child's body. Quickly Vilak's eyes ranged over the bed for a possible finger print. Then he glanced at the floor and in a moment stepped outside. In the soft turf was a series of deep circular marks which led from the doorway of the veranda to a strip of woods a hundred yards away.

"Foot prints," Vilak announced, studying them closely. "Foot prints of someone walking barefoot on his heels so as not to make any noise or leave more of a mark than he could help."

He began to follow the prints, striding quickly over grass and mud until he reached the strip of trees. Here, too, the prints, though not so prominent, were visible after close examination, and instead of being the prints of heels had become the impressions of a whole foot. By following these or, where they were missing, a crushed leaf or a branch which had been snapped in passing, Vilak at length reached the road the others close behind him. Here the prints of feet disappeared entirely, to be replaced by the marks of horse-shoes.

"There were two horses here," said Vilak, looking down intently at the ground. "There are two entirely different sets of prints. The animals were halted here some time, fifteen minutes at least. The number of prints as the horses stepped around shows that." He knelt. "Hum. That's odd. Look at that, Nanny." He pointed to an imprint clearly marked in the mud. "What does that look like to you?"

"That's all it is. Just that. A shoe which was an inch shorter on one side than on the other. It happens to be the shoe of Prentiss' horse. I noticed it on one of the rare days when he had ridden into town. Part of the left hind hoof was missing. An injury the animal got in an accident on Prentiss' fazenda, Joao told me." He looked up at Elise and smiled reassuringly. "Don't worry any longer. We've got the trail now. We'll have your Tinky back by midnight at the latest."

Their course, two sets of hoof prints, one that of a horse whose left hind foot had been maimed, led clearly away from Porto Verde to Avilos, thirty kilometers up the river. Vilak mounted his horse again and waited while the others hastily obtained steeds and joined him. They set off as rapidly as the task of watching the prints in the ever changing road surface would permit.

"But why should . . . er . . . Prentiss . . . yes Prentiss, steal . . . er . . . Tinky?" the old man queried, as he awkwardly pulled at the reins of his horse.

Elise shuddered. "I don't know whether it is Prentiss. But it might be. He would do anything he could to hurt me. Anything. Because I am my father's daughter. Because he thinks I want to take his land. I hesitated to say it before. I thought I'd be descending to the level of the natives. But after day before yesterday when I went out to his house, I'm convinced that everything they say is true. I saw his face when he set the dog on me."

THIS HAS HAPPENED

LINCOLN NUNNALLY, elderly American chemist, is summoned to the little jungle-bordered town of PORTO VERDE, in west central Brazil, by his young friend, VILAK, who is concerned for the safety of his beautiful cousin, ELISE MARBERRY, owner of a coffee plantation and other property near Porto Verde.

Several mysterious deaths have occurred, including that of TONY BARBETTA, one of Elise's foremen, and the girl herself has received warnings to get out of the country.

Vilak, who poses at times as a barber and at others as ATTORNEY DAVIS, believes GAYLORD PRENTISS, a reticent and forbidding man, known to be an enemy of Elise, may be involved some way in the deaths. Accordingly, he and Nunnally set out for Prentiss' house, which is guarded by barbed wire fences and a vicious dog. Elise insists on joining them. Prentiss sets the dog on them and Vilak saves his companions' lives by chloroforming it into unconsciousness.

Returning to Elise's plantation, they spend the night. The next morning Vilak, in his barber shop, receives a note from Nunnally saying Elise needs him.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER XIII.

Vilak crumpled the note into his pocket. "No answer," he said.

When the laborer had stepped outside the door, he closed and locked it behind him. Swiftly he wrote a note saying that the shop would not be opened until the next morning, then took his horse and rode quietly out of the town, fretting constantly because for the sake of appearances he could not urge his horse into a furious gallop.

When he had passed the outskirts, however, and knew he was no longer likely to be observed, he let the powerful animal have its rein. Stopping with a jerk before his house behind the trees, he leaped down, hurried inside, in a flash changed his suit, applied a bit of makeup to his face, took his other horse so that his mount as well as his clothes would be different end, once more the well-groomed Attorney Davis, sped up the road.

The tree-girded entrance of his cousin's fazenda loomed before him. He swept into it and down the drive. Elise who had heard the hoofs of the oncoming horse came running up to meet him. Her lustrous black eyes had become wan and drawn, the lids swelled with tears: her soft olive skin was pallid, her lips gray.

Vilak vaulted from his saddle. He took both her small hands in his own one thin ones with a depth of emotion seldom evident in his gaunt, mask-like face. "Thank God you're all right," he murmured. "What's the matter?"

She started to speak. Instead her thin lips moved feebly without uttering a sound; tears began streaming down her cheeks.

"Steady. Steady, Elise," he said quietly, gripping her hands tighter. Then, when her repressed sobs had ceased, went on: "Take your time. Whatever it is we'll straighten it out. What's happened?"

Vilak's massive brows contracted. "The baby? . . . What's wrong with him?"

"He's gone . . . stolen." She began sobbing again. "What will we do? What will we do?"

"Steady. Steady, Elise." His voice was gentle, soothing. "We'll find him. Don't worry."

The chemist came hurrying down the path. His face, too, was drawn; worry was evident in his eyes behind their wide glasses. He looked at Vilak and shook his head. "Er . . . appalling," he said jerkily. "Appalling."

"Tell me about it. Elise is worn out."

"I don't know much . . . er . . . much. No one does. After breakfast Miss Marberry asked me to stay out here today . . . er . . . so that I could look at the mines this afternoon. I . . . was very glad to say that I would. . . . Er . . . very glad. . . . I read most of the morning. Found a book on Brazilian archeology. Most interesting . . . er . . . interesting. . . .

Then we had lunch. One o'clock it was, I think . . . Yes, one o'clock . . . We had finished at one-thirty . . . Your cousin put the . . . er . . . baby . . . er . . . Tinky . . . out on the porch to get the sun. She and I went out for a few moments to look at her Brazilian roosters. Left the child in charge of the . . . er . . . nurse. Saw the roosters . . . very picturesque. In fifteen minutes we were back . . . The baby was gone . . . Disappeared like magic from its . . . er . . . bed . . . Nurse had gone in for a minute to get a glass of water . . . We ourselves . . . er . . . ourselves weren't away more than fifteen minutes . . . er . . . minutes . . . I looked at my watch . . . Appalling . . . er . . . appalling."

Elise's sobs had ceased. Vilak turned to her. "All right now?" he asked.

Her lips were still trembling. "It's my fault he is gone. Nobody's but mine. I'll never forgive myself. I should have kept watch over him. Then it wouldn't have happened. It wouldn't have happened."

"Don't talk that way, Elise. It's not your fault. It's mine far more than yours. Cheer up now. Like a good fellow. We'll find him. I promise you we'll find him."

He strode toward the house. "Nurse didn't see anyone? No signs of anyone having been about who might have taken him?"

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story.

By Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE SNAIL RACE.

Copyright, 1927, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

There was great excitement in Woodland, near the Orange Ice Mountains, where Uncle Wiggily had built his hollow stump bungalow. The Lady Mouse Teacher had declared a holiday from school, so the boys and girls could see what was going on. Mr. Longears and his friends had laid aside their work to flock out to the hill at the end of the rabbit gentlemen's carrot patch.

"I think Mr. Slump will win!" bleated Uncle Butter, the goat.

"I'm afraid so, as he is said to be very fast," grunted Mr. Twistytail, the pig gentleman. "But I wish Glump would win. He isn't o proud as Slump."

"True enough," agreed Mr. Bow Wow, the dog gentleman. "But this race will be to the one who can first crawl to the top of the gravel hill and back to the starting point, where Uncle Wiggily sits on a toadstool. It is about ten feet each way, maybe a bit more, but say twenty feet in all."

"And Mr. Slump can crawl it in a little over fifteen hours," said Uncle Butter. "That's fast time for a snail."

"Very fast," agreed Mr. Bow Wow.

"That rabbit is going to play a trick," grunted the pig.

"I don't believe Glump can win. But I think Uncle Wiggily believes he can."

"That rabbit is going to play a trick, take my word for it!" grunted Mr. Twistytail. "Uncle Wiggily isn't twinkling his pink nose for nothing! Glump may win this race!"

"I hope he does, but the only way he can is for something to happen to Slump, the proud snail," agreed Uncle Butter.

"Come on, let's hurry!" advised Mr. Twistytail. "We don't want to miss any of the race."

"There is no hurry!" chuckled Butter. "The race will last all day—fifteen hours. We have plenty of time!"

It was the day of the great race between Mr. Slump and Mr. Glump, the two snail gentlemen. When Uncle Wiggily heard how proud Slump was, because he had crawled over the gravel hill and back, a distance of about twenty feet, in fifteen hours, ten minutes, three and four-fifths seconds, the rabbit said Mr. Glump could do it better.

"Nonsense! He never can!" cried Slump, sticking his horns out of the shell house on his back. "I'll race him to see who is the fastest."

"You will lose!" chuckled Mr. Longears, and so the great race had been arranged. No one liked Mr. Slump because he was so proud of how fast he could crawl. Nearly everyone hoped Mr. Glump would win the race, but few thought he could.

Unless Uncle Wiggily did something! And you never could tell what that rabbit would do. Just before the race Uncle Wiggily hopped over the course. He spent some time on the top of the little hill, and when he came back he smiled and said everything was ready.

"Take your places," called the rabbit, and the two snails crawled into line. "Get ready! Go!" He burst a blown-up paper bag, which was the signal gun, and the two snails started off. The animal boys and girls, as well as the older folk, had brought their lunches along to stay all day, for a snail race takes a long time.

Hour after hour passed. At first Mr. Slump was ahead, and then he began going slower and Glump took the lead.

"Oh, there is plenty of time!" said Mr. Slump, slowly. "He can never beat me. Let him get to the top of the hill first. It is coming back where I make my best speed."

Some time in the afternoon the two snails, with Mr. Glump ahead, reached the top of the hill. They were lost to sight for a while.

"Now comes the home stretch!" grunted Mr. Twistytail, dancing around on one leg for his ear had gone to sleep. "This is exciting!"

Slowly one snail crawled back over the top of the hill and began coming down to the starting point.

"Who is it?" bleated Uncle Butter.

"It is Glump!" was the answer.

"Where is Slump, the proud, fast snail?" asked Mr. Bow Wow.

"He's stuck in a lot of molasses on top of the hill!" answered Sammie Littletail, who hopped up to take a look. "Mr. Slump can't crawl out of the sticky molasses that he crawled into. I guess Mr. Glump will win the race! Hurray!"

And so it happened. By night, when Glump finally crawled to the starting point, Slump, the proud snail, had only just managed to get out of the molasses and was starting down hill. He had lost the race, also his pride, and he crawled off into the dew-wet grass to get rid of the molasses that stuck to him and made him so slow.

"Hurray! Hurray! Glump wins the great race!" everybody cried. And never after that was Mr. Slump too proud. "What's that? Who spread the molasses on top of the hill to tangle the proud snail? Oh, I wouldn't dare tell. But perhaps you can guess."

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

(Copyright, 1927, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

FOR SATURDAY, JUNE 11, 1927

This is rather a threatening day in planetary direction, according to astrology, which finds conditions menacing to many activities.

There is an aspect exceedingly unfavorable to world peace and again military movements appear to be foreshadowed.

In the United States training for the army, navy and air forces may be advocated more widely than formerly, but the seers read that this country is to be the haven for war relief rather than the center of any defensive maneuvres.

Quarrels should be avoided with extraordinary care under this direction of the stars, which is exceedingly ominous for domestic harmony.

Divorces will continue to increase and marriage will be less binding than ever before, if astrologers prophesy correctly.

Women today may be especially unfortunate in financial matters, and they should be cautious in business dealings.

This is not a propitious day for love affairs, although there will be much lovemaking, the seers announce.

Weddings that take place under this planetary rule may not be fortunate for there is likely to be too much individualism developed to assure lasting association.

Parties or even picnics, under this direction of the stars may be disappointed. Disappointments and thwarted plans appear to be presaged.

Many distinguished visitors from foreign lands are to be entertained at Washington, D.C., which will welcome Oriental envoys, as well as European scholars.

The position of Mercury is read as most fortunate for wireless libraries and writers.

Children and young folk should benefit from this configuration which presages for them the best sort of aid in establishing careers.

Persons whose birthdate it is should pursue beaten paths in the coming year in which prudence should be the watchword.

Children born on this day probably will be light-hearted and happy. They are likely to have artistic talents of unusual type.

WHITE KITCHEN

An all-white kitchen tires the eye and gives a kind of "snow-blindness." Paint furniture green, blue or orange and add gray curtains that catch the same color.

CLEANSING SPOTS

To prevent gasoline from leaving rings when used to remove spots, add a tablespoonful of salt to every cup of gas.

TO LIGHTEN ROOM

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Pastel shades of pink and blue are combined in the figures of this printed chiffon frock, which is trimmed with pastel blue chiffon and a pink rose at the neck.

The artist who told a fashionable young woman recently that pastel colors were in effect all rather degraded conveyed an impression that he had never intended. As usually happens when dressmakers borrow a word from them, the painters, there is a certain divergence in the way the word is used. And the more popular the fashion represented by the borrowed word becomes, the more obscure becomes the connection between it and its original.

It is a current comment this summer that pastel colors are being worn. For all some women know, pastel colors might never have been known or heard of until 1927. You are supposed to know—every one is supposed to know—just what a pastel color is. Women sometimes speak now as if there were some colors that were pastels and others that weren't.

One might as well speak of water colors and oil colors. You have only to visit the art shop where pastels are sold to realize the wide range in which they can be secured. There is really not so much difference in the colors themselves—only, as the artist tried to explain, the effect is to give a rather degraded look. The texture of the pastel itself against the paper or canvas seems softened, slightly toned down as if a slight mist had come up between the eyes of the beholder and the object in view.

This does not mean that all pastel colors are light—there are deep, dark reds and deep blues among the pastels, but they are somehow less vibrant. Some women seem to feel that just because these colors have been toned down or degraded they may be used almost indiscriminately—and the result is that we sometimes have to gaze on color schemes that strike a visual discord—pastel blue frock, pastel green hat, pastel violet scarf—none of which are just the shades that ought to have been brought into juxtaposition.

The fact remains that pastel tints are supreme at the present time, though more vibrant effects may succeed before the summer is out. There are gowns of pastel organdie, tulle, crepe or satin for evening—pastel-dyed lace for afternoon or evening, pastel-colored cloth and linen for sports wear and pastel-colored georgette and crepe skilfully worked into tailored frocks and ensembles for day-time wear.

AGED RECLUSE IS FOUND DEAD

Charles Francis King, Believed Wealthy, Discovered in Cellar.

DEAD AT LEAST WEEK.

NEW YORK, June 10. — Charles Francis King, 70, reputed wealthy recluse, and once a leading mining engineer of the country, was found dead to-day in the basement of one of the old frame houses he had occupied 27 years, at numbers 47 and 49 Prospect Street, Brooklyn, in the shadow of the Brooklyn Bridge.

An ambulance surgeon said King had been dead at least a week and death probably had been caused by gas poisoning.

The upper floors of both houses were furnished with old, though handsome carpets, draperies, bronzes and works of art ,and in number 49 King has established a well-stocked library. Patrolman Michael O'Connell, with whom King often chatted on post, said the man told him he possessed a fortune of $500,000 in property ,bonds and securities, but managed to live on 70 cents a day.

BUSINESS BETTER IN DOMINION SUMMARY BY BANK INDICATES

Wet Weather Delays Work, But Prospects Are Good.

FACTORIES ACTIVE.

Early Opening of Navigation Has Helped Trade Greatly.

The following is a brief summary of information received by the Bank of Montreal from its branches throughout Canada and from its offices abroad.

Business conditions are satisfactory taken in the large. At this period, as throughout the summer, crop prospects become important and these are not discouraging. Following an early commencement in April, cool and rainy weather has kept the progress of farming operations in the East to normal, but the advantages of the early spring break-up have remained and seeding is well advanced. In Western Canada the spring has been later than usual, but a late season has produced a rich harvest in past years, and this experience may be repeated. In the Prairie Provinces there is abundant moisture in the ground, and with warm weather quick germination will occur.

Railway earnings, bank clearings, bank debits and bank note circulation all indicate a widening circle of business activity. Production of automobiles keeps pace with last year; the output of iron and steel is large; building construction shows no sign of abatement; and subsidiary trades are correspondingly active. Mining, now become an industry of importance, is being steadily developed with increasing output. Commodity prices slowly decline.

In the industrial field a feature of the month has been the announcement of plans for the establishment of industrial coking plants in various centres, notably at Montreal and Saint John, N.B., under the subsidy scheme of the Federal Government for the encouragement of the use of coal from the Maritime Provinces. It is anticipated that the coke produced will partly replace imported anthracite coal for domestic heating and that valuable subsidiary industries in the manufacture of by-products will result.

A help to trade has been the early opening of navigation. There were in the Port of Montreal on the 19th instant 52 ocean vessels awaiting cargoes, and the activity of the Port is shown in a great increase of exports. The store of grain at Fort William and port Arthur on 14th May was 13,200,000 bushels less than a year ago, and it is probable that interior stocks from the last harvest have now come forward. Due to the early opening of navigation, the lake and river carriers transported over 5,000,000 tons of freight in April as compared with none in April 1926.

The foreign trade of Canada in April was substantially larger than a year ago, both imports and exports contributing to the gain. For many months imports have risen in value and volume, but the increase in exports value makes an exception to recent records. Compared with a yest ago the value of April exports is greater by $17,000,000, or nearly 30%, and to this increase agricultural products contributed $16,000,000. The other important item in export trade is wood, wood pulp and newsprint. There may be no significance in the decline of the aggregate of the export value of these commodities since lumber does not move rapidly abroad, but an export value of $16,811,000 in April was $750,000 less than in the same month a year ago. On the import side iron and steel products constitute much the largest item, and of an increase of $6,300,000 iron and steel account for the whole.

The bond market has maintained its upward trend, the prices of all Dominion Government, Provincial and first grade Municipal bonds moving into higher levels. Stocks have been generally strong, more particularly in the so-called Power group.

In the foreign exchanges during the past month Sterling reached a high point for the year, being quoted in New York on the 4th instant at 4.86, but since then has been offered steadily, the rate gradually receding to 4.85 3-8. Toward the end of April, New York funds declined to 11-64% discount, but during the current month advanced to 1-32% discount, and latterly have held steady at 3-64% to 1-16% discount. The Italian Lira has been an outstanding feature, rising to a new high at 5.65, but later reacting to 5.10. During the past few days, the rate has been steadier, around 5.45. Paris Francs have been steady at 3.91¼ to 3.92. The Spanish Peseta has been uncertain, and after advancing to 17.72 from 17.46, reacted again to 17.50.

Newfoundland.

General trade continues more quiet than is usual and the seasonal improvement usually experienced at this time of the year will depend on the extent to which merchants will advance supplies for the fisheries. Consumption of codfish in European markets is well maintained, making prices somewhat firmer, but old Norwegian stocks prevent marked improvement. The seal fishery, now closed, resulted in a total catch of 180,459 compared with 211,131 for 1926 and 127,882 for 1925. The market price for oil is below that prevailing in 1926. In view of optimistic reports concerning the Buchan's mine, a number of claims have been staked in the vicinity. The scale of operations at Bell Island mines continues normal, and recently the first cargo of iron ore for the year was shipped to Europe.

Great Britain.

A reduction in the Bank of England rate to 4½% on the 21st of April created an excellent impression, the prospect of cheaper money encouraging hopes of increased momentum in business generally. Expectations of a further fall to 4% have diminished because of the sharp drop of Sterling in New York, due to French buying of dollars against sterling, but the underlying feeling still is that there will be a lower official minimum before long. Stock markets have been more active, with gilt-edged and industrials in demand at higher prices, but latterly there has been a somewhat less satisfactory tone. Overseas trade returns for April make a better showing than in any month of this year, imports being nearly 13,000,000 pounds less than in March, and while exports were lower by 9,500,000 pounds, this may be attributed to the Easter holidays; a recovery is shown over the previous month in almost every important product except cotton. That trade is steadily advancing is proved by lower unemployment returns each week, the decrease in idle tonnage laid up in British ports and by better railway freight returns.

United States.

The calling by the Government of the remaining $1,700,000,000 of second Liberty 4 and 4¼% bonds, due 1942, is taken as an indication that a lower rate refunding issue will later be announced for a part of the bonds to be retired. New York City disposed of is second $60,000,000 loan in the current year at a cost to the City slightly less than the coupon rate of 4%. The country made a net gain of $12,000,000 gold in April, making a net gain of $87,000,000 so far this year. The flood situation in a portion of the central and southern areas of the country is having a slightly adverse influence on business, but as a partial result the prices of cotton and wheat have risen. A backward season in some sections has militated against a full development of Spring retail distribution and the same condition has retarded seeding of Spring wheat, cotton and corn. Winter wheat is doing well, the indicated yield now being 593,940,000 bushels as compared with the estimated yield at this time last year of 548,908,000 bushels. The volume of new building continues to run behind 1926, but substantially ahead of 1925. Steel mills are operating at 80 to 90% capacity and receiving a fair tonnage with an undertone of ease in prices prevailing. The first quarter profits of several automobile concerns were disappointing although sales contigue almost equal to a year ago.

France.

During the first four months of this year the foreign trade of France, as compared with the corresponding period of last year, showed a decrease of over two milliards of franks in imports while exports increased about Frs. 650,000,000. The Bank of France, on behalf of the Government, continues to control the exchange market by absorbing all offers of foreign currencies over and above private requirements, and the impression obtains that without this control the franc would have shown a tendency to further improve. Government securities remain fairly steady, but the market generally is less decisive than for some little time past, having felt the effect of the recent trouble in Berlin, which caused some selling of French values. Very satisfactory reports are heard of the success of the new Consolidation 6% Loan which closes on the 25th instant; the amount already subscribed is stated to be over ten milliards of francs. To date the influx of tourists appears to be on a smaller scale than last year, but steamship companies report heavy bookings for the coming months.

Mexico

Business continues dull and depressed. Wheat harvesting is now under way and a fair yield is expected, but corn and other crops are suffering from drought. Sugar grinding is nearing completion, with results disappointing in some instances, due to lack of moisture. There is considerable activity in building. In the shoe and steel industries business is normal. Oil production continues below average. Imports and exports for the first three months of this year show a substantial decrease as compared with last year. The Mexican gold peso against U.S. dollars is quoted at 46.70, and the silver peso at a discount of 10.25%.

1ST DELORO TROOP

Owing to the variable weather conditions of the past two weeks there is little to report on the activities of the above-mentioned troop. The standing for May is: Ram patrol, 60 points; Bull patrol, 11 points. Among the Scouts tallying high are W. Simmons, M. Callery, F. Callery, G. Mantle, and D. Paquet.

On Tuesday evening of this week renovations were carried out in the immediate neighborhood of headquarters, after which open-air games and a sing-song were indulged in.

MILLBROOK TROOP.

MILLBROOK, June 10.—The Millbrook Troop of Boy Scouts held its regular meeting on Thursday, June 2, an agreeable and instructive change being provided from the fact that, after being called to order, the boys paraded to Dr. H. A. Turner's office, and the latter delivered to them his second address on "First Aid". There were nineteen boys present, under the charge of Scoutmaster E. H. Barnes.

Dr. Turner lectured and demonstrated on the "Prone Pressure Method," for resuscitation, stating that this was applicable in cases of electric shock, as well as apparent drowning, inhalation of gas, etc., and at its close presented to each boy a booklet covering the rules of the method, for individual study.

As a practical application of what they had learned, when the lecture and demonstration were concluded, all present took part, under the doctor's supervision, in trying the process, each boy using another member of the Troop for a subject. As many of the boys have attended one or two of the annual camps, and several others hope to be on hand for the outing again this year, the instruction was most timely in view of additional precautions at camp, and was also particularly suited to the members who are making a study of First Aid in connection with their Scout Tests.

Dr. Turner is the local Medical Health Officer, and in this capacity, as well as in a general way, has habitually shown a marked interest in the Troop, assisting in locating suitable camping grounds when this matter first came up for attention; he also presented the Troop with a complete First Aid outfit after his initial lecture to them on the subject.

This section of the Scout activities is deserving of special emphasis, and the boys, as well as their officers, greatly appreciate the privilege of having Dr. Turner's experienced help with their studies.

The Troop continues to make progress along the lines of good Scouting, and during the last three months has more than doubled its numbers of registered Scouts, and has the prospect of more recruits to be enrolled within the next few weeks.

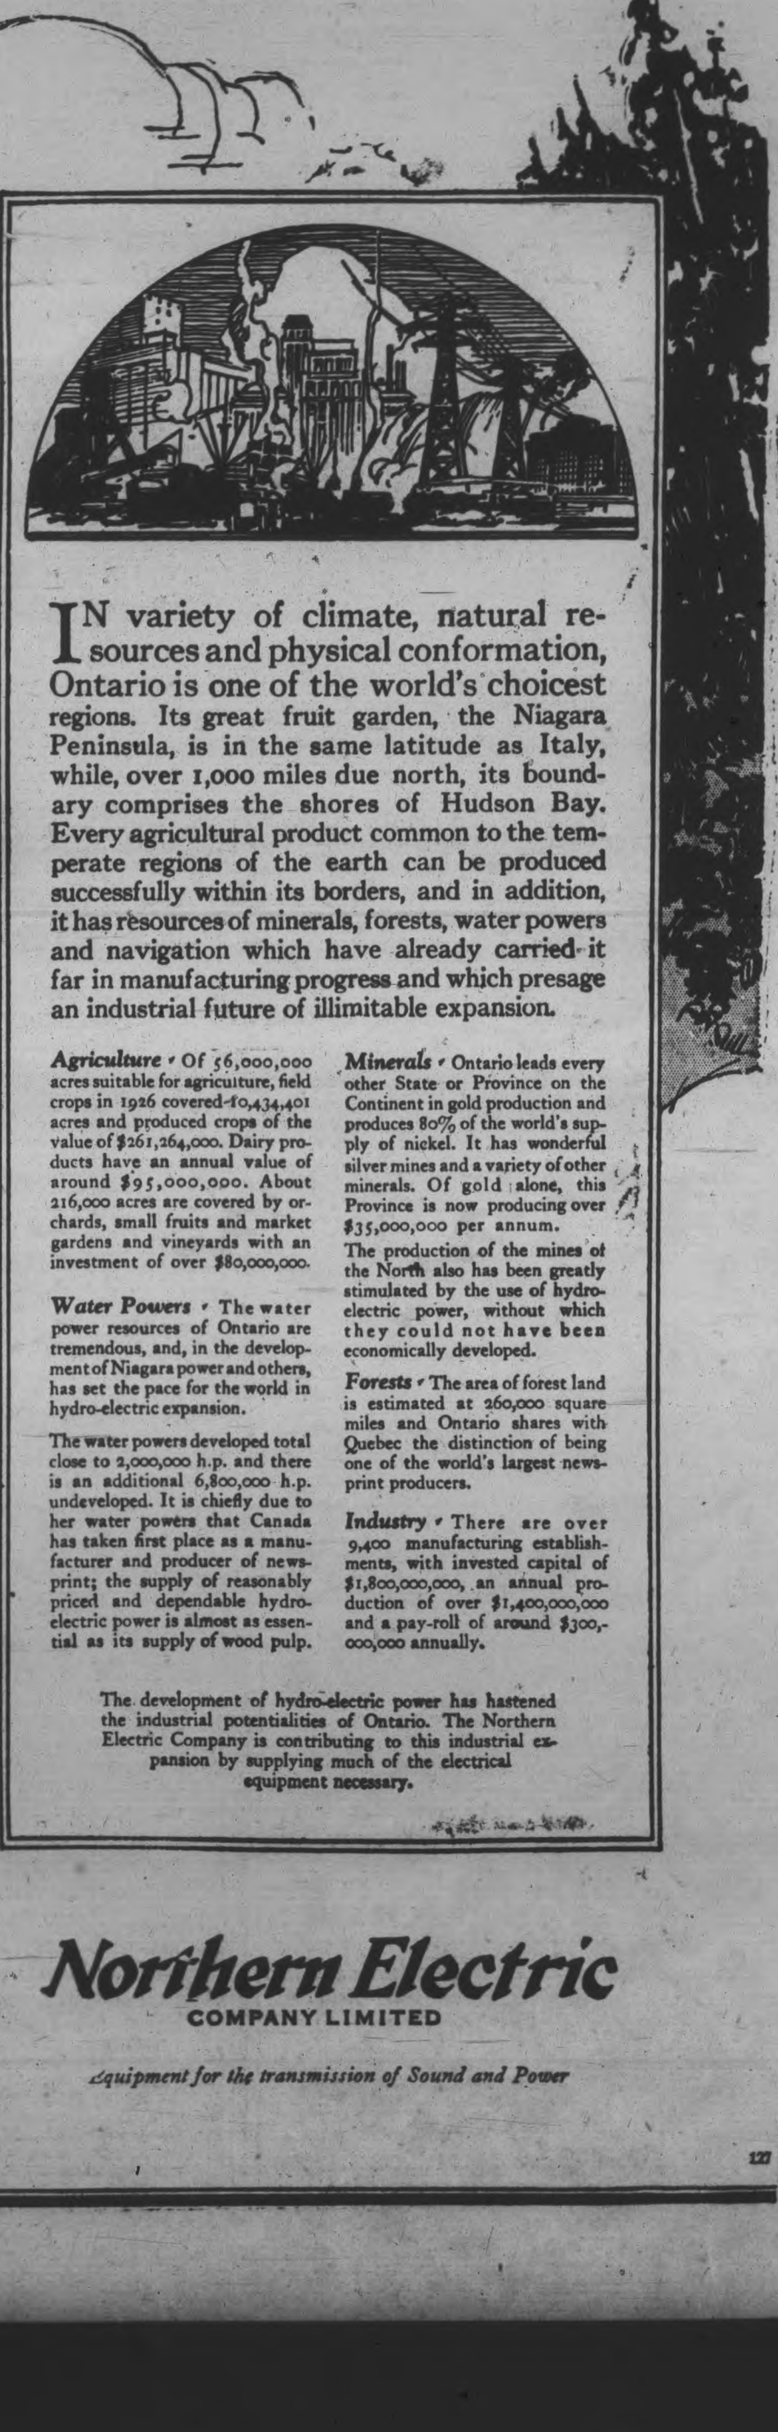
PRINCE OF WALES

ONTARIO



IN variety of climate, natural resources and physical conformation, Ontario is one of the world's choicest regions. Its great fruit garden, the Niagara Peninsula, is in the same latitude as Italy, while, over 1,000 miles due north, its boundary comprises the shores of Hudson Bay. Every agricultural product common to the temperate regions of the earth can be produced successfully within its borders, and in addition, it has resources of minerals, forests, water powers and navigation which have already carried it far in manufacturing progress and which presage an industrial future of illimitable expansion.

Agriculture - Of 56,000,000 acres suitable for agriculture, field crops in 1926 covered 10,434,401 acres and produced crops of the value of $261,264,000. Dairy products have an annual value of around $95,000,000. About 216,000 acres are covered by orchards, small fruits and market gardens and vineyards with an investment of over $80,000,000.

Water Powers - The water power resources of Ontario are tremendous, and, in the development of Niagara power and others, has set the pace for the world in hydro-electric expansion.

The water powers developed total close to 2,000,000 h.p. and there is an additional 6,800,000 h.p. undeveloped. It is chiefly due to her water powers that Canada has taken first place as a manufacturer and producer of newsprint; the supply of reasonably priced and dependable hydro-electric power is almost as essential as its supply of wood pulp.

Minerals - Ontario leads every other State or Province on the Continent in gold production and produces 80% of the world's supply of nickel. It has wonderful silver mines and a variety of other minerals. Of gold alone, this Province is now producing over $35,000,000 per annum.

The production of the mines of the North also has been greatly stimulated by the use of hydro-electric power, without which they could not have been economically developed.

Forests - The area of forest land is estimated at 260,000 square miles and Ontario shares with Quebec the distinction of being one of the world's largest newsprint producers.

Industry - There are over 9,400 manufacturing establishments, with invested capital of $1,800,000,000, an annual production of over $1,400,000,000 and a pay-roll of around $300,000,000 annually.

The development of hydro-electric power has hastened the industrial potentialities of Ontario. The Northern Electric Company is contributing to this industrial expansion by supplying much of the electrical equipment necessary.

Information

This announcement appears in the press throughout Canada this month. An outline of Quebec's contributions to the national wealth and resources will be published during July.

PETERBOROUGH SENT 220 MEN TO REPEL RAID

Only Six Survive of Those Who Marched Away in 1866.

BATTLE OF RIDGEWAY.

Combat Impressed Fenians With Pluck of Canadian Volunteers.

Sixty-one years ago two hundred and twenty men, forming four companies, left the Town of Peterborough to fight the Fenians, who were then raiding Canada.

In 1877 seventy-five men answered the roll of honor, and today there remain but six in this city of those gallant four companies of volunteers who fought in the Battle of Ridgeway.

The Roll
Col. J. W. Miller
R. Tivey.
H. Nesbitt.
G. Stenton.
Alex. Fitzgerald.
J. D. Collins.

The Fenians were Irish—or supposed to be—who organized first as raiding parties in England in sympathy with the struggle in Ireland for responsible government and home rule. This Fenian movement spread to the United States, but their numbers were altogether insufficient for extensive operations and the prevailing sentiment in United States was against them.

In the Spring of 1866, just when the leaders of Upper and Lower Canada were doing their best to bring about Confederation, the Fenian movement in the States became divided into two parties—one under James Stevenson, who wished to confine their operations towards the proposed freedom of Ireland; the other led by Sweeney, who advocated advancing Irish interests by making raids on Canada.

In the first week of June, 1866, a body of 900 Fenians, well armed, —many of them veterans of the American Civil War—crossed the Niagara River and landed near Fort Erie. They were commanded by Col. O'Neil, took possession of Fort Erie, destroyed stores and whiskey shops, pulled up railway tracks, burnt bridges, cut telegraph wires, and levied forced requisitions on the inhabitants for rations. The call to arms followed this invasion and Peterborough sent to the front one of the best equipped ad soldierly battalions of the day; the men of which stood uniformed and armed ready for transportation the morning after the order to move to the front had arrived. Much of the credit for this quick response was due to Lieutenant Strickland.

In Toronto 600 men mustered to the call to arms; Hamilton sent the 13th Battalion. Major-General Napier ordered out the regulars stationed at Toronto, Hamilton, and along the Niagara frontier.

The Peterborough Veterans of '65, when they flew to arms to help repulse the Fenian Raids, numbered 220 men divided into four companies of 55 men each:

No. 1 Company, from the County, commanded by Captain Poole.

No. 2 Company, Peterborough Town, commanded by Captain Kennedy.

No. 3 Company, Ashburnham, commanded by Captain N. C. Rogers.

No. 4 Company, Lakefield, commanded by Captain Strickland.

These four companies were formed at Colborne, with companies from elsewhere, into a Provisional Battalion, under the late Lt.-Col. Williams of Port Hope, under whom they fought in the raid.

Following the Fenians' Raid these gallant Peterborough volunteers were mobilized in 1867 as the 57th Battalion (County) with three more companies added—from Bobcaygeon, Keene and Norwood—under the command of Lieut.-Col. Poole.

The Volunteer Corps

The Volunteer Corps, under command of Lieut.-Col. Booker, was despatched to Port Colborne to protect the Welland Canal, and there Booker learned that the Fenian force at Fort Erie was smaller than had been reported, was absolutely demoralized by drinking and plundering and in fact was a thoroughly undisciplined body offering tempting material for an easy victory. He therefore ignored the commands of his superior officer, Col. George Peacocke of the 15th Regiment of regulars, whom history records as lacking a knowledge of the country and having a disdain for the counsels of colonials. Peacocke did not approve of Booker's plans to attack, so he in deference to his superior officer took his troops by train as far as Ridgeway station, leaving Port Colborne an hour before the arranged time. His advanced guard soon encountered the outposts of O'Neil's army, and they immediately attacked, thinking that Peacocke with his regulars must be close at hand. They did not realize that Booker's leaving Port Colborne a hour before he was commanded to do so had upset the plans of Peacocke.

In the attack the volunteers repulsed the enemy's outposts and first line, but Peacocke failed to arrive and the enemy poured a hot fire on the volunteers. Booker heard a rumor of Fenian cavalry approaching and formed his men into a square which made an excellent target for the enemy rifles. On noticing the mistake, Major Gilmour attempted to form into line, but somewhat of a panic ensued; the rear companies fell back in disorder and the command was given to retreat. The Fenians failed to follow up this advantage or more disastrous results might have come to the volunteers. The Canadians' loss was one officer and eight men killed, six officers and twenty-six men wounded. This engagement practically ended the raid for O'Neil, awed by the pluck of the volunteers and near presence of regular forces, abandoned his attempt on the Welland Canal and withdrew to the States.

The association of '66 was organized about 1877, with a membership of 75, which has been reduced in the natural order of things to six living members today.

I.O.D.E. HONORS KINGSTON LADY

FOR GREAT SERVICE.

WINNIPEG, June 10 (Canadian Press). — Honoring the great service she had rendered during recent years, Miss W. Gordon of Kingston was presented with life membership in the National Chapter of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire at the conclusion of her report on the war memorial fund of the Order last night to the delegates to the 27th annual convention of the National Chapter. The presentation was proposed by Mrs. Graham Thompson of Toronto and Mrs. A. J. Hughes of Winnipeg and unanimously approved by the 200 delegates and members present. Miss R. M. Church, National President, made the presentation, pinning the coveted honor on Miss Gordon's dress and congratulating her on behalf of the National Chapter on her signal services to the Order.

Miss Gordon, in accepting the honor stated that she particularly appreciated receiving it in Winnipeg, because it was the city of her birth and the object of many of her cherished memories. This honor, coming to her in Winnipeg, made it doubly grateful. Miss Gordon's report covered the whole of the war memorial fund activities from their inception till the present time.

CUSTOMERS VISIT STOCK'S BAKERY

Visitors See Preparation of Bread From Start To Finish.

Over five hundred customers of Stocks Bread Company made an inspection under the direction of salesmen of the bread factory last night. This made the third tour for the week. There were about seven hundred visitors for the two preceding nights.

Beginning at the main office, the visitors were taken to the main shop and shown how their "staff of life" is developed from the various ingredients into the fine loaf that is delivered to the home. A flour elevator was shown that conveys the flour from the storeroom to the second storey, where a truck receives it and carries it to the blender or sifter which is a special contrivance for the elimination of any dirt, thus ensuring perfect cleanliness of the ingredients which go into the product.

Water that goes into the bread must first go into a tempering tank which heats or cools the water to the exact temperature. Then comes the dough divider, a machine that cuts the huge lumps of dough into exactly the right size. A 28 ounce lump of dough makes a 24 ounce loaf of bread. The divider cuts off 45 pieces a minute. These loaves are then placed into a proofer holding 400 loaves. From this proofer the loaves drop through a chute to the main floor once more, the chute having a capacity of 3,600 loaves an hour if necessary. Bakers waiting at the foot of the chute receive the dough and place it in pans which go on a rack and are then conveyed into a steam proofer. After a short time the racks are brought from this proofer and placed in the ovens. It takes one man only thirty seconds to load or unload 360 loaves of bread from these racks.

After the bread is allowed to cook fifty minutes, the racks are wheeled into a large cooling room, and then taken by the shipper to the shipping room.

The visitors were then taken to the wagon shed and the horse barn. They were quite surprised to learn that the drivers have nothing to do with the care of the horses; a special stableman attending to the animals.

Following the inspection, refreshments were served by the office staff to the visitors, who expressed themselves as being delighted with the opportunity of seeing through this modern, sanitary bakery.

LEGION NOTES

At a meeting of the Executive committee of the local branch held last evening it was decided to take part in the jubilee celebrations to be held on July 1st, 2nd and 3rd.. A committee consisting of the president, vice-presidents, Comrades Doug. Fletcher and Reg. Turner was appointed with full power to make plans for the entering of a float representing some phase of the Great War.

It was also decided that in common with all industries and merchants, in declaring a holiday, that following the parade the Canadian Legion rooms should be closed for the remainder of the day.

The question of the annual Decoration Sunday parade was left over temporarily, awaiting a reply from the committee of the I.O.O.F. relative to a joint parade. Definite announcements as to dates, etc., will be made in the course of a few days.

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, the picture taken of the memorial parade held on Thursday evening last, at which the delegates of the Provincial Convention of the Canadian Legion took part, will be shown at the Capitol Theatre. Members of the Legion and ex-service men will no doubt be glad to take this feature in.

During the period of these celebrations all merchants having flags are kindly requested to display them, and those not having any, may obtain them by applying to the secretary, who will be pleased to look after their requirements.

Dead Man's Button Prevents Bad Wreck

BROOKLYN, N.Y., June 10. — (United Press).—The "dead man's button" stopped a Manhattan-bound ten car I.R.T. subway express yesterday and prevented a possible underground train wreck.

Motorman William Holmes fainted in his cab and slipped to the floor, but as he did so his hand dropped from the "dead man's button" which must be conveniently pressed down in operating the train. The passengers were jostled when the brakes slammed on and the train abruptly stopped. Another trainman brought it to the Nevins Street Station, where Holmes, who said he "must have eaten something," was revived.

JUBILEE PARADE NEEDS MORE ROOM

Necesary To Clear George Street as Far North as Smith Street.

The size of the Diamond Jubilee parade has made it necessary to increase the area which will be entirely barred to vehicles of all kinds on July 1st from noon until after the parade has passed. No cars, buggies, bicycles etc., will be permitted on George street from Smith street to King street. The streets will be cleared at noon as the parade is to start at one o'clock.

The corners will be guarded by soldiers from the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons, under authority from Major Fred Hills, and policemen. Drivers finding it absolutely necessary to cross the street during the parade, will be permitted to go through between sections, but will not be allowed to break a column or turn into George street.

Below King Street on George street, cars will be permitted to park on both sides of the street but will not be allowed to pass up and down during the parade. On Hunter, Charlotte and Simcoe streets, cars must not stand so as to block the crossings, as the firemen might need to go through.

Spectators are asked to cooperate in the arrangements being made for their benefit by staying on the sidewalks, and not blocking the cross-streets or stepping out into George street.

KILLS HIS FATHER, PASTOR AND SELF

Motive of Walter Doering, 27, For Triple Crime, Is Not Known.

SHEBOYGAN, Wis., June 10.—Rev. William Wamsbganss, pastor of the German Lutheran Church, and Frank Doering, Sr., were shot and killed here yesterday by Walter Doering, 27, the latter's son, who then ended his own life. An investigation has so far failed to establish a motive.

Doering, 62, was the father of ten children, and the Rev. Wambsganss the father of twelve children.

The slayer shot his two victims in the temple with a .32 calibre revolver. Mrs. Doering said she sent Walter on an errand shortly before noon, and then went into the basement. There she found her husband's body. The son returned from the errand to be told of his father's death. While police investigated, the youth rode his bicycle, despite a paralyzed leg, to the home of the pastor, where he asked for a private audience.

The minister left the dinner table and escorted young Doering into his study. No shots were heard, but when the minister failed to return to the dinner table, his son Paul went after him, and found him shot through the head. Young Doering's body was a few feet distant. There was no evidence of a scuffle.

Wheat Prices Go Up When Report Is Issued

CHICAGO, June 10 (Canadian Press). — Wheat prices went up with a rush to-day. Big general buying resulted, because of the radical bullish showing of the Government crop report, but heavy profit-taking sales caused a reaction from top figures. Opening at 2⅞ cents to 4¼ cents advance, wheat scored some further gains before setbacks began. Corn quickly turned downward after an initial rise, starting ½ to 1⅝ cents up and later going well below yesterday's finish. Oats were firmer. Provisions made a decided advance.

Opening prices were: Wheat, July 150¼; September, 147⅝. Corn, July 100⅛, September 103. Oats, July, 49⅝, September 48⅜.

Irregularities Continue; New York Opening Weak

NEW YORK, June 10 (Canadian Press). — Confused price movements continued to sweep through to-day's Stock Market, but generally the market sold off sharply during the morning and made an irregular recovery during the afternoon. Extensive readjustment of speculative accounts took place in preparation for the double holiday this week-end.

Call money renewed at 4½ per cent, and again dropped to 4 with funds in plentiful supply. The decrease of 405,101 tons in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation, bringing them to the lowest level in years, apaprently had been discounted as the stock held steady.

Early selling of rails was in sympathy with the break in Baltimore and Ohio on the announcement of new stock financing at $107.50 per share. Rails gathered strength in the afternoon when a stroag buying movement appeared in Seaboard Air Line Common and Preferred, which were quickly bid up 4 and 2 points respectively.

Brazilian Only Stock Active In Toronto To-day

TORONTO, Ont., June 10 (Canadian Press). — Brazilian Traction was the feature of the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day, and the issue saved the market from being absolutely dormant. While a wide range of issues was dealt in, there were no outstanding stocks with the exception of the South American issue. Brazilian established a new high point at 165, a gain of 4½ points from yesterday's closing prices, in reasonably heavy dealing. City Dairy, a local issue, also registered the same gain at 121, but in much lighter trading. British Columbia fishing was up ¾ at 18, Davies A declined ½ at 40¾. International Nickel was down ⅝ at 69¾, Massey-Harris dropped ¼ at 38¼, and Seagrams was down ⅝ at 25. On the unlisted side Northern Bakeries gained ¾ at 31¾. Brewers and Distillers was up ¼ at 5¼, and British-American Oil dropped 1 at 24¼. The new issue, Foothills Oil, appeared on the board to-day, and at the noon recess was selling at 2.79 after touching 2.90 shortly after the opening.

Business Heavy To-day; Mine Prices Hold Firm

TORONTO, Ont., June 10 (Canadian Press). — Business was fairly heavy on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day, with prices holding steady. Total sales amounted to 380,214 shares. Algonquin gained ¼ at 4, Area was down ½ at 41½, Barry Hollinger gained ½ at 33½, and Consolidated West Dome Lake was up ⅝ at 7½. Corona declined ⅝ at 15, while Grover Daly was 2½ lower at 11. Kirkland Lake was weak, selling down 4 at 138. Tough Oakes Burn was up 2 at 56. Amulet, on the unlisted side, was 2 lower at 193.

AIRPLANES AND LAND INSPECTED

Flight-Lieut. Brooks Finds Local Airdrome and Machines Satisfactory.

ISSUING PERMIT.

Flight Lieutenant Brooks, acting for the Controller of Civil Aviation, was in the city yesterday to inspect the flying field preparatory to granting a permit to Captain Ayres, the local flier, for the airdrome and for the equipment. Lieutenant Brooks made a complete inspection of the planes and the flying field, expressing his satisfaction concerning the safety of the equipment. The permits issued are for the purpose of private flying and private landing grounds.

In speaking to The Examiner this morning, Captain Ayres remarked that the enrollment for the flying course is increasing daily, and that students as far away as Victoria, B.C., and Gaspe, P.Q., have signed up. He remarked that flying was going to be the thing in the future, not only in the larger cities, but in the smaller towns and villages. The planes in the local airdrome are equipped with dual control, or controls from both seats, and inter-telephone system, allowing the teacher to converse with the student while teaching the course.

SYRACUSE WINS 9-3

NEW YORK, June 10. — Canadian Press. — Piling up a three run lead in the first with the aid of a walk, an error and a home run, by Lamotte, the Toronto Leafs easily took the first game of the series from the Orioles at Baltimore, 6 to 4. A rally in the third featured by Porter's homer with one on, netted the locals three tallies.

Syracuse took the first game of the series at Jersey City by a score of 9 to 3. The Skeeters scored two runs in the first frame but the Stars tied it up in the fourth and then went out and won in the sixth and eighth frames.

Horn's airtight pitching gave the Rochester club the first game of the series at Newark by the score of 9 to 2. Horn held the Newark Club to three scratch hits, and outside of three innings retired the side in order. Newark used three pitchers, Cheves, Walkup and Williams, and they all looked the same to Rochester.

Allan Russell bested Walter Leverenz in a pitching duel at Reading, and Reading took the first of the series from Buffalo, 3 to 2. Each team got seven hits. Russell's stick helped the Keys to win, his double and single driving across two runs.

YANKS OVERCOME WHITE SOX LEAD

Down Chicago for Third Consecutive Time by Score 8-3.

NEW YORK, June 10.— (Canadian Press.)—Presenting a strong offensive in the seventh inning, the New York Yankees again overcame an early Chicago lead yesterday and downed the White Sox for the third consecutive time, by 8 to 3. Blankenship was knocked out of the boy in the seventh and Cole relieved him. Moreheart hit Cole's first pitch for a home run, driving in two runners. Ruth followed with a triple and stole home. Six runs were scored in the inning.

Pennock steadied after the early innings and won his sixth game of the season. The Athletics won their fourth consecutive game and their third in a row from the St. Louis Browns at Philadelphia by a score of 9 to 3. The Mackmen hit Nevers hard from the start but could not bunch their blows effectively until the fifth and sixth innings when they hit him for four runs that broke a 1-1 tie. The Athletics collected a total of 16 hits. Every man on the team taking at least one safety. Walberg pitched a strong game and was helped by fast fielding.

Came From Behind.

Four-run rally in the ninth inning at Boston brought Detroit from behind and enabled the Tigers to defeat Boston, 6 to 4. Singles by Bassler, Warner and Gehringer, together with an error by Regan and Fothergill's sacrifice fly accounted for the final inning runs. Fothergill had a perfect day at bat with a home run, a double and two singles as well as his sacrifice fly. Catches by Hanush and Shaner were fielding features.

Hammering the veteran Walter Johnson for six hits in five innings, the Indians won from the Senators at Washington, 7 to 1. Jamieson opened the game with a triple, Burns walked and both scored on Joe Sewell's double. Cleveland added four more in the fourth on Hodapp's triple, singles from Joe Sewell and Jamieson's sacrifice fly after Summa had been hit by a pitched ball. Uhle was steady on the mound, allowing the Senators five hits.

The postponed Holloway Soccer Charity Cup final tie will be played tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon at King Edward Park. Kick off at 3 o'clock. Johnny Ward will be in charge of the game.

The Phelan Charity Cup holders—Masseys—will choose their team before the match. Every player is requested to be at the pavilion no later than 2.45 p.m., so as to be in readiness for the scheduled kick-off.

A collection will be taken up on behalf of the Injured Players' Fund. The purpose of such an asset is to prevent any club player becoming a liability in any shape or form.

Quaker team is as follows: Edgar, goal; S. Maker and H. Curtis, backs; A. Maker, J. Wade and Carmichael, halves; W. Curtis, A. Wilson, Mitchell, T. Wilson and Foster, forwards. Reserves: F. Honor, Walker and T. Williams.

Race Horse Killed At Latonia Track

LATONIA, Ky., June 10 (Canadian Press).—Gloria Aspin was killed and Jockey G. Fowler was injured when the horse was forced through the fence in the running of the fourth race at the Latonia race track yesterday.

The horse was owned by J. P. Heamley. She was instantly killed and Jockey Fowler suffered a cut on the head and probable internal injuries.

W. J. SALMON'S FILLY WINS SENATE PURSE

Black Friar Leads Second Day's Races at Connaught Park.

CONNAUGHT PARK, Que., June 10 (Canadian Press).—W. J. Salmon's Black Friar fulfilled the hopes of a very considerable portion of the form followers in the second day of racing here, when it won the Senate Purse, at five furlongs for two-year-old maidens. Always in a contending position, the winner raced Ella Rufus into submission in the drive home with Omar's Double third.

The Connaught Park Jockey Club furnished a good day's racing for other six events were all claiming races, there were keen battles in every one. The talent was upset in the second when Eggnog got well away in the six furlong dash and was never headed. Sniper furnished another surprise in the third race when it just nosed out Cast Bay. The public had fancied Firedog which was not in the money. Saratoga Maje was just good enough to beat the favorite long point in the fourth at five and a half furlongs. Brotherhood, picked by many handicappers as the best bet of the day led all the way to win the fifth, a mile and a sixteenth. Sir Glen, always ahead, beat the favorite Ranock by a neck in the sixth, a mile and a sixteenth. Golden Glen, a second choice, was seventh. The weather was splendid and the attendance was slightly larger than the day before.

It has been said that a coxswain can easily lose a boat race. That is no exaggeration, for even minor errors of steering over the regatta course may mean the loss of two or three lengths. For the same reason, given two crews of approximately the same pace, a coxswain can be the winning factor.

Helen Wills Sets Record on Courts

BECKENHAM, England, June 10 (A.P.).—Helen Wills' 6—0, 6—0, victory over "Billie" Tapscott, of South Africa, in 18 minutes by the clock in the Kent County lawn tennis championships yesterday, is heralded as a performance surpassing anything that Suzanne Lenglen, France's famous star, ever achieved.

Suzanne at her best never beat this time record and British critics declare that the French girl never approached the variety and power of strokes by means of which it was achieved. Miss Tapscott, who is considered about the quickest and smartest mover over ground that women's tennis has produced, was flung out of the picture with drives of a pace and accuracy, both forehand and backhand, that almost beat the eyes of the spectators.

In the first set Miss Wills lost ten points, including three by double faults and one by what was considered a bad decision. In the second set she lost eight points, one by a double fault.

GIANTS LEAD PIRATE SERIES

ROBINS DEFEATED

NEW YORK, June 10. — Canadian Press. — New York slugged out a 12 to 1 victory over the Pirates at Pittsburgh yesterday to take the leg on on the present series by two games to one. Joe Bush started hurling for the Corsairs but lasted long enough to fill the bases with none out, and Yde, his successor, had no stuff to carry him through, the Giants taking a four-run lead. Yde was chased out under a six run splurge in the fourth, Cvengros finishing. Fitzsimmons kept eight blows well scattered and received fine support from his Giant mates. Roush hit for the circuit with one on in the sixth.

Chicago made it three in a row from Brooklyn by driving Jess Petty off the hill at Chicago in an eighth inning rally to win out by 4 to 3. After the Robins had blasted Osborn out of the pen in their half of the eighth to take the lead, Petty was unable to hold the advantage. Beck started the southpaw's downfall with a walk. Wilson singled to bring Beck in with the tying run and after Wilson stole second Stephenson slapped a hit to right, Wilson registering with the deciding tally.

Cards Defeat Braves.

Jess Haines held the Boston Braves to seven hits at St. Louis and the Cardinals won 6 to 1. The Cardinals landed on Robertson for eight hits in the first four innings. Lester Bell got a triple and a double. Jonn Schulte, Cardinal catcher, suffered a slight concussion of the brain when hit by a bat which slipped from the hands of Watty Holm, in batting practice prior to the game.

The Reds worked seven hits handily against 15 singles for Philadelphia to stage a nip and tuck fight at Cincinnati. Wrightstone broke it up in the ninth with a triple to give Philadelphia a 6 to 5 verdict. A rally in the fifth inning featured by a double steal in which Dressen made the plate safely gave the Reds four runs to tie, the count. Philadelphia scored again in the sixth and then two Philadelphia errors and a walk filled the bases for Willoughy and a long drive by Dressen again tied the score.

BYAM FOX FARM STOCK INCREASES

Millbrook Breeder Has Eleven Young Foxes in Two Litters.

MILLBROOK, June 10.—There are eleven fox puppies, comprising two litters of six and five respectively, at the "Midnight" ranch this season, J. L. Byam owning and carrying on this ranch at his property on Bank street.

Seven mated pairs of registered foxes make up the rest of the stock, besides one pair Mr. Byam is ranching for a purchaser who is not yet ready to claim his property.

Last fall Mr. Byam pelted some of his stock including one dog fox which had become rather too cross for management. The pelts were sent to the fur sale at Montreal, and all but one extra fine skin which was sent on to London, England, and from there to an annual fur sale in Germany where it was finally disposed of. Mr. Byam has not yet received full financial returns as the sale in Germany took place last March.

The size of the pens at the "Midnight" ranch entails a cost approximating $75; the owner aims eventually to have ten mated pairs of pure-bred silver foxes permanently on his property, and is making progress toward that goal as returns warrant further purchases. The additional young each year will be disposed of either by sale, exchange, or pelting.

If a mother fox fails to feed her young a cat, deprived of its kittens, may be brought into service, and this explains why so many cats are always kept at fox ranches. This year at the "Midnight" ranch the vixens looked after the new puppies in their respective families, but two years ago a mother cat had to adopt a family of four young pups. The initial year of Mr. Byam's venture a litter was lost through failure to understand that the mother fox will sometimes refuse to feed her young.

Mr. Byam and his son, Will, take advantage of the hunting season to help in supplying the foxes' 'dinner table' with fresh meat, groundhogs being one item which meets with favor on the 'bill of fare.'

FRIDAY TOURNEYS WELL CONTESTED

Great Demand for Places in Weekly Bowling Event.

The crowds of bowlers that are meeting every Friday night for a tournament on the Brock street green are growing each week and surpass any attendance records for previous years. In fact, the increase in the number of bowlers caused some witty person to remark that a new switchboard was needed at the club-house to answer the requests that came in for a place in these Friday night tournaments.

The Executive intends to make this green very popular to old and new members this season, and to offer the best of prizes to the winners of the tournaments. There will be the usual tournament this Friday night and a big crowd of members is expected to be on hand. A hearty invitation is extended to any visiting bowlers of the city and any of the older members.

The greens are in perfect condition, and the draw will be made on Friday night at 7.30 p.m. sharp.

TRENCH MOUTH

So many patients have been coming to me recently who have been told by their dentists that they must have all of their teeth extracted because they are suffering from Trench Mouth. Many of these patients have been able to save their teeth under the proper treatment with dietetics and also with certain local treatments to the mouth.

This disease somewhat resembles pyorrhea, but the micro-organism which is the immediate cause is a different one than that present in pyorrhea. This little bacterial growth forms around the gums and grows back of them, causing absorption of the alveolar process with a loosening of the teeth.

In looking for the fundamental cause of the disorder it is well to note that it was first called under the name of "Trench Mouth" during the World War. Why do you expect so many soldiers suffered from this trouble? Is not the answer simple enough? It was obviously because the food the soldiers were obliged to use was of an inferior quality and did not contain the necessary organic salts and vitamins; and also the "heavy" foods which the soldiers used were always mixed in improper combinations which, of course, resulted in the whole army suffering from stomach trouble caused by hyper-acidity.

Coffee, beans, and bread is a bad enough combination for anyone to use when surrounded by all the comforts of their home, but when the soldiers, subjected to exposure and weariness, and with a mind wrought up with hatred toward the enemy—is it any wonder that these men developed such troubles as Pyorrhea and Trench Mouth?

Those people who develop it at the present time can blame their trouble upon the use of bad food combinations and the use of devitalized white flour products. I am giving you this reason for it, but there is no excuse for anyone, living in this enlightened age, to go on eating as carelessly as our soldiers were fed. There might have been some excuse during the stress of war when our Government did not find the time to select capable dietetians to direct the feeding of the soldiers, but this excuse does not exist with you who are reading this article.

Learn food chemistry and know what foods to select—then call your grocer and butcher and order exactly what you know you should use.

Study these articles daily and read every book you can on the subject of dietetics. If you are now suffering from pyorrhea or Trench Mouth, correct your bad eating habits at once and go to some competent dentist who can treat your mouth to get rid of the local conditions which are present. Search for a dentist who has an ultra-violet light equipment. He can treat your gums and in a few treatments kill off all of the bacteria which are harmful. Between these treatments he will advise you to use certain medicinal preparations which keep the gums bacteria-free while you are correcting your faulty eating habits.

FIGHT FOR FIRST PLACE IN LEAGUE

Belmonts and Lockworks Meet at Central Park To-night.

All softball fans should be on hand at Central Park tonight to see the Belmonts and Lockworks fight it out for first place in the group. Neither team has lost a game and both are considered to be Taylor Cup winners. The result of tonight's game will be watched closely by the fans of the city.

No two better teams have been turned out in this city since softball was organized, and everybody is assured of a great battle.

ALL CANADA DAY EXCURSION, JUNE 15TH, BELLEVILLE, ETC. TO ROCHESTER AND RETURN

Citizens of Eastern Ontario are invited to visit Rochester on Wednesday, June 15th, with the "Big Four" Clubs out of Belleville. The Canadian National Railways have named special rates from Belleville, Trenton, Colborne, Brighton and Cobourg, and Canadian National Railways' special train will leave Belleville (South Station) 7.00 A.M., Standard Time, stopping en route at the points mentioned above. Canadian National Railways (Ontario Car Ferry) special steamer will leave Cobourg dock at 8.30 A.M., Standard Time for a beautiful sail across Lake Ontario. This is expected to be the largest gathering ever assembled from Eastern Ontario and will fulfill the idea of an "All Canada Day" excursion. On the steamer there is plenty of music, excellent dining room service and buffet luncheon. Rochester is indeed a beautiful city, noted for its parks, gardens and driveways. "Sea Breeze" and Ontario Beach are playgrounds for everyone. There will be an international baseball game in the adjacent ball park. Plan to go, and, as ticket sale is limited to the capacity of the steamer, no time should be lost in securing tickets and full information from nearest local Agent of Canadian National Railways.

Theatres

AT THE CAPITOL.

"THE BRITISH CLIPPER."

Backward glancing to days of long ago, to the times when ladies wore crinoline and curls and carried foolish little parasols, when men were men and women were distinctly women, fainting at the slightest opportunity and adopting a haughty pose toward importunate lovers, is the feature, "The British Clipper," at the Capitol Theatre for this week-end.

This picture is very, very different to the majority of movie productions of modern days, and has the refreshing tang of unusualness and of the salt sea in its unfolding. One of the big scenes is the typhoon portrayal, when the sailing ship battles against the storm and the terror of the sea lashes it with terrific violence.

The story centres about the efforts made by Britain and the United States, in the middle of the last century, to capture the Chinese tea trade. Lord Anthony Huntington is the captain of the British ship, "Lord of the Isles," and Hal Winslow, son of a Boston shipbuilder, directs the fortunes of "The Yankee Clipper," with the forward-straining head of a feathered Indian on its forefoot. On the way to Foo Chow, the tea port of China, Lady Jocelyn Huntington accompanies her father, to marry Paul de Vigny, embroiled in an intrigue with a pretty Chinese tea-garden girl. Hal Winslow, also in Foo Chow, rescues Jocelyn from a crowd of street loafers and later discovers de Vigny's intrigue. When the two ships, spurred on by the promise of Louqua, Chinese tea merchant, that he will give his entire trade to the man making Boston Lighthouse first, leave the harbour of Foo Chow Winslow takes Lady Jocelyn and de Vigny with him. The duplicity of her suitor and his cowardice are revealed to the girl during the voyage, which is made thrilling by the storm scene and a mutiny on board, and there is a note of comedy in the acting of the tiny lad, Mickey Murphy, whose aunt's prowess with the strap has led him to run away and stow on board the ship. Mickey is a misogynist, hating women, but he comes to the rescue of the lady at a crucial moment and helps to soften the blow for Hal when the disabled "Yankee Clipper," after a game fight, limps past Boston Lighthouse a few yards behind its British rival.

It is an interesting picture, an echo from other years, when sailing ships ruled the seas, and the voyage from China to Boston, with a battle around the Horn, took three months to bring to a successful conclusion.

—JEANETTE.

AT THE REGENT.

PULSE OF SEAS CAUGHT BY FORD IN 'BLUE EAGLE'

Pounding, crashing seas— foam-crested, madly tossing waves—green, dark, angry water —a man-of-war plows its way with grim determination through the gale. Skies are sullen. Waves almost as high as the ship's masts rise and sing, giving the world a topsy-turvy look. There is the throbbing undertone of engines driving the vessel against the resisting, onrushing waves. Conflict—a struggle of man against the elements, old as the ages, but more interesting than a novel that will come fresh from tomorrow morning's printing. That is the keynote of "The Blue Eagle," a tale of the high seas, which began a three day run at the Regent last night. The picture held the audience spellbound.

Aboard the ship are men as elemental as the storms. There is an electric tenseness that hold the crew. This thing that grips them is the blood of battle, the antagonism of individuals against each other. Not mutiny —they are too old in the service for that. One of their number, huge, brawny, a living statue whose strength flows like steel beneath a sheath of supple bronze, has had his authority questioned. It has boiled itself down to a matter of fists.

Crushing blows against bodies that blaze a dull red beneath the crunching impact—hammer blows that called forth from the opposing man a greater exertion to down his opponent with one final smash—the lust to obliterate all obstacles. George D'Arcy (George O'Brien) faced his opponent and exchanged punch for punch, thrust for thrust, breath-destroying blows that drove his man back and yet further back, An opening—a swift, straight, long hard jab from the shoulder— the opponent was on the other end of it, stopping D'Arcy's fist with the point of his jaw. The chaplain steped between them and started to count. The man was out. D'Arcy's right to command him and the others would be questioned no more.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

THE WOMAN IN THE CASE

There's always a woman in the case
When men go down to some dark disgrace,
Always a woman, so they say.
When men throw honor and life away,
Always a woman; it may be so;
But for every man who has fallen low
A thousand rise to some higher place—
And there's always a woman in the case.

There's a mother back of an honored son,
There's a woman back of a Washington.
A Lincoln lives, and the world gives thanks,
But, back of a Lincoln, Nancy Hanks
Stands like an angel God has sent,
Pointing the path Lincoln went.
There's a look of his mother in Lincoln's face;
It's the look of the woman in the case.

We talk so much of the few who sin,
Forgetting the thousand men who win.
It seems it is only when weaklings fall
That we ever think of the woman at all.
We cheer the hero, applaud the great,
Who lift the banner, who serve the state;
But whenever a man has helped the race,
There was always a woman in the case.

UNITED KINGDOM BUYS LESS GRAIN

Dealers Handle Much Smaller Proportion of Wheat Shipments.

In view of the important position which Canada occupies in the import grain trade of the United Kingdom, a statement made by the chairman of Spiller's Milling and Associated Industries, Limited, at their recent annual meeting, is of direct interest to Canadian exporters: the lessening importance of the United Kingdom as compared with the Continent of Europe, in the imported grain trade, writes Mr. Harrison Watson, London, in the forthcoming issue of the Commercial Intelligence Journal. In 1922, of the total shipments to Europe, United Kingdom firms handled 45 per cent. and the Continent 55 per cent. The proportions have since steadily decreased to the disadvantage of this country, to the extent that in 1926 British firms were only associated with 28 per cent. of the imports as against the absorption by the Continent of 72 per cent.

Mr. Watson notes from his own observations that the same conditions have occurred, although to a much lesser extent, in "indent" trade. Although the United Kingdom remains an important buyer of goods of all kinds for direct shipment from Canada and other countries of production to the customers of the indent firms in overseas countries, more especially those resident within the Empire, there are definite indications that the volume of this trade has exhibited a considerable decrease since the anti-war period. The cause for this position is the increasing tendency shown by the buyers in overseas countries to purchase more and more directly from manufacturers and exporters in the country of origin, and the growing practice of the manufacturers and shippers to send over their own travellers and to appoint agents in foreign countries.

Conditions in Irish Free State.

A slight decrease in the foreign trade returns in the Irish Free State for the first three months of 1927 is reported by Trade Commissioner F. W. Fraser, Dublin, in the forthcoming issue of the Commercial Intelligence Journal. Imports for this period were £14,762,302 as against £15,449,862, and exports £8,722,246 as against £8,754,121 for the corresponding period of 1926. Clearing returns of the Dublin banks for the eighteen weeks ended April 30 declined by £1,610,900 as compared with the 1926 period. Traffic receipts of the Irish railway for the first sixteen weeks of the year decreased by £10,981 as compared with last year.

Pulp and Paper in Australia.

Definite conclusions have been reached concerning the establishment of a pulp and paper industry in Australia, writes C. Hartlett, office of the Trade Commissioner, Melbourne, in the forthcoming issue of the Commercial Intelligence Journal. The Amalgamated Zinc (De Bavay's) Limited, Melbourne, have interested themselves in this project, and a site has been located on deep water for the establishment of a very large industry. An area of about 500 square miles of forest has been secured from the Government of Tasmania for a period of ninety-nine years, and also the necessary water rights, transport facilities, and power from the Government hydro-electric plant. As a result of the investigations it has been possible to reduce the estimated cost of production of newsprint by $10 to $15 a ton, and also a reduction from 10 to 6 hours in the cooking time required in the 'sulphite process has been secured with a pronounced increase in yield and quality for newsprint purposes.

Artificial Silk in Australia.

Representatives of Italian interests in artificial silk have recently been in Tasmania with a view to the establishment of the industry, writes C. Hartlett, office of the Trade Commissioner, Melbourne, in the forthcoming issue of the Commercial Intelligence Journal. The necessary arrangements have been made with English underwriters for the necessary capital which exceeds £700,000. The cost of the building and plant will be in the neighborhood of £500,000, and it is expected that the number of employees will be 2,000.

Canadian Potatoes for U. S.

Canada during the past two years has been the United States chief source of supply for imported potatoes, with over 5,000,000 bushels in 1926, writes Assistant Trade Commissioner John H. English, New York City, in the forthcoming issue of the Commercial Intelligence Journal. Potatoes represent a greater volume and value in the foreign trade of the United States than any other vegetable; 93 per cent. of the imports coming from the Dominion and 24 per cent. of the exports going there. The method of handling potatoes as a commission sales proposition is rapidly giving place to outright buying by produce companies from the farmer or shipper.

Lumber Market in Germany.

The lumber trade in Germany is at present showing greater activity after the depression earlier in the year, writes Assistant Trade Commissioner J. C. MacGillivray, Hamburg, in the forthcoming issue of the Commercial Intelligence Journal. Stocks of Douglas fir, however, are moving very slowly as this, a new wood in Germany, is largely unknown and untried. Because of the large local supply Germany will never reach the point of importance commensurate with the United Kingdom in its power of absorption. Germany has been a large user of Southern pine, which to a considerable extent is imported from the Mississippi Valley. Since for some purposes the Canadian wood makes an excellent substitute, it is possible that the market for Douglas fir will greatly increase. There is a good demand in the country for hardwoods such as ash, hickory and birch. Some Canadian figured birch and maple logs are now being imported, but the market can absorb greatly increased quantities and importers are very anxious to enter into direct connections.

Canadian Flour in Brazil.

Canadian flours which are known by brand in Brazil find a successful market, but as Brazilian bakers have little knowledge of mixing soft and hard wheat flours, it is difficult to interest them in unknown brands, writes Trade Commissioner A. S. Bleakney, Rio de Janeiro, in the forthcoming issue of the Commercial Intelligence Journal. Some Canadian millers have been mixing hard and soft wheats to obtain a brand satisfactory for the Brazilian bakers. Owing to the high temperature and humidity prevalent on this market, very dry patent flours are preferred. The daily consumption of bakers in Rio de Janeiro is approximately 1,600,000 sacks of 44 kilos each. The bakeries are as a whole very primitive, use old-fashioned machinery, and are very conservative; it is next to impossible to sell modern equipment to them.

Less than one per cent of the beef produced in the United States is exported.

CHANG ASSERTS HIS INTENTION OF HOLDING ON

Will Not Leave Peking Alive While Communist Rules Anywhere in China.

MANY ADVANCES.

LONDON, June 10. Canadian Press—Marshal Chang Tso Lin, the Manchurian war lord, is quoted by the Peking correspondent of the Daily Express, as saying that there must be an agreement between the north and south "for the sake of peace in China, which must come soon." He was not completely convinced, however, respecting the attitude of the Southerners. Chang expressed regret that foreign troops were coming to North China, because it showed that the powers distrusted him for which there was no ground. He reiterated his unalterable hostility to Bolshevism and Communism.

"I will never leave Peking alive while there is a Communist anywhere in control of affairs in China," he said. "I have received many tempting advances from the south, including Chiang Kai Shek. (Chiang is generalissimo of the Nanking, or Moderate Nationalists.)

"I believe Chiang Kaishek is opposed to Bolshevism, but I am not completely convinced. To prove his sincerity he must get rid of those Russians around him, and that poser and liar, Eugene Chen. (Chen is the leader of the Hankow, or Radical Nationalists.)

"Even then there are difficulties, because one of Chaing's terms of settlement is that I disown General Chang Tsung Chang (Civil Governor of Shangtung), and this I will never do.

"I am prepared the embrace the principles of Sun Yat Sen (the Chinese Republican leader), but I am not sure whether the Kuomintang (Nationalist) flag is the banner of Sun Yat Sen, or the symbol of communism. At any rate I am sure all who bear it are not anti-communists, and therefore it shall never fly from Peking."

Over 2,400 cars from the United States were counted on the Canadian National Exhibition Grounds in one day last year.

20 EXECUTED FOR PLOTTING AGAINST REDS

Terrorism Inspired From Abroad Cause of Sentences, Says Soviet.

PROMINENT PEOPLE.

Englishman Among Those Put To Death By Russian Government.

MOSCOW, June 10 (United Press).—Twenty Monarchists, White Guards and spies alleged to have been in the pay of foreign intelligence services, principally Great Britain, have been executed, M. Menjinski, Chief of the Soviet Political Police, announced today. Those executed included an Englishman and two Russian princes.

Menjinski alleged that some of those executed attempted the lives of four Soviet Government heads, including C. V. Tchitcherin, Foreign Minister, A. I. Rykov, president of the Union Council of People's Commissaries, and Stalin and Bukharin.

The Englishman, Sydney Riley, alleged to have been a spy, and another man, George Elvgren, who was also executed, attempted to kill Tchitcherin and others on their return from Geneva, the police said. It was alleged that they were travelling at expense of the British Government.

The executions were carried out, Menjinski announced, because those who received the death sentence had been found "working upon orders with finances of foreign intelligence services" with a view to bringing a "terroristic and destructive struggle" against the Soviet Government.

Three of those executed were alleged to have been agents or spies for British Charge d'Affaires Hodgson—Vladimir Evreinov, Nicola Koropenko and Sergei Masurinkol. Two others, Malevich Malevsky and Alexander Skalsky, were alleged to have been in the British Intelligence Service, the latter as an agent, and Solomon Gurevich was alleged to have attempted to take the lives of Stalin, Rykov, and Bukharin.

The two princes executed were Prince Dologorukov and Prince Meschersky.

LONDON, June 10 (Canadian Press).—British officials were shocked to-day by the announcement in Moscow of the execution of twenty persons charged with anti-Soviet activities, including furnishing information to the British diplomatic mission in Moscow. The mission returned to London last night, following the recent rupture of Anglo-Soviet relations. It was emphatically denied at Downing Street that the British mission in Moscow had had any relations of this nature with Russia.

It is understood here that one of the charges of espionage relates to a letter from the British Consul at Leningrad to a member of the British diplomatic mission at Moscow. The letter was a reply to inquiries from the British mission as to whether the Consul should obtain the names of any Russian firms willing to buy chemicals from British firms. The letter stated that the writer would endeavor to obtain the information asked.

The letter was intercepted by Soviet authorities, it is stated, who declare it to be connected with an attempt to obtain illicit information. A facsimile of the letter, together with the charge of espionage, appeared later on the front page of Izvestia.

Honors to Minister.

WARSAW, Poland, June 10 (Canadian Press).—Poland rendered high honors to the assassinated Soviet Minister, Peter Viokoff, as his body was taken to-day from the Soviet Legation to the railway station to be placed aboard a special train for Moscow.

The funeral cortege to-day was preceded by three companies of Polish infantry, two squads of cavalry, and two battalions of artillery. There followed two cars loaded with wreaths and flowers, mostly from Labor and Communist organizations, all bound with red ribbons. Some of these bore inscriptions such as "To the victim of the Anglo-Polish Imperialists' policy."

The coffin was nearly covered with a profusion of red flowers, sashes, and ribbons. Behind the hearse walked Madame Voikoff and her son, aged eleven. Next came the personal representative of President Moscicki and all the members of the Cabinet, with the exception of Marshal Pilsudski, who was represented by a military officer, and Foreign Minister Sealeski, who left last night for Geneva to attend the League of Nations Council.

Long before there was a United Canada the seed of the Canadian National Exhibition was sown. The first Agricultural Fair in Upper Canada was held in 1793.

PETERBORO WOMEN'S MUSIC CLUB OFFERS PRIZES FOR POEM ON "CANADA."

The Music Club, wishing to commemorate our local celebration of "Confederation" in poetry and song, offers two prizes of five and three dollars to any pupil, over twelve years of age, attending either the Collegiate or Public Schools and Seperate Schools of Peterborough, for an original poem on "Canada." The poem must consist of six stanzas of four lines each. The Rev. Mr. Wrep of Trinity Church and Rev. Mr. Gordon of St. Andrew's Church have kindly consented to act as adjudicators in selecting the two best poems. The poem winning the first prize, if suitable, will be set to music by our talented musician, Miss Agnes Logan, and sung on some public occasion by a well-known vocalist. By kind permission of The Examiner, the two prize-winning poems will also be published in its pages. We are sure there is as much budding of latent poetic talent among the young people of Peterborough as in any other city, and we hope that the subject of "Canada" will lend inspiration to the efforts of our young poets and poetesses. All poems must be sent to Mrs. Porter, 521 Gilmour Street, the Secretary of the Club, on or before Saturday, June 18th, and there must be enclosed a note from either parent or guardian certifying the poem to be the pupil's own unaided composition. dtf

PART OF CANAL WILL BE USED

Thorold Section To Be Connected To Old Welland Canal.

POSSIBLY THIS YEAR.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., June 10.—(Canadian Press).—That the section of the Welland Ship Canal between Thorold and Lake Ontario can be put in use before the end of the present season of navigation was the opinion expressed last evening by Chief Engineer Dubuc of the Department of Railways and Canals, Deputy Minister George Ball, and Chief Engineer Grant, who accompanied the Hon. Charles A. Dunning on his visit of inspection over the northern portion of the work yesterday afternoon. This means that at Lock 3 of the ship canal, where the big channel crosses the present one, the two canals will be connected and traffic diverted from Port Dalhousie to Port Weller, which harbor has already been announced as a shelter for boats.

SIX DROWNED DURING SQUALL

Fishing Boats Upset on Lake Near St. Paul's, Minn.

MANY RESCUED.

ONAMIA, Minn., June 10 (Canadian Press).—Huge waves, lashed up by a sudden squall, claimed the lives of five men and one woman who were fishing in Lake Mille Lacs, near Gussison, thirty miles north of here, last night. A dozen other persons were rescued in heroic life saving work. Those drowned were John "Buck" McKay, proprietor of a road house near St. Paul; John McKenzie, former policeman of St. Paul; William Bauer, hotel proprietor at Garrison; Mrs. Mary Miner, 21, St. Paul, and an unidentified youth.

A half dozen fishing boats were caught in the storm. They capsized when struck by waves which were described as six to ten feet high.

Persons on shore noticed the predicament of the fishermen and several set out with launches. One of the rescuers was Bauer. He brought a boat load of five safely to shore, but when he set out the second time his motorboat was swamped by a wave and after a futile attempt to swim ashore, he sank.

CHILDREN GUESTS OF HARRY LOTTERIDGE

Boys and Girls of Children's Shelter and St. Vincent's Orphanage See the Shows.

Through the courtesy of Mr. Harry Lotteridge, "All Canadian Shows," playing at the Exhibition Park this week, the boys and girls of St. Vincent's Orphanage were entertained yesterday afternoon.

The songs, music and novelty numbers were all enjoyed by the children, whose applause and loud laughter echoed through the corridors.

Bill Charlton and his Hawaiian entertainers opened up the entertainment, followed by whistling specialties and impressions by Roland Crane. A little community singing then a character recitation by Roy Charlton, were all a source of delight to the little ones. A sword box illusion by Mr. Shields, and a few stories by Jack Hennessey completed a well balanced programme. The children were then given candy and novelties supplied by Mr. Louis Yeotes, a local merchant.

This afternoon the children will be the guests of Mr. Lotteridge at the Exhibition Park, when the entire midway will be turned over to them without charge. Transportation to and from the grounds furnished by Cooney and Jopling. Each child will receive a souvenir from O. H. John's glass blowers, which will be made in their presence.

SKELETON FOUND IN DUMMER MAY BE THAT OF HENRY HUGHES MISSING SINCE SEPTEMBER, 1924

MAN WAS 74.

Investigation By Police Will Probably Follow—Disappearance Mysterious.

NORWOOD, June 11. (Special to The Examiner) —The veil of mystery which for more than two and a half years has shrouded the fate of Henry Hughes, seventy-four years old, who vanished from human ken on the evening of September 10, 1924, when he went out into the bush in search of some cows, was lifted yesterday afternoon when two men, Alec Emory and a lad named Saltren, found the skeleton of the missing man in the swamp of Centre Dummer, which was the scene of so much search in the weeks that followed the old man's disappearance.

The two men came on the remains of the unfortunate man while they were engaged in the operation of cutting pulpwood.

Although the decomposition of more than two years precluded any possibility of identification of the remains, the finders had little doubt that the gruesome relics under their gaze were those of Henry Hughes. The discovery was made near the spot where the old man was wont to go in search of his little herd, and the rubbers were turned down as was his habit in life, and just as they were on the day of his disappearance.

Up till 11 o'clock today no information was forthcoming as to whether any money was found in the clothing of the dead man.

Mrs. Hughes, now seventy-six years of age, a daughter of the late Robert Metcalfe and a sister of James Metcalfe, Asphodel, is believed to be living with a daughter in the Stoney Lake district. The couple eloped over fifty years ago.

Hundreds of men searched without success the wild country bordering the Ninth Line of Dummer, nine miles from Norwood, for the missing man in the Fall of 1924. The expert guidance of Provincial Constable N. F. Maker and the assistance of a clairvoyant near Marmora were enlisted in the effort to elucidate the mystery. The clairvoyant indeed put the seekers off the track by the statement that the body would be found in the high lands ;a prediction which was falsified by yesterday's discovery in the low-lying swamp.

How Hughes Disappeared

The last time Henry Hughes was seen was about four o'clock on Wednesday, September 10, when he left his home and walked over the knoll under which the town nestles. He was following his daily routine of bringing in the cows.

The time could not be accurately fixed, for Mrs. Hughes told The Examiner that her husband had a way of moving the hands of the clock forward an hour or so if he wanted a meal early, and she could not tell whether it was four o'clock or earlier.

Sitting on a kitchen chair in the barely furnished living-room of her home and drying her eyes occasionally with the edge of her blue apron, the old lady pathetically denied allegations that she had quarrelled with her husband. He went out in his usual way, she said, and she watched him until he was out of sight. He had no money, she thought, although he may have had $7, the proceeds of a cheque he had cashed two weeks previous to his disappearance. He did not give the money to her.

Looking back to the time recalled by the picture of her bridal party in Toronto a half a century ago, Mrs. Hughes ridiculed the idea that her husband voluntarily left her. Keen of sight and hearing, she gave the impression that she was the manager of the household, and intimated that her husband was weaker for his age than she. Not until the following day did the strain affect Mrs. Hughes' activity, but she was relieved of the housekeeping duties by a visiting daughter, Mrs. Hugh Little, Dummer, and a sister, Mrs. Herman Rosene, 690 Ross Street Peterborough.

Walked from View.

Mr. and Mrs. Hughes took up residence in their home in Dummer, nine years ago, and eked out a precarious existence from one hundred acres of boulder-strewn land, unfit for agriculture. Five cows supplied milk to sell, and a few hens scratched their meagre livelihood by the roadside. Tamarack and pine, cut by Mr. Hughes, kept the house warm in winter, and here the simple needs of the family ended.

Neighbors heard the sound of cowbells about the time Mr. Hughes reached the bush on the evening he disappeared, so he had evidently stirred some of the five head before they were allowed to wander off again without the old man to drive them. When he failed to return, Mrs. Hughes went off into the

MAPLE TREE PLANTED ON SCHOOL LAWN

ADDRESSES GIVEN

Teachers and Representatives From Each Class Aid in Planting.

A pretty and interesting ceremony was held yesterday at the Queen Alexandra School, when a maple tree was planted in commemoration of Confederation. The children were all brought out from their classes and lined up outside the school, while A. J. Madill of the Normal School took charge of the planting, assisted by F. H. Dearborn.

Teachers, speakers and Mrs. Parnell, president of the Home and School Association, and a boy and girl from each class put a shovelful of earth at the base of the tree.

Many of those present cut off twigs to be preserved as mementoes of the occasion.

Connected With Confederation.

Mr. Mowat, in his address, connected the event with the fact of Confederation, and urged the pupils to keep in mind the names of the Fathers of Confederation. Mr. Mowat expressed the hope that many of the pupils present would live to see Canada's centenary.

Made Date 20 Years Ago And Kept It To Minute

LONDON, June 11. — Two decades ago, three men made an agreement, signed in blood, to meet at Nelson Column, Trafalgar Square, at a certain minute twenty years hence. For twenty years they neither met nor wrote to each other, but they met on the minute at the appointed place. All three went through the war unscathed. The men were R. S. Collingham, H. F. Gunnell Woods, and Thomas E. Robertson.

LINDBERGH IS WELCOME HOME

Trans-Atlantic Flier Given a Great Reception at Washington.

PLANE ON DISPLAY.

WASHINGTON, June 11 (Canadian Press)—Col. Chas. A. Lindbergh came home to receive the plaudits of his fellow countrymen when the U.S.S. Memphis which brought the New York-Paris flier from Cherbourg docked at 11.34 this morning. A few minutes later Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, the aviator's mother, went aboard the cruiser to be the first person to greet her illustrious son. The formal ceremonies were scheduled to begin after the mother and son had lunched together in his stateroom. Never before had the national Capital expended so lavishly of its resources and its enthusiasm to celebrate the homecoming of a hero.

Well Guarded

Throughout his Washington stay, Lindbergh wil have a guard of fourteen motorcycle policemen about his automobile, so that his admirers can see him.

The "Spirit of St. Louis" will be placed on a navy barge surrounded by a heavy guard and anchored in the Potomac River, where people from the shore may look at it, but not touch it.

Washington telegraph offices were swamped with thousands of telegrams of congratulations. Mrs. Lindbergh received her share. Almost five full pages of advertising in tribute to Lindbergh were printed in the New York papers today.

On Monday, the aviator returns to his beloved element—the air—to fly from Washington to New York, the starting point of his flight, there to receive another great reception.

Tomorrow he plans to visit the British, French, and Belgian Embassies to pay his respects for his reception by those nations after his flight.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., June 11 (Canadian Press). — That the section of the Welland ship canal between Thorold and Lake Ontario can be put in use before the end of the present season of navigation, was the opinion expressed yesterday by Chief Engineer Dubuc, of the Department of Railways and Canals, Deputy Minister George Bell, and Chief Engineer Grant, who accompanied Hon. Chas. A. Dunning on his visit of inspection over the northern portion of the work yesterday afternoon.

BRAKE AND HEADLIGHT TEST TO FORM PART OF CAMPAIGN BY KIWANIANS FOR SAFETY

Every Motorist Will Have Opportunity To Check Up—Free of Charge.

MAYOR APPROVES.

Special Apparatus Supplied By Canadian Raybestos Company Eliminates Guess.

Every motorist realizes that the proper automobile brake adjustment is one of the vital factors of safety, and one of the responsibilities of automobile operation. In the interests of public safety, arrangements have been completed to provide every motorist in Peterborough an opportunity to have his brakes tested and inspected, free of cost, during safety week.

With the co-operation of Mayor Holloway and the local Police Department the Safety Committee of the Kiwanis Club have established a brake testing area on Water street between Simcoe street and Charlotte street.

No obligation whatever will be placed upon the motorists who submit their cars for brake inspection and test. The campaign will be conducted solely for the purpose of giving the motorists of Peterborough a chance to find out how his brakes are functioning under conditions practically and scientifically correct. Every motorist submitting a car for the test will be told whether the brakes are functioning properly or whether they are in need of adjustment, and what should be done to correct any fault found, where it is possible to determine what the fault is. At any rate the motorist is assured that definite information will be given regarding the condition of his brakes.

White lines will be painted on the pavement thirty-seven feet apart.

Each car must be driven toward one of these lines at a rate of twenty miles per hour. As the front wheels pass the first line the brakes are applied. If the car stops before the second line is passed the brakes are efficient. Separate testing lines will be provided for cars with two-wheel brakes and cars with four-wheel brakes.

Light trucks and cars that are without speedometers can also have the efficency of their brakes tested.

Through the kindness of Mr. Robt. Abbott, manager of the Canadian Raybestos Co. Ltd., the brake testing committee have the use of a brake inspection Decelerometer.

An expert mechanic will assist the committee who have charge of the testing. These men will do their work courteously and carefully. They will not recommend specific kinds of brake equipment for installation, nor will they recommend specific brake service stations, where brakes may be corrected. They will conduct the test purely in the interests of Public safety.

Remember that the tests will be made between the hours of 2 and 6 p.m. each day during Safety Week, June 13th to 18th

5 Gallons Free Gas.

To the driver of the first car found to have perfect brakes at the Brake Testing Area being opened on Water street during Safety Week by the Kiwanis Safety Committee, five gallons of British American gasoline donated by the Lillico Hughes Garage, will be given free, provided the car has been run at least three thousand miles.

Free brake testing each afternoon during Safety Week between the hours of two and six p.m.

Experts to Test Headlights.

In an effort to have the lights of every automobile given a thorough safety test, the Safety Committee of the Kiwanis Club, with the cooperation of the Peterborough Automobile Trades, will conduct a Headlight Testing Campaign.

A testing stand will be built on the market square which will enable the committee to give every car a test, scientifically correct in every detail. R. H. Parsons has kindly consented to survey the ground and fix the position of the testing line exactly 42 inches (the legal distance) above the level upon which the car stands.

Two expert mechanics will be on duty each evening of Safety Week, June 13th to 18th, between the hours of 8 and 10 p.m.

They will test and adjust the headlights of the cars submitted, and check up the candle power of the lamps.

The men will be familiar with the requirements of the Highway Traffic Act and motorists are assured that the service rendered will be of the very highest order. A certificate will be presented to the car owners whose lights have been adjusted and a small charge will be made to cover the cost of printing.

No Result Shown In Nungesser Hunt

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., June 11 (Canadian Press). — Major Sidney Cotton, who is undertaking a search in his monoplane, the Jeanne d'Arc, for the missing Nungesser plane, made a flight over Placentia Bay yesterday afternoon. Several islands, including Meresheen and Long Island, were searched without any result. Fog closing down rendered visibility very poor, and the Jeanne d'Arc returned to its base at Placentia.

FEW CHANGES IN NEW DAIL

COSGRAVE WINS

DUBLIN, June 11 (Canadian Press).—Basing their conclusion on preliminary figures thus far available from Thursday's balloting, Government quarters today expressed the belief that there would be no marked change in the political line-up of the new Dail Eirreann. Government candidates, it is said, seemed to be holding their own or to have suffered but slight decrease in votes. Attack by the Opposition against seats held by ministers seems to have failed, and already it is known that William T. Cosgrave, President of the Executive Council; Kevin O'Higgins, Minister of Justice; and Ernest Blythe, Minister of Finance, had been definitely elected.

Have Long Lead

Returns given out today show that Cosgrave has a long lead in his constituency and is assured of success.

The same is true of Kevin O'Higgins, Minister of Justice, in South Dublin. Edward Dugran, one of signatories of the treaty with Britain creating the Free State, whose seat was thought shaky, headed the poll in Meath.

Ernest Blythe, Finance Minister, is elected in Monaghan. J. J. Walsh, Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, headed the poll in Cork. There is anxiety in Government circles over the position of Peter Hughes, War Minister, who is fighting with James Murphy, another Government candidate, for a seat in Louth. Murphy is leading. Frank Aiken, formerly Republican army chief, was elected in Louth.

Alfred Byrne, Independent, scored a sensation in North Dublin with seventeen thousand first preference votes. Capt. William Redmond, son of the former Irish leader, was re-elected in Waterford. A scene occurred at Black Rock Road County Dublin, polling station. When the counting of ballots was completed the Republicans refused to leave and had to be hustled out by the police in the early morning.

JACK ELLIOTT FACES CHARGE OF MANSLAUGHTER FOR DEATH OF SEVEN YEAR OLD PLAYMATE

Jury Recommends Exoneration But Crown Attorney Points To Law.

WITNESSES HEARD.

Criminal Offence To Playfully Point Gun at Any Person.

IDA, June 11. — As a result of the evidence at the inquest into the death of Jack Seney, Jack Elliott was arrested last night and charged with manslaughter by Provincial Constable J. H. Fewtrell, of Cobourg. The inquest was held in the parish hall at Ida, and the verdict of the jury was that Jack Seney had come to his death as a result of a gunshot fired accidentally by Jack Elliott in a playful manner and without malice. The jury recommended that under the circumstances Jack Elliott be exonerated. The inquest was held before Coroner Dr. H. A. Turner of Millbrook and W. F. Kerr, K. C., of Cobourg, represented the crown.

In a case of this kind Crown Attorney Kerr was very careful in pointing out that the pointing of a gun, whether loaded or unloaded, playfully at another person, is a criminal offence and in this case a death has been the result.

Constable Harry Nattrass.

Harry Nattrass of Millbrook, was the first witness called. Mr. Nattrass is county constable, and he told of coming to the scene of the accident with the coroner, Dr. H. A. Turner, and of finding the body of the little boy lying on the floor of the kitchen. He saw a large wound on one side of the head, and he immediately called a jury.

Mother Tells her Story.

Iva Harkness Seney, wife of Merton Seney, and mother of the deceased, was the next witness called. The mother stricken with grief, broke down several times while giving her evidence. She said little John was seven years old on the fifth of April, and was in good health. He often played with Jack Elliott, and they loved each other.

Jack Elliott, witness said, came to their farm in April, 1926, and stayed until Christmas; he then left for the winter, and came back about March 15. She said she had three other children, all girls, the oldest being six and the youngest would be two in July.

Playing Peek.

On the morning of the shooting Jack Elliott went into his bedroom about eight oclock to change his clothes, and little Jack was playing peek with him through the crack in the door, which was only partly closed. She heard the shot, and Elliott said: "My God! I have killed Jack!" With that he threw himself on the bed and cried. Witness said one of the men had borrowed the gun from Jack Elliott's brother to shoot ground hogs and that it had always been unloaded after using it. They themselves did not have a gun, but great care was always taken with the borrowed one.

Merton Lorne Seney.

The father of the deceased, was then called. He told of borrowing the gun to shoot groundhogs from Clifford Elliott, brother of Jack Elliott, about six weeks before the time of the accident. The gun, which was a shotgun, was always kept in Jack Elliott's room, and on the day previous he had loaded it to shoot crows, which he thought were stealing some of his chickens, but on going to the orchard he did not see the crows, so he brought the gun back and left it in the bedroom in its usual place, forgetting to take the shell out. When asked how the boy and the hired man got along together ,he said "they loved each other." When witness, who had been summoned from the barn yard by Mrs. Seney arrived he found the boy dead.

Jack Elliott.

John Elliott the man who fired the fatal shot, is a fine looking young chap who was 19 years old last February. In his evidence he said he did not know Mr. Seney had the gun the day before and he was unaware of it being loaded on the day of the accident. The gun was never left loaded, and he and the boy had played with it before. Witness then told of how the accident occurred. While changing his clothes Jack was poking a tape through the crack in the door, and was pushing it open. This play continued for about five minutes, when he picked up the gun and while in the action of poking the barrel at him he pulled the trigger as he had done several times before, when playing with the boy.

—When asked by Crown Attorney Kerr what then happened, the witness commenced to cry, and said: "The gun went off, and when the smoke cleared away little Jack was lying on the floor with evidences of blood around his head."

Witness said there was no truth in the report that he said to Jack before the shooting, "Go out or I will shoot you."

Constable J. H. Fewtrell.

Provincial Constable Fewtrell told of examining the body in the under-

COMMISSIONER HOLDS DECISION IN "TODD CASE"

"Take It Under Consideration," Says Chief Commissioner J. T. Brown.

DEFRAUD CASE.

MONTREAL, Que., June 11.—Canadian Press. — "Personally, I have a very decided opinion in this case, but it is not necessary nor advisable to state it here. We will take it under consideration."

In these words, Chief Commissioner J. T. Brown, of the Royal Customs Commission, reserved decision in the "Todd case," one of those which has commanded the attention of both the Parliamentary Committee on Customs and the Royal Commission, yesterday. R. L. Calder, K. C., counsel for the commission submitted to the commissioners that the evidence taken in the case should be sent to the Minister of Justice with a view to the prosecution of E. N. Todd for conspiracy to defraud the government.

Coupled with this submission was another that the government proceed to recover on the bond taken from the Consolidated Distillers of Corbyville in connection with the shipment of alcohol which evidence has connected with Mr. Todd.

The submissions of counsel are based partly on evidence taken from Walter C. Duncan, who appeared before the Commission at Ottawa, and partly on certain telegrams sent by Mr. Todd, which are in the record.

The story in brief, is that a number of drums of alcohol were purchased from the Corbyville distillery, presumably for export to St. John's Newfoundland. When the drums reached St. John's they were found

DISARMAMENT IS CALLED FOR BY AMERICA N OCEAN FLIGHTS

Banquet To Latest Fliers Attended By More Than 500 in Berlin.

AT LEAST REDUCE.

BERLIN, June 11 (United Press).—America's two great transatlantic flights "call for disarmament, and call for it loudly," United States Ambassador Jacon Gould Schurman declared last night at a banquet by the American Club honouring Clarence Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine.

More than 500 persons, including Foreign Minister Streseman and other members of the German Government, attended the banquet which was the largest social event of the season.

"If the nations understood the spirit of the times," said Schurman, after he had praised the flight of Chamberlin and Levine, "they would respond to this disarmament call with alacrity."

If that goal is unattainable to-day, surely a reduction of armaments is a reasonable expectation, and would be a happy sequence of the Lindbergh and Chamberlin flights. He concluded by saying that he was optimistic, and felt that the first steps toward reduction of armaments would be taken next month at Geneva by the adoption of the policy of naval reduction advocated by President Coolidge.

Streseman, in his speech, compared himself to an aviator. He said that he occasionally was obliged to make a forced landing and sometimes even was threatened with a fall, but that he was constantly keeping the goal of world peace before his eyes.

Chamberlin and Levine both expressed their gratitude for the reception they have received in Berlin.

Perpetual Peace

MADMEN OF EUROPE OUTLAWED AMONG NATIONS BY MASSACRE

Soviet Russia More Despised For New Reign of Terror.

CANADA PRAISED

World Statesmen Declare Severing of Relations Was Far Sighted.

LONDON, June 11 (United Press). —The policy pursued by both Great Britain and Canada in deciding to have nothing more to do officially with the unit of Socialist Republics is held in official circles here to have been more than justified by the dawn in Russia of what is apparently a new reign of terror. The execution of twenty persons accused of anti-Soviet activities, carried out by the Reds in a "vengeance campaign," vindicates indirectly such a policy.

Despatches reaching London to-day indicate that the opinion of almost the whole of Europe has veered emphatically in favour of Britain, whose timely action in conjunction with Canada is regarded as still another proof of the far-sightedness of British diplomacy, which has long realized that Russia has not yet won back to civilization.

It is pointed out by Government officials here that, by their latest manifestation of blood lust, the Bolshevists have outlawed themselves among the nations of the world, and must themselves already be regretting the blind madness of such action.

The shots which robbed these Russian martyrs of life have also shattered the mask which Russia has been holding to her face in an attempt to deceive the world that the taint of murder had been elevated, and that the Red reign of terror which followed the collapse of the Russian monarchy was dead for ever.

Moreover, it is being predicted that other nations having diplomatic relations with the Union will from now on seek the most favourable excuse to sever them, realizing that contact with a nation capable of such barbarism can bring no mutual profit, and also as a gesture of emphatic disapproval of the wholesale execution.

Britain and Canada, according to the concensus of opinion, are well rid of the sinister entanglements which the Soviets were carefully preparing for both countries.

Russia is now at bay, and realizes that any attempt at war would inevitably lead to the destruction of Sovietism, for the nations of the world, in that event, would probably act in concert to wipe out "the madmen of Europe."

MOVEMENT FOR HEALTHY HERDS IN UNITED COUNTIES STARTED

Eradication of Bovine Tuberculosis Proposed By Committee.

SENT TO COUNCIL.

Prince Edward County Has Set the Example For Others.

(Special to The Examiner)

COBOURG, June 11.—The eradication of bovine tuberculosis in the counties of Northumberland and Durham, in co-operation with the Dominion government, is the objective of a resolution which the Agricultural Committee forwarded late yesterday afternoon to the Counties Council.

If it receives the Council's approval and is ratified by the owners of cattle, these counties will be the second in Ontario to establish a restricted area against tubercular cattle. Prince Edward county set the example, and the testing of its herds will be completed within the next two weeks. In that county about 23,900 cattle are to be tested. Up to Saturday June 4 the Government's staff of veterinaries had injected tuberculin into 16,641 cattle and of that number 392 reacted as affected with tuberculosis, a percentage of 2.35.

Last Monday's tests raised the percentage of reactors to 2.4, due largely to the results in three herds. One of these herds numbered 23 cattle with 17 being rejected as tubercular, 12 out of 16 on another farm, and 8 out of 10 on the third were classed unfit.

These facts were given to the committee by Walter Smith of Colborne, Northumberland representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, who spent several days this week in Prince Edward. Most of the members of the Committee seemed to be in favor of the accredited herd plan, and in their recommendation to the Council proposed that the reeves of the municipalities be appointed key men to undertake the canvassing of the cattle owners in their localities by enlisting the support of other men in order that both counties may be completely surveyed.

Consent of Majority.

The Dominion Government does not give its assent until at least two-thirds of all cattle owners, rural and urban, signify their willingness by a joint petition expressing the sentiment of the twin counties.

Mr. Smith explained that the Dominion government compensates the owners of rejected cattle on the basis of two-thirds of their value as determined by a Government veterinary. For example a $60 grade cow which is found to be tuberculous would bring $40 to the farmer, and a $150 pure bred would be sacrificed at $100, plus the value of the careas less freight to Toronto.

Councillors did not use the word "sacrifice." They spoke of the eradication of bovine tuberculosis as an immeasurable advantage to themselves and the public, not only as a protection against infection but also as increasing the standard of their stock in a market which is more than ever demanding tested cattle and paying proportionately higher prices for them.

Some phases of the discussion dwelt on the unpleasant subject of the presence of the tubercular taint in one of the main sources of human food.

Soldier Settler's Herd.

Mr. Smith told of a recent experience in the Prince Edward culling. A soldier settler lost ten out of his herd of twelve cattle. He is a man with ten children, and may be rated poor. His final statement was, "I'm glad I had the test made. The udder of one cow was rotten. It was actually green, and I wouldn't have that at any price for my own family and for the public generally.

It was realized that this veteran had been rather hard hit, and he went to Toronto to see his cows when they were killed. Seven veterinary doctors have been engaged in the Prince Edward testing, and very little opposition had been encountered, Mr. Smith said. Stories of dissatisfaction were mostly baseless rumors.

"As soon as these counties are declared to be accredited areas, not another untested bullock will be allowed in", Deputy-Reeve L. H. Giddy of Port Hope told the committee. He told of the strict examination of hogs at the Canadian Packing Company's plant in Peterborough, and asserted that farmers had very little idea of the prevalence of T.B. among their cattle, sheep, hogs and even hens.

A tested cow will not bring any appreciably larger sum as beef, but the advantage, W. J. Maher, deputy-reeve of Cobourg, lies in the higher prices to breeders. Enquiries for accredited stock were steadily becoming more numerous.

F. C. Patterson of Port Hope, district representative of the Department of Agriculture in Durham county, advised that the restricted area opportunity be accepted now. He believed that the Federal Government would not be able to continue compensating farmers for "reactors" because of the large aggregate amounts involved. Eventually T.B. tests might be ordered without any indemnification of cattle owners. In both counties many farmers have already placed their herds in the accredited plane.

The motion sending the recommendation to the Council was moved by Mr. Maher and seconded by Deputy-Reeve Sykes of Warkworth.

Another stage in the evolution of the modern girl is marked by her invasion in the realms of chess. At chess-club meetings nowadays girls and women are becoming quite numerous.

Over $50,000,000 Sold Of Huge C.N.R. Loan

NEW YORK, June 1 (Canadian Press). — Over $50,000,000 of the $65,000,000 Canadian National Railways loan was sold yesterday, according to information available to members of the selling syndicate last night. Sixty per cent. of the sale of 30-year 4½ per cent. bonds was accounted for in the United States and 40 per cent. in Canada.

In addition to the larger subscriptions received from institutions and estates, an interesting feature in connection with the offering, it was stated, was the large number of subscriptions under $10,000 received from individual investors, both in the United States and Canada. Several of the larger American syndicate houses received subscriptions in excess of their allotments, due primarily to the fact that the sale of the bonds to individual investors was considerably larger than expected. Unusually large subscriptions were received from American colleges and other educational institutions.

High Rating U.S. Markets.

Subscriptions continued to be received at syndicate headquarters late last night, and it is expected that announcement that the entire issue had been oversubscribed would be made shortly. The bankers point out that the success of the loan, which carries the guarantee of the Dominion of Canada, is due to the high rating of Canadian securities in the United States markets.

JACK ELLIOTT

taking parlours in Millbrook, and found the boy to have received a gun shot wound on the right side of the head, and that one thumb was shot away. He judged that death was instantaneous and he went to interview Jack Elliott on the Seney farm, where Elliott told the same story to him as when he gave evidence.

Crown Attorney Kerr, in addressing the jury, said: "It is one of these sad and regrettable matters in which death had occurred by an unlawful act. This unfortunate thing is being again and again brought before the public, when some one picks up a gun and points it at somebody else, and the gun is discharged, killing an innocent person; and the same reason is heard every time, that they did not know the gun was loaded. Mr. Kerr then quoted the statute, which to overcome this, makes it a criminal offence to point a gun or an unloaded weapon playfully against any person. The penalty in a case of that kind is a fine, but in this case a death has been the result of pointing the gun playfully, and I would fail in my duty if I did not point out to you that it seems to me quite plain that Jack Seney came to his death as a result of a gunshot wound fired from a gun in the hands of Jack Elliott in a playful manner and who believed the gun to be not loaded."

Archibald Kennedy, one of the jurymen gave further evidence when he told of arriving at the scene of the accident, he saw Mr. Seney at the door of the house. He asked: "Merton, what has happened, and Mr. Seney replied: "Jack is shot—I did it myself—I left the gun loaded."

The jury consisted of Roy Lough, J. Armstrong, A. Kennedy, I. Huston, R. McCamus P. Stewart, W. Finnie, H. Bradburn, J. Kennedy, J. Douglas and B. Sharpe (foreman.)

What the hammer? What the chain?
In what furnace was they brain?
What the anvil? What dread grasp
Dare its deadly terrors clasp?

When the stars threw down their spears,
And watered heaven with their tears,
Did He smile His work to see?
Did He who made the Lamb, make thee?

SKELETON FOUND MAY BE THAT OF MISSING HUGHES

bush as far as she dared and shouted to her mate. Until late into the night she kept up her search, and then called her neighbor, Mrs. Hanan. Only this family and Richard Lindsay, an Indian, live near the scene of the mysterious disappearance.

Search parties were organized, and the bush land scouted in every direction. All night and all next day, and every day since, large parties have combed the rough country. The Sunday, following Mr. Hughes' disappearance, over two hundred men lined up on the road and advanced, ten yards apart straight into the bush. At times crawling on their hands and knees, and often hidden from one another, these volunteers from bush and farm and village went straight ahead for miles, searching every cranny and looking under every bush. Car-loads of men were on the job and Constable W. D. Lennox of Norwood was prominent in leading the search.

Volunteers carried on the work with remarkable pertinacity, considering the apparent hopelessness of the task. Almost impenetrable bush was encountered throughout the section. Moss-covered rock simulate recumbent bodies. Pits and trenches were treacherously covered with sticks and leaves. Grape-vines and creepers formed a labyrinth through which it was impossible to keep direction, and ferns and rank-weeds added to the general difficulty in searching one of the wildest sections of Central Ontario. Sound, too, was deceptive in thi maze of forest and rock. Cowbells, appearing only a few yards away, lure the unwary searcher from a path from which he may never regain, the sound thrown from rock to rock by weird echoes. Criss-cross paths that promised to lead out of the bush, wound in never-ending circles and forked paths, unseen when going north appeared unexpectedly when returning south and lead from the travelled trail to unknown waste land.

A fearsome enough place in midday with the sun to guide, the man who be comes lost there near nightfall would have a harrowing experience.

The grass was beaten down by the feet of searchers, and the hard ground showed no trace to the first seekers, of the path the old man took when he started to drive home the cattle.

Feared the Bush.

Henry Hughes was nervous in the bush, his wife said, and was never known to leave a path. On more than one occasion, when the cows had wandered into the bush, Mr. Hughes had given a neighbor boy five or ten cents to bring them out, while he remained on a trail. The effect on such a man of becoming wandered in so unwholesome a place would be disastrous.

In addition to the danger of wandering until exhausted, the missing man faced the menace of a bottomless swamp a few miles from his home. The morass is called Rotten Lake doubtless having been named before it developed its present treacherous covering. As a test, a twenty-foot pole was thrust straight down in this swamp near the edge, and failed to touch bottom. When the top of the pole was just level with the water it was sucked under by the undertow.

A Second Theory.

Despite the denials made by Mrs. Hughes, it was believed by some, notably Mrs. Little, that Mr. Hughes left home deliberately after a quarrel with his wife. In support of this theory it was pointed out that for some days previous to his disappearance Mrs. Hughes had missed articles of food from her larder, and he may have been hoarding these for his getaway.

That there was a slight difference just before her husband left home on the fateful evening is admitted by Mrs. Hughes, who, however, minimizes its importance. Mr. Hughes had wanted to buy a dog from a neighbor, but Mrs. Hughes would not give him the $10 he required. He brought the would-be vendor to the house to endeavor to persuade his wife to part with the money. "I couldn't have a dog here and starve myself to feed it," she explained to The Examiner. "He would have tired of it in a few days and sold it for fifty cents like he has done before. He wasn't cruel. He liked dogs, but he tired of them quickly. I have my cows to feed and I have to get enough for myself."

Even if Mr. Hughes had secured some food and had overcome his fear of the bush sufficiently to enable him to run away, he had very little money on his person and only wore his working clothes. He left his overcoat home. The only money he could have had, Mrs. Hughes averred, was the $7.00, the proceeds of a cheque dated August 29 which he did not hand over to her. Mrs. Hughes said that her husband did not do any more work than he was compelled to do and stayed in the house most of his time.

Seen in Norwood.

A remarkable corroboration of the theory advanced by Mrs. Little and others was the testimony of Basil and Kathleen Darling, son and daughter of Albert P. Darling, proprietor of Darling's hotel in Norwood. These young people declared positively that they had seen Mr. Hughes in the hotel poolroom at 5:30 on the evening he disappeared from his home. At that time he wore an overcoat and carried a parcel.

Miss Darling, a girl of about seventeen, was particularly certain that she was not mistaken. She had often served the missing man with meals in the hotel dining-room and had actually talked with him on the night he left home. He entered the hotel parlor and asked for the proprietor. On being told that Mr. Darling was asleep, Hughes turned and walked out. Darling, in his room upstairs, recognized the voice as that of Hughes, he thought.

Henry Hughes was remarkably active for his years, and a fast walker. It was suggested by some that he might have walked to the village in the two hours or more, supposing his own clock to have been advanced an hour, but where he went from there was a mystery. He was well known in the village, having been a regular visitor to sell eggs, and would have been recognized by someone if he was attempting to leave.

Clairvoyant Saw Him.

Mrs. Booth, 80, a crystal gazer and clairvoyant, who lived near Marmora, was called upon for assistance and gave an accurate description of a location she had never, so far as it was known, seen. In the depths of her crystal, she said, she saw a man lying in the open southeast of the Bickell camp on the Findlay company timber limits. The location was searched without result, and other suggestions made by the clairvoyant were followed out, but without sucess.

A remarkable instance of the powers possessed by Mrs. Booth and one which went a long way toward persuading sceptics of the authenticity of her claims, was given during an audience with some of the searchers. "There are a lot of people searching to-day," she said as she gazed into her crystal. "I see a man standing on the roof of a house and signalling to the others with his hand." On returning to the Hughes homes ten miles away, the men who had interviewed Mrs. Booth, learned that there had been indeed a man on the roof signalling to the searchers in the surrounding bush.

On another occasion, Mrs. Booth told her visitors, "The man on the grey horse came very near Mr. Hughes."

Had Large Family.

Mr. and Mrs. Hughes had a family of eight, four boys and four girls. They were as follows: Mrs. Hugh Little, R. R. No. 2, Lakefield; Mrs. William Williams, Vancouver; Mrs. David Williams, Swift Current, Saskatchewan, and Mrs. William Coffy, Swift Current, Saskatchewan; Joseph Hughes, Dearborn, Michigan; William Robert Hughes, Roche Plains, Saskatchewan; Alfred James Hughes, Regina, Saskatchewan, and George Henry Hughes, Carlton, Onatrio. A sister of Mrs. Hughes, Mrs. Herman Rosene of Peterborough, and a brother, James Metcalfe, of Asphodel, were with her the day after Mr. Hughes disappeared.

Foul Play Hinted.

While it seemed scarcely probable that anyone would do away with the old man for $7.00, that he was supposed to have carried, such a possibility was investigated by the police.

LIQUOR BOARD HAS NEW WORRY

Rowdy Sub-Tenants Constitute Problem For Control Board.

INVOLVES LAW.

TORONTO, Ont., June 11. — Ontario's Liquor Control Board has something to worry about. A lady recently sublet a room to a married couple for housekeeping purposes. In a few days the sub-tenants made themselves a nuisance by imbibing too freely of supplies purchased at Government stores. The tenants declined to vacate, so the lady appealed to the police. She was told by the inspector that if he sent an officer along to arrest the couple he would have to take her along as well, as she would be liable to a fine of $100 for permitting liquor to be drunk on the premises.

While not ready to make a ruling, Mr. Hanna expressed the view that the four walls of the room comprised the residence of the sub-tenants, and that the landlady was not liable.

Staff Inspector McKinney takes the view that unless the disturbance reached people on the street, who complained, the police had no authority to interfere. The only course open to the lady was to take out a warrant if the sub-tenants were damaging her property.

500,000 Air Letters Expected For Lindy; Deliver Them at Capital in Three Wagons

WASHINGTON, June 11. — Prospects now are that half a million air mail letters of congratulation will be flown to Washington for delivery to Captain Charles A. Lindbergh, who is still an air mail pilot.

Three screened mail waggons carrying the letters to the intrepid flier in brand new sacks and each waggon displaying a sign: "The People of the United States by Air Mail Congratulate Lindy," will be driven to the Washington Navy Yard, where Postmaster-General New will formally deliver this mail to Captain Lindbergh. The trucks then will join the parade from the Navy Yard to the Washington Monument grounds.

Because of the necessity for providing additional planes with which to bring to Washington the enormous amount of air mail being received at air mail concentration points for Captain Lindbergh, and in response to numerous requests, Postmaster-General New announced that one of the planes will be made available for despatch back to New York in time to make connection in Hadley Field with a special air mail despatch which will attempt to reach San Francisco the following day by sundown.

The plane is expected to carry from Washington a considerable quantity of photographic and moving picture films and philatelic mail. It will leave Bolling Field at 4.30 p.m., arriving at Hadley Field, the Eastern terminus of the transcontinental route, about 6.30 (Eastern standard time).

The mail will be transferred to another plane which will take off immediately for Chicago, where the programme will be repeated early on Sunday morning, and another plane will continue to the Pacific Coast. One of the additional planes selected to bring part of the Lindbergh mail to Washington will be a tri-motored ship in the service of the Colonial Air Transport, Inc., operating a contract air mail service between New York and Boston. This plane was offered for the occasion by General John F. Ryan, president of the company.

COMMISSIONER

to contain water the alcohol apparently having been run off at some point en route and the water substituted. The chief interest of the government arises from the fact that the alcohol if sold in Canada would have have been subject to excise tax which is nine dollars a gallon, as well as sales tax. The amount involved is large.

Cheques Shown.

According to the evidence of Duncan he was employed by E. N. Todd, at the time freight traffic manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway, to go to New York and arrange for the purchase of seals to go on railway cars. Cheques of Todd, which Duncan claimed were given to him in payment for his services, were produced before the commission. Duncan also told that he was sent to Newfoundland by Todd to look after things at that end. Telegrams which he exchanged with Todd were read into the record.

When Mr. Todd was on the stand, he admitted paying money to Duncan but declared that the payments were loans to a friend who was in financial difficulties. He said that he had become suspicious that Duncan was trying to blackmail him when the latter made requests for more money from time to time. He denied any knowledge of the switching of the alcohol and declared that he had no connection with the transaction.

When Mr. Calder submitted that action should be taken against the Consolidated Distillers of Corbyville, Chief Commissioner Brown asked whether the government would be likely to proceed against them or against the party who had defrauded them.

Mr. Calder answered that the distillery gave a bond to guarantee export of the alcohol, and that the simplest way to collect was to proceed on this bond. The distillery could proceed against the guilty party.

Commercial Smuggling.

The rest of the afternoon the commission devoted to looking into some cases of commercial smuggling. H. Levy, of McAvay and Levy, customs brokers, was called to tell what he knew about importations of arm-bands for the King Suspender Company of Toronto. He was not aware that shipments had been cleared at Montreal, when the Toronto customs had refused to clear. He was asked to explain a request which he made in a letter to Toronto for some neckties for presents to customs officers.

He said that it was customary to give the customs officers a few neckties or a box of cigars at Christmas.

"Just to sweeten the social relations," commented Mr. Calder.

"Yes," was the reply.

Thomas R. Hurson, special customs preventive officer, told of a seizure he had made on the premises of Claude Denis and Company in which invoices for the customs were lower than the valution on the invoices covering the actual sales. He said that double invoicing was a very common form whereby the revenue was not paid. Albert Bouthillier, bookkeeper for Claude Denis and Company, stated that importations from a certain firm in France received at Montreal by his company were listed at 33 and a third per cent less for customs purposes that was actually paid. This practice had been stopped immediately after the seizure was made and the department had declared the method was wrong.

Not Paid Full Duty.

Mr. Hurson also gave information with respect to a seizure from Israel Kuglemass, of Montreal, who, according to the witness, was found with goods in his possession that had not paid full duty. Hon. N. W. Rowell, K.C., counsel, explained that he had brought this case up only as an illustration because Mr. Kugelmass had paid the duty required when the demand was made on him for it. Mr. Kugelmass explained that he knew nothing of the methods of doing business through the customs and when a New York firm from which he bought goods invoiced them to him with a 25 per cent. reduction for customs purposes, he was not aware that anything was wrong.

The last case dealt with concerned a seizure of 7 diamond rings, 98 wedding rings and other jewelry, worth in all about $3,000 from Charles Herman, a jeweler doing business at St. Lawrence boulevard, Montreal. The jewelry had been seized because it was not marked as required by the provisions of the Gold and Silver Marking Act. Such jewelry was prohibited under the tariff. Later, said Mr. Morris, Mr. Herman had come in and identified about $2,000 worth of the jewelry, but the remainder was still under seizure. There was no record of the importation of these goods into Canada.

The Commission adjourned until Monday.

QUEBEC POLICE ARE SCIENTIFIC

Provincial Office Pursues Criminals With Laboratory Experts.

EUROPEAN SYSTEM.

MONTREAL, Que., June 11.—(Canadian Press).—The science of "technical police and legal medicine," which forms so important a part of police administration in many European countries, is only officially recognized by one Province in Canada. Quebec has a modernly equipped and efficiently staffed department devoted to this science, situated in Montreal.

Here, the inevitable incidentals of crime—blood stains, finger prints, traces of poison—are analyzed and their significance interpreted. This unique laboratory is directed by Dr. Wilfrid Derome, an European-trained expert and the author of several treatises on criminology.

"Every city should have a laboratory of legal medicine as a part of its police department," declared Dr. Derome recently. "The ordinary training of a police officer does not fit him to read aright the inadvertant traces of his handiwork which almost every criminal, however careful, leaves behind him. Men are required who have made thorough study of chemistry and medicine, and who are specialists in this young science.

"Again, each city police department should have its own medicolegal expert, in order that it may be independent of the Provincial and Federal forces in the eventuality of a crime which calls for scientific study.

"My position is entirely Provincial and I am not obliged to co-operate with the Montreal police; yet, because Montreal has no department of technical police of its own, my services are frequently called upon in strictly municipal cases."

When it is remembered that Dr. Derome's testimony has been a vital factor in many such sensational trials as that of the gunmen who carried out the Banque de Hochelaga hold-up—a trial which sent four men to the gallows—the force of his words may be better appreciated. Dr. Derome is usually the first witness called at the coroner's inquest into any mysterious fatality.

Bullets and firearms have been a particular study with this scientist; his laboratory contains intricate pieces of apparatus for the exact measuring of bullets. It holds much else of interest to the lay visitor, such as instruments which measure the thickness of paper, instruments for the analysis of handwriting and ink, and, of course, the cameras with which photographs of footprints and other spoor are taken. Beyond doubt, however, the most striking feature of Dr. Derome's domain is his museum, a grisly chamber, where he preserves mementoes of his more interesting cases. Along the walls are glass cabinets containing rows of firearms of every pattern and calibre, knives, hammers, razors—even a rusty garden hoe. But his most treasured souvenir is an aged musket with which an Indian trapper was killed, far in the northern wilds, and which the medicolegal expert carried more than 100 miles on his shoulder and 200 miles by canoe to the city.

MAPLE TREE PLANTED ON SCHOOL LAWN

Declaring the tree well and truly planted, Mr. Madill said:

It is a pleasure and an honor to be permitted to be present at this happy and pleasant function. The planting of a tree—a maple tree this year—is decidedly in keeping with the thought and spirit of the Jubilee of Confederation. Many monuments and commemorative objects stand throughout the country and the world, marking some important place or memorable event. And since the sugar maple, the hard maple, is our emblematic tree, it is most fitting that it should be planted here as a living reminder at this particular time.

Our love for trees is natural. A tree is a living being, with life comparable to our own. Its sap courses through its veins in leaf and fibre. Its arms spread out to the welcome showers and beckon birds, beast and man, to find shelter under the branches. Its leaves whisper comfort and joy to the happy singing bird and the weary resting traveller. And if most trees appeal to us in this way, the maple should all the more claim our love and admiration.

Verses Given.

Mr. Madill quoted a number of poems on trees, finishing up with Joyce Kilmer's fine verses:

I think that I shall never see
A poem lovely as a tree.
A tree whose hungry mouth is pressed
Against the earth's sweet flowing breast;
A tree that looks at God all day,
And lifts her leafy arms to pray;
A tree that may in summer wear
A nest of robins in her hair;
Upon whose bosom snow has lain;
Who intimately lives with rain.
Poems are made by fools like me,
But only God can make a tree.

LINDSAY, June 11 (Canadian Press). — The Retail Merchants' Association here decided to observe Friday, July 1st, but to remain open on Saturday, July 2nd. The celebration committee report many entries for horse racing and baseball, while several outside schools will march in a body in the monster parade.

MUSINGS AT A MANSE WINDOW

STIMULANTS! How some people are afraid of them and condemn them, in season and out of season! How others crave after them and will go to any lengths to satisfy their craving! I am old-fashioned enough to believe that everything in the universe has its place and its purpose. And I believe that stimulants have a distinct place and a real value in the scheme of things. Moreover it is my belief that so long as a stimulant is kept in its proper place no thoughtful person will have any fault to find with the use of it. It is when a stimulant is taken out of its proper place and used for a purpose other than the purpose for which, by the nature of it, it was intended to be used that difficulties and dangers arise. A stimulant is an agent which temporarily quickens some functional or trophic process. When we make a food or a drink of a stimulant we make a mistake for which we may have to pay a high price. And after we have paid the price we shall discover that it was not worth it. There are stimulants for the body, stimulants for the spirit, and stimulants for the mind.

A MENTAL STIMULANT.

In the course of my reading through the pages of a magazine published principally for ministers, I came upon a brief article which has greatly stimulated my thinking. Long ago I came to the conclusion that if I got but one helpful, stimulating thought from any paper, book or magazine, it would be well worth the price paid for it. As we pour a little water down a pump to help it draw up a stream from below, so a single idea, passed by any medium from one mind to another, often starts a stream of thought which is used to refresh other minds. Therefore, so long as we keep them in the place of such, let us have all the mental stimulants others may have to give.

A PERTINENT QUESTION.

Standing under the canopy of heaven, with the Syrian sun in the full splendour of its glory beating down upon him, a young man, full of energy, carefully educated, charged with emotion kindled by a heavenly vision, zealous, anxious and earnest, exclaimed, "Lord, what wilt Thou have me to do?" He stood on the brink of Christian service, ready and willing. He wasted no time, because he spent no time, discussing the shortcomings of the established religion. There was much that he might have said in the way of criticism, but he didn't. No negatives were mentioned: "What shall I do?" was in effect what he said. This is more than an inquiry for his own salvation; it is a request for a new program of religious activities. The fact that his old Jewish conceptions which prompted his program of persecution was then and there ended was revealed in the question. He asked for no negatives and received none. The answer to his question was, "Go . . . ." He went. He met his teacher who did not discuss the faults of rabbinical theology, but further introduced him to the ways of Jesus.

There is a lesson in this incident which even teachers are slow to learn. The only satisfactory solution of the greatest problems of character and conduct is to be found along positive lines. All our negations leave but an aching void if they leave nothing worse. What the race needs is to have less "Don't" and more "Do."

We have doubts and uncertainty enough already without having more served up to us in school, college, church or library. The chief concern of most us is set forth in the question addressed to the risen Christ by Saul of Tarsus, "Lord, what wilt Thou have me to do?"

IS IT TRUE?

A recent writer in The Congregationalist says that for the past thirty years many young men had no gospel to preach because the seminaries had no gospel to teach. After thirty years waiting he thinks we have a gospel. But is he any more right now than he was before? Is it not a fact that the modern pulpit is nothing more than an interrogation mark? Every fundamental doctrine of the Christian religion is being questioned. We must not forget that stating what we do not believe has no redemptive power unless it paves the way for a better and clearer statement of what we really believe. It will always be true, whether we take kindly to it or not, that the just are saved by faith and not by the questioning of the ground of faith. Men everywhere need to be told what to believe and what to do. They have doubts and uncertainty enough already without having more thrust upon them by the modern pulpit or seminary.

HE KEPT HIS WORD.

A minister tells of an experience he had in common with others when, in pursuit of more practical knowledge, he got nothing but disappointment.

In an institute of social service workers and students an expert addressed them from the subject, "Types of Practical Social Service." He says that they all sat with note books opened to record the valuable suggestions which they expected to get at the lips of this expert. At the outset this teacher of others said he would not tell them what types of work to do, but would give them three kinds of social work that they should not do. He kept his word! They left the institute saying, "What shall I do, Lord?"

Experiences of this kind are all too common; and they are not confined to the class-room. They may be met almost every Sunday, within many of our churches.

NEW YORK CITY.

Last summer in New York City a Jewish woman brought her children to a Protestant daily vacation Bible school. They were received. When the name of Jesus was called in song, prayer or instruction, the Jewish children would resent it and attempt to leave. "What shall I do, Lord?" was the inward cry of this American teacher. She determined that she would try and teach Jesus without naming Him. The hymn, "Jesus, Saviour, Pilot Me," was sung. "God, Our Father, Pilot Me." The story of the Good Samaritan was given a new setting by this tactful, up-to-date teacher. The scene was in the United States on a Western mountainside. The characters were all changed and the author of the story was not revealed. She taught the same lesson that Jesus taught and believed that she had put it over successfully.

THE COUNTY JAIL.

A young negro minister of Atlanta, Ga., went to the county jail to hold service for the negro prisoners. He had been told to talk, but not to preach. About 75 of the 200 were assembled in a chapel. Others were near by. A portable organ was in the front, at which one of the prisoners ably presided. An order of service had been prepared by the prisoners, on which was written the word "sermon." "What shall I do, Lord?" He preached Jesus, on whom many said they believed and would follow. The preacher left them marching to their respective cells, singing, "Take the Name of Jesus With You."

THE HOSPITAL.

A Southern minister says that he was requested by a charitable hospital and sanatorium to conduct religious services and provide material necessities. The material phase of the request was easily granted. The religious side was not, for one of the "don'ts" of the social service experts is, "Don't disturb the sick with songs when they need rest." That is good advice, as a rule. But this minister having been invited there, he needed a "do." He says, "Perhaps we did wrong, but we did." As he was leaving one of the wards, a lady from the rural districts, asked the party to sing, "The Day is Past and Gone." They had purposely avoided those old hymns of death. But this was her request. They did not have any books old enough to contain this hymn, but two stanzas were recalled and sung to her comfort.

WHAT WE NEED.

This is a day of evangelism. We can not evangelize by negation. Christian workers and leaders must have a positive message, a flexible program, adaptable methods of procedure, resourceful heads and hearts, knowledge of their respective fields as well as the field in general, and a will to obey the still small voice whenever and wherever it calls.

Not long ago a group of young people who had visited a fatally ill young friend were overheard saying that they did not know what to do. No doubt they were as eager as Paul. They needed some Ananias to tell them what to do.

—Allan Fairbairn.

Think of It

THERE will not be a sinner in heaven to interrupt the joys of the saints, nor a saint in hell to soften or soothe the anguish of sinners. Those who have the ear-mark of election, and those who have the hand-mark of transgression, shall be put into separate folds. The day of retribution will prove to be a day of separation. While the wheat is secured in the garner, the tares are consumed in the fire.

Christ's Authority Rests on Deity

IT is far more important to know who Jesus was than to know what Jesus said. The morality of the teachings of Jesus in the New Testament would not rest upon any adequate foundation if Jesus had no authority. But if we believe in the divinity of Christ we need give ourselves no trouble about His teachings. When you leave out the divinity of Christ the authority for His teachings goes also.

SUICIDE

What is the cause of suicide, especially among young, educated people? Is it the fault of our educational system? Is it true that there are fewer suicides in Ireland and Scotland than other countries? If so, why? Is it the case that there are more men than women commit suicide—and that there are more in the cities than in the country districts?

CHURCHES AND CHURCHMEN

By I. SEEWELL

Heresy.

UNDER this caption, "Time" gives a very interesting digest of an article which has recently appeared in "Collier's" from the pen of Bruce Barton, lay apostle of the Lord, who may be said to have entered upon his ministry about 1912, when he published The Resurrection of a Soul. But not until 1925, when he published The Man Nobody Knows, did his faith show forth really widely before men. The Man, of course, was Jesus—rediscovered, as the title implied, in the image of the ideal U. S. businessman that Mr. Barton himself strives to be.

Last year, with The Book Nobody Knows, Mr. Barton rediscovered the Bible for this ideal businessman. And last week he carried his ministry still further with an article in "Collier's" entitled, "The Church Nobody Knows."

* * *

The First Rotarian.

PEOPLE who resent hearing Jesus called "First Rotarian" resent also the kindred phenomenon of a smooth-spoken advertising expert exercising his facile dictaphone to bring home truths about religion with which most literate people consider themselves perfectly conversant. Critics have derided Mr. Barton's writings for carrying the strong odor of professional publicity and for the seeming presumptuousness of the titles, "Nobody Knows." The implication is, "Nobody knows but Bruce Barton," and many people are affronted by such mixtures of religious with secular talk as "Christianity was launched as a short-time proposition." . . . "Preachers . . . believed the world would be . . . liquidated by God as a failure. . . ."

Time Says So.

THIS very interesting digest which I am trying to bring before a still larger constituency suggests that the more abusive of Bruce Barton's critics can never have read a word he wrote. If they had, they would know that—victim of cliches though he is, Utopian and ambrosial though his visions become and offensive though it seems of him to announce his views as "heresy of the first order"—he is not an unctuous man. He is a clear-headed businessman and pretends to be nothing else; nothing mystical, nothing superior to others.

* * *

The Church Nobody Knows.

SHOULD his critics read "The Church Nobody Knows" they would find Bruce Barton making the following points in his own prosaic but clear and modest way about those traditional strangers, business and the church:

1. The church is less honest than business, to the world and to itself. "The statistics which are issued by the Protestant churches are not sincere statistics." There is hardly a roll of "active" church members which is not impressively padded with inactive members. Big corporations have the sense and honesty to write false assets and known liabilities off their books. Not so the churches.

2. "It sounds almost shocking, yet it is true, that the church does not have as much faith as business." Business courts change. The church fears it. Business employs pure scientists for research that may mean scrapping not only millions in factories and material, but entire attitudes of mind as well. Pure scientists, above self and profit, are "the mystics of the modern world." Business sets them free to provoke change because it knows tomorrow will be different from today. "The church is AFRAID" that tomorrow may be different.

3. Business is flexible, adaptable. The church, blindly is not. It used to be a social, mental, cultural centre for rural folk. It still tries to be this for urban communities. Result: frantic competition with urban life's 101 other social, mental, cultural agencies. Let the church recognize the decay of its incidental functions and return to its essential one—spirituality, "an oasis of reverence, a giver of peace."

4. Business "checks up on" its direction. The church, founded to ease and enrich life, "has got it all turned around." "Rich men, greedy men, hard-hearted men" rule it, take wine from the people, suppress Sunday games, condemn "the impulses of hot blood." Greater sins are ignored. Forgiveness is forgotten.

5. "Business is terribly concerned if there be the slightest depreciation in the quality of the men who enter its ranks." The quality of the clergy has obviously and greatly declined. Reasons: (a) "Absurd hurdles," such as belief in the virgin birth, placed in the path of ministerial candidates; (b) "To be the private chaplain of 25 or 50 families; to make pastoral calls and attend meetings of women's auxiliaries; to conduct prayer meetings for a dozen completely saved and sanctified old people; to live shabbily and be worried about the education of the children and the burdens of old age—this is not the life to appeal to a high-spirited man. There is no lift in it, no power, nothing to tempt men to trade for it the only life on earth they will ever have. . . ."

* * *

Kicking Dead Horses.

BRUCE BARTON, heretic, was not "kicking a dead horse." He cited Paul, "the first heretic," as his precedent for criticism from within the ranks of Christianity. Indeed he had said nothing new, and knew it, but he was earnest enough to risk a prophet's ridicule and picture a Bartonized church of 100 years hence. . . .

The world has been made safe for this church by Bartonized business. "The so-called economic struggle is over. Money is, as the bankers say, 'cheap.' . . . Pride in service rendered has become even more important." Cemeteries are playgrounds. Funerals are appreciative dinner parties among believers in immortality.

The Bartonized church is the only church in town. Its Sunday School is for religious teaching only—"no socials, no bazaars, no motion-picture shows." The church itself is small because few people enter it at the same time. But it is open all the time. The organ plays continuously. People drop in for silent prayer and contemplation at all hours. "Religion is accepted as a perfectly normal part of life . . . is regarded AS life. Men pray as they breathe or eat or take their morning exercise."

* * *

A Remarkable Minister.

THERE are more unusual adjuncts. Businessmen begin their day by listening to church music, a short prayer and seeing a vision of their pastor, at their offices, by television. The pastor himself is "a remarkable character." "He wears no special uniform, but is visibly a confident citizen of two worlds." He is about 50, ordained only after having shown special qualifications for the spiritual life. His training has consisted in study of Christ's life and two or three years in the Orient to become familiar with mysticism at its source. He comes not to do or say anything, primarily. He comes "to BE something."

* * *

Will It Ever Be So?

MADE point with money of which he needs give no accounting, he performs miracles of feeding, healing, etc. He conducts six short Sunday services, preaching no sermons, at early and late hours so that his people may be out of doors on their holy day. He holds confessional, informally, in his study. His annual report deals not with attendances, collections or membership rolls, but with community improvements or needs which are no more churchly than secular since the two are one.

Heretic Barton, having sketched a frockless Catholic priest conducting a Quaker meeting house in Utopia, finished his article with an affirmation which none might well deny.

"When the Son of Man cometh shall he find faith on the earth?"

"He shall!"

Another day I shall return to this. Meanwhile I hope these words may be widely read and provoke some worth-while criticism.

Children's Corner — TELL US A STORY

IN his telegrams home a railroad man never failed to mention his little four-year-old son, and he usually sent this message: "Tell Arthur I shall sleep with him tonight." The little lad was always pleased with these despatches, which his mother read and re-read to him. But there came a time when the fever burned his brow; and as he lay in his sobbing mother's arms his last words were: "Don' ky, mamma; I s'all s'eep wiv Dod 'oo know. Send a teledraf to heaven, and tell Dod I s'all s'eep wiv Him tonight."

TWO MEN planning something together: if only they can manage this they will be safe, for pursuit is most unlikely. Fortune favors them and they escape, hastening with nervous steps to the banks of the stream which is the object of their hopes and fears. Now they have crossed it—are they safe? Assuredly—"oaths are things not lightly broken," they say to themselves," besides his own life is too precious to be risked." Their course is towards the west, and at last some twenty miles brings them to their journey's end in the city of another king than that whose kingdom they have left. But, see! A rider is in swift pursuit; he traces the fugitives, captures and brings them back every step of the way; yet he is the greatest loser in the end, for by grasping after them he loses everything.

Giving Thanks

EVEN if gratitude were not a duty we should still try to cultivate it, just for the pleasure it excites in the soul. The sensations which we feel when gratitude wells from the heart are almost perfect bliss. They are what a rose would feel if it were conscious of its own perfume, or a spring of the pure water gurgling up out of its depths. To me ingratitude is repulsive and horrible. Did you ever watch the keepers feed the tigers in a museum? It is the absence of gratitude that makes the sight horrible. All the eye of the tiger says is, "More, more, more!" And I have seen men eat in the same way. How much better than an animal is the man who does not feel gratitude for his daily bread and all his other mercies How different is the light in the eye of a tiger from that in the eye of a sick soldier when a sister of charity gives him a draught of cold water! That light is gratitude, a light more beautiful than that of the evening star. Are you cultivating it in yourself? —C. F. G.

CRITICISM

CRITICISM is good when it grows as an incident to admiration, bad when practised as a dominant function and a special business; good also when our object in criticising is to avoid faults in ourselves, not to find faults in others. Here, as in all other cases, it is the moral inspiration that gives value to the function of the understanding. Love is the fulfilling of the law.

Watch Your Step

THOSE who watch life carefully realize increasingly that God goes before them, and that not one step of the journey takes them along an untrodden or unprepared pathway. His personal care for each member of His family is the great glory of His fatherliness. Herein is our confidence in going forward to the duty of every day. What is mystery to us is history to Him. A thousand ills have been removed from our way and replaced by a thousand blessings, which too often we take as a mere matter of course. Disguised under the form of common gifts, God's goodness lies all around us. Did we but know it, these ordinary things are angels in homespun. Life, even the hardest life, is lifted from the commonplace and sanctified for ever by the fact that He has gone before. With what gladness then should we hail each day, since eternal love has planned all its experiences and furnished all its need!

It was thus that Jesus lived, in unbroken realization that His life was planned by the Father. This faith supported Him during all the testing experiences which confronted Him as He moved forward. Nothing came amiss; and, in unlooked-for way and places, He found evidences of the goodness which had gone before. Here it was a woman's love, a child's faith, a man's courage, a boy's gift, and anon a thief's penitence. However hard the way, He found a running brook close at hand, from whence He drank and lifted up His head with joy. For it was opened for Him by prevenient goodness. So, too we can look upon life and find it always good. For we, too, are children of the same Father.

—J. Stuart Holden.

SATURDAY, JUNE 11, 1927.

WHERE SAFETY IS FIRST, LIFE IS LONGER.

If there was any reason to doubt the necessity for such a campaign as the Kiwanis Club has announced for next week, surely a glance over Ontario newspapers these days would be enough to discount it.

The headlines tell a tragic story of sudden deaths in automobile smash-ups or drowning accidents.

Over a dozen people have been killed in Ontario this week as the result of level crossing accidents; half a dozen young lives have been crushed out by motor cars.

The Province contains numerous grade crossings that are death-traps; they should be eliminated or protected, but while the improvements are being awaited the old and hackneyed warning still holds good. "At railway crossings, stop, look and listen."

It is estimated that it takes a railway train an average of seven seconds to pass a level crossing.

Surely it is not worth while risking death to save seven seconds.

What is needed in these days of rapid traffic is to inspire people with the spirit of caution.

That is the aim of the Kiwanis campaign, and the campaign here next week should be heartily supported.

ONCE IN A LIFETIME.

With the Diamond Jubilee rapidly drawing near, it is with pleasure and satisfaction that The Examiner reports widespread enthusiasm among citizens generally over the celebration.

Splendid progress is being made by the various committees; their plans are rapidly maturing, and they are receiving co-operation everywhere.

The success of the three-day programme is assured; it will undoubtedly be the most extensive and ambitious demonstration of this nature in the history of Peterborough.

The work cannot, however, be all done by the committees; the individual citizens can all help in the success of the occasion, and it is not too early to begin preparations for decorating private homes and places of business.

Peterborough, not only in its business sections, but everywhere, should be gay with flags and bunting.

A celebration of this kind comes only once in a lifetime; this fact is being generally realized, and Peterborough is preparing for a memorable and worth-while observance of the Dominion's sixtieth birthday.

THE TRANSPORTATION SITUATION.

The local transportation situation is not clearing up as rapidly as is desirable, and while Peterborough is at present being given a good service by the Border City Transit Company, there is no guarantee that the service will be continued.

In fact, unless something is done to give that company exclusive command of the local transportation field there is grave danger that the bus company may soon withdraw its service and leave Peterborough as badly off for transportation facilities as on April 1st when the street railway gave up the ghost.

Given an assurance of an exclusive franchise, the company is prepared to replace the present buses with larger and more suitable vehicles, to improve the service by re-routing several of the lines, and to add to its local plant a number of sedan buses for trips outside the city.

The Border City Company has been seeking such an assurance from the Council for some time, but so far has made little progress, and the delay in arriving at anything definite may result in Peterborough finding itself again without adequate transportation facilities. Two bus lines can hardly survive and give good service.

THE APSLEY HOSPITAL.

The opening of the Red Cross Outpost Hospital at Apsley brings this district very closely in touch with the activities of this great organization, and should therefore have the effect of increasing interest in the campaign for funds to finance the Red Cross peace-time programme.

What the splendid hospital at Apsley means to the people in the northern part of Peterborough County cannot be estimated in dollars and cents.

It represents to many of them the difference between life and death, between relief and suffering, between intelligent care and neglect.

It brings to the ill and the injured facilities for treatment that hitherto have been denied to them in their own neighborhood.

It gives the baby of today a better opportunity to live and grow strong.

The Canadian Red Cross is doing many fine things for the people of this country, but nothing finer than the outpost hospital units, of which the Apsley institution is a splendid example.

THE WESTERN CROP.

The wheat fields of the Canadian Prairies are being planted under severe handicaps. Late snows overtook early seeding, and in recent weeks prolonged rains in many districts further have delayed operations. In the fine intervals, however, work proceeded rapidly and it is now reported that wheat seeding in the three Provinces is practically completed, while in some instances farmers are working with tractors and seed drills by night with the aid of searchlights.

Given a fair chance for the next few months the West with characteristic optimism predicts another good crop. The ground is full of moisture, and even in Southern Alberta, where drought is prosperity's greatest enemy, there has been a rainfall which makes the outlook the most promising in years. The date of seeding, within reasonable limitations, is itself of relatively small importance as compared with the weather after seeding is done, and there still is ample time for the production of a billion-dollar grain crop as part of the year's contribution to national wealth.

For the Prairie Provinces the black post-war days are far in the past and there is a new spirit of confidence generated out of improved economic conditions. There is a better understanding by West and East of the other's peculiar problems, and the action of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association in holding their annual convention in Calgary a week ago was a step marked by wisdom and foresight. There was a time not so long ago when the Western politician needed little ammunition save denunciation of the "Big Interests" of Montreal and Ontario. Happily that condition largely has passed, but a demonstration of the profound interest which manufacturers of Ontario and Quebec of necessity take in their Western market cannot but be of good effect to all parties.—Ottawa Journal.

BIG CANADIANISM.

Mr. E. W. Beatty, K.C., President and Chairman of the Canadian Pacific Railway, handed out some excellent advice in a Vancouver address the other day, when he said: "In this year which we celebrate the Diamond Jubilee of the Confederation of Canada, our greatest contribution to the memory of those courageous Fathers of Confederation should be a greater understanding of the needs of those portions of the country in which we ourselves do not live."

In other words, Mr. Beatty tells us we should strive this year as we have never striven before, to erase sectional feeling, to secure the viewpoint of the other fellow, to appreciate that every section of Canada has as much right to a say and as much right to its opinion as the section in which we may happen to live. This is a point of view, unfortunately, that many Canadians have not yet secured. Some of us are still prone to think in terms of provincialism or even less. We were born in Ontario, say, and have always lived in this Province. It is an old part of Canada, thickly populated and well off. We know Ontario better than we know any other section and we just naturally arrive at the conclusion that what Ontario thinks is about all right and that the rest of the country should, of necessity, think the same way.

Unfortunately for natural harmony, things do not always work out just that way. Quebec, for instance, has ideas of her own, and so have the people of British Columbia. In Manitoba, again, we may find another viewpoint on a certain subject, and still another in Prince Edward Island. What are we, as Canadians, to do in circumstances of this kind? Are we going to say that the views of Ontario should necessarily triumph, to the exclusion of all others? This is what we will say if we are narrow-minded and men of little vision. But if we are big, broad Canadians of the type that this country needs in order to secure the maximum of progress, expansion and prosperity, we will declare: "We think so-and-so should be done in a certain way, but we do not claim to be infallible or to possess all the brains in the country. We know that the other sections of Canada have just as much right to be heard as we have, we know that they have just as much right to their opinions as we have to ours and we know that they are just as patriotic, just as keenly anxious for the development, building up and general betterment of Canada as we are. The thing for us to do then is to discuss our various points of view and out of this discussion to arrive at a program of action that will be in the best interests of the Dominion as a whole."

Broad-minded Canadianism of this sort will do much for our country, and there is no year more appropriate than the present one for the launching of a new, enthusiastic program of co-operation and mutual understanding. In the past there has been too much cleavage, too much evidence of selfish sectionalism. It has not been confined to one part of the country. Its ugly head has been raised in the East and raised in the West. The result has not been good. Rather, it has retarded Canada's progress. A house divided against itself must be weakened, even if it does not fall. Canada has been a house divided. The year 1927, however, the year of Canada's 60th national birthday, should offer the occasion and the opportunity for all Canadians to take a new grip on common problems, a new outlook on national affairs, a new determination to advance this country's interests as they have never been advanced before.

A Canadian of the Beatty type appreciates the need of national, rather than sectional, feeling to a greater extent, perhaps, than most of us. Mr. Beatty lives in Montreal, but his business interests are nation-wide and international. His railway lines run from coast to coast and on either coast his steamships wait to carry Canadians and Canadian goods to the uttermost ends of the earth. Direction of a mammoth undertaking of this kind must give a man a breadth of outlook often denied to those whose interests are largely confined to one community or even to one Province. It is well to remember, however, that though our interests may appear to be largely local, they are affected, adversely or otherwise, by the general state of the nation. The Eastern manufacturer, for instance, cannot be prosperous unless the wheat growers of Western Canada are prosperous. In the same way, the prosperity of the fishermen of Nova Scotia or the potato raiser of New Brunswick is bound up with the prosperity of the fruit grower of British Columbia. We have nine Provinces in Canada, but our interests cannot be measured by Provincial boundary lines. It is the prosperity, contentment and happiness of the whole that counts.

Canada's brightest days lie ahead, but there is much for Canadians to do in bringing our country to them.—Border Cities Star.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, June 11.—Cattle prices have held steady to strong all through this week at the season's advances. Choice handy weight butcher steers were much in demand, selling in special cases as high as $9.75, raising the general average slightly higher than last week. Some very fine quality loads have been shipped in this week, and for this class the market as yet has shown no sign of weakeneing. Choice heifers sold firm from $9.00 to $9.25. Heavy heifers from $8.50 to $8.75. Heavy fat steers sold well, though not averaging quite as high as the handyweights. Rough heavy steers from $8.50 to $8.75.

Fat cows were steady, choice selling at $7.25 to $7.75; good, $6.50 to $7; medium to common cows, and some grass cows sold at $5.25 to $6; choice butchers' bulls, light weights, active at $6.50 to $7.25; heavy bulls are rather slow at $5.25 to $6, with prospects lower. Bologna bulls, $4.75 to $5.25. Baby beeves—choice selling at $11 to $11.50; good, $10 to $10.50; medium, $8 to $9. A few sold lower than 8c.

Springers and Milkers—Choice and fancy springers are being sold to go to Buffalo at $90 to $120. Quebec Province taking a few, but not as many as might be expected. The local dairymen have now more milk than fills their contracts, consequently, not increasing their herd. Medium to common springers and all milkers are very hard to sell.

Stockers and feeders are very scarce, a few dry cows going out at $5 to $5.50 for the best, while there are some real thin cows at $4 to $4.50. A few steers not good enough for the abbatoirs sold at $7 to $7.50. One load of Western heifers, mixed breed, and very thin, sold at $5.25.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, June 11 (Canadian Press).—There was no improvement in the demand for grain from United Kingdom and Continental buyers here yesterday, and in consequence, business was again very quiet.

On account of the further depression in the future corn market at Chicago spot prices here for cash corn were reduced 2 cents per bushel. American Sample Corn in car lots was quoted at $1.02, and Argentine corn at $1.01 per bushel. There was no change in prices for oats and business was quiet.

The demand for Spring and Winter wheat grades of flour was inactive, but values were unchanged.

The market for all lines of millfeed was moderately active and firm. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was fair and the undertone was steady.

An active business was done in eggs and values were well maintained. The receipts were 2,461 cases.

Owing to the warm weather that prevailed yesterday a somewhat unsettled feeling developed in the potato market, but there was no actual change in prices. Sales of odd cars of Quebec White B grade were made at $3.00 for outside shipment, and at $2.75 per bag for local account, and Reds at $2.30 to $2.40 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk, ex-track.

The local butter market was again weak yesterday and values were reduced another ¼c to ½c per pound. This was attributed to the small demand and the large receipts. The receipts were 4,794 packages.

Cheese prices were reduced another ¼c per pound. The receipts were 7,209 boxes.

Demand $4.85 5-16; cables $4.85¾.

CHICAGO CATTLE

CHICAGO, June 11 (Canadian Press).—Cattle 2,000; killing classes fully steady with week's sharp advance Monday; no heavies here; medium grades predominating; sprinkling good steers $11.00 to $1.75; best 1,070 pound averages $12.35; mixed yearlings $11; bulk medium to good light yearlings $10.25, downward to $9.25.

Hogs 20,000; opened fairly active; mostly to shippers, small killers and few small yard traders at 10 to 15c higher than Thursday's average; choice qualified hogs comparatively scarce; early bulk 160 to 210 pound averages $9.10 to $9.20; extreme top $9.25 paid for sorted 185 to 200 pound kinds, bulk 240 to 260 pound butchers $8.85 to $9.05.

Sheep 9,000; better grades fat lambs fairly active, about steady; quality considered; closed weak; bulk good natives $17.50 to $17.75; top to city butchers $17.90; sheep steady; good to choice fat ewes $6 to $7; feeders scarce.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, June 11 (Canadian Press).—Prices received a staggering jolt in the corn market yesterday. Nearly perfect weather conditions for planting were accompanied by reports of Argentine corn being offered at relatively low figures and by disturbing advices relative to pending trade legislation at Springfield.

Corn, closed semi-demoralized, 3¼ to 5c net lower; with wheat at ⅝ to ¾c advance; oat ½ to 1⅛ down, and provisions showing 15 to 37c gain.

Further impetus to the downward sweep of the corn market was given by a statement from a leading authority that final acreage of corn this season will at least equal that of 1926, and that with good forcing weather and timely rains a yield of 3,000,000 bushels or more is possible. He also pointed out that current prices for hogs are not conductive to a high level of corn values and that large commercial stocks of corn are still in sight.

Before rallies in the corn market could become effective an extreme smash of 7 cents a bushel took place as compared with yesterday's early top figures. In the end the market ranged from ¾ to 1c up from the bottom level reached.

Although wheat went sharply upgrade at the start yesterday with big general buying on the government report, the gains were afterward nearly wiped out as a result of corn weakness and on selling to realize profits. Favorable weather as a rule for wheat harvesting was also of considerable effect as a stimulus to sellers.

Oats declined with corn.

Provisions were responsive to an upturn in hog values.

A Thought For To-day

BUILDING THE BRIDGE.

Came at the evening, cold and gray,
To a chasm vast and deep and wide,
Through which was flowing a sullen tide.
The old man crossed in the twilight dim,
The sullen stream had no fear for him;
But he turned when safe on the other side,
And built a bridge to span the tide.

"Old man," said a fellow pilgrim near,
"You are wasting your strength with building here;
Your journey will end with the ending day,
You never again will pass this way;
You've crossed the chasm, deep and wide,
Why build you this bridge at evening tide?"

The builder lifted his old gray head—
"Good friend, in the path I have come," he said,
"There followeth me after to-day,
A youth whose feet must pass this way.
This chasm that has been as naught to me,
To that fair-haired youth may a pitfall be;
He, too, must cross in the twilight dim—
Good friend, I am building this bridge for him!"

Beauty Spots are near you no matter where you live

On less frequented roads are many lovely places, not far from your home

Not on the main travelled highways, but out along the county and township roads the most beautiful natural scenery in Ontario will be found.

Not far from you, no matter where you live in Ontario, are beauty spots you do not know of, for like other motorists you have an inclination to stick to pavements.

Around you is geography you have never seen. Get out your road map and locate these lovely places. Don't be timid about turning on to lesser roads and then to byways not much frequented.

County roads in Ontario are good—the best of them rival some of the Provincial Highways, and the township roads are becoming better every year. Of all the roads in old Ontario, 60% have road "metal" on them, that is, they have been improved in grade and width and built up with stone. You have a surprise and a pleasure in store if you have not explored these lesser roads.

Far and near, the highways bring you to new scenes and new people.

The association with fellow-citizens in other parts of Ontario is one of the greatest opportunities they offer you. This association will give you a broader view of life in your own Province.

There's no better way to travel. None by which you see the country so well or become so intimate with the people.

Plan to get about the Province in your car this summer. Take the family with you. Use the highways. They belong to you and to the other taxpayers, and you are paying for their construction and maintenance

If you want to enjoy roadside beauties you will drive moderately. High speeds are for those who want to get there, not for those who are out to see the country. But whether fast or slow, remember your driving must be cautious. The faster moving traffic under the new speed limit thrusts greater responsibility on you. In seeking to preserve the safety of the highway, the Government asks for the support of all motorists.

Through villages and past roadside schools, where pedestrians are using the road, at cross roads and rail roads, at curves and bridges — BE CAREFUL.

At all times, BE COURTEOUS.

The offence of recklessness or carelessness on the highways is not mitigated one degree because the speed limit has been increased. Disregard of the law will continue to be dealt with as The Highways Act provides even to the extent of imprisonment and loss of car license.

PHYSICAL RESEARCH.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear sir:

Some of our magazines and newspapers show a little interest in the work of physical research societies, but why not more it is not easy to understand. The character of that work may be illustrated by the following from the "Purpose and Scope" of the American Society for Physical Research, headquarters in New York City:—

FIRST.—The investigation of telepathy, visions and apparitions, dowsing, monitions, premonitions, automatism, psychometry, coincidental dreams, clairvoyance and clairaudience, predictions, the physical phenomena of mediumship (such as materializations, telekinesis, rapping and other sounds), and in short all types of "mediumistic" and unclassified psychological phenomena.

SECOND.—The collection, classification, study and publication of reports dealing from first hand acquaintance with the phenomena already designated.

THIRD.—The maintenance of a library on all subjects embraced in psychical research.

FOURTH.—Encouragement of the formation of local groups in all parts of the country which will co-operate with and report to the American Society, and especially the encouragement of similar co-operation on the part of qualified individuals.

The first American Society for Physical Research was formed in 1885, in consequence of a visit by Sir William F. Barrett who in 1882 when he was Professor of Physics in the Royal College of Science, Dublin, called a conference which resulted in the organization of the Society for Physical Research in London, the same year, of which Prof. Henry Sidgwick of Cambridge was the first President, and whose work was most ably and zealously carried on by his widow. Since then that Society has numbered among its Presidents Sir William Crookes, Sir Oliver Lodge, Sir J. J. Thompson, Lord Rayleigh, Prof. William James, Prof. Charles Richet, Prof. Henri Bergson, Sir William F. Barrett, Prof. Balfour Stewart, Prof. F. C. S. Schiller, Prof. Gilbert Murray, Prof. William McDougall, Bishop Boyd Carpenter, the Rt. Hon. (now Earl) Arthur J. Balfour, the Rt. Hon. Gerald Balfour, Dr. L. P. Jacks, and others. The Rt. Hon. W. E. Gladstone for many years before his death was an honorary member, in accepting which he said, "Psychical Research is the most important work which is being done in the world—by far the most important."

In 1887 the American Society invited a man of singular ability, Richard Hodgson, A.M., L.L.D., sometime lecturer in the University of Cambridge, to become its Executive Secretary and he accepted. The American Society later became a branch of the English Society under the able guidance of Dr. Hodgson until his death in 1905. The American Society for Psychical Research was then re-established with James H. Hyslop, Ph.D., formerly Professor of Logic and Ethics in Columbia University, as its Secretary and Director. His labor and writings were extensive and important and he reached and published certain definite conclusions before his untimely death a few years ago.

The Reports published by the English and American Societies cover a very wide range of investigations. In mind of man to know, there is a Chapter Two of Sir William Barrett's book "On the Threshold of the Unseen" (Second Edition 1917) he dealt with "Psychical Research and Public Opinion." He quoted from Prof. Karl Pearson that "Whenever there is the slightest possibility for the legitimate problem for science," and then goes on to say, "It will, I think, be generally admitted that public opinion has taken a new departure with regard to the large class of important and interesting phenomena which lie on the boundary of an unseen world. We are on the threshold of a new world of thought, and the existence of the Society for Physical Research, with its long list of distinguished men who are members of the Society or have given it their cordial support, is of itself a proof that a profound change of thought has taken place in recent years." He quotes Arthur J. Balfour in his presidential address of 1894 as follows:

"I think the time has come when it is desirable in their own interests, and in our interests, that the leaders of scientific thought in this country and elsewhere, should recognize that there are well attested facts which they do not easily fit into the framework of science, or of organized experience, as they conceive it, yet require investigation and explanation, and which it is the bounden duty of science, if not itself to investigate, at all events to assist us in the investigating. All arbitrary limitations of our sphere of work are to be avoided. It is our business to record, to investigate, to classify, and if possible to explain facts of a far more startling and impressive character than these modest cases of telepathy. Let us not neglect that business."

It would be appreciated, I am sure, by a few of us to know authoritatively what scientists in Canada, and especially our universities, have done or are doing in this work so highly commended by two of our Empire's great statesmen. Barret realized that some persons think, not unnaturally, that the Society of Psychical Research proceeds too slowly and cautiously and attempted to justify it. He quoted Sir John Hershel as saying that "The perfect observer will have his eyes as it were, opened, that they may be struck at once with any occurrence which, according to received theories ought not to happen, for these are the facts which serve as clues to new discoveries." He paid a deserved tribute to the "brave pioneers in the investigation of spiritualistic phenomena who risked their reputation and encountered ridicule and obloquy by their enquiry—and when they had obtained what appeared to them conclusive evidence of the genuinness of the phenomena they published their opinions with what then seemed rare courage. But not only these and other eminent men have been convinced of the facts, multitudes of men and women in all parts of the world have come to a similar belief. Long ago Dr. A. R. Wallace stated in an article in Chambers Encyclopaedia, 'Spiritualism has grown and spread continuously till, in spite of ridicule, misrepresentation and persecution, it has gained converts in every grade of society and in every civilized portion of the globe.' They have had in their own experience indubitable evidence of the existence of phenomena entirely new to the science of today—phenomena which receive their simplest solution upon the hypothesis of a spiritual world and of intelligent beings therein, able through certain channels at times, to communicate with us. Neither the blazing light of public opinion nor the rogues that have too often duped the credulous, have shaken a faith which stretches back to a remote past, and which has grown in strength with the accumulating evidence forthcoming from time to time and place to place. The philosopher Fichte has said, 'Everything great or good upon which our present existence rests, and from which it has proceeded, exists only because noble and wise men have resigned the enjoyments of life for the sake of ideas.' What a man affirms is the idea he has made his own, and this is always interesting and generally worth listening to; and what a number of men affirm and continue unshaken to affirm through years of opposing prejudice, or may be of persecution, is certainly a matter to which every honest lover of truth should give some heed."

Where are the "brave pioneers" of Canada today who are carrying on this most important work in psychical research in the truly scientific spirit which our universities presumably inculcate?

OIL FOR PLANES.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Future seaplanes, with a gross weight of 30,000 pounds, burning oil, are a possibility of the future, according to Commander H. C. Richardson, one of the foremost authorities on seaplane design. Multiple engines will be used because of the difficulty of getting power in a single unit. Air-cooled engines will gradually displace the water-cooled type and the fuel will gradually change from gasoline to heavy oil, reducing fire hazards.

RUBBER PAVING.

BOSTON, June 11.—Rubber paving blocks that were laid more than a year ago at the entrance to Boston City hospital have given good service, according to their record and recent tests. The pavement has worn only slightly and snow does not collect on it, thus eliminating slipperiness. R. F. Herrick, a consulting engineer of Boston, invented the blocks.

PLANE PATROLS PREVENT FIRES

Enable Rangers To Check Incipient Blazes in Forests.

MINISTER SPEAKS.

(Special to The Examiner.)

COBOURG, June 11.—Airplane patrols of Ontario's forests are discovering fires in their incipient stages and checking them before they can make serious headway, thereby revolutionizing the work of the fire rangers, Hon. W. Finlayson, Minister of Mines and Forests in the Ferguson Cabinet, informed the Counties Council.

"The number of fires is not getting less," said the Minister. "We still have the fool Canadian, who doesn't care where he throws matches, whether or not he puts out the fires he started, and where he empties his pipe. We have not been able to do much with this human element in our efforts for control and prevention, but we have made big gains over the natural element. In 1923 we lost over two million acres of timber in 1,300 fires in Ontario, and last year we had 1,200 fires. So the number has been almost the same."

Hon. Mr. Finlayson directed his address to his department's plans and expanding campaign of reforestation. Having divided the province into three district or areas, Southern Ontario, the Laurentian Plateau through Muskoka, Renfrew, Parry Sound and neighboring counties; and the northern zone which constitutes 85 per cent of the province ,the Department planned three separate schemes of reforestation, because the districts presented different problems.

"We will send out nine or ten million trees in Southern Ontario this year," Mr. Finlayson said. "We give them free to the farmers, and in a few years we expect to have 20,000,000 distributed. Most farms have five or ten acres of waste land. Those are the lots we are trying to persuade our farmers to plant with the trees we will send them.

There are townships north of here that are suitable only for timber and summer resorts. We have begun the transfer of poor settlers from those townships to the rich land in Northern Ontario. After the lumber men had striped these townships as in Haliburton, the few settlers who remained behind were gradually reduced to hopeless poverty because the land was unsuitable. We are saying we made a mistake in the years gone by in opening up these townships, and we now intend to seal them up.

I found our school grants to Haliburton were $35,000 a year. There were three schools with an average attendance of 6 or 7. We are moving 100 people and the saving on one school in Haliburton will pay the cost of their transportation. We give them a school and house to make a new start and help them all we can. Sixty years from now we should have a rich lot of timber in these townships we are closing up. If the experiment fails it will be my fault. If it succeeds, Ontario will make a great deal of money out of it."

Hon. Mr. Finlayson enlarged upon the pulp and paper industry and the wealth it had created in this province, but he particularly appealed to the council to broaden its interests in reforestation in the two counties. A good beginning had been made at the forestry station in Cramahe township, but there should be one in Durham county also. He also suggested that farmers apply for trees to provide windbreaks around their homes.

The council thanked Mr. Finlayson and E. J. Zavitz, deputy-minister, who also spoke, and authorized Warden Elliott to appoint a committee of five members to bring in a report at the December sessions on a tentative programme of extending reforestation activities in the two counties.

The British Exhibit at the Canadian National Exhibition will represent 1,900 manufacturing concerns with a capitalization of twenty-five million dollars.

PHYSICAL RESEARCH.

To the Editor of The Examiner:
Dear sir:

Some of our magazines and newspapers show a little interest in the work of physical research societies, but why not more it is not easy to understand. The character of that work may be illustrated by the following from the "Purpose and Scope" of the American Society for Physical Research, headquarters in New York City:—

FIRST.—The investigation of telepathy, visions and apparitions, dowsing, monitions, premonitions, automatism, psychometry, coincidental dreams, clairvoyance and clairaudience, predictions, the physical phenomena of mediumship (such as materializations, telekinesis, rapping and other sounds), and in short all types of "mediumistic" and unclassified psychological phenomena.

SECOND.—The collection, classification, study and publication of reports dealing from first hand acquaintance with the phenomena already designated.

THIRD.—The maintenance of a library on all subjects embraced in psychical research.

FOURTH.—Encouragement of the formation of local groups in all parts of the country which will co-operate with and report to the American Society, and especially the encouragement of similar co-operation on the part of qualified individuals.

The first American Society for Physical Research was formed in 1885, in consequence of a visit by Sir William F. Barrett who in 1882 when he was Professor of Physics in the Royal College of Science, Dublin called a conference which resulted in the organization of the Society for Physical Research in London, the same year, of which Prof. Henry Sidgwick of Cambridge was the first President, and whose work was most ably and zealously carried on by his widow. Since then that Society has numbered among its Presidents Sir William Crookes, Sir Oliver Lodge, Sir J. J. Thompson, Lord Rayleigh, Prof. William James, Prof. Charles Richet, Prof. Henri Bergson, Sir William F. Barrett, Prof. Balfour Stewart, Prof. F. C. S. Schiller, Prof. Gilbert Murray, Prof. William McDougall, Bishop Boyd Carpenter, the Rt. Hon. (now Earl) Arthur J. Balfour, the Rt. Hon. Gerald Balfour, Dr. L. P. Jacks, and others. The Rt. Hon. W. E. Gladstone for many years before his death was an honorary member, in accepting which he said, "Psychical Research is the most important work which is being done in the world—by far the most important."

In 1887 the American Society invited a man of singular ability, Richard Hodgson, A.M., L.L.D., sometime lecturer in the University of Cambridge, to become its Executive Secretary and he accepted. The American Society later became a branch of the English Society under the able guidance of Dr. Hodgson until his death in 1905. The American Society for Psychical Research was then re-established with James H. Hyslop, Ph.D., formerly Professor of Logic and Ethics in Columbia University, as its Secretary and Director. His labor and writings were extensive and important and he reached and published certain definite conclusions before his untimely death a few years ago.

The Reports published by the English and American Societies cover a very wide range of investigations. In mind of man to know, there is a Chapter Two of Sir William Barrett's book "On the Threshold of the Unseen" (Second Edition 1917) he dealt with "Psychical Research and Public Opinion." He quoted from Prof. Karl Pearson that "Whenever there is the slightest possibility for the legitimate problem for science," and then goes on to say, "It will, I think, be generally admitted that public opinion has taken a new departure with regard to the large class of important and interesting phenomena which lie on the boundary of an unseen world. We are on the threshold of a new world of thought, and the existence of the Society for Physical Research, with its long list of distinguished men who are members of the Society or have given it their cordial support, is of itself a proof that a profound change of thought has taken place in recent years." He quotes Arthur J. Balfour in his presidential address of 1894 as follows:

"I think the time has come when it is desirable in their own interests, and in our interests, that the leaders of scientific thought in this country and elsewhere, should recognize that there are well attested facts which they do not easily fit into the framework of science, or of organized experience, as they conceive it, yet require investigation and explanation, and which it is the bounden duty of science, if not itself to investigate, at all events to assist us in the investigating. All arbitrary limitations of our sphere of work are to be avoided. It is our business to record, to investigate, to classify, and if possible to explain facts of a far more startling and impressive character than these modest cases of telepathy. Let us not neglect that business."

It would be appreciated, I am sure, by a few of us to know authoritatively what scientists in Canada, and especially our universities, have done or are doing in this work so highly commended by two of our Empire's great statesmen. Barret realised that some persons think, not unnaturally, that the Society of Psychical Research proceeds too slowly and cautiously and attempted to justify it. He quoted Sir John Hershel as saying that "The perfect observer will have his eyes as it were, opened, that they may be struck at once with any occurrence which, according to received theories ought not to happen, for these are the facts which serve as clues to new discoveries." He paid a deserved tribute to the "brave pioneers in the investigation of spiritualistic phenomena who risked their reputation and encountered ridicule and obloquy by their enquiry—and when they had obtained what appeared to them conclusive evidence of the genuinness of the phenomena they published their opinions with what then seemed rare courage. But not only these and other eminent men have been convinced of the facts, multitudes of men and women in all parts of the world have come to a similar belief. Long ago Dr. A. R. Wallace stated in an article in Chambers Encyclopaedia, 'Spiritualism has grown and spread continuously till, in spite of ridicule, misrepresentation and persecution, it has gained converts in every grade of society and in every civilized portion of the globe.' They have had in their own experience indubitable evidence of the existence of phenomena entirely new to the science of today—phenomena which receive their simplest solution upon the hypothesis of a spiritual world and of intelligent beings therein, able through certain channels at times, to communicate with us. Neither the blazing light of public opinion nor the rogues that have too often duped the credulous, have shaken a faith which stretches back to a remote past, and which has grown in strength with the accumulating evidence forthcoming from time to time and place to place. The philosopher Fichte has said, 'Everything great or good upon which our present existence rests, and from which it has proceeded, exists only because noble and wise men have resigned the enjoyments of life for the sake of ideas.' What a man affirms is the idea he has made his own, and this is always interesting and generally worth listening to; and what a number of men affirm and continue unshaken to affirm through years of opposing prejudice, or may be of persecution, is certainly a matter to which every honest lover of truth should give some heed."

Where are the "brave pioneers" of Canada today who are carrying on this most important work in psychical research in the truly scientific spirit which our universities presumably inculcate?

PLANE PATROLS PREVENT FIRES

Enable Rangers To Check Incipient Blazes in Forests.

MINISTER SPEAKS.

(Special to The Examiner.)

COBOURG, June 11.—Airplane patrols of Ontario's forests are discovering fires in their incipient stages and checking them before they can make serious headway, thereby revolutionizing the work of the fire rangers, Hon. W. Finlayson, Minister of Mines and Forests in the Ferguson Cabinet, informed the Counties Council.

"The number of fires is not getting less," said the Minister. "We still have the fool Canadien, who doesn't care where he throws matches, whether or not he puts out the fires he started, and where he empties his pipe. We are saying we made a mistake in the years gone by in opening up these townships, and we now intend to seal them up.

I found our school grants to Haliburton were $35,000 a year. There were three schools with an average attendance of 6 or 7. We are moving 100 people and the saving on one school in Haliburton will pay the cost of their transportation. We give them a school and house to make a new start and help them all we can. Sixty years from now we should have a rich lot of timber in these townships we are closing up. If the experiment fails it will be my fault. If it succeeds, Ontario will make a great deal of money out of it."

Hon. Mr. Finlayson enlarged upon the pulp and paper industry and the wealth it had created in this province, but he particularly appealed to the council to broaden its interests in reforestation in the two counties. A good beginning had been made at the forestry station in Cramahe township, but there should be one in Durham county also. He also suggested that farmers apply for trees to provide windbreaks around their homes.

The council thanked Mr. Finlayson and E. J. Zavitz, deputy-minister, who also spoke, and authorized Warden Elliott to appoint a committee of five members to bring in a report at the December sessions on a tentative programme of extending reforestation activities in the two counties.

PHYSICAL RESEARCH.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear sir:

Some of our magazines and newspapers show a little interest in the work of physical research societies, but why not more it is not easy to understand. The character of that work may be illustrated by the following from the "Purpose and Scope" of the American Society for Physical Research, headquarters in New York City:—

FIRST.—The investigation of telepathy, visions and apparitions, dowsing, monitions, premonitions, automatism, psychometry, coincidental dreams, clairvoyance and clairaudience, predictions, the physical phenomena of mediumship (such as materializations, telekinesis, rapping and other sounds), and in short all types of "mediumistic" and unclassified psychological phenomena.

SECOND.—The collection, classification, study and publication of reports dealing from first hand acquaintance with the phenomena already designated.

THIRD.—The maintenance of a library on all subjects embraced in psychical research.

FOURTH.—Encouragement of the formation of local groups in all parts of the country which will co-operate with and report to the American Society, and especially the encouragement of similar co-operation on the part of qualified individuals.

The first American Society for Physical Research was formed in 1885, in consequence of a visit by Sir William F. Barrett who in 1882 when he was Professor of Physics in the Royal College of Science, Dublin, called a conference which resulted in the organization of the Society for Physical Research in London, the same year, of which Prof. Henry Sidgwick of Cambridge was the first President, and whose work was most ably and zealously carried on by his widow. Since then that Society has numbered among its Presidents Sir William Crookes, Sir Oliver Lodge, Sir J. J. Thompson, Lord Rayleigh, Prof. William James, Prof. Charles Richet, Prof. Henri Bergson, Sir William F. Barrett, Prof. Balfour Stewart, Prof. F. C. S. Schiller, Prof. Gilbert Murray, Prof. William McDougall, Bishop Boyd Carpenter, the Rt. Hon. (now Earl) Arthur J. Balfour, the Rt. Hon. Gerald Balfour, Dr. L. P. Jacks, and others. The Rt. Hon. W. E. Gladstone for many years before his death was an honorary member, in accepting which he said, "Psychical Research is the most important work which is being done in the world—by far the most important."

In 1887 the American Society invited a man of singular ability, Richard Hodgson, A.M., L.L.D., sometime lecturer in the University of Cambridge, to become its Executive Secretary and he accepted. The American Society later became a branch of the English Society under the able guidance of Dr. Hodgson until his death in 1905. The American Society for Psychical Research was then re-established with James H. Hyslop, Ph.D., formerly Professor of Logic and Ethics in Columbia University, as its Secretary and Director. His labor and writings were extensive and important and he reached and published certain definite conclusions before his untimely death a few years ago.

The Reports published by the English and American Societies cover a very wide range of investigations. In mind of man to know, there is a Chapter Two of Sir William Barrett's book "On the Threshold of the Unseen" (Second Edition 1917) he dealt with "Psychical Research and Public Opinion." He quoted from Prof. Karl Pearson that "Whenever there is the slightest possibility for the legitimate problem for science," and then goes on to say, "It will, I think, be generally admitted that public opinion has taken a new departure with regard to the large class of important and interesting phenomena which lie on the boundary of an unseen world. We are on the threshold of a new world of thought, and the existence of the Society for Physical Research, with its long list of distinguished men who are members of the Society or have given it their cordial support, is of itself a proof that a profound change of thought has taken place in recent years." He quotes Arthur J. Balfour in his presidential address of 1894 as follows:

"I think the time has come when it is desirable in their own interests, and in our interests, that the leaders of scientific thought in this country and elsewhere, should recognize that there are well attested facts which they do not easily fit into the framework of science, or of organized experience, as they conceive it, yet require investigation and explanation, and which it is the bounden duty of science, if not itself to investigate, at all events to assist us in the investigating. All arbitrary limitations of our sphere of work are to be avoided. It is our business to record, to investigate, to classify, and if possible to explain facts of a far more startling and impressive character than these modest cases of telepathy. Let us not neglect that business."

It would be appreciated, I am sure, by a few of us to know authoritatively what scientists in Canada, and especially our universities, have done or are doing in this work so highly commended by two of our Empire's great statesmen. Barret realized that some persons think, not unnaturally, that the Society of Psychical Research proceeds too slowly and cautiously and attempted to justify it. He quoted Sir John Hershel as saying that "The perfect observer will have his eyes as it were, opened, that they may be struck at once with any occurrence which, according to received theories ought not to happen, for these are the facts which serve as clues to new discoveries." He paid a deserved tribute to the "brave pioneers in the investigation of spiritualistic phenomena who risked their reputation and encountered ridicule and obloquy by their enquiry—and when they had obtained what appeared to them conclusive evidence of the genuinness of the phenomena they published their opinions with what then seemed rare courage. But not only these and other eminent men have been convinced of the facts, multitudes of men and women in all parts of the world have come to a similar belief. Long ago Dr. A. R. Wallace stated in an article in Chambers Encyclopaedia, 'Spiritualism has grown and spread continuously till, in spite of ridicule, misrepresentation and persecution, it has gained converts in every grade of society and in every civilized portion of the globe.' They have had in their own experience indubitable evidence of the existence of phenomena entirely new to the science of today—phenomena which receive their simplest solution upon the hypothesis of a spiritual world and of intelligent beings therein, able through certain channels at times, to communicate with us. Neither the blazing light of public opinion nor the rogues that have too often duped the credulous, have shaken a faith which stretches back to a remote past, and which has grown in strength with the accumulating evidence forthcoming from time to time and place to place. The philosopher Fichte has said, 'Everything great or good upon which our present existence rests, and from which it has proceeded, exists only because noble and wise men have assigned the enjoyments of life for the sake of ideas.' What a man affirms is the idea he has made his own, and this is always interesting and generally worth listening to; and what a number of men affirm and continue unshaken to affirm through years of opposing prejudice, or may be of persecution, is certainly a matter to which every honest lover of truth should give some heed."

Where are the "brave pioneers" of Canada today who are carrying on this most important work in psychical research in the truly scientific spirit which our universities presumably inculcate?

OIL FOR PLANES.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Future seaplanes, with a gross weight of 30,000 pounds, burning oil, are a possibility of the future, according to Commander H. C. Richardson, one of the foremost authorities on seaplane design. Multiple engines will be used because of the difficulty of getting power in a single unit. Air-cooled engines will gradually displace the water-cooled type and the fuel will gradually change from gasoline to heavy oil, reducing fire hazards.

BOSTON, June 11.—Rubber paving blocks that were laid more than a year ago at the entrance to Boston City hospital have given good service, according to their record and recent tests. PLANE PATROLS PREVENT FIRES

Enable Rangers To Check Incipient Blazes in Forests.

MINISTER SPEAKS.

(Special to The Examiner.)

COBOURG, June 11.—Airplane patrols of Ontario's forests are discovering fires in their incipient stages and checking them before they can make serious headway, thereby revolutionizing the work of the fire rangers, Hon. W. Finlayson, Minister of Mines and Forests in the Ferguson Cabinet, informed the Counties Council.

"The number of fires is not getting less," said the Minister. "We still have the fool Canadien, who doesn't care where he throws matches, whether or not he puts out the fires he started, and where he empties his pipe. We have not been able to do much with this human element in our efforts for control and prevention, but we have made big gains over the natural element. In 1923 we lost over two million acres of timber in 1,300 fires in Ontario, and last year we had 1,200 fires. So the number has been almost the same."

Hon. Mr. Finlayson directed his address to his department's plans and expanding campaign of reforestation. Having divided the province into three district or areas, Southern Ontario, the Laurentian Plateau through Muskoka, Renfrew, Parry Sound and neighboring counties; and the northern zone which constitutes 85 per cent of the province the Department planned three separate schemes of reforestation, because the districts presented different problems.

"We will send out nine or ten million trees in Southern Ontario this year," Mr. Finlayson said. "We give them free to the farmers, and in a few years we expect to have 20,000,000 distributed. Most farms have five or ten acres of waste land. Those are the lots we are trying to persuade our farmers to plant with the trees we will send them.

There are townships north of here that are suitable only for timber and summer resorts. We have begun the transfer of poor settlers from those townships to the rich land in Northern Ontario. After the lumber men had striped these townships as in Haliburton, the few settlers who remained behind were gradually reduced to hopeless poverty because the land was unsuitable. We are saying we made a mistake in the years gone by in opening up these townships, and we now intend to seal them up.

I found our school grants to Haliburton were $35,000 a year. There were three schools with an average attendance of 6 or 7. We are moving 100 people and the saving on one school in Haliburton will pay the cost of their transportation. We give them a school and house to make a new start and help them all we can. Sixty years from now we should have a rich lot of timber in these townships we are closing up. If the experiment fails it will be my fault. If it succeeds, Ontario will make a great deal of money out of it."

Hon. Mr. Finlayson enlarged upon the pulp and paper industry and the wealth it had created in this province, but he particularly appealed to the council to broaden its interests in reforestation in the two counties. A good beginning had been made at the forestry station in Cramahe township, but there should be one in Durham county also. The British Exhibit at the Canadian National Exhibition will represent 1,900 manufacturing concerns with a capitalization of twenty-five million dollars.

Glandular Treatment for Indigestion

Renzyme is a scientific combination of all enzymes and ferments necessary to the digestion of food—A natural and effective digestant.

It is a common knowledge that by far the greatest number of ailments for which physicians are consulted may be classified as belonging to disorders of the digestive organs. This may be the result of improper diet, overeating, or to disease of the stomach or digestive organs, or may also be secondary to other diseases or illness such as nervousness, anaemia, debility, etc. The number of people who suffer from dyspepsia, indigestion, flatulence, regurgitation of food, heartburn, loss of appetite are countless and in fact, at times every person has suffered from some such digestive upset or disorder.

The means of relief offered to the public has up to the present time been merely temporary and unsatisfactory and has in the main consisted in the administration of chemicals and drugs of various forms. In Renzyme there has been discovered the most rational and effective treatment for disordered digestion that has as yet been offered to sufferers of this complaint. The action of various animal and vegetable enzymes and ferments in digestion has long been known to scientists and for years has been utilized commercially in the preparation of various foods. We know that the food is acted upon by these enzymes and broken into simpler compounds so that these may be easily assimilated by the body and used for heat, energy and replacing the worn out tissues.

Renzyme is a scientific combination of all the enzymes and ferments necessary to the digestion of all kinds of foods. It consists of the natural animal and vegetable ferments such as are secreted during digestion by the healthy digestive glands, unadulterated by any chemical or drug. The process of digestion does not vary in different individuals as it is an exact scientific biochemical process. The digestive disturbances enumerated above are largely the result of absence or deficiency of these enzymes. The rational treatment for these disturbances, therefore, is to supply these ferments to the human organism. Renzyme supplies this deficiency and not only does it furnish lacking ferments but it acts as a hormone stimulating the natural flow of juices in the digestive organs and thus gradually restores these organs to their proper functions.

In recent years the treatment of disease by means of glandular preparations has advanced rapidly. One need only recall the benefits that have followed the discovery of insulin. We believe that in Renzyme there is found a glandular enzyme, which will prove equally as successful in its own field.

It is recommended in all cases of overeating, faulty diet, disordered digestion or where there is a deficiency of the natural juices as is evidenced by symptoms of flatulence, heartburn, sense of fullness after meals, lack of appetite etc. It will also prove invaluable in restoring and aiding the weakened digestive functions of invalids, convalescents and aged people.

Arrangements have been made whereby Renzyme is supplied by the druggist at the nominal charge of $1.50 a bottle.

CONTINUITY OF COUNTY ROADS COMMISSION IS URGED AS NEED

COUNTIES COUNCIL.

Fred Gray Wants Road From Port Perry To Peterborough.

(Special to The Examiner.)

COBOURG, June 11.—To avoid the annual changing of the personnel of its special roads commission, the Counties Council at its December session will consider methods to effect some degree of continunity or permanence, as a result of a suggestion by Deputy-Reeve George H. Hooton of Cavan Thursday afternoon.

"The new members are just getting acquainted with their work when they are replaced," said Mr. Hooton, "and so it goes from year to year. I think it would be much better for the Council and the Counties if we had a least one member who would remain on the Commission in the following year. He would know what had been done, and would be in a better position to make the Commission's work most useful."

Reeve S. A. Clarke of Cramahe endorsed Mr. Hooton's proposal, as also did Mr. Robert Muir, Chief Engineer of the Ontario Highways Department.

"The time is coming," Mr. Muir predicted, "when legislation will be passed requiring all county councils to administer country road affairs. Changing from year to year is a poor policy. At present it need not be that all the commissioners be members of the council. The best commission we have in Ontario has two members who are not members of the council. This move is in line with the ideas of the Department."

Deputy-Reeve Maher of Cobourg said that the chairman of one year's commission might continue as a member of the next year's commission. Thi would furnish the liason Mr. Hooton outlined.

Warden Elliott asked the members to give the subject some thought in the meantime and be prepared to take some action, if the Council was agreed, next December.

George Greer, County Roads Superintendent, said he had found the commissioners well informed and qualified to carry out their duties, and on the whole he was satisfied with the results from the present operations of the commission.

Millions Spent

Mr. Muir remarked that $70,000,000 had been spent on county roads up to December 31, 1926, and $32,000,000 had been paid by the province.

"We are now paying dollar for dollar with the province, and we want the county organizations to feel that the Department is their friend. Hon. Mr. Henry's heart is in the township and county road work," Mr. Muir declared.

Road to Peterborough

Deputy-Reeve Fred Gray of Manvers told Mr. Muir that many residents of his district wished to have the Cartwright-Manvers road reclassified as a county road. It had been designated in that list at one time, but was later reduced from the county road scale. This road is part of the most direct route from Port Perry to Peterborough, and its improvement would be a great advantage to farmers in Centre Durham who truck hogs to Peterborough and have other business there.

Mr. Muir promised to look over the bylaw as requested by Mr. Gray.

The Chief Engineer informed the Council that the counties' petition for an extension of their county road system had not been finally disposed of.

"I feel the United Counties are entitled to a few more miles of county roads," Mr. Muir said. "You are well below the average throughout the province, and I expect a decision will be forthcoming in a short time."

Reeve Grills of Seymour asked whether the Crowe river bridge, 86 feet long, which the township maintains, could be taken over by the county. Seymour has two 35-foot bridges to build, one of them this year.

Mr. Muir said the county could assume any bridge to relieve a township, if the county council considered that such relief should be given. The cost would be paid out of the county road fund for the year.

Grants to Schools

The following grants to high and continuation schools were recommend by the Schools Committee, of which Reeve Hess is chairman: Janetville, $841.88; Warkworth, $3,-164.14; Frankford, $2,227.38; Millbrook, $4,398.89; Norwood, $488.06; Lindsay, $2,451.40; Oakville, $40.06; Omemee, $356.16; Trenton, $3,510.43; Colborne, $5,987.23.

Payment of $50 to each of the following Cadet Corps was authorized: Bowmanville High and Public Schools; Campbellford High and Public Schools, Colborne High; Cobourg Collegiate and Millbrook.

The committee also passed Oshawa High School's claim for $2,843.73 additional grant under the recent amendment to the School Act.

Indigent Patients

Moved by George H. Hooton, seconded by R. Peake, that whereas under the amended Hospital Act, assented to on April 8th, 1926, accounts for indigent patients admitted to any hospital are sent to the counties' clerk for payment by the counties. The Clerk has no knowledge of places of residence of these patients. Therefore, be it resolved that the Warden and Clerk memorialize the Ontario Government requesting that accounts for patients be forwarded to the clerk of the local municipality in which a patient resides, in duplicate, and that the said clerk forward the duplicate copy of account to the counties treasurere certified correct and that fifty per cent. of the account be paid by the local municipality and the balance be paid by these counties; that the representatives in these counties co-operate in the matter, and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the clerks of the other counties requesting their co-operation. Carried.

County Roads Cost

County roads last year cost $95,213.51 which sales and receots of $994.68 reduced to $94,218.83.

Details of the expenditure were: Road construction $40,539.34; bridge construction $11,678.76; maintenance and repairs, $26,962.64; urban municipalities $5,010.78; superintendence $4,473.12.

NORTHUMBERLAND AND DURHAM TAX RATE FOR 1927 IS 9 MILLS

An Increase Of One Mill Over the 1926 Levy.

DEFICIT FROM 1926.

Hastings Must Finance Pavement Until New Year.

(Special to the Examiner.)

COBOURG, June 11. — The Counties Council fixed the tax rate at 9 mills late Friday afternoon. This rate is levied on the equalized assessment of Northumberland and Durham's constituent municipalities, and is one mill higher than last year.

At that the council was confronted with a 10 mill rate which was actually recommended in the Finance Committee's report, and was avoided only by the eleventh hour expedient of altering the previously adopted plan of financing the Hastings pavement.

Three items swelled the 1927 budget, and as a county rate of two mills is equivalent to at least three mills of the local rates, none of the councillors relished the prospect of returning to his ratepapers with an increase of virtually three mills, although only a two mill raise was the Finance Committee's unpalatable pill. Visions of the January elections flashed into the minds of the reeves and deputies and they set themselves to pruning off one mill at the very least.

The annoying items that seemed to bulk so large in the budget were a lot of money for permanent improvements, and next year all the ratepayers be relieved of the cost. It is fairer that the cost be extended over a number of years."

Mr. Greer expressed the apprehension that the Council's action might "block the Hastings pavement," but Warden Elliott said other counties sold debentures of permanent work of that kind, and there was nothing to prevent the United Counties from taking the same course.

Reeve Bygott said he had favored the debenture plan. Campbellford was prepared to finance the paving of its streets at any time suitable to the counties. His town was ready to go ahead this year or next spring. Debentures for 15 or 20 years could be issued in a block to fund the pavements in the three towns.

Deputy-Reeve Maher suggested that Hastings could go ahead with its work, but the Counties Council could forget the financial obligation until the Hastings account was received in December.

The Amendment.

The discussion drifted all around the subject in committee, and finally it was moved by Mr. Maher, seconded by Reeve Gray of Manvers, that the county road rate be fixed at 1½ mills and that Hastings assume the financing of its pavement until December 31st next. The amendment carried without opposition.

County Rate Levy.

The sums to be collected from the municipalities by the levy of the general county rate of 7½ mills are as follows: Alnwick, $2,988.15; Brighton, $9,677.81; Cramahe, $9,008.32; Cartwright, $8,676.57; Cavan, $14,488.23; Clarke, $16,384.12; Darlington, $20,550; Haldimand, $13,731; Hamilton, $13,-748.63; Hope, $16,259.91; Manvers, $10,809.86; Murray, $10,984.45; South Monaghan, $5,746.15; Percy, $9,202.04; Seymour, $12,098.84; Bowmanville, $8,770.73; Campbellford, $5,990.78; Cobourg $12,005.54; Port Hope $10,279.81, Brighton Village, $3,531.66; Colborne, $2,250; Hastings, $1,437.03; Millbrook, $1,488.81; Newcastle, $1,458.80.

The sums required from the municipalities under the county road rate are the same as last year, as the rate of 1½ mills is unchanged. The individual amounts are as follows: Alnwick, $597.63; Brighton, $1,935.56; Cramahe, $1,801.67; Cartwright, $1,-735.29; Cavan, $2,897.65; Clarke, $3,-284.33; Darlington, $4,125; Haldimand $2,749.73; Hamilton, $3,252; Hope, $3,-252; Manvers, $2,162; Murray, $2,-196.90; South Monaghan, $1,149.26; Percy, $1,840.42; Seymour, $3,420; Bow manville, $1,754.15; Campbellford, $1,-198.24; Cobourg, $2,401; Port Hope, $2,055.94; Brighton Village, $706.33; Colborne, $450; Hastings, $287.40; Mill brook, $297.78; Newcastle, $291.76.

These totals are $194,314.07 for general county purposes and $44,842 for county roads.

The public and separate school rate of .0008 of a mill, unchanged from last year, yields $2,390.95, and there is also .0012 mills raising $3,585.82 to meet a debenture payment and interest. The complete rate is therefore 9.002 mills.

Mrs. Wm. Campbell, a graduate nurse of Morden, Man., reports a very interesting experience she had recently with a distressing case of eczema. The patient was a lady who had suffered keenly both mentally and physically because of the way her face was disfigured and by the itching, burning sensations of the skin. She had become discouraged because doctors considered her case incurable.

Mrs. Campbell had known of similar cases and by patient persistent treatment was able to obtain complete relief and restore the natural beauty of the skin.

Mrs. Campbell writes:—"A patient under my care was so severely afflicted with eczema on her face that the doctors considered it incurable and could do nothing for it. I decided to try Dr. Chase's Ointment and never found anything like it for the first application stopped the itching. By continuing the use of the Ointment, the eczema was entirely removed and the complexion greatly improved. No one would ever know that my patient had previously been so disfigured by this annoying and torturing ailment."

Dr. Chase's Ointment is the recognized standard treatment for eczema. It should never be confused with ordinary salves for it is a medicinal ointment of proven merit and effectiveness. 60 cents a box, all dealers, or The Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto.

REEVE NELSON UNLOADS PERCY BRIDGE ON COUNTIES COUNCIL

Keogan's Bridge, on Boundary, Assumed By By-law.

BUY 50 ACRE FARM

Reforestation Committee Is Named By Warden Elliott.

(Special to The Examiner).

COBOURG, June 11.—Warden M. J. Elliott announced Friday afternoon Northumberland and Durham Council's special committee on reforestation as follows: Deputy-Reeve M. J. Maher of Cobourg, Deputy-Reeve Russel Peake of Seymour, Reeve C. A. Wight of Darlington; Deputy-Reeve B. Richardson of Manvers, and the Warden himself.

The committee is given wide scope to prepare a report for presentation at the December sessions which will be of assistance to the Council in broadening reforestation enterprise in the united counties. In addition to their local investigations they will go to Toronto, and as guest of the Hon. Mr. Finlayson, Provincial Minister of Forests and Mines, will visit the Government nurseries and plantations in Norfolk and Simcoe.

Mr. Finlayson indeed suggested such a committee, and the Council immediately fell in with his suggestion.

An Important Duty.

The responsibility of forming the organization which will undertake the preliminary effort of establishing Northumberland and Durham as a restricted area for the eradication of bovine tuberculosis was placed yesterday with Deputy-Reeve A. McKay of Clarke Township. It will be his duty to call a meeting of the reeves as the nucleus of the larger corps which will interview all the cattle owners of the two counties in an endeavor to enlist their goodwill and active support.

The two agricultural representatives will assist the committee. Yesterday Walter Smith, Northumberland's representative, appealed for an energetic campaign from the very outset, and apparently the anti-tuberculosis movement is about to be started in these counties under very favorable auspices. The eradication of T.B. from the herds will rest ultimately with the cattle owners, and the example of Prince Edward County is likely to prove a helpful influence.

Will Buy Farm.

The Council approved the proposal of the Board of Management of the House of Refuge to buy a farm of 50 acres adjacent to the House at a cost of $3,500. Reeve M. Wilson, chairman of the Board, outlined the necessity of this land, and Reeve Grills of Seymour said that certain rentals would meet most of the interest on the expenditure.

The Board's budget for this year is $18,000. There were 81 inmates on June 1st; 9 died since the last report, and 17 were admitted. Nine died, 3 absconded, and four were discharged. The 81 inmates are 44 men and 37 women.

Bridge Assumed.

Keogan's Bridge between Percy and Alnwick Townships has been assumed by the Counties Council, a fact that will be much appreciated by the ratepayers of Percy Township. It is recognized here as a real achievement for Reeve Herb whose knowledge of the latest statutes and the prescribed procedure proved its worth in this appeal.

Early in the session he gave notice of motion for the assumption of this 65-foot bridge on the road which is used instead of the boundary line between the two townships. Friday afternoon the Keogan Bridge by-law was brought down by Reeve Bedal of Brighton Township, and when some one asked why Mr. Nelson was asking for this precedent Warden Elliott said it was probably because Reeve Nelson had been looking over the statutes a little more closely than others.

Mr. Nelson denied that it was a precedent, and cited Thompson's Bridge as a prior assumption.

If there was any shadow of opposition, it disappeared when the vote disclosed unanimous approval.

Grant to Red Cross.

The Council granted $50 to the Red Cross Society and $250 to be spent on a Northumberland and Durham exhibit at the Toronto Exhibition again this year.

Its fine qualities preserved in the modern Aluminum package.

IMPROVING THE MEMORY

So many persons complain of poor card memories that a few hints as to how the habit of observation, upon which all memory, or rather recollection, is based, may be useful. To start with, when you are dummy and have nothing else to think about, first of all study the cards your partner plays, and see if you can recall, at the end of the hand, just how many he had of each suit. When you can do that fairly well, go a step further and see if you cannot also recall all the high or important cards in each suit, so that you can describe the hand, and judge whether or not his bidding was sound or unsound.

When playing the hand, as declarer, always study carefully the suit distribution of the dummy before you play, and keep the suits in a definite order, my hearts, clubs, diamonds and spades, so that the recollection of the figures, such as 4 3 1 5 will give you 4 hearts, 3 clubs, 1 diamond and 5 spades. This is useful in many cases in which you may fail to recall how many times a suit has been led. After a little practice, you should be able to recall all the important cards as well as the suit distribution.

When playing against the declarer, pay close attention to what your partner has in your long suit, and observe carefully what cards he plays to your leads. It is useless for him to play a six and then a four to show you it is safe to go on with a third round if you do not know he played a six the first time.

If you can get four persons together to improve card memories, it is excellent practice for each to take a different suit, and to see how many cards they can recall in the actual distribution of that one suit. If your suit is to be clubs, for example, can you be sure that you had three, dummy five, your partner two and the declarer three? After a little practice you should be able to recall the location of the high cards. From this it is only a step to remembering an entire hand, and just how it was played. Most of the games are won or lost by the accuracy or inaccuracy of a person's knowledge of the last five cards in each hand. This knowledge is simply elimination of what you know they do not hold.

Dummy Up.

When a fourth player is not available, it is frequently desirable to have a rubber anyway, and it is good practice for contract to see how closely one can judge the value of two hands in combination if the dummy's cards are seen before the bids are made.

Four hands are dealt as usual, but the thirteen cards that fall to the left of the dealer are turned face up and sorted into suits. The dealer looks them over, comparing their possibilities with his own thirteen cards and can either bid or pass. Each player in turn to the left then has a chance to bid on his cards combined with dummy's, or pass. The highest bidder places dummy's cards between his two adversaries, and the player to the left leads the first trick. All doubling is to the defeat contract.

The scoring is as at contract, no honors being worth anything unless there are four in one hand. Three separate scores must be kept, as each player is for himself against the two others when he is the declarer, and wins or loses equally to each.

Mayonnaise and Goulash.

This is a variation for four players, which differs from contract in one particular. This is that if the highest bid made is not enough to reach game the hand is not played. This condition precludes the possibility of any partial scores, because if game is not both bid and made, nothing is scored but penalties.

If the hand is not played, each person sorts his thirteen cards into suits, and the four hands are then placed one on the top of the other and presented to be cut without any shuffling, and are dealt out 5 5 3 at a time, instead of one by one.

A CENTRE HALL PLAN

By Harold R. Watson, Architect.

This is a very pleasing and successful treatment of centre hall planning fo a small lot. The outside dimensions are 23 ft. 8 in. x 44 ft. and having the entrance off the drive side, make it quite suitable for an inside lot thirty-five wide or a thirty foot corner.

The exterior is of brown rug brick and cream colored stucco with a stone course at the base, and a bit more of it used in the bay and chimney. Assisting the general architectural contour of the design in characterising a charming English influence are the casement windows and the use of varied shades of dipped shingles on the roof.

The floor plans show large, bright rooms, and much attention to comfort and convenience. One need only open the front door to discover a very desirable feature—the vestibule. It is so significant, of consideration of our climate that it may almost be termed the "hall-mark" of a well planned Canadian home.

Proceeding into the main hall, the access to all rooms and also to the rear grade entrance and cellar is noticeably convenient. At the left, double French doors lead to the large living room, 13 ft. x 22 ft. On entering, a truly delightful impression is created by the prominence of the large brick fireplace which is centred in the opposite wall between two groups of high silled casement windows. You will also notice this room extends the full width of the house and has light on three sides, one source being an attractive bay.

The dining room is 13 ft. x 12 ft. and being exceptionally bright and having direct access to the garden, is sure to be a much appreciated room.

The kitchen is wired for an electric range and provision is also made for icing the refrigerator from the service entry, without entering the room. Other features are the built-in cupboards and the locating of the sink under the group of three casement windows. Off the kitchen is a good sized breakfast room which, if not desired for this purpose, could be used as a maid's sitting room or a children's play room.

Upstairs are three bedrooms, two with two clothes closets each and the other, one large one. Two of these closets have windows. There is a linen cupboard in the hall, and underneath and at the side of the attic stairway, a lighted store room. A commendable plumbing feature is the separate toilet room in addition to the bathroom.

Leaving the attic unfinished, the cost of this home complete, including hot water heating, is $8,500.

Readers desiring further information regarding the plans and specifications for this house should communicate with the architect direct. Address, Mr. Harold R. Watson, Excelsior Life Building, Toronto, Ont. Copyright,

YUKON RIVER NAVIGATION

The Yukon River is navigable for large steamers from its mouth to Whitehorse, Yukon territory, Canada, a distance of about 2,000 miles. The only obstruction to navigation which steamers cannot overcome with their town power at all stages of water is at the Five-fingers rapids, so-called from five rocks which stand up out of the water like the fingertips of some giant hand. No difficulty is experienced at these rapids during the greater part of the season but at the period of extreme high water the fall, at one point, is just sufficient to left the big stern wheel of an upward bound steamer for a few seconds out of the water. That brief space of time is sufficient for a ship to lose headway and be carried down stream. To overcome this, when steam navigation was first undertaken on the river, an improvement was made by which a steel cable was attached to suitable ringbolts in rocks above and below the rapids and the cable itself allowed to lie slack in the water. When steamers bound up-stream reach the foot of the rapids the cable is taken on board and looped around a steam-driven capstan. As fast as the steamer pulls herself up river the slack or lower end of the cable is paid out overside into the water again. Once the critical point in the rapids is passed the cable is cast off into the river bed where it is immediately available for the next steamer bound up-stream.

SAFEGUARDING MILK BY PASTEURIZATION

(Report of M.H.O., Toronto, Continued from Thursday

These standards have been accepted and endorsed by the American Public Health Association, which is representative of the public health administrators throughout Canada, United States, Mexico and Cuba. They have also been approved by the American Medical Association; the Association of State and Provincial Health Officers; the National Tuberculosis Association; the Canadian National Tuberculosis Association; the Canadian Medical Association; the Canadian Public Health Association; the Provincial Health Officers' Association; the Minister of Health for Canada and the Ministers of Health for the Provinces of the Dominion of Canada, and by all recognized authorities on Public Health administration; so that there is now practically no second intelligent opinion as regards the absolute necessity for municipalities securing a clean milk, free from barnyard contamination, and then making it bacteriologically clean by scientific pasteurization. As already indicated, by "scientific pasteurization" we mean the heating of the milk to a temperature of 145 degrees Fahrenheit, and holding it at that for thirty minutes, and then promptly cooling it to a temperature of 50 degrees Fahrenheit, and holding it at that until delivered to the consumer. This temperature has been demonstrated by all the leading laboratories on this continent, to destroy all disease-producing germs, and practically 99 per cent. of all the other organisms in the milk. The bovine tubercle bacillus is the most resistant of all, but it is destroyed at a temperature of 140 degrees, so that in pasteurization we have an absolute safeguard of our milk supply as delivered to the consumer.

How Can We Guarantee Efficient Scientific Pasteurization?

This has been one of the difficulties that we have had to contend with, and that all other municipalities that were endeavoring to keep close supervision over the various pasteurizing plants for which they were responsible, no doubt have had to contend with.

CANADA'S THREE SCORE YEARS OF NATIONHOOD (POWER)

JUBILEE CELEBRATION CAUSES COAST TO COAST PREPARATION

Wide and Interesting Divergence of Features Typify Many Interests.

ALL PROVINCES KEEN.

Whole-Souled Concurrence In Original Objects of Confederation.

OTTAWA, Can., June 11.—With the Jubilee of Confederation less than three weeks away reports received by the National Committee here indicate that the arrangements for the celebration throughout the Dominion are well in hand everywhere, and that the various localities are vying with each other in their desire to show to the world that, after sixty years, Canada is a united country in spirit and in fact. Not only are the cities and big centres of population giving generously of their time, energy and finances to insure that the anniversary is adequately celebrated but from the remotest points come reports that citizens of Canada, young and old, are enthusiastically preparing for the event a month hence. While the National Committee, shortly after its organization, circulated through out the Dominion a suggested programme for the three days of celebration, starting with July 1st, and ending with the third, reports indicate that there will be a wide and interesting divergence of features characteristic of the various parts of the Dominion, and typical of their respective interests and pursuits. From Atlantic to Pacific there is evidence of a universal desire for the manifestation of Canadian sentiment, irrespective of varied geographical or economic conditions. Reports show that there will be a wholesouled manifestation of concurrence in the original objects of Confederation, and of satisfaction in the results thereof.

Local programmes will, of necessity, be diversified, and varied in character, and will include community singing, athletics and sporting competitions, regattas, pageants, and floats, the planting of maple trees, the unveiling of monuments and memorials, ceremonies connected with the naming and dedication of Confederation parks and squares, folk dances, and Indian powwows, old home reunions, and the gathering together of venerable and venerated figures, fire-works, and bonfires, children's festivals, etc., etc.

With a view toward ascertaining the nature of the activities in the various provinces the National Committee on Saturday communicated by wire with the heads of the provincial organizations, and this afternoon had received replies from the majority. Hon. F. J. Nash of Charlottetown reports that, in addition to the big celebration planned for the Capital of the Island, there will be celebrations at Summerside, Tignish, Alberton, Montague, Georgetown, Souris and other centres. An interesting feature of the Charlottetown celebration will be the unveiling of a Confederation tablet, and the laying of a wreath in the Legislative Chambers at 1.30 on the afternoon of Friday. The Lieutenant Governor will preside over events at Victoria Park, where messages from His Majesty the King, and others will be read, and where Percy Pope, son of one of the Fathers of Confederation, will deliver an historic address. There will be yacht racing, aquatic and other sports, community singing, fireworks, bonfires, etc.

J. D. Black, secretary of the provincial committee of New Brunswick, reports that "every pupil enrolled in the public schools of that province will be presented with a Union Jack to be carried in the celebration parades, and retained at the same time that the children's Confederation medals are being presented." The government of the province will also erect a bronze plaque suitably inscribed, in the provincial legislature to honor the memory of the eight New Brunswick Fathers of Confederation. The Fredericton celebration will continue during three days, and the official programme at noon on Dominion Day in front of the Parliament Buildings will be carried by loud speakers to those assembled. There will be parades of school children, fraternal and national societies and service clubs, floats, etc., and the royal salute will be fired at high noon, while speeches will be delivered by Premier Baxter, A. A. Dysart, opposition leader, and others. In the evening there will be a Mardi Gras carnival on Parliament Square, culminating with a firework display fired from barges on the St. John River, in front of the illuminated Legislative buildings. Celebrations of a similar character will be continued on Saturday, while on Sunday there will be an undenominational service in the open air. The report states that "similar celebrations extending over three days will be held at every incorporated city and town in New Brunswick, as well as in many centres of population which are not incorporated. The provincial committee has approximately fifty local committees organized and working strenuously, and in communities too small to have any other kind of celebration the Jubilee of Confederation will be honored at the formal closing exercises at the public schools on June 30th, this ensuring observation in 2,000 centres."

John Hosie, provincial librarian and archivist, at Victoria, B.C., reports as follows: "Approximately 250 communities are celebrating in a noteworthy manner, as are also many small schools. Elaborate preparations are being made in larger centres for the staging of ceremonies typifying dominion history from earliest times, and outstanding dominion and provincial incidents. The local committees are showing much

DOCTORS ADVICE TO THE SICK

Wash Away All Poisons In Stomach, Liver, Kidney and Bowels Before Breakfast

To feel your best day in and day out, no more headaches, indigestion, gas on stomach, bilious attacks, rheumatism, kidney pains, bad breath, you must bathe your self inside. Start today by taking one Tanol Calomel tablet before meals or two at bedtime, then next morning drink a glass or two of hot water to wash from the stomach, liver, kidney and bowels all the previous day's waste, poison and toxins before more food is taken in. Get a few Tanol tablets from F. C. Weber, Charlotte street, Peterborough. They are harmless to take, do not nauseate, no bad after effects, no salts or seidlitz next morning, like ordinary calomel. Then you can eat better, sleep better, work better, think better and look better. m-t-s.

An Ex-Buck Private Goes Back to France

Poziers as it appears to-day, looking along the Bapaume Road. So shattered that in 1916 it appeared wreckage absolute, it has arisen to-day to quite a respectable village.

Dear Mac: Nothing has so much surprised me in all my trips over the battlefields as Pozieres. You recall how it looked as we passed through it in the war years. Of Pozieres not one brick remained undisturbed. Its commanding position on the top of the ridge entitled it to special attention by our artillery. If ever a place was actually blasted off the face of the earth, that place was Pozieres. Its rubble was carted away to fill holes in the road. Every shell that struck the Bapaume road made a cavity that swallowed up the remains of a Pozieres home. The wood on the slope of the hill was a fierce entanglement of barb wire and scattered equipment. In October, 1916, there were many unburied Huns in the ruins and along the roadside. The civilian cemetery was churned into a porridgy mixture in which the new, alas, mingled with the old remains. In short, Pozieres had ceased to be.

Pozieres has arisen from its ruins. To-day, it is a presentable village of fair proportions; not a liveable village, because it is bisected by the main road and straggles its way for nearly half a mile. But it holds some substantial farms and a fine mairie. Even the civilian cemetery has been rediscovered, and a new monumental work of an orthodox French design is being erected in it.

The wood, that once stank in the occasional sunny day, is like a cushion of green. It is still tangled and rubbish-strewn, but its wreckage is not seen from a little distance. Crucifix corner is as quiet as the little shrine that marks it. Sausage valley has none of the terrors that marked a trip in 1916. The straggly paths that led up the side of the ridge are gone, turned under by the busy ploughs. Even the quarry hole where the "Y.M." served out hot coffee and cigarettes has disappeared. It was in Pozieres that I picked up a German soldier's waterbottle, in 1916. It was stamped, "Made in Niagara, N. Y."

It was here that the tanks did their first big job, and here the Australians added lustre to their name. Near the village are symbols of both. The cemetery at Pozieres is an Australian cemetery, beyond whose Cross of Sacrifice can be seen the memorial to the 1st Australian Division. When the new Australian capital at Canberra is completed, it is expected that seed from its gardens will be sent to link this cemetery to the country which dispatched the men who snatched Pozieres from a tenacious enemy.

Soon yet another memorial is to be erected at Pozieres. It is to be a Memorial to the Missing, on which will be inscribed the names of those men who fell in the Somme area and who have no known graves. It is the policy of the War Graves Commission to erect one memorial to the missing in each of the six areas into which the Western Front is divided, and thus the name of every man who fell will be recorded—on his grave if it is known, or otherwise upon a Memorial to the Missing in the area in which he made the great sacrifice. Such a memorial is to be dedicated at Ypres this summer.

Always the Effort!

In some of the war-region we have passed through there have been signs of gaiety. In the cities the recovery has been magnificent. While traces still remain—a shattered wall here—a crumbling house there—commercial and social conditions are almost normal. But—

While this may all be true of Ypres, Bethune, Albert, Arras, and of Amiens, think of Thiepval, Ovillers, and of Pozieres. The peasants are working. They are tilling fields. But everywhere, in spite of their heroic efforts, are the gaunt, dead trees, matted brush, and crumbling masonry. Desolation!

Kilometer after kilometer goes by, with not a human being seen. Down in the valley there's a wisp of smoke, rising. Over there are two women spading on a side hill. Always the effort. But what a heart-breaking, seemingly endless task for those who have chosen to try! There's a lot of sadness here yet, Mac, in spite of the wonderful reclamation and rebuilding. There are the cemeteries, always reminding. There are monuments on the roads and in unexpected dark recesses of the woods. This is a sacred pilgrimage, indeed, I feel at times. Paris has its pleasures. But up here, through the fields of battle, one knows a great sympathy, a sympathy in proportion to the knowledge one gained of the battlefield when it was desolate entirely. May we never forget!

Simple Home Treatment That Is Giving Amazing Results.

The world progresses. Today ailments that took weeks to treat can now be ended in a few days. If you have varicose veins or bunches you can start today to bring them back to normal size, and if you are wise you will do so.

Just get an original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil at any dispensing pharmacist and apply it night and morning to the enlarged veins. It is very powerful and penetrating, and only a little is required.

After a few days' treatment the veins will begin to grow smaller and by regular use will soon reduce to normal.

Moone's Emerald Oil is also a marvelous healing agent. One application for instance stops the itching of eczema, and a few applications cause the eruptions to dry up, scale off and completely disappear. It is equally as effective in barbers' itch, salt rheum, redness and inflammatory skin trouble.

People who want to reduce varicose veins, or get rid of eczema, ulcers, or piles in a few days should not hesitate to get a bottle at once. It is so powerful that a small bottle lasts a long time. Any pharmacy can supply you. Bond's Drug Store, McDermid Drug Co., Ltd., McDermid & Jury sells lots of it.

WANTED—A NEW SCREEN PERSONALITY

Famous Players Canadian Corporation Will Play Fairy Godmother To Some Ambitious Canadian Girl.

As surely as there is a Mary Pickford, just as surely are there dozens of girls living in Ontario to-day who could very successfully cast their lot with motion pictures—if given the opportunity. This is the belief of the directors of Famous Players Canadian Corporation. Nor do they think they are too visionary and enthusiastic in making this assertion. Someone has said that there are no mute, inglorious Miltons! Everyone who has the qualifications for success, succeeds. Of a surety! But one must first of all be inspired — then must come the opportunity.

As in every country in the world, Canada has its generous share of motion picture theatres where the latest productions are shown. And it does not require a very great stretch of the imagination to picture thousands of beautiful and brilliant young girls who attend these theatres weekly, who are not only enthralled by each new production, but who are also given to dreaming—dreaming of some day becoming picture stars themselves.

And why not? Were not Beatrice Lillie and Norma Shearer born in Canada? Were not Pauline Garon, Allan Dwan, Bert Lytell, and dozens of others once just part of our Canadian background? Oh, for success! But how? Hollywood is remotely distant, and one must have money to travel, money to live while seeking an audition. Too, one must be fairly sure of success before one attempts such a journey and a venture.

And so, conscious of this fact, aware of their ability to start some ambitious young girl on the road to fame and fortune, and believing that there is such a girl—a girl of exceptional beauty and charm, who, because of lack of means and opportunity, has never had a chance of proving her camera qualifications—the directors of Famous Players announce their earnest desire to play fairy godmother to all the screen aspirants living in Ontario, and on Saturday, June 18, they will wave a magic wand over the entire province in an effort to discover a new screen personality,—a young lady who will be given the opportunity of taking her place with Ontario's amazing representation in the world of motion pictures.

Canada has generously contributed to the melting-pot of motion picture genius. The list of outstanding personalities in the picture world today who were born in Canada is truly startling. The Pickfords—Mary, Lottie and Jack—were born in Canada, as were Beatrice Lillie, Marie Dressler, Willard Mack, Margaret Bannerman, Joseph and Sam DeGrasse, Reginald Barker, Norma Shearer, W. Scott Darling, Edward Earle, Earl Rodney, Pauline Garon, Wallace MacDonald, Joseph Kilgour, Rockcliffe Fellows and Huntley Gordon. Mack Sennett and the famous comic Christie brothers were also born in Canada. Madame Elinor Glyn, a vivid personality and an authority in Hollywood, is also a Canadian.

Perhaps the latest discovery was lovely Norma Shearer. Miss Shearer was a society girl who was ambitious for a career. She entered a beauty contest in Montreal and was chosen from among thousands of applicants.

Who will be the next Canadian screen find? Perhaps you who are reading this; or perhaps your sister or your daughter or your youthful mother!

How often have you heard it said: "Isn't Helen beautiful! She ought to go in the movies!" But again, the inevitable "how"?

Commencing Saturday, June 18th, Famous Players Canadian Corporation will conduct a "SCREEN PERSONALITY CONTEST" throughout the Province of Ontario (the Province that has already given so much of grace, beauty and personality to the stage and screen), the selection of the winner taking place during the week of July 9th, at the Uptown Theatre, Toronto.

The contest will run for one week in all the houses in Ontario under Famous Players' supervision.

Contestants will be judged for beauty of face and figure, poise, personality, carriage and general appearance, consistent with the characteristics of a motion picture star.

The contest will be limited to girls over sixteen years of age and bona fide residents of the Province of Ontario for three months prior to June 18th.

The winners of the preliminary contests held during the week of June 18th throughout the Province will apepar at the Uptown Theatre, Toronto, during the week commencing July 9th, there to compete in the final contest.

Winners of each preliminary contest will be determined by a committee of three judges, who will be guided by the applause of the audience in the theatre in which they appear.

Contestants may suit themselves regarding costumes. Each entry must be accompanied by a photograph of the contestant, and the theatre shall have the right to publish such photographs in newspapers and other publications at its discretion. No employee of any theatre or film company is eligible for entry in this contest.

Here is an exceptional opportunity for some ambitious young Canadian. The young lady chosen will be sent to Hollywood as "MISS ONTARIO" and every facility will be extended to her so that she may have a chance to reach stardom in the movies. The expenses of the winner and her chaperone (chosen by herself) will be paid to Hollywood and return. While in Hollywood she will be entertained. Screen tests will be made and she will have every opportunity to realize her ambitions as a stellar light. She will also receive a motor car.

A roadster and valuable cash prizes will be awarded as second, third and fourth prizes.

Allons! Another Canadian motion picture star is in the ascendency.

The theatres which will conduct the contest throughout Ontario are: Brockville, Brock; Brantford, Temple; Chatham, Griffin's; Cobourg, Capitol; Galt, Regent; Guelph, Capitol; Kingston, Capitol; Kitchener, Capitol; London, Capitol; Ottawa, Regent; Oshawa, Regent; Ower Sound, Classic; Paris, Capitol; Peterborough, Capitol; Port Hope, Royal; St. Catharines, Capitol; Soo, Algoma; Welland, Capitol; Woodstock, Griffins; Toronto, Tivoli, Palace, Oakwood, St. Clair, Alhambar, Capitol Beach, College, Parkdale and Runnymede, with the finals at the Uptown.

The theatre at Hamilton at which the contests will be held will be announced later.

The motion picture is the greatest medium ever given to the world. It is a living, breathing thing, possessing a potency of life. It inspires, educates, amuses and entertains. It is immeasurably influential. It brings into the life of the average man, woman and child, beauty, art, literature,—everything that once existed only for the chosen few.

Motion pictures have an unlimited future and the persons who cast their lot with such an industry, or art, will ever find themselves on the main streets of the world.

VILLAGE THREATENED.

Olcott, On Lake Ontario, Swept By Blaze Following Explosion.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., June 11.—(Canadian Press).—The entire village of Olcott, near here, on Lake Ontario, was threatened with destruction by fire early to-day. One block of summer hotels and cottages was destroyed with a loss of over eighty thousand dollars. The fire was started by a terrific explosion in one of the cottages.

The explosion rocked the buildings and threw several persons from their beds. A high wind whipped the flames and they quickly spread to the skating rink, shooting gallery, barber shop, and other business places. Twelve cottages in the block where the fire started were destroyed before the flames were brought under control by the firemen of the local and neighbouring fire departments.

HASTINGS STREET PAVEMENT PASSED BY COUNTIES COUNCIL

The Counties and Government Together Contribute $25,000.

TOWN PAYS REST.

Extra Mill To Provide For Expenditure in Hastings.

(Special to The Examiner)

COBOURG, June 11.—Reeve J. H. Hess of Hastings pulled out the plum from this week's session of the Counties Council, the delectable prize being slightly more than a mile of street pavement for his village on the Trent. The Council agreed to pay $25,000 toward the cost of this pavement, and that expenditure the Ontario government splits on a fifty-fifty basis. In other words the Counties pay $12,500 and the province the remaining $12,500.

After three years' battling, cajoling, and building up a favorable sentiment among his colleagues, Reeve Hess made his latest stand last night, and had the satisfaction of seeing his efforts rewarded by the Council's unanimous approval.

Briefly, Hastings will construct this year an Amesite pavement on its streets which form a connecting link between the county road systems of Peterborough and Northumberland counties. The village streets are actually part of the county road system, and because traffic converges there, as it were funnels in and out, with heavier wear and tear, the Highways Department provided that villages should have a better type of road than is required for the ordinary rural traffic.

The contentions of Reeve Hess at previous sessions have been reported, and last night's rather brief discussion produced no new elements or arguments, except perhaps that Deputy-Reeve Maher denied that he had any set objection to the Hastings program. He merely wished to satisfy himself that the counties' money was to be well spent.

Will Spend $35,000.

The proposed outlay in Hastings this season is the $25,000 for the twenty-foot strip of Amesite pavement, $5,700 repairs to the two bridges and $16,000 for Amesite flooring. This brings $31,300 for which the Counties' special roads commission asked for an extra mill in the rate to cover this expenditure. But Hastings will spend $10,000 or $15,000 out of its own treasury on curbs and gutters, county's on the paved street, and at the same time will pave several other streets leading to this main artery through the village.

Have the Tenders.

Hastings village council received tenders for the paving, and recommended the Ontario Amesite Company's tender. The contract will be signed in a few days, and the work proceed at once. The Ontario Amesite Company's tender was the lowest of ten including concrete, bithulithic, asphalt and Amesite.

Mr. R. Muir of Toronto, chief engineer of the Ontario Department of Highways, informed the Council last night that it had simply to decide what type of pavement it would contribute to in Hastings.

The province assumes the responsibility of protecting the rights of the counties in the pavement undertaking.

Hastings has been favorable to a pavement consisting of a four-inch consolidated base with a two-inch Amesite covering to cost $25,000 for the strip of slightly in excess of a mile which is to be laid. Mr. Muir said that one of his engineers regarded this pavement as heavy enough for Hastings traffic.

"I think the Hastings request is reasonable," said Mr. Muir, "If we find that a heavier pavement is required, I'll recommend an extra two or three inches of stone in the base."

Final approval must be given by the Department before the worq may be begun.

Reeve Grills of Seymour moved, seconded by Reeve Thompson of Cobourg that the special road commission's report for the additional one-mill rate be adopted; and Warden Elliott and Col. MacNachton, counties clerk, were authorized to sign the agreement with Hastings, on Deputy-Reeve C. H. Davidson's motion, seconded by Reeve H. Bedal of Brighton township.

GETS $25,000 FOR TOUR.

REEVE J. H. HESS

Hastings member of Counties Council wins victory in three-year struggle for paved streets linking county roads systems of Peterborough and Northumberland.

THE TURNING OF THE LANE

WARSAW, June 11. — A number of young girls belonging to the Woman's Institute put on a play in Warsaw on Friday evening, entitled "The Turning of the Lane." They had been asked to get up an entertainment, as there was some extra money required to make up an amount to send to Miss Alexander's patient in India. It was left entirely to the girls, and the play was the result. They worked hard at it and did it well.

The story is that a farmer and his wife decided to take summer boarders and a Mrs. Smythe and her son, Algernon Thomas, have arrived. Mrs. Smith, or Smythe, tries to appear more than she is, and insists on calling the boy Algernon, and he wishes to be just "Tommy." Tommy wishes for excitement, and there is a big motor accident and a millionaire is badly injured. His daughter, her maid, and a young English baronet, who is in love with the daughter, besides the chauffeur, who is in love with the maid, escaped uninjured. A trained nurse is secured. When the farmer sees who the injured man is, he feels rather sore, as he remembers a great injury he suffered at his hands, but decides, as he is so badly hurt, he may remain in the house. He thinks it is too hard on his wife, but the maid helps by peeling potatoes, washing dishes, and other tasks which she does not like. The scenes where the chauffeur makes love to her are decidedly funny.

When the doctor comes to see the patient, he recognizes the nurse as one from his own hospital, with whom he had fallen desperately in love, but she had vanished after they had spent a night working with a patient, and their efforts had succeeded. He is surprised, and reminded her of his love, but she would have none of it, told him it could not be. The nurse reminded him of the patient he had come to see. The patient improved, and one night a man (who was the nurse's husband, who had treated her badly and used her fortune) came, and insisted she should give her patient poison, as, if he lived, he was ruined. She refused, the man threatened her, she produced a revolver. The doctor, who was expected by the nurse, appeared upon the scene, and the nurse tells him who the man is, and that is why she cannot marry him. The two men have a squabble, and the revolver is knocked from the nurse's hand. Her husband gets it, and thinks he commands the situation. Tommy appears upon the scene behind the husband, and gets the revolver. The husband decamps. The doctor wishes the nurse to have her marriage annulled, but she will not. The doctor can wait for a turning in the lane.

The millionaire insists on being allowed up, and on seeing the farmer tells him how grieved he is that he had wronged him by stealing the one hundred dollars, but tells him he had sent it to him very shortly after reaching New York. The farmer had not received it. The boyhood friendship is renewed. Meanwhile the baronet has been paying assiduous court to the daughter, but she is undecided. The chauffeur has won out with the pretty little French maid.

The nurse's husband planned to kidnap the daughter, but carried off Mrs. Smythe. The baronet and Tommy rescued her. Mrs. Smythe agrees to call her son Tommy, as a reward for his part in the rescue, and the daughter is quite willing to marry the baronet, because he is a hero. When the millionaire is ready to leave the farm home he wishes to give them what he had gotten by investing one hundred dollars in the farmer's name. At first the farmer refused, but his wife told him his friend would feel better if he did. He was astounded to receive a cheque for fifty thousand dollars, but the millionaire insisted it was justly his. When by themselves the couple talked of the things they would get for which they had long wished. They went to New York to attend the millionaire's daughter's wedding, and while there, their host one evening invited the Smythes (now Smiths), also the nurse and the doctor, and news came that evening that the nurse's husband was dead. There was no sorrow, and the doctor claimed the nurse and now that she was free she was willing to marry him.

Those who took part were: Elias Thompson, Gwen McQuaig, Hiram Anderson, Daphne Payne, Annabel Carlaw, and her brother, Albert Bryan, Lulu Bell, Helen Douglas, Della Tucker, Nellie Bullock, and Hector Thompson.

The Warsaw and Dr. Munro's Orchestras united, and provided music. Mr. Henry Batten sang "My Lonely Heart" and an encore, "I Love You." Ice-cream and cake were served to all.

Such splendid reports are given of Mrs. Lowe's addresses in other places that a large attendance is expected when she speaks here in the Town Hall on Wednesday, June 15. There is no admission. Light refreshments will be served.

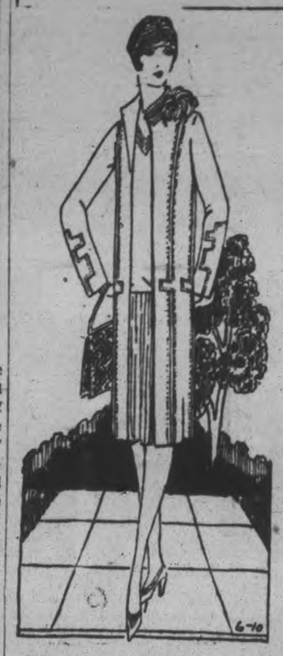
DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL



The smart gray ensemble is achieved by this gray cloth coat worn over a gray crepe de chine frock, with gray snakeskin hat and bag, and gray gloves, shoes and stockings.

A year ago the preference of French women for beige tones over gray was remarked in Paris. The French dressmaker would admit that gray was charming on an English woman or even an American—but the more olive-skinned French woman looked better in beige. But there seems to have been a change of heart if not of skin among Parisians and now it is the smart Parisian who is leading the rest of us to gray.

All gray seems to be the preference. Your English woman likes to blend soft blues or rose shades with her gray ensemble. Princess Mary and the Duchess of York have done that quite effectively—but gray worn in the truly Parisian manner knows no such blendings. The effect may not be what the English woman would consider so "sweetly pretty," but it is—you'll have to admit—decidedly smarter. Poiret is one of the noted French dressmakers who have recognized the importance of gray for summer and probably also for autumn wear as well. Brandt has also come forward with a number of charming gray costumes—some of which combine two shades of gray to good advantage.

But don't imagine that tones of gray can be used indiscriminately. Most grays incline to either blue or pink, and in combining two or three grays care must be taken to get shades that differ only in being lighter or darker. The difference must not be due to a greater or less admixture of pink or blue. Many a gray ensemble is ruined simply because pinky grays have been placed side by side with bluish grays. What results is not a color dissonance that screams at you—but something that is just as trying nevertheless. There are some women you know, who never recognize a color clash unless it is loud. The discord played pianissimo they fail to detect.

With the launching of gray comes an increased interest in silver fox—or, it has been suggested, silver fox has been responsible for the revived interest in gray materials.

Pearls of a grayish cast, gray shoes with matching stockings, gray gloves, Oxford gray tweeds for substantial tailored suits, snakeskin of a grayish cast, gray-dyed lace—all these will find their place in the new interest in the gray ensemble.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

FOR SUNDAY, JUNE 12, 1927

This is an uncertain day, according to astrology, but it should be fairly fortunate to those who pass the hours out of doors.

Early in the morning the aspects is favorable to religious observances and the clergy should benefit.

There is a sign read as likely to incline many young men to turn attention to preparation for the ministry.

Americans are to serve as army chaplains and to attain wide influence in foreign countries, it is prophesied.

Under this sway there may be conditions that cause extreme discontent among holders of wealth.

Taxes are to be discussed with new interest, for there will be events that cause heavy public expenditures, the seers prognosticate.

This is a sway conducive to misapprehensions and misunderstandings regarding public men and their policies.

Envy and jealousy will be strongly evident while this rule prevails and holders of public office will suffer loss of popularity.

Bitter political battles are to distinguish conditions in many states, if the stars are wisely interpreted. Many surprises are indicated.

A serious storm may be expected before the end of the month and farmers will sustain heavy losses, it is augured.

Again troublesome problems involving Mexico are foreseen and a sensational incident may be expected.

Living costs certainly will increase, if astrologers are to be relied on for exact information. Food prices will soar before the end of the summer, it is prophesied.

Dress is to continue to occupy attention among men as well as women, but many uniforms are to be worn before the end of the year.

Persons whose birthdate it is probably will have success that involves much publicity.

Children born on this day probably will succeed best as employees, but they are likely to be ambitious for independence that will not bring them success.

MONDAY, JUNE 13, 1927

Good and evil planetary influences contend today, according to astrology, which finds the benefic aspects dominating.

All the signs appear to promise expansion in business interests and this should be a propitious day for pushing business projects.

Bankers continue subject to the most stimulating influences that push them more and more into public affairs.

Foreign loans again will come much into public discussion and before old problems are settled new ones are to be evolved from current events, it is forecast.

This is read as an unlucky day for starting on long voyages, and for this reason it is well to be cautious. Not only storms, but hindering accidents are foretold.

There may be losses to commerce through disasters or events that could not be foreseen.

This is held to be an unfavorable rule under which to deal with financial matters. It is a most unlucky day for contracting debts.

London astrologers are now setting forth the fact that the famous Locarno pact was signed when the stars were most malefic in their rule, and for this reason they foretell only disappointment for all who rejoiced.

Road building is subject to the best possible rule of the stars and the summer will be a period of unprecedented travel by motorcars.

Florida is now subject to a sway that is promising and other places where the climate is mild also will prosper in the next few months.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of journeys that are connected with inheritance or money.

Children born on this day may have many ups and downs in life. Many born under this sign are soldiers of fortune who meet with many interesting experiences in love.

WOMEN WHO ARE WEAK

Gain New Vitality By Building Up the Blood.

There are many women who pass their days in a constant state of weariness. They have barely sufficient energy to enable them to perform their manifold duties. Often they have an aching head, a miserable pain in the back, and limbs that feel as heavy as lead. The whole trouble is due to bloodlessness. No woman need suffer in this way. It is easy to obtain a supply of rich red blood by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The new blood created by these pills rapidly builds up the system; headaches and backaches disappear, energy returns and the joy of living is felt once more.

Proof of these statements is given by Mrs. Ed. Lanore, Stoney Point, Ont., who says:—"For a long time I had been in a very miserable condition, always feeling tired out, sleepy and weak. The least work about the house would leave me helplessly tired and nothing that I did seemed to give relief. Believing that a rest might do me good, we moved to town, but, contrary to expectations, instead of getting better I was growing steadily weaker. One day while talking to a neighbor, she urged my taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, telling me that her daughter had been in a condition much like mine. This persuaded me to try this medicine, and I have much reason to be grateful that I followed her advice. After the use of a few boxes of the pills, there could be no doubt that they were helping me, and as I continued their use my health and strength came back and now I am doing all my own work and feeling in the best of health. For this splendid condition I must give my thanks to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

The pills are sold by all druggists, or you can get them by mail at 50c. a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Uncle Wiggily

By Howard R. Garis

To-day's Bedtime Story.

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE HIDDEN SNOW

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

The day after Uncle Wiggily returned home from his visit to the Wogglejigs in their bungleump, so many of the rabbit gentleman's own little bunny boys and girls wanted to go adventuring with him, that none of them would have hopped to school if they could have had their way.

"But it wouldn't be right to stay away from the Lady Mouse Teacher," said Uncle Wiggily. "However, I do want to take you on some of my adventure trips, so I'll tell you what can be done. This afternoon, about the time for school to be out, I'll be near the hollow stump. All who are perfect in their lessons, and who are let out early by the lady mouse—all those shall go adventuring with me."

"I'm going to learn my lessons best of all!"

"Hop along then!" chuckled Uncle Wiggily. He twinkled his pink nose as the little rabbits hurried to school and then Mr. Longears helped his wife and Nurse Jane put some new paper on the front hall bedroom in case company arrived.

"Now I'll hop over to the school and see how many of my little bunnies were so perfect in their lessons that the Lady Mouse let them out early," said the rabbit gentleman after lunch.

He had not been standing near the Hollow Stump School more than ten minutes before Baby Bunty came skipping out, followed by Scramble and Bramble, Tooter and Scooter, Tumble and Bumble, Jingle and Jangle and about a dozen others.

"My! My!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily, laughing. "You could not have done so well in your lessons as this; did you?"

"Oh, yes, Unkie Wig!" cried Baby Bunty in childish talk. "We des was so dood as never was an' Teacher 'et us all out. Now we's going wif 'oo to have 'ventures!"

"Come along!" invited the rabbit gentleman hopping out of the way of Bunty's paw, for the little tyke wanted to tickle him. Off to the woods hopped the old rabbit gentleman and many little bunnies. May flowers were just springing up, and some of these were gathered to take home to Mrs. Longears and Nurse Jane. Then Uncle Wiggily led the way down into a deep, cool glen between the rocks, where the sun hardly glimmered.

"What is in here?" asked Baby Bunty in a whisper, for the place was quite gloomy. "Is there anything here, Unkie Wig?"

"Adventures, I hope," answered the bunny gentleman. "Still I may be wrong!"

"No! You're right! There is an adventure here!" suddenly growled a savage voice, and out from a hole in the rocks sprang the Bob Cat. "I am the adventure!" went on the bad chap. "Gurr!" and he growled so loudly that he showed all his teeth.

But if you think Uncle Wiggily and the little bunnies were frightened by the Bob Cat I am glad to tell you that you are wrong.

"I'll fix him!" shouted Bumble, catching up a stone and throwing it at the savage creature. But the Bob Cat ducked his head and the stone only hit a tree.

"Watch me!" yelled Tumble, picking a bunch of ferns. But when he went to throw them his foot slipped and he fell.

"Nah! Nah!" mocked the Bob Cat. "Never touched me!"

The hungry animal gathered himself for a spring and was going to leap into the midst of the bunnies, and perhaps scratch Baby Bunty for all I know, when, all of a sudden, Uncle Wiggily saw some hidden snow. It was a little pile of snow that lay in a shady place, between two rocks. The sun had not yet reached it to melt it. The snow had been here since winter. Quickly reaching down into the pile of hidden snow Uncle Wiggily made a hard ball of it and threw it straight at the Bob Cat. The cold snow struck him on the nose.

"Wow! What's this? What's this? Snow in May! Oh, Uncle Wiggily must have learned some magical tricks while he was with the Wogglejigs, I guess!" howled the Bob Cat. "He may turn me into an icicle. Wow! I'd better run away!" And that's just what he did, so he didn't bite any one.

"Well, we had an adventure, anyhow!" chuckled Mr. Longears when the Bob Cat was far away. Then the little bunnies made snowballs from the hidden pile and washed each other's faces, having great fun with the little bit of winter left over into May.

Saint and Sinner

EVERYONE LIKED "SAINT AND SINNER"—BUT SOME PEOPLE THOUGHT THE INSTALMENTS WERE TOO SHORT.

The Examiner is sorry that nothing could be done about it, because when the story is purchased a date is marked on every instalment, and this date must be strictly observed. It would not be right for one newspaper to print two or three instalments a day ,and thus beat the other newspapers that are also paying a high price for the story. So all must observe the dates.

Well, as everyone knows, marriage and a baby don't end life and adventure. Cherry Lane has had a rough voyage, and her adventures are just starting. As might be imagined by one who read "Saint and Sinner," she gets into some astonishing domestic complications. And Faith, too, has new troubles.

The Examiner will publish this new phase of "Saint and Sinner" if readers desire it. It will start on Wednesday next, if enough readers signify their desire for it, with big instalments for a week, and will then continue with the same length instalments as heretofore.

If you wish to follow the Lane family and Cherry through their further tangles and escapades, you must write The Examiner right away and say so. Otherwise the instalments now on hand will be thrown in the waste paper basket and the order will be cancelled. And remember, if you say "yes," it will run about ten inches a day—no matter how many object. The Examiner can't print more after the first week.

Anne Austin has written an absorbing tale of intermingled love and hate, laughter and tears, joy and sorrow.

Do You Want to Read It?

MR CITY EDITOR:

I want to read the further adventures of Cherry and the others in "Saint and Sinner." I recognize the fact that you cannot print more than ten inches or so of the story every day, and I will not holler in a few weeks for more.

It's Up to You Readers!

The architect's drawing of the new government building to be erected on the corner of Wellington and Bank Streets, Ottawa, to house various departments now scattered over the city, is shown herewith. The general architecture is in the French Chateau style. The total floor space will be about 175,000 square feet, the building being six to eight storeys with extra floors in the roof space. The main tower will house the elevators. The material will be Nepean stone with cut stone trimmings. Work will be started this summer, the old building now on the site being demolished.

Emile Brunet, born in Montreal, in the bronze statue created by him in Paris, in which he has caught a notable expression of the Liberal chieftain. The simplicity and dignity of the figure will be emphasized by the inscription on the front of the base, which reads simply: "Laurier, 1841-1919". The statue is to stand on the southwest corner of Parliament Hill, overlooking Connaught place and the Rideau canal. It is nine feet high, the total width of the base being 13 feet 4 inches, and will stand on a sub-base of two broad steps. The unveiling ceremony will take place in July during the jubilee celebration.

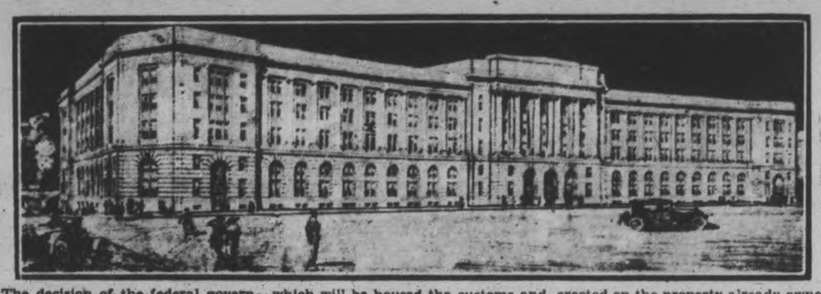
It is planned to make the British embassy one of the finest buildings in the city.



The decision of the federal government to erect a three million dollar structure in Ottawa has been followed by a revival of the project to put up a federal building in Toronto in which will be housed the customs and excise branches and other branches of federal departments. It is expected that when the estimates for public works come down at the next session of parliament money will be provided for an immediate start on the new buildings.

If another Spanish Armada were to sail up the English Channel, the invaders would find that Drake's successors had abandoned the game of bowls in favor of golf. But that England's seadogs are as ready as ever to tackle opponents out of their weight-class is proved by this illustration in which Lord Jellicoe, commander of the Grand Fleet during the crucial war years of 1914 to 1916, is seen with his hefty opponent, Commander Ralph Wilkinson, on the links of Sunningdale during the annual golf tournament between the Royal Navy and Marines.

James Cormack, Canadian Government Trade Commissioner to Trinidad, is a graduate of the University of Edinburgh, and a barrister, having practised in Alberta. During the war he served for four years with the Seaforth Highlanders, being twice wounded. He was appointed as Junior Trade Commissioner in 1921 and promoted to Assistant Trade Commissioner at Cape Town in 1922. At the end of 1924 he was transferred to the Jamaica office with the rank of Trade Commissioner, and in February, 1926, was sent to Port of Spain, Trinidad.

Lord Nelson's sea chest, a most prized relic, is being shown to the public for the first time in Canada at the new headquarters of the Navy League at Toronto. The trunk is built of solid oak and covered with leather. Its corners are reinforced with sturdy iron plates and a multitude of now tarnished brass topped nails hold the leather in place. Across the centre of the old-fashioned, curved top of the lid, brass nails as time-marked as the rest form the name of "Ld. Nelson."

A Canadian expedition which has demonstrated conclusively the practicability of the airplane as a medium of transport for both passengers and freight has just been completed under the direction of Capt. J. R. Ross, who had a contract with the Dominion Government Department of Railways and Canals to transport 16,000 pounds of equipment and supplies, and twelve passengers from Hudson [illegible] Churchill on Hudson's Bay, involving twenty-seven round trips over a route of some 950 miles each way. Reading LEFT to RIGHT in the accompanying picture are: Capt. J. R. Ross, who was in charge of the party; Pilot F. J. Stevenson, Pilot Bart Balchem and Chief Mechanic S. H. Cheesman. CARRICK TO PLAY IN SEMI-FINALS

Defending Champion Defeats Jack Cameron, Medalist—Firstbrook Beaten.

TORONTO, June 11.—Last year's Ontario amateur final will be fought out in the semi-final to-day, when Don Carrick of Scarboro, the present Ontario champion, will meet Ross "Sandy" Somerville of London, the Canadian amateur champion, to decide which shall enter the Ontario final this year. In the second round yesterday afternoon at Rosedale, Don Carrick defeated Jack Cameron of Mississauga 2-up in a battle that went to the last green. Both players went out in 35 and played brilliant golf.

Ross "Sandy" Somerville qualified for the semi-final by defeating Jack Firstbrook of Lambton 1 up. This was one of the hardest games of the tourney. The game was all square at the ninth, both going out in 35. Somerville took the first with a nice par four, but the match was square again at the third when Firstbrook got a birdie 3.

Somerville again took the lead at the fifth with a birdie 3, but Firstbrook squared the match at the ninth with a birdie 3. At the twelfth, Somerville got another birdie 4 to go into the lead again, but on the next hole Firstbrook got a 4 to his opponent's 6. Firstbrook took the lead at the fourteenth with a birdie 4 and held it to the seventeenth, when he took a six to Somerville's four. Going to the last hole, Somerville found the green with his second and was down in four, while Firstbrook had to play across the trap. He had a difficult twenty-foot putt to halve the hole, but missed by about six inches and the game was over. Both had medal rounds of approximately 76. The cards were:

Somerville—
Out . . . . . 444 344 444—35
In . . . . . 441 665 414—41—76
Firstbrook—
Out . . . . . 543 344 453—35
In . . . . . 445 445 465—41—76

Both the Thompson Brothers, Stanley and Bill, fell by the wayside in the second round and the other semi-final will bring together H. P. Borthwick of Islington and John Lewis of Brantford. Borthwick, the surprise of the tournament, defeated Stanley Thompson 3 and 2, while Lewis accounted for Bill Thompson by 2 and 1. Bill Thompson is a previous holder of the title.

Don Carrick of Scarboro, the holder of championship, had little difficulty in winning the first round, defeating H. W. Phelan of Lakeview, 6 up and 5 to play.

Jack Cameron of Mississauga, who had the low score Thursday, advanced to the second round by defeating G. L. Robinson of Lambton 5 up and 3 to play.

There was a great battle between J. H. Firstbrook of Lambton and T. H. Gooch of Thornhill, the former winning at the nineteenth hole. Ross "Sandy" Somerville of London, the Canadian amateur champion, went into second round by defeating J. Kerr Cronyn of the Toronto club 7 up and 5 to play.

The dark horse of the tournament, H. P. Borthwick of Islington, went into the second round when he defeated F. G. Hoblitzel of Lambton 2 up. He meets Stanley Thomson of Mississauga. Thomson put J. N. Lang of Lakeview out of the running 3 up and 2 to play.

YANKS LOSE FINAL TUSSLE

BOSTON LOSE OUT.

NEW YORK, June 11 (Canadian Press). — After three unsuccessful attempts to stop the Yankees, the Chicago White Sox managed to win the concluding game of the series yesterday by 4 to 2. Ted Lyons held the New Yorks to five hits and was the first pitcher in the two majors to win his eleventh victory this season. It was also his eighth triumph in a row. Lyons contributed a triple and a single, his three-bagger in the fifth driving in Ward with what proved to be the deciding run.

Bib Falk of Chicago hit a home run.

The Athletics made a clean sweep of their four game series at Philadelphia with St. Louis and won their fifth in a row by a score of 4 to 3. Eddie Rommel pitched a good game until the ninth when a single by Miller and a double by Schulte scored a run and left the tying counter on second with only one out. Lefty Grove went into the box and saved the game by retiring Schang and O. Miller on infield outs.

The Athletics bunched seven of their eight hits off Wingard in the second and third innings. Cobb hit a home run in the third with Collins on base. Ernie Wingard, Brown pitcher, hit for the circuit in the eighth inning.

Tigers Win 10—3.

Ruffing blew up in the twelfth inning at Boston, and Detroit in consequence defeated the Red Sox, 10 to 5. It was the third straight victory for the Tigers, the first time this season they have rolled up three consecutive wins. The four-game series here resulted three to one for the Detroit club. The visitors made three runs in the ninth to tie Boston and carry the game into extra innings.

Tris Speaker, with a double in the thirteenth inning, paved the way for a six to five victory yesterday over his old team mates, the Cleveland Indians, at Washington. McNeely, running for Speaker, was advanced to third on Judge's sacrifice, and after Blue had walked, he scored on Reeves' single. Washington overcame a four run lead in the sixth, putting five men across the plate. Cleveland tied the count in the eighth. The win gave the Senators three of the four games in the series.

WESLEYVILLE WIN LEAGUE GAME

Welcome Team Are Defeated in Postponed Game By Score 5-3.

The game was scheduled for Wednesday night, when after four and a half innings a thunderstorm broke. As a result the game was postponed till the next evening.

Whereas Wednesday evening, when the game was called, the score stood 7-1 for Welcome, on Thursday evening the fifth inning closed the game, with a score of 5-3 for Wesleyville.

When the Wesleyans came in to the fifth innings, the score was tied 3-3. Then with three on bases a splendid hit was made, letting in two runs. However, though Wesleyville won, the Welcome team played well. The pitcher, Jack Haskill, put across some fine stuff and except for a few errors, the game was well played throughout.

PUPILS' JEWELS.

LONDON, June 11.—Violet Burton, 7, used to go to school at West Coker. One day her father gave her a silver bracelet. Teacher told her to take it off. Father told Violet to wear it. The next day Violet was sent home. Father bought her a gold bracelet and took her to school himself. Meanwhile the school board met and decided that no child wearing bracelets or similar adornments could be admitted. The affair finally reached the Ministry of Education which upheld the school officials.

All the Europeans will commence their training operations in the St. Lawrence River, below Montreal. In the upper centre is shown Omer Perreault of Montreal, who has made seven unsuccessful attempt to swim the English Channel.

SKEETS LOSE SECOND GAME

Syracuse Rally in Sixth Inning To Win Decision 6 To 3.

BEARS DEFEATED 7-1.

NEW YORK, June 11 (Canadian Press).—Jersey City lost the second game of their home series to Syracuse yesterday by the score of six to three. Jersey City gave Brame a two-run lead in the first, but he was unable to keep it. A two-run rally in the sixth by Syracuse produced the tally that won the game. Miller of Syracuse kept nine hits well scattered.

Rochester behind the fine pitching of Cousins won the second game of the series at Newark by the score of 7 to 1. Swaney, the first Newark pitcher, was knocked out of the box in the first frame.

Reading outhit Buffalo yesterday, but the Keys' pitchers were wild and the visiting Bisons scored at 11 to 8 victory. Eight bases on balls and four wild pitches by Reading pitchers helped Buffalo pile up an early lead which the Keys could not overcome.

Inside Sportin Dope

By A Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Peterborough ball fans should oughta wake up to the fact they got the most wonderful ball club this season that the burg ever had. We've had some ball outfits what could play games and win and we've had a lot more what could play games and lose, but this is the 1st time to have a ball team what can't seem to play a game atall. Every time the local magnates schedule a game either she rains or a circus comes along or something else happens to gum up the works. 1st thing they know the summer'll be over before they get into a game.

Reminds me of the old 1, Mac, about the farmer who ordered a bath tub from a travelling salesman. The order was placed in June, but July come and no bath tub. Aug. arrived without the tub, and finally, after a coupla hot letters to the firm, the order was filled about the 1st of October. But the tub went back to the factory with a letter from the farmer that read about like this:

"Dear Sirs,—

"What the heck kinda way do you run your business anyway? Way back last June I order a bath tub from yr. agent and paid for it, and she never come all summer. Now here it is the beginning of Oct., and with the bathing season over, you send me the tub. You can keep it—it ain't no use to me now."

Well, Mac, some of the Toronto papers has invented a new game in connection with Mister Hanna's cash and carry stores. They not only publish the line-ups, but they give a box score every night, showing the number of assists credited to the police, etc. We ain't seen the system operate here yet, but from what you hear it was a good deal easier getting a bottle of hooch under the O.T.A. than it is now. Before Mister Hanna went into business the process was simple. All the bootlegger wanted to know about you was whether you had the jack or not. You was a good fellow when you had it, and you could get a mixture of barb-wire and hell-fire easier in you can find a hot dog on a midway.

The new systeni ain't so cushy.

1st you gotta get a permit. Bang goes 2 bucks right off the reel. Then you lineup, and if you get there early just about closing time mebbe you get inside, and then the real fun starts.

They examine you something like this:

Did you vote wet or dry last Dec.?

Who do you think oughta be Conservative leader?

What is your opinion of (1) Mac King? (2) Aggie MacPhail? (3) Hank Bourassa? (4) Keeping the Govt. stores open Dominion Day? (5) W. E. Raney?

If you make home-brew, when did you bottle your last batch?

Will you bring back the empties?

Do you think Janey Canuck is related to Howard Ferguson?

If you pass this test, can you give references from 2 bankers, 3 ward chairmen and 1 official of the Ontario Prohibition Union?

The cross-examination over, you get a chance to give the price list the once over, and you pick out what you think you can afford by feeding the family on neckbone for a week, and you name your poison just in time to hear them say, "Time to close; try to get it tomorrow."

Well, Mac, before I close I might mention the sr. ball team was billed to play in Oshawa Sat. Here's hoping the boys got the game in because they're all rarin' to go.

You and the customers remember the jubilee celebration. She's going to be a wow in Peterborough, Mac.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

P.S.—I see Capt. Janney is going to take a radio expert with him on his air trip from Ottawa to Blighty. If he ain't picked him yet, I can give the Cap the names of several local radio bugs what it would be doing a favour to the rest of us if they could be took along, particularly if they wasn't strapped in.—A.W.C.

TEST FOR PEARS.

HONOLULU, June 11.—A series of experiments begun several years ago, is being completed and gives promise of another agricultural industry for the Hawaiian Islands. The experiments center around the preserving of the native avacoda (alligator pear) with the "shell" removed. Owing to the great demand on the mainland for the tasty pear, the experiments were undertaken.

WINS ANYHOW.

HUTCHINSON, Kas., June 11.—Cleo Coffey, 13, farmer's daughter, was disappointed because she was one year too old to enter her embroidered bedspread in the juvenile department of the county fair. So she entered it in the adult department—and won first prize over the county's expert needlewomen.

PLEDGES SON.

HONOLULU, June 11.—The pledging of David Kalakaua, last prince of Hawaii, to future political activities in Hawaii, was the principal feature of interest at a recent political meeting here, when his mother, Princess Kawananakoa, promised listeners that his would be a career of public life. The princess assured the gathering that as soon as young Kalakaua was of age, he would actively enter politics.

Bat Settles Argument; Not As First Stated

BROOKLYN, N.Y., June 10 (United Press).—"It's an argument—who uses the heaviest bat, Tony Lazzeri or Babe Ruth," queried two young men of David Asnis in his sporting goods store.

"We'll heft 'em and see, said Asnis, handing one of the young men a "Babe Ruth" bat and bending over the rack to get out a bat inscribed "Tony Lazzeri."

The young man swung the "Babe Ruth" bat and when Asnis woke up the cash register was empty.

SCORE 15 ALL AT END OF SECOND

Wolves and Tigers Play Tie Game in Campbellford League.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 11.—The Tigers and Wolves, two of Campbellford's very newest softball teams, staged a classy exhibition game at the Fair Grounds last night. Captain Jack Brown of the Tigers and Captain Gerald Farrell of the Wolves were not long in letting each other know that all friendship between them was at an end, and would continue so to be throughout the game.

They slammed that old ball just as if it had no feeling; they had an idea that the game was to see which player could knock the cover off the ball first. The only ones they didn't hit were the ones that went over the plate in an airship.

Those making star plays were Jack Brown, Bob MacGregor and Arnold Phillips, for the Tigers; and Gerald Farrell, Joe Keating and Charles Couch for the Wolves.

At the end of the second innings, when the score stood 15-15, the game was called off on account of rain.

The outstanding play was a home run by Jack Brown.

PARADE PICTURE HERE NEXT WEEK

An added attraction at the Capitol for the first three days of next week, which is especially interesting to the citizens of Peterborough, is the official picture of the Memorial Parade and Service which was held on Thursday evening, June 2nd. Manager Fletcher arranged for this picture to be taken, and has further arranged for first showing in Canada of this picture by buying outright (instead of renting) a copy of the print. Ordinarily this picture would have been released as a part of the weekly edition of the Pathe News, and it would have been three to five weeks before the citizens of Peterboro would have had the opportunity to see the picture, and then in possibly abbreviated form. The picture to be shown next week is complete as photographed.

ARRESTS CHILD.

ROME, June 11.—A policeman here arrested a girl whose knees and most of the rest of her legs were bare—and got dismissed for arresting her. Why? Because she was only 6 years old. The authorities held that the "modest dress" standards recently promulgated do not apply to children.

SPLIT SERIES WITH GIANTS

Three Hurlers Unable To Hold Pirates in 13-4 Decision.

REDS WIN FINAL.

NEW YORK, June 11 (Canadian Press).—Carmen Hill limited the Giants to seven hits yesterday while three visiting hurlers for a 13 to 4 decision in the wind-up game of the series. Paul Waner was the big batting star with a triple and two doubles, driving in two runs and scoring three times himself. The Corsairs put over seven runs in a fifth inning attack on Clarkson and Henry. The clubs split on the series two games apiece.

Stephenson's single in the twelfth inning with the bases loaded scored Back with the run which gave the home team a 5 to 4 decision over Brooklyn in the final game of the series at Chicago and ran the Cubs' winning streak to six straight. Brillheart went the distance for Chicago and was opposed by McWeeny, Ehrhardt and Barnes. The Robins had the bases filled in their half of the twelfth, but Barnes popped to retire the side.

The Reds made it three games out of four in their series with Philadelphia at Cincinnati by winning the last game of the series, 9 to 3, here yesterday. The Reds started firing in the first inning and established a lead of three runs. They forged ahead one more in the third after Philadelphia had put over two runs and then with a smashing rally in the sixth clinched their victory with five scores.

Robert McGraw weakened in the eighth inning at St. Louis and the Boston Braves won from the Cardinals in ten innings, 11 to 8. Frisch tied the score in the ninth by hitting a home run with two men on. In the tenth Jimmy Ring, who had replaced McGraw allowed, three hits which with two Cardinal errors gave the visitors three runs and the game.

TRACE ORIGIN OF MEN TO COYOTE.

By NEA Service

BOISE, Idaho, June 11.—The first people were created by the coyote, according to the old Nez Perce Indian legend. The story says that the animals once lived in fear of a dragon which the coyote promised to kill. The coyote leaped down the beast's throat and pierced it with a sharp stone. Coyote then washed the blood from his person and next day when the sun came out the water germinated and by night the Nez Perces were born.

Joe Dunkerly Issues 13 Passes But Is Master in the Pinches.

LOCKWORKS WIN.

The Lock Works team took undisputed possession of first place in their section of the Softball League last evening when they defeated the Belmonts 10 to 5. Joe Dunkerley, pitching for the winners, lacked control all through the battle, issuing thirteen passes, but the old master was boss of the situation when hits would have hurt, and Belmonts had to be satisfied with three hits. Two of these were circuit drives by Frick and Holyman accounting for three of the losers' five runs. Twice the veteran pitcher filled the bases with passes, and then got out of the hole by striking out the last batter.

One big inning did the trick for the Lock Works. Ringing hits by Weese, Galbraith, Redfern, and Smith and bunched errors by the losers in the third, enabled the miller men to send seven runs over. A walk and three hits in a row by Nicholls, Galbraith, and Dobson added three more in the fourth. Carruthers was relieved by Harrison in the fifth, and the Lockmakers run-getting was over for the evening.

A fine catch by Holyman of a vicious liner by Holland was the fielding feature.

By innings:

THE NEWEST IDEA IN VACATIONS

During the past two or three years the newest development in the realm of travel, the all-expense personally conducted tour, has grown in popularity until it is now an important and well-recognized feature of vacation traffic.

The attractions of such tours are manifold. They abolish all worry as to itineraries, reservations, time tables, baggage, what to see and what not to see, and above all fix a definite all-inclusive cost—a feature which enables many to realize long-cherished dreams of delightful and entrancing travels—travels which but for this feature must ever nave remained but dreams.

The Canadian National Railways offer a choice of such delightful tours for the summer of 1927, full particulars of which, together with descriptive illustrated booklets may be had from H. C. Bourlier, General Passenger Agent, Room 607, Royal Bank Building, Toronto.

McCook Field, the army aviation field at Dayton, O., is situated on almost the exact spot where the Wright brothers conducted their first experiments in aircraft.

MISS BELLAMY IN "ANKLES PREFERRED" — A STORY FILLED WITH THRILLS AND COLOUR.

Madge Bellamy, according to advance information, has seldom enjoyed a better opportunity to display her screen talent than in "Ankles Preferred," a J. G. Blystone production which opens a three-day run at the Capitol next Monday. Lawrence Gray has the leading masculine role opposite the charming little Fox Films star.

The story, based upon the narrative of James Hamilton, centres about the ups-and-downs of Norah, a typican American girl who is eager to make her way in the world.

Men are curiously interested in Norah, although she is at a loss to understand why. It does not occur to her that much of this interest may be due to shapely ankles.

This is what brings Hornsbee, a man-about-town, to her side, but this is not what wins and holds the interest of Barney, a stalwart young advertising agent who loves Norah for her charm and beauty.

When she is discharged from her position in a department store Barney gets her a job with Goldberg & McGuire, who conduct a modiste shop. Hornsbee, a part owner in the shop, has refused to make financial advances to the firm. Feeling that they can win him through Norah's blandishments, Goldberg & McGuire engage the irl to entertain out-of-town buyers.

This leads to complications, however, for Barney objects when Hornsbee pays undue attentions to Norah. In a terrific fight, which follows an expose, Barney gives Hornsbee a sound lacing, and then sets about to win and hold Norah's love.

In the end she wins happiness, but only after a sacirfice of her pride. It is a thrilling, colourful story, admirably suited to Miss Bellamy.

The cast includes J. Farrell MacDonald, Allan Forrest, Barry Norton, Arthur Housman, and other favourites

AT THE REGENT.

A SENSATIONAL MELODRAMA

"My Official Wife," the Warner Bros. picture, which opens at the Regent Theatre on Monday for a run of 3 days, is a screen version of the stage melodrama by Charles Blaney, which had a sensational success all over the world in the 90's. It is a tale of Russia and Austria in the days when Czars and Emperors rode the storm of swirling intrigue with elaborate intrigue with elaborate elegance. Founded upon the story by Archibald Clavering Gunter, who had in a high degree the almost lost art of creating thrills, it seems as vividly alive today according to all reports, as when it first was produced. The screen version, by Graham Baker, was directed by Paul Stein, the Viennese, who was imported by Warner Bros., as a second Lubitsch. "My Official Wife" is his first American production.

Irene Rich and Conway Tearle are featured in the leading roles. Miss Rich appears as a Russian Countess who goes out in masquerade as a peasant and is captured by six young noblemen, who hold her for a night in an inn, where they cast lots for her. Mr. Tearle plays the Grand Duke's son, who wins her in a lottery. The swift-moving story tells of the Countess's revenge.

FOUR INVOLVED.

TORONTO, June 11.—The daily expected announcement of a packing house merger was made yesterday by J. S. McLean of the Harris Abattoir Company who will be president of the new combination. The Harris Abattoir Company, Gunns Limited, the Canadian Packing Company and (subject to approval by shareholders) William Davies Company, Inc. The new holding company will be called Canada Packers, Limited, and the capitalization will be: Preferred stock authorized, $10,000,000; to be issued, about $8,750,000: common stock, 200,000 of no par values. The preferred and common stock will be issued in exchange for the securities of the holding company. No securities of the holding company will be offered to the public at the present time.

"A most gratifying feature," said Mr. McLean in a statement issued, "is that by the proposed arrangement the ownership and management of the companies involved passes back into purely Canadian control.

"The name of the new holding company will probably be, Canada Packers, Limited. The President and General Manager will be J. S. McLean of the Harris Abattoir Company, Limited. Vice-Presidents will be James Harris, E. C. Fox, T. F. Matthews. These four gentlemen will comprise the Executive Committee of the board."

MARKET SPARKLES IN WARM SUNSHINE

Eggs 30 and 32 Cents; Butter 35 Cents; Potatoes $2.25.

This morning's bright weather was a decided contrast to the gloomy rain fall of last Saturday on the farmers' market and business prospered accordingly, although patrons and vendors alike deserted their wares to watch the circus parade as it went by on George street. The bright sun increased the sale of icecream cones on the open market, and brought ice to the butter baskets upstairs.

The plant vendors had the crowd as usual, with women dickering over the rival merits of cabbage and cauliflower and tomato, selling at 20c a box. Pansies in bloom were priced at 35c for two boxes, and little lacy green ferns were selling at 10 and 20c.

Potatoes were scarce, and sold at 40c a peck or $2.25 a bag, with a threat of increased prices in the near future. Spinach was 35c a peck.

Little pigs were $5 apiece and large sized collie pups whose small owner was unable to guarantee as "thorough Scotch, but nearly so" were $1.50 each. Little black and white bunnies with long ears and confiding expressions were 35c.

Upstairs, eggs were priced at 30c and 32c a dozen and butter at 35c a pound. Chickens which were fairly plentiful, were 25c to 28c a pound.

Strawberries in quart boxes, were 35c and pineapples were priced at 15 and 20c apiece.

Policyholders of the Confederation Life Association look back with pride and satisfaction to their connection with the Association—pride in its progress and prosperity—satisfaction with what it has done for them.

"There are certain business connections which a man makes and which he regards with considerable pride and satisfaction. I can conscientiously say that this is the way I feel towards my connection with the Confederation Life Association."

THIS HAS HAPPENED

LINCOLN NUNNALLY, elderly American chemist, is summoned to the little jungle-bordered town of PORTO VERDE, in west central Brazil, by his young friend, VILAK, who is concerned for the safety of his beautiful cousin, ELISE MARBERRY, owner of a coffee plantation and other property near Porto Verde.

Several mysterious deaths have occurred, including that of TONY BARBETTA, one of Elise's foremen, and the girl herself has received warnings to get out of the country.

VILAK, who poses at times as a barber and at others as ATTORNEY DAVIS, believes GAYLORD PRENTISS, a reticent and forbidding man, known to be an enemy of Elise, may be involved some way in the deaths. Accordingly, he and Nunnally set out for Prentiss' house, which is guarded by barbed wire fences and a vicious dog. Elise insists on joining them. Prentiss sets the dog on them and Vilak saves his companions' lives by chloroforming it into unconsciousness.

The next day Vilak is hastily summoned to Elise's fazenda, where she tells him her two-year-old nephew, an orphan, has been kidnapped. She suspects Prentiss.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER XIV.

They began a steep ascent up a slope where the sides of the road were covered with red volcanic rock. The old man leaned over to Vilak. "I was . . . er . . . glad . . . er . . . glad, . . . to hear you say it was Prentiss . . . yes, Prentiss," he whispered. "Er . . . glad. After the things I've heard here . . . I was afraid it was something else . . . er . . . head hunters . . ."

He thought he had spoken softly, but Elise, whose senses were acute to the breaking point, nevertheless heard. "It isn't the head hunters," she answered drearily. "It can't be. There's only one tribe in all this region, and the chief of it is my friend. Last year he swore blood brotherhood with me and I gave him a good horse for catching some of my cattle that had run away. He wouldn't do this. He wouldn't."

They reached the top of a hill, from which they could look down and see the valley in which Porto Verde lay spread out before them, the yellow rising river, the myriad tiny lakes above it, and everywhere else the green, black, inescapable jungle.

Directly in front of some flat rocks at the side of the road which afforded a natural resting place, the prints were confused for a moment, many and close together. "They may have dismounted here to smoke," Vilak said and leaped off his horse. "Always a good place to look for clues. Men are off their guard when they're resting."

He glanced about quickly. In a cleft of rock a glint as of gold caught his eye. He thrust in his long fingers and pulled out a small brass button of the embossed type seen in the United States only on the coat sleeves of small boys, but in many countries on peasant trousers and jackets.

"That's odd," Vilak murmured. "That's a button off the velvet jacket of Detto Cicerone, the chap with the missing teeth. I know that design of the acorn. The jacket's a rag, but the few remaining buttons on it are Detto's pride. There aren't any others like them in the town."

Elise's eyes brightened a little. "If it is Detto I'll be happy. He'll have taken Tinky just to get some money from me and what's money if I can get Tinky back?"

They rode on again. The highway narrowed to pass between two low cliffs of black rock, evidently part of the same volcanic strata which showed wherever a stone lifted itself from the tangled vegetation all about.

"Looks as if they're heading to Furnas Caves," Vilak said as the trail left the main highway and took a smaller road to the right. They turned into it and after half an hour stopped at a cross roads before a hole in some high rocks, almost sealed by bushes and interlaced vines.

"Logical place for them to come," Vilak declared as he surveyed the gloomy entrance. "All the crooks and smugglers in the neighborhood use it at one time or another. But apparently they haven't." He looked at the prints in the road farther ahead. "Hello!" he exclaimed. "Something's happened here. Here are the prints of four more horses coming down that side road and now our two horses go on ahead. Much faster. At a good gallop, I should say. I can tell that by the changed distance between prints, and the deeper impression of the forepart of the hoof. And the prints of these other horses seem to follow all along now."

The road dropped again and was bordered on both sides by dense swamp grass. Gray ant hills which the white termite ants, the scavengers of the jungle, had piled up until they were high as a man's head showed here and there against the green background like the fantastic dwellings of gnomes of some Eastern fairy tale. A swarm of tiny gnats swept down upon them, crawling into their eyes, their ears, their noses. The horses, harassed as much as their riders, kicked, stamped and whisked their tails frantically.

The old man coughed as one of the minute insects reached his throat. "Er . . . terrible little creatures . . . er . . . terrible," he murmured. "Er . . . exasperating. I hope we will soon be away from here. . . . We are turning, aren't we? I thought I could tell by the sun."

Vilak slapped vigorously at a particularly vicious knat which had settled upon his ear. "Yes, you're right, it's rather queer. The road we've been taking for the last few minutes takes us almost directly back to Prentiss' place and Porto Verde. We're making almost a complete circle. If I remember this road rightly, it ought to come out near the railroad tracks where the bridge crosses the river."

A rise to the top of a low hill gave them a respite from the winged attackers. Two crudely made crosses, with two wreaths of florid artificial flowers at their base, marked the graves of two Porto Verdeans who had been killed by the forest Indians. Another hill, another descent and they had come to the bridge over the swelling river, only a mile from the entrance of Elise's fazenda from which they had started. Here the number of travelers coming from the various crossroads had somewhat obscured the trail. Vilak jumped from his horse to study it, and walked a few hundred feet up the road in the direction of the camp of the railroad workers.

"One of our two men halted here very suddenly," he said to the others who had ridden up behind him. "There are marks where the horse slid when he was pulled up tightly. He dismounted here, too, and went into that clump of bushes. There are the prints of his feet again. The same prints that were in the ground at the fazenda. The bushes would indicate that he put something down here. Now he's back into his saddle and the two of them are away again as fast as they can ride, off through the woods in the direction of Prentiss' place. The prints of the four horses stop at the crossroads and go on to Porto Verde. Now what does that mean?"

The Mongolian slant of his eyes accentuated. He took out a pellet of betel and slowly put it on his tongue. "Looks as if there is a second trail of a man on foot, wearing heavy shoes, leading from here to the railroad camp."

He was still absorbed, studying the soil, when an Indian came forward whom the old man recognized as the foreman of the railroad gang. He was an Indian who once might have come of stalwart aborigine stock, but which by promiscuous racial admixture had been degraded until almost all the original characteristics had vanished. His body was stunted, his lips thick and ugly, his chin blunted, his brilliant eyes shifting and uneasy. But the most prominent feature of his face was a great flat and pimpled nose, so large that it seemed almost a deformity.

He grunted a few words in a language which the chemist did not understand, though he had no difficulty in comprehending the signs which accompanied them as a request to come to the railroad camp. Vilak nodded acquiescence. They followed him swiftly.

As they stepped through the brush into the open where they had an unobstructed view of the camp, Elise, who had been riding in a sort of daze, gave a cry of joy and darted forward. On a blanket which had been carefully stretched on the ground was sitting a child of perhaps two years of age. It was dressed in a somewhat muddied white frock which contrasted sharply with its soft olive skin and black hair; its tiny red mouth was only revealed at instants behind the orange it was busily sucking. At the sight of Elise it gurgled with joy and waved a pudgy hand.

She caught it up and, radiant, ecstatic, smothered it with kisses. She gazed at it rapturously. "I'll never let you out of my sight again," she murmured. "Never, never, never."

The child gurgled a moment longer, then, as if trying to show that he had manifested sufficient emotion, dignifiedly returned to the chewing of the orange.

TRUE STORIES ABOUT LIFE INSURANCE
BY A MUTUAL LIFE REPRESENTATIVE

The Widow Who Kept Faith

"COULD your widow educate your children and support them on less than half your present income?" I asked.

He was staggered.

"I don't see how she possibly could," he answered.

His salary at that time was $200 per month.

I sold him a Mutual policy, insuring his widow $100 per month and costing him $315 per year.

He was only thirty-one when he died. That was twenty years ago. That policy was all he had to leave her. Every month, since then, the widow has drawn $100 on his insurance policy. With the aid of this money she has housed, clothed and fed and educated that family for twenty years.

Let the nearest Mutual agent tell you about the monthly income policies of this Company.

SPARKS' CIRCUS PLEASES CROWD

Thousands See Big Parade Through Streets This Forenoon.

Sparks' Circus Parade, moving promptly at 11 o'clock this morning, as scheduled, fully justified claims made in advance, and thousands witnessed the afternoon performance, with the indication that another capacity house will fill the great tents to see the night show which begins promptly at 8 o'clock, with doors opening an hour earlier so that the patrons may leisurely inspect the menagerie.

Hundreds witnessed the unloading of the circus from its special trains early this morning, and its transfer to the lot, located at the Exhibition Grounds.

Both general admission and reserved seat tickets are on sale at Bond's Drug Store at the same price as at the ticket wagons on the grounds.

The performance is properly started with a semi-barbaric fantasy called "Lora the Jungle Queen," and it embraces the services of 400 human and animal participants headed by Alice Sohn, prima donna, and Geo. Sohn, concert baritone.

Outstanding features of the performances in the three rings and on the elevated stage are the famous Alexanders, a troupe of acrobats, seven in number; the Aerial Walters; Imperial Troupe of Japanese; the Riding Bedinis; the Sells Trio and Zander Trio of comedy acrobats; the world's largest group of performing tigers, exhibited by their trainer, Franz Woska; Captain John Guilfoyle and his Tarzan of the Apes fighting lions; Miss LaVern Hauser's Indian leopards; Franz's Polar bears; Spark's rope-walking seals; three herds of performing elephants exhibited by Miss Babe Pope, Miss Vivian Clarkson and Walter McLain; and the Sparks' three groups of "Liberty horses" handed by Bert Mayo, John Smith and Miss LeVern Hauser. The fancy gaited animals—twenty in number—are ridden by a galaxy of pretty girl riders headed by Lorain Casteel and LaVern Hauser, each of wide fame in horse show circles. Besides these featured acts there are twenty other displays in which feats of daring and skill are interspersed with novelty and comedy numbers.

Jack Phillips' Concert Band, one of the largest and finest with any travelling organization, gives an hour's concert in the main exhibition tent, both afternon and night, before the big show starts.

The concluding number on the two-hour program is the massive and imposing spectacle, 'Historical Canada," in the production of which 700 people and 500 horses are employed; the human participants including a big band of Sioux Indians headed by Chief Iron Shell. It was especially written and produced by J. H. Del Vecho for the Canadian fair of the Sparks' Circus.

WEDDING BELLS.

EARLE—TIGHE.

The wedding took place at half-past two o'clock on Wednesday, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Covert, of Wilberforce, of their adopted daughter, Maggie Allen Tighe, of the Township of Dummer, and Edward Erastus Earle, of the Township of Monmouth. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. C. Miller of Haliburton, and the wedding music was played by Mrs. Norman Dack of Tory Hill.

The bride wore a gown of vieux rose silk georgette and carried a bouquet of white carnations. The bridesmaids, Miss Ellen Earle and Miss Emma Earle, sisters of the bridegroom, were in pink crepe and carried bouquets of pink carnations.

Mr. Leonard Holmes of Wilberforce afted as best man.

After the ceremony, a buffet luncheon was served to about thirty guests, at the home of the bride's foster parents, and later, a reception, attended by one hundred and fifty people, took place in the Orange Hall in Wilberforce.

The young people received a large number of useful and dainty gifts. The bride's foster father, Mr. Edgar Covert, presented them with a cheque for fifty dollars.

Mr. and Mrs. Earle, on their return from a honeymoon trip, will reside in Wilberforce.

CADDY—GARRATT.

The wedding is reported in Toronto of Dr. Glenna C. Garratt, who is well-known in Peterborough through her connection with the Surgical Clinic some years ago. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Garratt, were residents of Havelock before their removal to Toronto. The account follows:

On Thursday, June 9, at St. John's Church, Dr. Glenna C. Garratt, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Garratt, of Toronto, became the bride of Edmund H. Caddy, son of the late Mr. E. H. Caddy and Mrs. Caddy, of New York. Rev. C. R. Holsworth, M.A., of Islington, officiated. The bride, who was given away by her father, looked charming in a French creation of handsome Bohemian lace over white satin with court train. Her veil of Brussels net was caught with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Mrs. W. E. Finlay, of Windsor, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, gowned in peach taffeta, with bouffant skirt of net and lace in pastel shades, with lace hat to match, carrying a large bouquet of sweet peas in the same shades. Little Yvonne Finlay, who was a pretty flower girl in her frock and cape of Brussels net over pink georgette, preceded the bridal procession, scattering rose petals from her basket of flowers. The bridegroom was assisted by his cousin, Mr. Otto Kleiser, of Toronto. After the ceremony a reception was held at Casa Loma. The bridal coupie received with Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Garratt and Mrs. E. H. Caddy. Mrs. Garratt wore a French frock of rose lace with black hat and corsage of roses and sweet peas. Mrs. Caddy wore a gown of black georgette crepe with hat to match and corsage of orchids and lilies-of-the-valley. Later the happy couple left for Montreal, where they sail for Europe. The bride travelled in a smart gown of rosewood crepe, rosewood coat trimmed with mink and hat and shoes to match. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Caddy will live in New York City.

Peterborough boys looking at the above picture will have no trouble in deciding that there is going to be a lot of fun at Camp Rotary this summer.

This is the boat presented by the Rotary-Annes to the camp, which is to be conducted for Rotary by the Y.M.C.A. It is a twenty-five foot river-drivers' pointer, powered with a Johnston twin-motor, capable of five horsepower, and kicking the craft along at a nice speed. The boat, 5 feet in beam, is roomy and safe. It will carry a whole flock of passengers and is dependable under any conditions. With this boat added to the camp navy the lucky boys who go to Rotary Camp are assured of some real cruises this summer. What price Eel's Creek and Burleigh Falls with such an outfit as this to take the gang along!

Prices Slightly Lower On To-day's Mining Mart

TORONTO, June 11 (Canadian Press).—Prices were inclined to tend slightly lower in light trading on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning, Argonaut dropping 2½ at 39, being one of the weakest issues. Teck Hughes firmed 2 at 7.70.

Wheat Scores Advance After Wavering Start

CHICAGO, June 11 (Canadian Press).—Wheat scored an early advance to-day after a wavering start. Black rust was reported in Indiana. The Canadian Government crop report was construed as bullish and Liverpool quotations were firmer than expected. Opening unchanged to ½c up. Wheat underwent a slight general set-back and then rose well above yesterday's finish. Corn and oats also developed strength, corn starting at ½ cent decline to 7-8 cent gain and later showing a general upturn. Provisions were easy.

Opening prices: Wheat, July 147 3-8, Sept. 145 3-8; corn, July 94¾, Sept. 99 7-8; oats, July 48½, Sept. 47½.

Prices Reactionary With Heavy Selling

NEW YORK, June 11 (Canadian Press).—Stock prices turned reactionary to-day when heavy selling for both accounts developed in several sections of the list. Several new weak spots were uncovered by bear traders. Some selling was influenced by the approach of Federal income tax payments and the belief that the market was entitled to at least technical reaction after its recent extended advance.

Commercial Solvents B, which broke wide open yesterday, fell back another seven points to-day. Pierce Arrow Preferred and Pittsburgh Coal extended their early losses to 4½ points and Cluett Peabody broke four to a new low level for the year. South Porto Rican Sugar (Old) and Texas and Pacific Land Trust also were freely liquidated.

Hudson Motors displayed individual strength, but the other motors were in rather free supply on reports of seasonal curtailment of production by several leading manufacturers.

Byng Refuses To Pay For Gazetting Title

LONDON, June 13 (United Press).—Lord Byng has flatly refused to pay the high fees demanded for the formality of having his new Viscounty officially gazetted, according to the Daily Mail.

The charge for this ceremony is something over $1,600. Other soldiers who have been honored with titles recently have also refused to pay this taxation.

LIQUOR STOCK HERE TO-NIGHT

Supply For Local Store Will Probably Be Put in This Evening.

NO APPOINTMENTS.

The Government liquor store is ready for its first supply of liquor, which in all probability will be put in this evening E. P. Ephgrave, the contractor, has the store nearly completed, but is being held up for material, which probably will not arrive until the end of the week. The hold-up in this material will keep the opening date of the store still a mystery, but it is expected to be operating by the first of next week.

Frank Bradburn so far has been in charge of all arrangements, and his appointment as vendor is expected any day. Other appointments expected are Patrick Kenny as chief clerk and George Evans as clerk, with Frank Pratt being the cellar man.

All the liquor after it comes in has to be weighed in the cellar to see if the weight of the consignment checks up with the registered weight on the box. The liquor then has to be bottled in various sized bottles, and these have to be placed on the shelves upstairs. The shelves nearest to the front of the store will hold that kind of liquor which will be in the greatest demand. All this work will keep the clerks busy most of the week preparing for the opening.

THE WEATHER

The weather still keeps unseasonably cool and the evenings are quite chilly. Lowest temperature last night 41, highest point yesterday 66°. This sample of weather may be appreciated by the coal and wood merchants, but it is viewed in a different light by the icecream and soft drink vendors and the ice dealers. The official probs. this morning promise a gradual rise in temperature all over the Dominion. It is about time.—W. P.

Claims Time Record For Channel Swim

PARIS, June 13. — (Canadian Press.)—The claim of a new record for a swim across the English Channel set forth by the Czechoslovak swimmer Venceslas Spacek, as announced by the Czecho-slovak swimmer Venceslas Spacek, as announced by the Czecho-slovak legation here, has given the Paris papers what they describe as a "mystery."

Some of the papers are openly suspicious and dispatches reaching Paris from Calais and Boulogne say that No convoying tug, rowboat or fishing smack has left either city for a channel swim thus far this year.

The Czech legation in Paris refused to confirm the report yesterday beyond saying that details of the swim, which said that Spacek swam from Wissant, between Calais and Cape Gris-nez to Dover on Thursday in 10 hours 45 minutes were furnished by the swimmer personally upon his arrival in Paris.

POLICE CHIEFS CHASE SLAYER

Visiting Delegates To Convention Join in Man Hunt.

BEST BRAINS BUSY.

WINNIPEG, June 13 (Canadian Press)—A contingent of United States police officers who reached Winnipeg to-day from the annual Police Chiefs' Convention in Windsor, Ontario, abandoned their programme of entertainment to join Manitoba detectives in a province-wide search for the "hobo strangler" who murdered two Winnipeg women within a period of 48 hours and stuffed each body under a bed.

The slayer who is reported to be wanted in a score of cities across the border for similar crimes is believed to be hiding somewhere in the southern part of the province and heading for the United States. Posses of police officers armed with sawed-off shot guns, tear gas and rifles were scouring the countryside to-day while the best brains of the police department of several United States cities were concentrated upon the solution of the most brutal crime in the history of the province.

STIRLING MAN HARBOR VICTIM

Drowns at Belleville While Helping Companion To Safety.

COMRADE RESCUED.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., June 13. —Yesterday afternoon, while swimming in Belleville Harbour, Carl Irvingring, Swede, of Stirling, Ont., was drowned, and Cecil Doddwell, who was with him, was rescued by a boating party in an exhausted condition, and was taken to the hospital.

Irvingring was about 23 years of age. It is thought that, as the victim was an experienced swimmer, his companion, Doddwell, got into trouble and that in trying to aid him, Irvingring became exhausted and sank.

Worked in Stirling.

Irvingring was a young blacksmith who worked for R. H. Williams. He and the two Doddwell brothers who used to live near here, in Rawdon township, were in a boat near the wharf, and the water becoming somewhat rough, one of the Doddwell boys jumped from the boat and being unable to swim, young Irvingring, who was an expert swimmer, jumped to his relief. It is thought that he must have taken a cramp which made him helpless and he went down. Doddwell was rescued and rushed to the hospital, where aid was given and consciousness restored. The deceased had been in Canada several years, serving on a farm for Claude Sharpe in Rawdon township, not trying to get work at his trade as before coming to Canada he had promised to work on a farm. He began work for Mr. Williams over a year ago and proved to be a satisfactory and trustworthy workman.

The body is being brought to Mr. Williams' home and the funeral will be held from there. The deceased's father and his two half sisters reside in the United States. An inquest will be held to determine the cause of the accident.

HAD 87 CHILDREN.

MUNICH, June 11. — The largest family in the world is the boast of a father who claims to have had 87 children. He, Scheinberg, married twice. His first wife bore four quadruplets, seven triplets, sixteen sets of twins—69 children in all. After the death of his first wife he married again and had eighteen more children.

LINDBERGH HAS BIG RECEPTION

New York as Wild Over Flier as Washington Yesterday.

GIVEN MEDAL.

NEW YORK, June 13.—(Canadian Press.)— Charles Lindbergh dropped out of the skies on to the waters of lower New York Bay at Quarantine to-day after a quick flight from Washington and a change of planes at Mitchell Field. He received his first formal welcome to the Metropolis from Grover Whalen, chairman of Mayor Walker's welcoming committee, city officials and aeronautical celebrities. There the municipal tug, Macom, received its distinguished guest for its trip to the Battery.

Over the course there formed a fleet of about 160 vessels, representative of all water craft, booming and screaming their welcome, while in the air 175 aeroplanes followed the course toward Manhattan. At the Battery Lindbergh was assigned a place in the first automobile in the great parade through the streets His mother was listed as a passenger in the second car. With 10,000 troops plodding a triumphant accompaniment to the roars of thousands in Broadway canyon, the parade route led to the City Hall, where Mayor James Walker presented the aviator with the city's medal.

Through streets of brilliantly decorated buildings the parade was next directed up Fifth avenue to Central Park, where Governor Alfred Smith presented the daring adventurer with the State's Medal of Valor.

A spirit of triumphant holiday pervaded the city for days before the start of celebrations. The millions in New York were swollen by thousands of visitors from the adjoining States. A special detail of 8,000 policemen was stationed along the line of march. Thirty thousand boy scouts volunteered to aid in maintaining lines along the route. Everyone who could took the day off. The stock exchange was closed for the day, something of a record in itself.

After the reception at Central Park the young flier was to enjoy a short rest. A reception will be given in his honor to-night at the Long Island home of Clarence E. Mackay, president of the Postal Telegraph Company. To-night, to-morrow, Wednesday and Thursday, mother and son will share jointly the continued greetings of New York

Col. Lindbergh will be the guest of honor of the City of New York at dinner to-morrow night. Brooklyn is planning to present the aviator with a massive silver bowl, carrying an inscription in tribute to the Trans-Atlantic hop.

Gives First Address In English Language

BRUSSELS, June 13 (Canadian Press).—Blushing even more deeply than on the morning in November, 1926, when he was married to Princess Astrid of Sweden, Crown Prince Leopold of Belgium delivered his first address in the English language on Saturday.

The heir-apparent to the Throne spoke to 4,000 Rotarians assembled at a luncheon here, with Burgomaster Max presiding. The Rotarians had come from the conference of International Rotary which has just closed at Ostend.

STORM SWEEPS LAKE SECTION

Hurricane-Like Wind Does Damage in Kawartha District.

TOWER LOST.

One of the worst storms in history on the Kawartha Lakes occurred on Saturday north of Buckhorn, when several buildings were demolished and huge trees smashed like matchwood. It was really a small hurricane sweeping up the lakes, tearing down everything in its path. One of the great mysteries of the storm is the first tower that was blown off the mountain there and which has not been located yet. It seems that this tower was placed there by the Government and is fitted with telephone lines to all parts of the country in the summer to send aid if a forest fire breaks out.

It was very lucky indeed for the man who occupies this post for the summer that as yet he has not come on duty. Huge valuable trees near this tower were swept to the ground by the fury of the storm.

PAINSTAKING BURGLAR.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 11. — Mrs. Susan Denniston wanted to make sure that her savings were hidden where no one could find them. So she put the money in a thermos bottle and hid the bottle in a folding bed. But a burglar entered her home and pried open the bed. He smashed the bottle and escaped with the money, $80.

How About Your Brakes

Defective brakes gave this expensive car a forty-one foot drop. The driver, a girl, fortunately escaped with minor injuries but the car will never be the same again.

You can get your brakes tested free. Drive your car to the Testing Area on Water Street, opposite the Market Square, any afternoon this week.

Two men in uniform will be on duty every day between the hours of 2 and 6 p.m., to inspect and test your brakes.

This service is being offered to the Peterborough motoring public solely in the interests of public safety.

The local garages are giving the Kiwanis Safety Committee efficient co-operation in supplying an expert mechanic for each afternoon of the Brake Testing Campaign.

MOVIE SHOWS LOCAL PEOPLE

WONDERFULLY CLEAR.

The opportunity given the people of Peterborough who attended the memorial service at the Legion cenotaph a week ago last Thursday to see themselves in movies is one that should not be lost sight of. The pictures being shown Monday Tuesday and Wednesday at the Capitol Theatre, are wonderfully clear, and it is quite easy to pick out persons in the crowd and the reel, about 400 feet long, is quite complete

Pictures are shown of the delegates to the Legion Convention, and of the officers grouped together in front of the Armouries, and then the camera swings on to the parade that took place in the evening. Here are seen the Pipers, the Peterborough Rangers Band, the Salvation Army Band, the Peterborough Rangers, the Machine Gun Company, the large number of visiting officers, the cadets and the members of the Canadian Legion, on the march down Murray street. The camera man caught a general view of the service in front of the cenotaph, and took a panoramic movie of the big crowd that stood on the lawns of the armouries and along the street.

It is seldom, indeed, that Peterborough people get a chance to see themselves as others see them, in so clear a manner, and Mr. Fletchers initiative in buying the picture outright in order to give it complete to the patrons of the Capitol, is worthy of the highest commendation.

CAN'T PREDICT IRISH RESULT

Prospect of Coalition Government is Being Considered By Some.

RETURNS INCOMPLETE.

DUBLIN, June 13. Canadian Press. —From the results in 93 constituencies out of a total of 152 given out this morning, the Government and Fianda Fail, the De Valera party; each had secured 28 seats in the election to the new Dail. Labor had elected 16 candidates, independents 6, Farmers 7, National League 5 and Sinn Feiners 4.

It is unsafe to predict that this proportion would hold when all results are known. As adherents of De Valera made denunciation of the Constitution based on the Anglo-Irish treaty creating the Free State, the paramount question in the campaign, they face defeat on this point, on the basis of known results as all parties except Fianda Fail and Sian Fein support the constitution. This fact however will not entitle President Cosgrave to form a cabinet independent of the support of some other faction, if the present ration is maintained when the returns are complete. Thus the possibility of a coalition government is being considered.

MASSED CHOIR IN REHEARSAL

500 ARE SOUGHT.

The first gathering and preliminary practice of the chorus that will lead the community singing in Victoria Park, Sunday evening, July 3rd, met at the Collegiate Institute Hall, on Sunday afternoon, at 4.15 o'clock. It had been arranged that the practice would be held in the Brock Street Rink, but on inspection of the building on Saturday it was found that the seats and floors would have to be cleaned and put in order. So recourse was made to the Institute Hall, the use of it having been permitted for the afternoon.

The mass singing was led by the Salvation Army band, about 120 singers participating. The practice was in charge of M. B. Chenhall, a printed score sheet of the words of the sacred songs and hymns having been prepared, in order to avoid using hymn books. The old and familiar tunes selected were all appropriate and the hymns equally so. The selections, thirteen in all, included the familiar "Holy City," "The Lost Chord," and two others, with 'O 'Canada." As a special number the Hallelujah Chorus was given brief rehearsal, the effect, aided by the band and many voices, being fine. Members of the Male Voice Choir came and aided materially in steadying the singers and adding to the volume of sound. All the tunes were given brief attention.

The next practice will be on the afternoon of Sunday next, at the Brock Street Rink, which will be arranged and in order for the purpose. A cordial invitation is extended by the director and committee to all choir members and vocalists to come and give their assistance, it being the intention, if so many can be gathered together, to have at least five hundred voices in the chorus. Those present were urged to come and bring two or three others to take part.

In the hands of the Music Committee of the Celebration, and in charge of Chairman Alderman Greene, arrangements are being made to seat the chorus for the performance in Victoria Park. The undertaking is a serious one, and will necessitate the getting together of about 500 chair, at least.

The place that the chorus, in leading the singing will occupy on the grounds has not been decided, the slope of the hill making this quite a problem.

PIONEER GRIMSBY RESIDENT PASSES

Mrs. J. H. Walker Was a Real Pioneer of the Niagara Peninsula.

On Sunday morning, June 12, there passed away in her 81st year one of the oldest and most highly respected citizens of Grimsby, in the person of Mrs. J. H. Walker (nee Alice Carpenter), mother of Mrs. H. E. Mounstephen, of this city, and Mr. Harry L. Walker at home.

Mrs. Walker was born in Winona, Ontario, where her father was the first postmaster for many years. It was in Winona that Mrs. Walker saw the first train pass through the Niagara Peninsula to Buffalo and Niagara Falls. She also had the unique honor of sitting on the late King Edward's knee when he toured Canada as the Prince of Wales and stopped in his carriage at Winona to greet the pioneers of those early days.

The homestead where Mrs. Walker spent most of her life is an original Crown grant and was hewed out of the woods on the Wolverton mountain by her husband's antecedents, who were United Empire Loyalists.

The funeral will be held from the old home on Tuesday afternoon at 2 p.m. to the pretty, little, old Anglican church and cemetery, where her husband, one child and forefathers rest. The rector will officiate.

TULIPS REMOVED FROM PARK BEDS

Central Park Flowers Suffered Greatly From Storms of Last Week.

The work of removing the tulips and bulbs from the flower beds of Central Park was begun this morning by Joseph Grierson. Unlike the flowers of Victoria Park, the blooms at Central Park suffered considerably during the storm of last week, their exposed position leaving them open to the full fury of the blast.

Mr. Grierson explains that the contract calls for the removal of the tulips and the filling of all the beds in the parks by June 15. It is intended to plant foliage on the beds in Central Park; and geraniums, cannas, red acranthus, white-edge and blue lobelia in the long beds of Victoria Park. Tropical plants, such as castor beans will be placed on the large round beds on Victoria Park and foliage on the smaller beds.

Protests Presence Of American Marines

PEKING, June 13 (Canadian Press). — Dr. Wellington Koo, Minister of Foreign Affairs, yesterday made public a formal protest against the despatch of United States Marines to Tientsin.

In it, Dr. Koo declares there is no need for enforcing the provisions of the Boxer protocol regarding the maintenance of communication between Peking and the coast since north China is unusually tranquil and communications have not been obstructed.

There have been no events, the Foreign Minister says, to justify the sending of reinforcements, which act is not in conformity with the spirit of the Washington conference.

Dr. Koo has asked United States Minister MacMurray to forward the protest to Washington with the purpose of effecting the early withdrawal of the Marines.

WORLD MAKING MUCH PROGRESS

Last Century Has Seen Advancement Declares Rev. Canon Plumptre.

SPEAKS TO ROTARY.

"You are fighting a winning fight," was the encouraging message given to the Peterborough Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon today by Rev. Canon Plumptre, rector of St. James' Cathedral, Toronto, who delivered a thoughtful address on the progress of the last century.

Canon Plumptre declared that along social lines the world had made a special advance during the last hundred years. He compared the conditions in the home of the poorer classes a century ago with those of today, stressed the great progress that had been recorded along health lines, referred to the benefits of such legislation as the mothers' allowance act, contrasted the employment of child labor one hundred years ago with the conditions in industry today, and sketched other improved conditions that were in vivid contrast to those existing at the beginning of the last century.

From these facts, he was assured that such organizations as Rotary which he said could not have lived fifty years ago, were fighting a winning fight in what they were working for on behalf of those who were under privileged.

There was much that remained to be done, however, and the speaker mentioned several fields in which the Rotary Club could be of special service. First he emphasized the value of such an organization in advancing the cause of international peace. More he felt, could be accomplished along this line by Rotary, because it did not particularly accentuate this feature of its work, but took it for granted. He also urged Rotarians to consider such problems as unemployment, the care of the feeble-minded and prison reform.

Rev. Canon Plumptre was introduced by Rev. Dr. Blagrave of St. John's Church and the thanks of the club were extended by Rotarian Fred L. Roy.

Among the visitors today was Rotarian Herb. W. Brown of San Juan, Porto Rica, who has leased Herb. Routley's cottage at Gull Lake for the next three months and who will be a weekly visitor at Rotary luncheons during the summer.

Rotarian Brown gave an interesting sketch of a tour, around the Island of Porto Rica, describing briefly San Juan and other cities and stating that the principal exports were sugar, coffee, tobacco and fruit.

Owing to the visit of the Governor-General next Monday and of the Associated Boards of Trade on Tuesday next week's meeting of the Rotary Club will be held on Wednesday.

MARCONI MARRIES ITALIAN COUNTESS

ROME, June 13 (Canadian Press). —The marriage of Senator William Marconi, of wireless fame, and Countess Maria Christina Bezzi-Scali, young and beautiful member of an old Roman family of the papal aristocracy, was celebrated yesterday with great pomp and splendor. The capitol, where warriors and poets in former days were crowned, assumed its ancient aspect in honor of Marconi, whom Italy considers her greatest scientist.

The bridal couple were received with military honors. They passed into the gorgeous hall, draped with red damask, with golden fringe, where Prince Potenziana, Governor of Rome, performed the civil marriage. He read the articles of the civil code establishing the reciprocal rights and duties of those who marry. He also delivered a short address, warmly congratulating the couple and expressing the hope that the happiness of the marriage would contribute to the further success of that science of which Marconi is the leading exponent.

CROP OUTLOOK GOOD IN WEST

Little Decrease in Sowing of Wheat in Prairie Provinces.

UP SIX INCHES.

Winnipeg, June 13. (Special.) — If any cause for pessimism existed it has been dissipated by the ideal crop conditions which have obtained over the whole of western Canada during the past week, says the eighth weekly crop report of the Canadian National Railways. Warm weather with local showers have been general over the whole of the prairies and this condition has assisted growth without interfering to any appreciable extent with seeding operations.

The seeding of wheat was continued in sections where wet weather had previously interfered and the work is now completed. The sowing of coarse grain is about 85 per cent. finished and will be entirely done by June 15th at the latest. Everywhere the grain is showing excellent growth and wheat, which is now above the ground over the whole of the west, has attained a height of nine inches in some parts of Alberta, and from four to six inches over the greater portion of Saskatchewan and Manitoba. Because of the continued seeding of wheat the decrease in acreage sown to this crop will not be as great as was at first expected, and it should not exceed five per cent. in Alberta, ten per cent. in Saskatchewan, and twelve per cent. in Manitoba.

A few points in the northern part of Saskatchewan and Manitoba reported frost on the night of June 9th, but this did no damage except to garden stuff. Wind and hail storms which did no damage, were reported in a few districts in Northern Alberta.

Typical of the general reports received is the following from the Blackfoot sub-division, coverings the area from High Gate, Sask., to Vermilion, Alta.:

"There is an abundance of moisture in the ground, and wheat is growing rapidly. There is a small percentage of other grains still to be sown, together with some green feed, but this will be completed in a few days. All grains have a very healthy appearance. Conditions in general are very favorable."

FISHING SEASON OPENS ON JULY 1

Fish Caught Before That Date May Catch the Fisherman.

Some confusion seems to exist in the minds of the American tourists as to the date of the opening of the fishing season of 1927. Chris. Graham of the Fish and Game Association told The Examiner this morning that he had received many letters of inquiry from the tourists and local persons in regard to this matter and wished to announce that the season will open on July 1st, and that any fishing done before this may lead to a heavy penalty.

OCEAN FLIER SPENDS QUIET SABBATH DAY

Attends Church in Morning With President and Mrs. Coolidge.

VISITS WAR VETERANS.

Courage and Skill Now Formally Recognized By Four Nations.

WASHINGTON, June 13 (Canadian Press). — After the tumult and the departure of several of the captains. Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, who on Saturday received the welcome and the congratulations of Washington on his flight from New York to Paris, spent what for him was a quiet Sabbath. He was cheered wherever he went, but by impromptu crowds.

As guests of President and Mrs. Coolidge, he and his mother went yesterday morning to the First Congregational Church, and sat quietly listening to Rev. Jason Noble Pierce. The preacher did not refer to Lindbergh except to ask a blessing on the President and "those upon whom the eyes of the nation are focused."

In the afternoon Col. Lindbergh laid a wreath upon the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington Memorial Cemetery, and personally greeted maimed and disabled veterans at the Walter Reed Hospital. "I think it would be well," he said, "at this time not to forget the things done during the war. In that time feats were performed and deeds accomplished which were overshadowed by the immensity of the war itself, which were far greater than any peace-time accomplishment of aviation."

Attends Flag Service.

Facing twenty thousand people at a vesper service on the west front of the Capitol, Lindbergh reiterated that there were other things to be considered besides himself in his flight. He declared that it represented the culmination of twenty years of aeronautical research and the gathering together in a plane the best products in American aviation.

On both occasions the young aviator received new honours, the veterans of the Civil, Spanish, and World Wars presenting him with a testimonial on parchment at Walter Reed Hospital, while at the vesper service Charles Evans Hughes decorated him with the Cross of Honour of the United States Flag Association "for conspicuous services to the flag through his marvellous achievement."

From the hospital the aviator drove rapidly to Bolling Field to see the "Spirit of St. Louis." Since his route had not been made known in advance, few greeted him on this trip, but he found a large crowd at the field, where he boarded a gig to inspect his famous monoplane, which had been reassembled and placed on a barge anchored in the Potomac River.

Courage Recognized.

WASHINGTON, June 13 (Canadian Press). — The courage and skill of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, known to the whole world, which aplauded with unprecedented enthusiasm his flight from New York to Paris, has now been formally recognized by four nations.

On Saturday the United States pinned on her favourite son the Distinguished Flying Cross. Britain gave him her Flying Cross; France, the Legion of Honour; and Belgium conferred on him the Order of St. Leopold. Besides these decorations, the 25-year-old aviator is now privileegd to wear any number of medals, and has acquired a collection of laudatory scrolls and manuscript. One of his latest acquisitions is the Langley Medal, given him by the Smithsonian Institute, and presented last night at the National Press Club dinner.

Soon Will Have Aerial Freight Service Across Atlantic, Thinks Columbia Backer

BERLIN, June 13 ((Canadian Press). — A regular two-way trans-Atlantic aerial freight service connecting New York with all Continental points will, in the opinion of Charles A. Levine, be in operation within a year.

At the conclusion of various talks with officials of the German aerial League, Mr. Levine announced that he would return to Berlin after his trips to Warsaw and other places, to perfect plans. As these plans stand at present they provide for the crossing of the Atlantic in two hops—from New York to Iceland and the Continent in the summer, and from New York to the Azores and the Continent in the winter, with a similar arrangement on the east to west flights. The European terminal has not yet been selected.

Mr. Levine proposes using multi-motored machines with a cruising range of 2,500 miles for the ocean crossing, capable of carrying 2,000 pounds "pay load," which, by relays, should cover the distance across in forty hours.

"We might use Zeppelins," he added.

The desire of the air service promoter is to have an operating company, international in scope, like the Wagon Lits Company ((international sleeping car company) with an international directorate.

"When we get going," he said, "it will require a capital of $10,000,000, but an initial capital of $2,000,000 will start it. I am ready to invest. I don't know what the American corporation will be named; anyway, we will not operate westward beyond New York.

"We plan to link up our trans-Atlantic line with the Lufthansa and other air services all over Europe," he went on. "We won't plan to carry passengers for the first year or so, as freight pays better. The question of carrying mails will have to be worked out later in accord with the Governments.

"Pilots? We will get plenty of candidates, train them ourselves, and pick the best."

First Business Deal.

PARIS, June 13 (Canadian Press). — The first business deal looking toward regular trans-Atlantic air service, was announced here on Saturday.

A cablegram to the Latecoere, French air lines, confirmed the ratification by the president of Argentina of a contract by which the French company agrees to reduce from 21 to 9½ days the delivery of mail between France and Argentina, first by a combined air and water route and eventually by the air route exclusively.

Orders were at once placed for material to install aerodromes on the Cape Verde Archipelago, off the coast of Africa, on the Island of Fernando do Noronha, off the coast of South America, and at Pernambuco, the chief port of call for the air expeditions which have flown from Africa to South America in the past few months.

Of the 7,500 miles to be covered from France to South America, all but 1,400 will be covered by air for the present, and the rest will be by fast boats.

DRAGOONS WILL GUIDE TRAFFIC

At 12 noon on the 1st July, the day of the great Jubilee Celebration, all vehicles of every description will be cleared off the east and west sides of George street from Smith street to King street. This is necessary to allow the long procession to form up and proceed down George street to the Fair grounds in platoon formation. The parade starts from Central Park at 1 o'clock.

There will be a traffic officer at every corner or intersection from Smith to King streets, and there will also be a number of soldiers assisting these traffic officers at the intersections from McDonnel to Smith streets, by consent of Major Hill of the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons. The members of the Militia will assist in seeing the procession through, clearing the streets of vehicles.

Should any citizen be on urgent business and find it necessary to cross George street during the time the procession is in progress, he must first acquaint the traffic officer or soldiers on that particular corner and when the officer or soldier finds it convenient to allow the citizens to pass he may allow him to do so, but he must pass only between platoons.

No person will be allowed to run through the procession but may get through if he consults the traffic officer on the corner only. Pedestrians are asked to keep up on the sidewalk and not block the crossings and to assist the police department and the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons in the best way they know how to make this procession a success.

Do not block the crossings at Charlotte Simcoe or Hunter street as the fireman may have to proceed to a fire and they must have a right of way.

If there are any other changes the public will be notified.

Arrangements can be made to let doctors, ambulance wagons and mail wagons through this procession provided they are on urgent business and they acquaint the traffic officer or soldier at the intersection where they want to cross that their business is important. If not they must remain where they are.

WEDDING BELLS.

RITCHIE—TREBILCOCK.

The following is the account of the wedding of Miss Marjorie Trebilcock, niece of the late Fred and Paul Trebilcock, and of Mrs. Norman Hanley of Peterborough, to Mr. Hugh Swan Ritchie, which took place in Toronto recently:

Timothy Eaton Memorial church was the scene of a smart wedding on Saturday evening when Marjorie Sparling, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frank C. Trebilcock, became the bride of Hugh Swan Ritchie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Ritchie, 68 Woodlawn avenue. The Rev. Dr. Trevor Davies officiated, in the presence of about 200 guests. The church was a bower of white lilacs, pink roses and palms and ferns, the lilacs and roses being used in tall standards and the guest pews roped off with white cord. The wedding music was played by Mrs. C. C. Bothwell and during the signing of the register, Miss Nellie Gill sang sweetly "Flower of all the World."

The bride, lovely in her wedding gown of white georget, a French model, beautifully embroidered with silver and pearls, was given in marriage by her father. The court train was marked at the floor with a silver bow knot. Over it fell a tulle veil held to the head with a coronet of Brussels lace and clusters of orange blossoms, and decorated at the floor with squares of orange blossoms. Her flowers were Columbia roses, lily of the valley and maidenhair fern, and she wore the groom's gift, a pearl necklace and diamond bar pin. Miss Jessie Ramsay was maid of honor with Miss Margaret Ritchie, sister of the groom, and Miss Mossie Smith as bridesmaids and little Miss Dorothy Blatchford as flower girl. All four attendants were gowned alike in pale pink georget, the flower girl a miniature of the others. Their skirts were full and caught at he waistline with girdles of forget-me-not blue velvet, tied in a big bow at the front with streamers flying to the hem of the skirt. The hats were of pink crochet straw, with large clusters of forget-me-nots on one side and streamers of narrow forget-me-not-ribbon, showered with tiny forget-met-nots. They carried pale pink roses and maidenhair fern. The small flower girl carried a basket of sweetheart roses and forget-me-nots. Dr. Reginald Challoner acted as best man and the ushers were Mr. Clifford Smith, Mr. Harold Sparling, Mr. Samuel Cole and Mr. Henry Swan. GREAT BRITAIN STIRRED OVER RED EXECUTIONS

EUROPE HORRIFIED.

Times Says Bolshevists Becoming Blood-Minded Fanatics of Year Ago.

LONDON, June 13 (A.P.). — The strained relations between Great Britain and Russia owing to a sequence of events starting with the Anglo-Russian diplomatic break, followed by the assassination of the Soviet envoy at Warsaw, M. Volkoff, and reaching a climax in a new reign of terror at Moscow, will be the subject of a parliamentary discussion soon after the House of Commons reassembles today.

British political circles are deeply stirred by the Moscow executions and in the political clubs and week-end gatherings of al kinds where international affairs are discussed the subject of Russia is again on everybody's lips.

Disturbing Rumors

The Sunday Express' diplomatic correspondent says that Europe is full of reports and rumors alleging mobilisation by Russia of all reservists to the age of 36 years, but neither British nor foreign diplomatic circles are inclined to attach much credence to these alarmist stories.

The news of the cold-blooded massacre at Moscow has horrified Europe, says The Sunday Observer, which condemns both the Volkoff murder and the Moscow executions as "barbaric outrages by White Russia in Warsaw and by Red Russia in Moscow." It adds that these are "part of the whole ferment created by the rupture of Anglo-Russian relations."

The Sunday Times declares that the Bolsheviks "at the end of their economic resources are becoming once more the bloody-minded fanatics of a decade ago.

Further Revelations

LONDON, June 13 (A.P.).—New revelations of the conditions under which the British diplomatic mission at Moscow attempted to carry on relations with the Soviet government are made in an interview by Sir Robert Hodgson, late British charge d'affaires at Moscow. He added his voice to the British government's denials of the Soviet charges that the British mission was engaged in espionage in Russia.

Sir Robert declared that the Soviet government state political department employs 'most abominable measures of compulsion" to induce Russians to act as their agents. One such case he instanced was that of Louise Koch, a maid servant employed by the British mission, who, he alleged, at the Commissariat of Foreign Affairs was threatened with life imprisonment unless she acted as informer on the British charge, and with death if she revealed to him that she had been approached by Soviet officials.

Charges Are False

It was unnecessary, said the charge, to deal with grotesquely absurd allegations such as the allegation that Vice Consul Waite was involved in plots to blow up the Kremlin and the Grand Theatre. These charges, which were contained in a communique issued by Moscow, are, according to Sir Robert, on a par with other charges made against Great Britain from time to time by the Soviet press of having organized the Pilsudski coup d'etat in Poland, the overthrow of the Lithuanian government and attempt to destroy the Leningrad waterworks, a conspiracy to seize the Islands of Dago and Oesel in the Baltic, and others too numerous to mention.

SUNDAY CONCERTS.

Campbellford Salvation Army Band Delights People With Music.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 13.—This week-end belonged to the Salvation Army. Cobourg's Silver Band arrived on Saturday afternoon, and from that time until their departure late last night music filled the air.

Bandmaster Kershaw gave an open-air band concert on the street corner at 7.30 on Saturday night, which drew a large number of people. Later in the evening a concert was given in the Barracks. Mr. J. H. Bell acted as chairman, and between the musical numbers kept the audience in roars of laughter with his great store of humour.

On Sunday afternoon another concert was given in the Regent Theatre and in the evening the Regent was the scene of still another concert.

At the Sunday evening concert, which was by far the best attended, His Worship Mayor Kingston presided. His Worship stated that he was delighted at being asked to take the chair. "The Salvation Army," said Mayor Kingston, "is characterised by practical Christianity. The war record of the Salvation Army is known to us all, and stands high in the estimation of all returned men. We hold the work of the Salvation Army in high regard, and we welcome the Cobourg Band to Campbellford."

HAS WEEK OF WEEKS.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 11. — There were many events on Rochester's municipal program this month. During a single week, the town celebrated "egg week," "bicycle week," "clean-up and paint-up week," "hard-of-hearing week," "baby week," "lingerie week," and "Peter Pan week." In addition there were two murder investigations and a murder trial.

Above is the late William D. Williams, one-time star of the English Bolton Wanderers, and for years widely known as an owner of race horses on the Canadian and United States turf. His dead body was found in Lake Ontario after he had won at a recent Toronto race meeting. It is believed he was beaten, robbed, and drowned by race-track touts.

REV. W. ELLIOTT ENDS MINISTRY

Campbellford Pastor Preaches Last Sermon in St. John's Church.

SAYS FAREWELL.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 13.—With a well-filled church at both the morning and evening services, the Rev. Wesley Elliott terminated his ministry in St. John's United Church yesterday.

At the morning service the reverend gentleman spoke to many of the older members of St. John's United Church for the last time, but his farewell, and the extending of best wishes to the incoming pastor were reserved for the evening congregation.

Taking for his morning subject: "Peter delivered from prison," and basing his remarks on the story of Peter's deliverance as recorded in the Acts of the Apostles, chapter 12, 7 to 12, the retiring pastor was eloquent in his interpretation of the story.

God's power to deliver in man's hour of need; and man's consciousness of that power was brought out from the details of Peter sleeping when knowing of the fate of James and the record of Herod, and God ultimately opening the gate. Peter knew of the Lord's promise: 'Lo! I am with you alway." Peter's objective, it was pointed out, was not his freedom, but the getting up to the little church mentioned in the story.

Referring to Carlyle and his pondering upon the shorter Catechism question: "What is the chief end of man?" and the big objective given by the answer, "Man's chief end is to glorify God," the pastor enumerated some of the goals to which men are striving. The educational goal was not easy to reach, but was worth while. The financial goal was a worthy goal if one looked upon what one made as belonging to the Lord and used in the advancement of His Kingdom. The religious goal is the goal everyone should strive for. There is a gate standing between us and our objectives, but the thing that are worth while in life are the things that one has to strive after. Helen Keller, the blind, deaf and dumb girl, was used as an illustration of overcoming great obstacles in life's pathway.

Peter wasn't alone at the iron gateway; the story says: "They came." The gate opened of its own accord. People these days say they don't believe in miracles. They say God has certain set laws. Do we know all the laws? Dr. Fosdick, said the pastor, says: "God knows the laws of miracles." I do not hesitate to believe that God swung back that gate, and the reason for doing so was to set free a pillar of the church. If God leads us to the gate, God will lead us through the gate—"I will strengthen thee, and uphold thee.'

Behind the opening of the gate was a praying church. Not spending their time in praying for everybody—they were praying for Peter. When outside the gate the angel left Peter—"A special grace." Peter didn't need the angel when outside the gate for he knew the city.

In conclusion the pastor said: "I trust that you and myself may be able by the held of God to find our way to the goal.

The well-balanced choir of St. John's sang very acceptably: "Incline Thine Ear," and "O Love, That Will Not Let Me Go."

OBITUARY.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 13.— The funeral of Mary Sofia, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Bennett, who was killed in an auto accident on Friday afternoon, took place from the family residence on Saturday afternoon. Rev. Mr. Elliott, of St. John's United church conducted a brief service at the house. In the course of his sympathetic address he pictured in the death of the little one, the Lord coming down into his garden to gather lillies.

PETERBORO' MUSICIANS THINK MUSIC OF OLD MASTERS IS BEST

Jazz Not Good Music Because Compositions Don't Retain Favor.

TOO MUCH REPETITION.

Well Known Local Musicians Differ in Choice of Favorites.

What about jazz? Is it a passing craze that will be forgotten when the present styles of dancing become old-fashioned, or does it contain the germ of a new discovery which may develop into the national music of the continent?

"Is jazz good music?" Several prominent Peterborough musicians were asked.

Of course there are two opinions about jazz as is the case with almost every debatable question. A great many students hold to the belief that it is nothing but a weird compound of unpleasant noises and that a great deal of time and space is wasted which might be put to better use than in giving so much attention to the so-called present-day "jazz."

Nothing good can come of it, they say, and the present craze to jazz the themes of the great composers should be stopped.

From recent conversations with a number of leading musicians here, I have found that they nearly all condemn jazz, some being more extreme in their views than others. One musician even said, "There is as little real music to me in jazz as there is in kicking a tin pail. There is a certain amount of vibration in it, but no real harmony. Jazz," he said, "is a combination of regular repetition with irregular vibrations, and this does not tend to produce a harmonious result."

Music teachers will do all they can to prevent their pupils from playing jazz, because if a person learns to play jazz first, he will find it almost impossible to play classical music as his fingers will almost constantly fall into the old rhythm.

Has the jazz of to-day a hidden soul? The answer is certainly "no." Jazz has no uplifting effect; it has no depth of feeling, no appealing qualities to the artistic temperament; it is rather of the body than of the soul.

The constant repetition in jazz gives it a straining after-effect. When a popular piece comes out it makes a "hit" for about nine days and then the craze for it wears off. Music, to last, must be good, and as the jazz music does not last, it therefore cannot be classed as good music. Compare it for example, with the music of the old masters most of their productions, some of which are several centuries old are as popular to-day and in some cases more popular than when they were first produced.

Some Definitions.

Jazz may be described as a "conglomeration of sounds." It consists chiefly of syncopations, peculiarly accentuated, variations by some of the instruments, improvisations by others, mingled with odd sound effects. Through all this the melody of the selection rendered must be distinguishable at all times. Contrasts between pianissimo and fortissimo passages should be shown just as much in jazz as in the classics.

James Francis Cooke, editor of the "Etude" a musical authority, who is widely recognized, says, "the monotonous frequency of the syncopation robs jazz of any claim for recognition as a basic element for real artistic musical work." He says that jazz and the dances of to-day are Siamese twins; if you kill one you cripple the other. The probability that this is true is indicated by the fact that it would be impossible to imagine an audience sitting quietly through a whole concert of jazz. The impulse would be to get up and dance.

Jazz is said to have originated in the various dances. The fact that it is such a combination of the different impulses seems to decide finally against its ever being developed into national and distinctive music like the music of Germany, Italy, or Scotland. On the other hand, the general testimony is that the public cannot get enough of it which fact suggests to some critics the certainty that it possesses qualities which appeal to the body and which master composers may employ in their works of the future.

There is a general view that the popular music of to-day is almost certain to influence the composers of the next generation as they are hearing jazz at a time when it is most likely to leave its impression upon them. Some writers say that the radio is doing a great deal to overcome this modern craze, and some very good symphonic orchestral concerts may be heard which are based upon the selections of famous musicians.

Wherein Lies Its Appeal?

We have discussed the "jazz" question from a rather critical viewpoint, but yet we must all admit that there a very great number of us who derive as much pleasure from it as those of a more sensitive type do in listening to the classical music.

What is there about jazz that appeals to us? Again, musicians who condemn its lightness and lack of depth, say that it is this very lightness which attracts the individual because this present day of ours seems to be so overcrowded that we have not time to delve into the more serious things; we merely skim over the surface, as it were, and jazz, as the essence of lightness, seems to satisfy us. There is a certain rhythm and swing to it which makes it popular and the exhilarating effect which it produces cannot be condemned. I really believe that to the somewhat sensitively musical mind, modern dances have degraded music really more than it has in its own qualities.

After my talk with some of Peterborough's talented musicians, I have found that all agree in saying that the best music is that of the old masters. Of course the various types of music differ somewhat in the opinions of musicians as some like the slower, heavier music of Bach and Handel, while others are fascinated by the lighter airs of Schumann. The very spirit of the composer seems to exist in his production and only an artist in the art of music can do full justice to the exquisite harmony which lies therein. The repetition in classical music is in so varied a form that it is hardly recognized by the ordinary person; it contains harmony due to the regular vibrations, and for these reasons does not become monotonous and played out.

Opinions of Musicians.

Dr. H. G. Park says, "Jazz is only a combination of sounds which had their origin in barbarity and therefore do not appeal to the artistic soul but rather repel it." Without a doubt the classical music of the old masters appeals to him. "Words," said he, "cannot give full expression to emotion. Tennyson expressed this feeling in his poem, 'Break, Break, Break,' in the words, 'I would that my tongue could utter the thoughts that arise in me.' And because the composers wanted to express their deepest emotions they found an outlet for them in their immortal music which cannot be excelled."

As Dr. Park's musical forte lies in the violin, composers of music for this stringed instrument hold more interest for him than do those who composed organ music. Yet among the great masters the names of Beethoven, Handel and Mozart stand out most clearly to him as most of their productions have violin accompaniments.

Of the old violin masters of production, he says that Paganini is the greatest violin player, while Debariot is the greatest composer. Other noted ancient composers are Olebull, Lipinski, Ernest and Spohr.

"I have heard many violinists," said Dr. Park, "from the time of the noted Spanish musician Saust and have followed them up to the present time, and to me Ysaye ranks highest among modern players. He has a technique which is beyond comparison." Kreisler, a noted figure in the musical world, has become famous by his selecting of the masterpieces of his early contemporaries. He also produced some excellent music himself. Many more names such as those of Remenyi, Litolff, Seidl, Kubelik and Cecelia Hanson might be added to the list. We also have some Canadian violinists who are very worthy of note.

I was very much interested when Dr. Park told me that his violin belonged at one time to the wife of the noted Debariot and was in all probability played upon by the great master himself.

To Miss Mabel Clarry, organist at Trinity church, choral music appeals most strongly. She approves of young people joining the choir as the musical practise aids in sight-reading and ensemble work; it also helps to overcome nervousness by accustoming the member to singing in public.

Of the old masters, the works of Beethoven and Schubert are her favorites. The "Unfinished Symphony" of Schubert cannot be excelled.

In Miss Clarry's opinion we have some modern musicians well worthy of our notice. Stravinsky in his "Fire-Bud" and "Petroucha" has indeed proved himself a genius. Another famous modern writer is Checouski, a Russian, whose music, as indeed does the work of all the Russian composers, expresses a sympathy and appeal which is wonderful.

Sir Edward Elgar, an Englishman, is one of the best liked modern writers of music but whether his productions will be handed down through the ages, time alone will tell.

"The world's three greatest composers," said Frederick G. Mann, A.R.C.O., noted musician and organist at St. John's church, "are Bach, Beethoven and Brahms. Bach is most famous for his Preludes and Fugues, both for piano (Well-Tempered Clavichord) and organ. Two of his best liked productions are the "Great Prelude" and the "Fugue on St. Anne," for organ; Beethoven is famous for his Sonatas and Symphonies and Brahms for combining the two forms of his illustrious predecessors."

Spohr, who was an accomplished violinist also, is a favorite of Mr. Mann's although many are not enthusiastic over him. His production "The Last Judgment" is about the best liked of his works.

Other noted ancient composers are: Handel, Schubert, Gounod, Schumann, Verdi, Haydn, Chopin, Palestrina and Wagner.

Of the old English masters Sir Arthur Sullivan is best known and is most noted for his light operas, while of the modern masters the name of Sir Edward Elgar is most likely to go down in the annals of history. His work is important because it is original: The old masters developed their music from the primary triads while this modern musician is using the secondary triads to great advantage. His production, "The Dream of Gerontiers" was sung by the Mendelssohn Choir two years ago.

Paderweski, one time Premier of Poland is a greater pianist than composer and, although he has composed some very good selections, yet he cannot be ranked in the same class with Beethoven.

Proof of Mr. Mann's own musical ability is the fact that some of his own choral compositions are being sung by his choir in honor of the Centenary Celebration at St. John's church.

Classical music is considered by Dr. S. J. Graham to be the best; of this, church music and hand music have a strong appeal to him. Two of his favourite composers are Johann Sebastian Bach and Handel. Bach's style is somewhat serious, pathetic, and heavy. The story involved in his productions is very intricate and hard to follow, but it must be followed throughout to get the real depth of feeling; the music revolves around the theme through its different stages and each successive part is based upon the preceding one. Handel, the first to produce the "Oratorio" in England, produced many operas and wrote a great deal of choral music. An interesting fact is that, although a German, he died a naturalized Englishman.

To Miss L. Hurley, organist at St. Peter's Cathedral, the greatest composers in the ancient periods were Chopin and Beethoven, whose century anniversary was celebrated this year. Another noted writer is Grieg, of the Norwegian school.

Two eminent present day musicians in Miss Hurley's opinion are Debussie and Cyril Scott, pianist. Some Canadian song writers have excelled themselves of late years; Gena Branscombe and Geoffrey O'Hara will not soon be forgotten.

An eminent pianist, Ernest Seitz, who produced, "Waiting For The Sunrise" is considered extremely good. Some other Canadian composers might be mentioned, and it is hoped that some day we may have a class of musicians whom we may be able, with pride, to call "our own."

To Mr. B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., organist at St. Paul's church, Bach was the greatest composer of the age. To him, another notable figure is Sir Henry Purcell, famous composer and eminent organist, who has been styled, with justice, "the greatest English musical genius of the Queen Elizabethian period." His early training as chorister gave him a sound foundation. Some of the well-known operas which he composed are "Dido and Aeneas," "The Tempest," "King Arthur," "Diocletian," "Fairy Queen" and "Don Quixote." His celebrated twelve sonatas for the violin are especially famous. The "Te Deum" and the "Jubilate in D" are almost his last works.

During these recent years there is a great deal being done to revive the old English music. Dr. Fellowes, who recently visited Toronto, was a strong advocate of this and also of the boys' choir.

Last year a sextette from London visited Toronto and held a concert featuring the old English Madrigals and Glees of the Elizabethan period. To make it more realistic, those taking part were costumed to represent the characters which they portrayed. This has started a movement which is steadily gaining in popularity and it is an excellent means of getting away from the jazz problem.

Just a short time ago a delegation of students from the Toronto Conservatory were asked down to Ottawa to give a musicale of this kind.

Too much cannot be said in the interests of the development of more vocal music among our young people. The systematic and regular teaching of singing in the day schools to cultivate pure head tone will do much to raise the standard of vocal music.

MANY DEMANDS MADE OF POLAND

Requested By Soviet To Investigate Fully Assassination of Envoy.

MOSCOW, June 13 (Associated Press).—M. Litvinoff, replying to the recent Polish note, which expressed regret for the assassination of M. Volkoff, Soviet Minister at Warsaw makes numerous demands in behalf of the Soviet Government. The Polish Government is requested to take necessary measures to investigate fully the assassination of the Envoy, all the ramifications of the plot leading thereto and to impose strict punishment on the guilty, especially the actual assassin.

The demand is made that M. Ulianoff, acting Charge d'Affaires at Warsaw, or other authorized member of the Soviet, be permitted to witness the inquest. In the third place Poland must take immediate and energetic measures to disperse terrorist organizations and persons in Polish territories whose activities are directed against the Union and its representatives, and expell all such from the Polish Republic.

Await Information.

Litvinoff declares that the Soviet awaits immediate information relative to the fulfillment of these demands. The recent event, he adds, cannot be overcome by official declarations, but requires actual measures by Poland to put an end to such hostile activities.

The vote expresses gratitude for the friendly attitude of the Polish Government and people and declines to accept the compensation offered to the family of M. Volkoff. It rejects the Polish suggestion that the assassination was the act of a madman, but asserts instead that it was due to the harboring of Soviet enemies on Polish soil.

Neglected to Take Measures.

It regretfully points out that notwithstanding many warnings, Poland has neglected to take the necessary measures to safeguard the Soviet representatives. Despite assurances that Poland has never permitted terrorist activities, M. Litvinoff says the Union has and will submit data disproving this assertion. It takes issue with the statement that the assassin is not a Polish citizen, and asserts that facilitating naturalisation enables the enemies of the Soviet to carry on under the protection of Polish citizenship.

"Poland has neglected her duty," continues the note, "in not expelling persons known to be carrying on acts hostile to the Soviet Union. It knew long ago that hostile organizations were actually planning the murder of the Soviet representative."

DRESS
By MARY MARSHALL

Striped taffeta silk is used for the lining of this blue cloth jacket, worn over frock of blue cloth combined with the striped taffeta.

Taffeta linings are coming back into fashion. You may even hear a slight rustle as they pass. Of course, there is no such swish of taffetas as there was some years ago when every woman desired to wear a taffeta silk petticoat and a taffeta-lined frock so that they might be heard to swish against each other. Very young women even went so far—we are told—as to move their skirts up and down when holding up the trains on their frocks, so that the sweet sound of taffeta silk might not be lost.

For many years now our frock and coat linings have been very quiet. Inconspicuous as to color usually and always noiseless. They were made of crepe silk, georgette or some other soft material of a silent sort.

One of the leading French dressmakers has started the new fashion by making linings of many of her suit jackets all of taffeta. There are ensembles consisting of frock of cloth and figured taffeta silk, with jacket of the wool lined with taffeta to match the upper part of the frock. To be sure this taffeta is rather soft and not very rustly, but it is taffeta none the less.

Some of the new organdies are made up over light-colored taffeta slips instead of the crepes that have been used almost exclusively for silk slips recently.

Uncle Wiggily
By Howard R. Garis

To-day's Bedtime Story.

UNCLE WIGGILY AND OW'S MISTAKE.

Copyright, 1927, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Uncle Wiggily was hopping along the path through the woods one morning looking for May flowers, which he wanted to take to the Lady Mouse Teacher in the Hollow Stump School when, all of a sudden, the rabbit gentleman heard some voices speaking. At the same time he saw the bushes moving.

"Ha! Some one is coming!" whispered Mr. Longears to himself. "It may be some of the bad chaps, so I had better look for a hollow log into which to crawl to hide. I don't want to be caught!".

But before the rabbit could find a hollow log, the voices came nearer and one said:

"Now, don't make any more of them!"

What did you say his name was?"

"I'll try not to," answered another voice.

Then Uncle Wiggily smiled, for the voices were the barks of dogs and he guessed who was coming. He guessed correctly, too, did the rabbit gentleman, for, a moment later, out of the bushes scampered Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow.

"Oh, hello, Uncle Wiggily!" barked Jackie and Peetie.

"Hello, doggie boys!" answered Mr. Longears. Then he saw, behind the two Bow Wow brothers, a third puppy dog, not so large as either Jackie or Peetie, and Mr. Longears inquired: "Who is he?"

"Oh, that's our new little brother, Ow," explained Jackie.

"He came to us while you were away visiting Boppy, Um and the Wogglejigs in their bung'eump," went on Peetie.

"Oh, I'm g'ad to see him!" exclaimed the rabbit, patting the new little puppy with his paw. "What did you say his name was?"

"His name is Ow," answered Jackie. "What a funny name!" said Mr. Longears. "But is is a very nice name, I think," he made haste to add for he did not want to hurt little Ow's feelings.

"Daddy called him Ow because he always hollers that word when he makes a mistake," explained Peetie. "Maybe you heard us telling him not to make any more mistakes as we came through the bushes?"

"Yes, I heard it," agreed Uncle Wiggily, "but I didn't know what you meant. But what do you mean by Ow's mistakes and the way he howls?"

"It's like this," explained Jackie while the new puppy brother ran along the path a little way, sniffing and snuffing. "Ow runs off by himself and grabs up whatever he sees. Once he picked up a crayfish, which is like a little lobster you know, and the cray-fish pinched him, so he hollered ow!"

"And another time," explained Peetie, "our little brother stuck his nose into a bunch of flowers to smell them and there was a bee sitting on the posies and ——"

"The bee came and sat on Ow's nose and stung him!" finished Jackie, for Peetie was laughing so at what had happened that he could not go on. "So our new puppy cried ow again," went on Jackie, "and Daddy said it would be a good name for him."

"I see," spoke Uncle Wiggily. "And now you are taking Ow to school so he will learn not to make mistakes, I suppose."

"Yes," answered Peetie, and then Jackie barked:

"Where is Ow now? Mother told us to keep close watch over him, but he has run away."

"Then we had better find him," advised Uncle Wiggily, but before they could take three steps suddenly there sounded a number of loud "ow!" howls and the little puppy came running back with something white held in his teeth.

"Ow! Ow!" he yelled and then he tried to talk, but all he could say was something like "glub wub lub!"

"Why, he's bitten into an old golf ball!" cried Uncle Wiggily when he saw what it was that Ow had in his teeth.

"That's another of his mistakes!" sighed Jackie. "We told him never to bite old golf balls, for they're made of rubber, and if you sink your teeth in them you can't get them loose."

"Well, we must help Ow to get his loose," said Uncle Wiggily kindly. So while Jackie and Peetie held their little brother, the rabbit gentleman pulled his jaws apart and took out the old golf ball. Ow had found it in the grass, and, thinking it was candy, had bitten hard on it, sinking his teeth in deep.

"But I'll never do it again," he said, shaking his head as he and Jackie and Peetie ran on to school, while the bunny gentleman threw the old golf ball far off into the woods where no one could find it.

The Music Club, wishing to commemorate our local celebration of "Confederation" in poetry and song, offers two prizes of five and three dollars to any pupil, over twelve years of age, attending either the Collegiate or Public Schools and Separate Schools of Peterborough, for an original poem on "Canada" The poem must consist of six stanzas of four lines each. The Rev. Mr. Wren of Trinity Church and Rev. Mr. Gordon of St. Andrew's Church have kindly consented to act as adjudicators in selecting the two best poems. The poem winning the first prize, if suitable, will be set to music by our talented musician, Miss Agnes Logan, and sung on some public occasion by a well-known vocalist. By kind permission of The Examiner, the two prize-winning poems will also be published in its pages. We are sure there is as much budding or latent poetic talent among the young people of Peterborough as in any other city, and we hope that the subject of "Canada" will lend inspiration to the efforts of our young poets and poetesses. All poems must be sent to Mrs. Porter, 521 Gilmour Street, the Secretary of the Club, on or before Saturday, June 18th, and there must be enclosed a note from either parent or guardian certifying the poem to be the pupil's own unaided composition.

DECORATING YOUR HOME

Every person loves a cozy, comfortable home, and this appearance is often found where there is not an abundance of means.

When plans are being made to decorate or re-decorate a home, it should be well thought over before purchases are made.

First, get the vision of your home as you would like it to appear, and then work towards it.

In these times when, instead of heavy carpets, which had to do service for years, floors are painted, varnished, or treated in various ways, it is much easier to decorate a home in such a way as to present a harmonious effect throughout the whole house.

The position and lighting of the various rooms must be considered. For north and east rooms, colors should be chosen that add warmth and color, such as yellow and rose.

For rooms on the south or west, where there is plenty of sunshine, use blues, greens, greys, or other cool shades.

Pretty tints for walls and ceilings can be obtained by using the various preparations for this purpose, which are on the market, or, if preferred, paper can be used, and is obtainable in all shades, either plain or gaily colored designs, according to the taste of the owner of the home.

When the paper or tinting has been chosen and applied, the woodwork must be painted to match.

Well-kept floors make a large contribution to the appearance of a house; clean floors are a necessary condition. Floors that are easily kept clean, polished and good-looking, are the housekeeper's dream and delight.

Every woman would choose well-laid floors of selected wood finished by an expert, if she could, but it is not always possible to choose.

Most housekeepers must be contented with less, and learn to improve and take care of the less perfect wood used in her floors.

Wood floors, finished in dark tones, are often desirable for their artistic effect, but they make extra work, as every footprint and fleck of dust shows, while the finish of lighter tone repays a once-a-day dusting by a fresh appearance for the next twenty-four hours.

However, there are so many good finishes to apply to floors that it is an easy matter to consider all circumstances and choose the one which suits the room and family best.

From a decorative standpoint, curtains are quite as important to a room as furniture. Beautiful curtains, carefully made, will add dignity and charm to the most modest interior. Even this room that is inclined to be gloomy will take on an air of brightness and good cheer by the addition of colorful curtains.

Low-priced factory cotton, tinted in shades to match the room, and trimmed in chintz in harmonizing colors, makes pretty and inexpensive hangings for bedrooms or dining-room.

Suitable curtains for kitchen windows can be made from checked gingham to harmonize with the paint or wall treatment, or from cotton trimmed with gingham.

Care must be taken, where rooms open one into another, in choosing the color scheme, so that the appearance of one room as seen from another will not clash.

Now that the making of rugs has again come into fashion, a few braided or hooked mats add to the cozy air of the room, as well as saving the varnished surface.

Where money need not be counted, very much more expensive curtains and floor furnishings can be used; but to the mass of the people home decorating has to be done on an economical basis.

When the rooms are completed, a few well-chosen plants add to the general effect and home-like appearance.

THE BLESSING OF DRUDGERY

By Sir Philip Gibbs.

Blessed be drudgery! That sounds like a false benediction, but recent events, when there was an enforced idleness in English cities of toil, proved once again that idleness is a greater curse than hard labor of the most tedious kind.

Apart altogether from financial loss, thee was real joy in getting back to work among those who had been "out" for those ten days of social discontent.

One saw it on the faces of the workers They were glad to return to the old drudgery on bus step or station platform, keeping regular hours again, forgetting grievances in the good old joy of punching tickets or trundling luggage.

"If all the years were playing holidays, To sport would be as tedious as to work."

So old Shakespeare said without an eye on prpaganda to keep the workers busy. Certainly my experience bears out this philosophy. I would rather do the humblest drudgery, the hardest hack work, than have a lot of time on my hands without purpose or job.

In my younger days as a regular journalist I had a lot of "hanging about." It is the fate of all reporters. They have to wait in ante-rooms while great men confer in Government offices, in courts of law, in editors' rooms, in railway stations at home and abroad. I suffered real agonies in those tedious hours. Far better be addressing envelopes or sticking on stamps than kicking one's heels against closed doors waiting for history.

The fact is that drudgery—and most work becomes that after the first interest has passed—is an essential condition of life for most men and women. Only the very raer soul can enjoy a lot of lounging, at least in climates like ours, where it is impossible to sleep in the sun because there isn't any sun.

The man of leisure who does not find time hang heavily on his hands, and who fills every minute with some interest in his hobbies, is difficult to discover. Most of the men of leisure that I have met have been intolerably bored with their own fate. Holidays mean nothing to a man who goes from one place of amusement to another in search of pleasure.

One must get tired to enjoy rest. One must work to enjoy play. Those titled ladies and leisured girls who, in the recent strike, volunteered for any kind of job showed a fine spirit, and got down to dirty work with the utmost good will, but they enjoyed it, and it did them good.

It gave a zip to life. It was better than waking up to blank days, with only a game of tennis ahead or a morning's shopping. And all these girl clerks and typists and secretaries and show girls who trudged for miles along London pavements, or had exciting adventures in getting "lifts," were inspired by something else than loyalty and pluck, though those qualities were part of them. They hated the idea of staying at home without anything to do, though glad enough always to get home again after office hours or closing time.

The ordinary human mind, in what ever station of life it may be, has need of escape from itself, and that way of escape is best found in work—the daily drudgery of the common round, and trivial task.

All this talk about the blessing of leisure, brain-fag, overwork, slavery of toil, is mostly insincere and untrue to actual facts of psychology. Men who retire from their business at sixty generally wither away and die of sheer boredom. Their little hobbies are not enough: or, worse still, they have never cultivated a hobby. The secret of golf is not sport, but something to occupy men's minds as well as their muscles. Our statesmen and politicians complain of the burden of office, but they are very disgruntled when they have to hand over their portfolios.

I remember Roosevelt telling a story about that. One day, when he was President of the United States, he sat among his colleagues at a round table and listened to them grousing about this "burden" of office, until at last he became impatient, and banged his big fist on the table, and said: "Gentlemen, I like my job. We all like our jobs, though sometimes we pretend to ourselves and others that we are tired to death of its ill-paid toil."

"Man needs no other blessing than honest work," said old Carlyle, and there was no hypocrisy in his words, because he worked from morning till night with lion-hearted courage and infinite honesty.

During these years since the war there have been many tragedies in our social life, but none worse than the tragedy of men unable to get work, trudging the streets for work, looking at that notice, "No Hands Wanted," with despairing eyes.

"Oh, but they are on the dole all right," says the light-hearted or cynical observer of social conditions. Well, some of them are, and some of them aren't. I have been to night refuges, where, as far as I could make out, no man there was on the dole, though some of them had fought for their country and helped to save it.

But dole, or no dole, the tragedy is heart-breaking to any decent fellow who, day after day, and sometimes year after year, finds his muscles growing slacker, his moral fibre weakening, his hopelessness deepening and darkening within his soul because he has no job in life. I know that if I were on the dole a year or more I should be utterly undone, demoralized beyond repair. I must work or die.

Blessed the drudgery! Happy are the men and women who have some kind of job to do, with regular hours and regular pay, keeping their minds from introspection, giving them a little purpose in the activity of life, keeping their noses to the desk or the grindstone.

To them a brief escape this summer will be joyous and heartening. In the lazy vacation days the office will seem a place of servitude. They will grouse against its drudgery. They will have to go back—just for an hour or two.

But they are the lucky ones of life, and should know their own luck and be grateful.

That's a common experience of housewives who have been tempted to try an inferior baking powder—just like the experience of Mrs. R. O. Stewart, of Whitecourt, Alta., who wrote us, saying:—

"I use Magic Baking Powder for all my baking. Have tried others but always go back to Magic. Wishing you all kinds of luck —"

Saint and Sinner

EVERYONE LIKED "SAINT AND SINNER"—
BUT SOME PEOPLE THOUGHT THE INSTALMENTS WERE TOO SHORT.

The Examiner is sorry that nothing could be done about it, because when the story is purchased a date is marked on every instalment, and this date must be strictly observed. It would not be right for one newspaper to print two or three instalments a day and thus beat the other newspapers that are also paying a high price for the story. So all must observe the dates.

Well, as everyone knows, marriage and a baby don't end life and adventure. Cherry Lane has had a rough voyage, and her adventures are just starting. As might be imagined by one who read "Saint and Sinner," she gets into some astonishing domestic complications. And Faith, too, has new troubles.

The Examiner will publish this new phase of "Saint and Sinner" if readers desire it. It will start on Wednesday next, if enough readers signify their desire for it, with big instalments for a week, and will then continue with the same length instalments as heretofore.

If you wish to follow the Lane family and Cherry through their further tangles and escapades, you must write The Examiner right away and say so. Otherwise the instalments now on hand will be thrown in the waste paper basket and the order will be cancelled. And remember, if you say "yes," it will run about ten inches a day—no matter how many object. The Examiner can't print more after the first week.

Anne Austin has written an absorbing tale of intermingled love and hate, laughter and tears, joy and sorrow.

Do You Want to Read It?

MR CITY EDITOR:

I want to read the further adventures of Cherry and the others in "Saint and Sinner." I recognize the fact that you cannot print more than ten inches or so of the story every day, and I will not holler in a few weeks for more.

A CALL TO PETERBOROUGH'S SINGERS.

There are many calls to service in connection with the Diamond Jubilee celebration, and it speaks well for the enthusiasm and patriotism of Peterborough's citizens that these calls are being loyally responded to by the people.

Local singers have a splendid opportunity to do good work in connection with the Diamond Jubilee choir, which it is expected will number 500 voices, and which will have a prominent part not only in connection with the evening programmes on July 1 and 2 but also in the great open-air meeting in Victoria Park on Sunday night, July 3.

Members of local choirs and other singers who have been members of choral societies will be cordially welcomed by the jubilee organization, which began its rehearsals yesterday, under the direction of Martin B. Chenhall.

The Diamond Jubilee choir will sing such numbers as Kipling's "Recessional," The Hallelujah Chorus from "The Messiah," "O Canada" and several familiar old hymns, and their contributions to the celebration of the jubilee will undoubtedly prove impressive and striking.

All singers in Peterborough are urged to answer the bugle call and "Fall in" with the jubilee choir.

TAKE NO CHANCES WITH FIREARMS.

The ignoring of two of the elementary principles in regard to the safe handling of firearms was responsible for the sudden termination of a bright young life near Peterborough the other day.

Apparently this was a case in which double carelessness caused a tragedy.

In the first place, no firearm should be left loaded under any circumstances, let alone in a house where there are small children.

And secondly, it should be obvious that to point a gun at any person, no matter what the conditions may be, is to be guilty of criminal carelessness.

"I didn't know it was loaded" is a sentence that has summed up many a tragedy.

The only safe course to follow is to take no chances.

You have no guarantee that somebody else has not touched the weapon since the last time you examined it, and the only sure way of avoiding accidents is to be careful.

Too much caution cannot be exercised in the handling of firearms, as last week's lamentable accident clearly proves.

LIQUOR IN TOURIST CAMPS.

A ruling made by Chairman Hanna in regard to the consumption of liquor in tourist camps gives the municipalities of the Province an opportunity to deal with this matter as they see fit.

While the Liquor Control Act permits a tourist to have and drink liquor in his tent, that being regarded as his home, Chairman Hanna states that any municipality which desires to do so may pass a bylaw prohibiting the use of liquor in the municipal tourist camp.

Several centres in Ontario intend to take advantage of such legislation, making it illegal for liquor to be consumed in their tourist camps.

So far as Peterborough is concerned the city authorities will have no power to act.

The local tourist camp is situated in the Exhibition Grounds, outside the city limits ,and if any action is to be taken to eliminate drinking by tourists it will have to be done by the Municipal Council of North Monaghan, which body has not yet considered the matter.

There is, however, no reason to anticipate any trouble from tourists; those who visit this district are usually of the finest type who require no special legislation.

HELP US MAKE THE LIST COMPLETE.

Names of Peterborough citizens who have lived here since 1867 are, in answer to The Examiner's request, coming in splendidly.

There must be, however, many people who have resided in Peterborough during the sixty years of Confederation who have not yet sent in their names.

The Examiner would like to have the list complete.

We would like to think that every one who has been sixty years a resident will be included in the honour roll which will be a feature of the special jubilee number of The Examiner.

So far the response to our request for names has produced some most interesting information; among those who have responded is a citizen whose residence here dates back to thirty years before Confederation, who has called Peterborough her home since 1837, the year Victoria the Good became Queen.

It is old residents like this that The Examiner believes should be especially honoured in the jubilee celebration, not only by being given a place of honour in the jubilee procession, but also by being prominently featured in the jubilee issue of this paper, copies of which are to be preserved in the Dominion archives.

The Examiner does not want to miss a name if it can help it, and therefore once more urges all old citizens to send in their names by mail as soon as possible.

PAYING OFF OUR DEBT.

The suggestions made by R. A. Daly in his presidential address to the Investment Bankers' Association of Canada for the retirement of the public debt of the Dominion are of major importance. They were made at the suggestion of the Minister of Finance, who has revealed that debt retirement is a problem of practical interest to him. They were made by a man who has proven himself a capable student of the subject as one of a committee of three, which planned Ontario's debt retirement scheme, now in operation.

Mr. Daly has made it clear that debt retirement is entirely to be commended. He does not agree with those who argue that a country's public debt should be considered as the capitalization of its public works and should be continued from generation to generation instead of retired. Mr. Daly shows that the leading financial statesmen of the world are convinced of the value of debt retirement. The United States and Great Britain, he indicates, are taking steps gradually to reduce their outstanding obligations, largely incurred in connection with the Great War. The United States naturally has made the greatest progress in reducing the debt burden that it had piled up by the close of the war. Canada has gone further than Great Britain, and Mr. Daly seems to believe that this country has done well, when its financial condition is considered. But he is of the opinion that the time has arrived when a more definite plan for eliminating the national debt should be worked out and put into operation.

The term of forty years, selected by Mr. Daly for the amortization of the debt, is similar to that adopted by Ontario and represents an intermediate period, that does not spread the burden too far beyond the present generation and that does not, on the other hand, make necessary larger payments to a retirement fund than are advisable under our present circumstances. In fact, the plan outlined is so simple and so little burdensome that it is a distinct revelation of the power of interest. For an annual payment of a little over $23,000,000, Canada can wipe out its entire present debt in forty years.

No one who has studied the finance of the Dominion in the past three or four years will deny that we could appropriate that sum of money annually out of current taxation. We could not continue to reduce taxes to the same extent as we could reduce them without a debt retirement plan, but wisdom directs that a compromise be found between tax reduction and debt reduction. In the compromise, Mr. Daly's plan, with such slight modifications as may be found necessary, should find a place.—Financial Post.

LOOKING AHEAD.

Councillor Burley Bennett's proposal for the appointment of a town manager for Walkerville, and a consequent reorganization of the whole system of municipal administration, has created no little interest, not only in the "Town Beautiful," but throughout the community. The scheme has the support of many large taxpayers, it is said, and it would not be surprising if something very definite along these lines were initiated at an early date.

There is no question but that any municipality can save money and secure greater satisfaction through the manager plan. Village, town or city, it matters not which, the manager scheme offers a method for the application of something like private business principles to the municipality's business, and certainly everyone familiar with municipal affairs here, or anywhere, must admit, if he is not a hopeless politician, that public affairs require a much stronger strain of the methods used in the conduct of private businesses. The waste and inefficiency that characterize much of the handling of public affairs are nothing short of scandalous. The public's money, the money that they have paid in the form of taxation, is thrown about with a lavish hand. Members of public bodies, all too often, forget their responsibilities to the people who elect them, and pay little heed to the way in which the treasury is assailed.

Foolish spending of public money is the inevitable result of the municipal system one finds almost everywhere. It is altogether unlikely that we shall ever get away from it entirely, because there will always be an element of what we call "politics" in civic administration and where this exists, it is almost impossible to secure 100 per cent. business efficiency. We must try, nevertheless, to secure a maximum of efficiency, and, to this end, use the best means at our command. This is where the manager plan comes in. It is not perfect, of course, but it is a decided improvement on the system that most municipalities now use. If one has doubts as to this, let him consult responsible citizens in various centres where the scheme is in vogue. The answer is almost invariably the same. The manager plan has given satisfaction. It has produced greater efficiency and saved the taxpayers money. So far as can be learned, no community that has tried the manager plan has any desire to return to the old idea.

The chief value of the city manager system is that it brings together under the direction of one well-qualified and carefully-selected official all the various departments of a municipal corporation's business. Instead of six or a dozen heads all running shows of their own, the city's business becomes one big business. There are departments, of course, but each department chief is responsible to the city manager and the city manager is responsible for each department. This makes for better work all around. It tends to prevent overlapping. It ensures more intelligent handling of municipal finances. It makes municipal financing simpler. It works for economy. It, in short, puts the public business on a private business basis.

A city manager, of course, must be responsible to someone and so far the election of a small council or city commission seems to offer the best way of meeting this necessity. Something better than this may be evolved some day, but it has not appeared as yet. The city manager plan, however, is a big step forward. Walkerville may well consider it, while in Windsor, where the matter has been under discussion for some years, there are hopes that before the end of 1927 is reached really definite steps for this reform will have been taken.

One thing is certain and it is that practically every municipality is spending too much money unnecessarily. This means that the people are paying taxes for which they do not receive full value. When this is the case it is time for a change.—Border Cities Star.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., June 13. Canadian Press. — The export trade in grain in Montreal on Saturday showed no improvement and the market in this respect was dull, which indicates that buyers are not disposed to pay the present high prices.

A weaker feeling prevailed in the local market for cash corn and prices were reduced another cent per bushel. Car lots of American sample corn were quoted at $1.01, and Argentine corn at $1 per bushel, ex-store. Canadian western oats were quiet and steady.

Owing to the further weakness in the Winnipeg cash wheat situation an easier feeling prevailed in the market for spring wheat grades of flour, but there was no actual change in values. The volume of business was small. The movement of winter wheat flour was also small, and prices closed unchanged.

A fair amount of business was done in all lines of millfeed and the undertone was firm. The market for standard grades of rolled oats was steady under a moderate demand.

The egg market was fairly active and prices were well maintained. The receipts on Saturday were 934 cases.

The demand for butter showed little improvement and prices remained unchanged. The receipts were 2894 packages.

Extreme dullness again marked the local and export trade in cheese and the undertone was easier. The receipts were 4394 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Ills., June 13. Canadian Press. — Wheat and corn bumped against an airpocket in demand from buyers late yesterady, and both cereals underwent a sudden drop. The price downturns were accelerated by the fact that many standing orders to sell out and stop losses if necessary at various fixed limits were forced into operation. Wheat harvesting was reported as having begun in Kansas with weather conditions favorable.

Wheat closed heavy, 2½c to 2 7-3c net lower; corn 5-8c to 1¼c off; oats 7-8c to 1½c down, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 10 to 12c.

Favorable weather in the corn belt was a bearish factor to-day as to corn and oats.

Provisions went downward on account of weakness of hog values and of cereals as well.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

Well, it looks as if "Saint and Sinner" will return to The Examiner! A definite announcement will be made tomorrow.

Anne Austen Knows How

Dear Editor:

Pay no attention to sour grapes—the woman who wants no more of Cherry and Faith.

Anne Austen can write, and "mighty" cleverly, too.

It is present day life—that what's the matter, with some people—don't like real life.

Without asking, two have expressed interest.

Again I say, Anne Austen knows how.

Very sincerely,
E. COOMBES.

AMUSED BY CRITIC

Hoard's Station.

Dear Sirs:

In looking over your paper this afternoon, was quite amused to see the critic's report on the story "Saint and Sinner." Well, I have read the story all the way through. I was very disappointed when it stopped and did wonder why it stopped so soon, and I am sure there was quite a lesson in it for anyone; mostly young women and married men, as there are lots of such stories go on in real life, and I cannot see where the least thing in the story can lead this person to be so nastly about it; for if they did not like it all they had to do was omit reading it. But if you could have the story continued I would be greatly pleased and if it could not be continued could you send me the rest of it?

Hoping you will do what you can. I remain, yours truly.

LAMP PRESENTED TO MISS M'GREGOR

Social Evening at Gilmour Memorial Church Marks Presentation.

The presentation of a fine gasoline lamp to Miss Beatrice McGregor on the occasion of her approaching marriage was the outstanding feature on the programme of the social evening of the Ladies' Mission Circle of the Gilmour Memorial congregation held in the basement of the church last night.

The hall was prettily decorated to represent the external appearance of the countryside during the various stages of the year. Accommodation at the table was divided into six groups, each representing two months of the year, and those present were allocated seats corresponding to the birth months.

Mrs. J. Gordon Mann, president of the Circle, occupied the chair and gave a brief address of welcome to the visitors.

The following address to Miss McGregor was read by Mrs. Betty Edgar:

Dear Beatrice:

We believe that real friendship is based on the foundation of true hearts and mutual confidence. These are the sentiments that prompt your friends of Gilmour Memorial church to do you honor to-night.

If everyone connected with the church would endeavour to serve her needs and requirements as wholeheartedly as you have done, the business of God's kingdom would surely move forward with grace and dignity. For your cheerful and willing spirit we have admired you, and we wish you to know it has been appreciated by those with whom you were associated.

In the choir, in the Sabbath school, and in the Young People's Union you have given glad and helpful service and we realize that such conduct assists materially in the attainment of the ideals of Christianity and in the progress of the work of the Kingdom.

We all rejoice with you in this happy occasion, which, however, will on account of distance, prevent you from taking an outstanding part in our church activities.

We assure you there will always be a glad welcome at Gilmour Memorial church, and we hope that you will avail yourself of it very often.

In asking you to accept this gasoline lamp as a token of our love and esteem, we also tender our sincere good wishes that your future may be bright and happy and that you may continue your helpful service in the new neighborhood in which you will reside.

Clarence Mason handed over the gift.

Piano and violin duets by Messrs. George Gatfield and Stanley Northrop of Peterborough, and two fine vocal solos by Allan Milburn were the high spots of the musical programme. The selections from Rigoletto by the musicians were specially praiseworthy, and the audience like Oliver Twist, insistently asked for more. By special request a recitation on Confederation was delivered with remarkable fluency and excellent delivery, by Phyllis Moore, an 11-year-old veteran and victor in many oratorical contests. A ladies' trio was rendered by Mrs. J. Mann, Mrs. J. A. Young, and Miss McGregor, a piano duet by Miss Mabel Pay and Miss B. McGregor and a solo by W. Edgar.

A short sketch of the rise and progress of the Circle was drawn up by Mrs. Young and read from the chair.

"This Circle was organized in the summer of 1880 with 8 members.

"In 1886 there were 20 members. Many hundreds of dollars have gone to our home and foreign work during these forty-seven years.

"We have continuous minutes for all these years and a great credit is due a lady who is present this evening, Miss Annie Walton was secretary for many years and the minute books are complete from the first meeting, and are full of interesting details of the work.

Another member of long standing who is present tonight is Mrs. F. J. Mann, whose interest in our Mission work has never wavered throughout the years.

In 1914 Mrs. Gordon Mann was elected president and thus has served the Circle in an official capacity for 15 consecutive years and has only missed three meetings during that time.

We have still about twenty members and last year our contributions amounted to $79.20 for foreign work and $35.50 for home work.

We may just mention the Band which has been a vedy helpful assistance to the Circle. The Band was organized soon after the Circle and has been a source of great encouragement to us all.

Refreshments were served at the close of the programme.

The proceeds of the evening are to be devoted to the aid of Canadian Baptists Missionary work in Bolivia.

Miss Shulfrid Sjorgen, of Toronto has hair 10 feet long. It takes her five or six hours to wash and dry it. She is a hairdresser, and her work is to bob and shingle other girls.

ST. JOHN'S ANGLICAN CHURCH

Morning and evening services in St. John's church were conducted by the Rev. Canon Plumptre of St. James' Cathedral, Toronto. Before commencing his sermon Mr. Plumptre heartily congratulated the church for the splendid centenary celebration that they are putting on, and expressed his wish that they would have God's good will for the coming services. He also remarked that next year St. James' Cathedral were holding anniversary services and extended a cordial invitation to any of the local congregation who would wish to attend.

The minister chose as his text the fourteenth chapter of the Gospel of St. John and the ninth verse, "He that has seen me, has seen the Father," thus showing that God, Jesus, and the Holy Ghost are all One. "People in the olden days," said Mr. Plumptree, "could not see through this and grave misunderstandings concerning Trinity Sunday, so now we must preserve the unity of the doctrine of God." Canon Plumptree remarked that the Creed says that the Father is God, the Son is God and the Holy Ghost is God, so then it is only right that we should believe in God.

"God, the Son, and the Holy Ghost are nearly always called Persons, said the minister, and a word in the olden times sounded like 'person meant a character, and so God can reveal himself in the character of one of these, God, Son and Holy Ghost; but there must be the absolute agreement between the three Persons, for many believe that when Jesus died the mind of God with regard to human wickedness was somewhat appeased to see His Son sacrificed so that others might live."

Canon Plumptre then went on to say that human beings believe a lot that they cannot understand, but the Creed tells us that God is in Nature, God is in Jesus Christ, and that God is in us. "Through Nature," said the Canon, "God is revealed in all His beauty and majesty, for the creation of Nature is a wonderful thing, spreading eternal loveliness." "Nature reveals something of the love of God, and the fundamental thing in Nature is the unity of which it is made up, or that everything contributes something to its neighbor, making men's co-operative schemes incomparable with the co-operative schemes of Nature." This is unity, expressing the beauty and love of God.

He then remarked that Christ told the people that 'He that has seen Me, has seen God,' thus showing that God is in Nature and in Jesus Christ, but that what we need most is God in us, for that is the third essential thing in the Creed—to make us brave to face the storms and the tempests of life. "It is the greatest thing of all," said Canon Plumptre, "to see God as our Comforter in us, and that is what Trinity Sunday is for, therefore it all means that—(1) God is in Nature, (2) God is in Jesus Christ, (3) God is in ourselves."

"We should give God all," said the minister, 'and may we experience God's grace, and have love in life and peace in death."

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

The solemn and impressive services surrounding the ordination of a priest according to the Roman Catholic rite were celebrated in St. Peter's Cathedral at the High Mass yesterday morning when Rev. Patrick J. Lynch, son of the late Thomas Lynch, of Otonabee and Mrs. Lynch, was ordained by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, assisted by Rev. Father Muckle, of St. Michael's College, Toronto, and Rev. J. J. O'Brien, of the Church of the Sacred Heart. The ordination sermon which followed was also preached by Rev. Father Muckle. Rev. J. Finn acted as Master of Ceremonies and priests in the sanctuary included two uncles of the young priest, Rev. Dean O'Leary of Bracebridge, and Rev. Joseph O'Leary of Saskatoon, a first cousin, Rev. John O'Leary of Copper Cliff, also Rev. P. McGuire, Rev. M. McGuire, of Douro, Rev. P. Costello, Rev. K. Corkery and two sub-deacons from St. Augustine's Seminary, Rev. Charles Begley and Rev. Edward Welsh.

The music for the occasion was finely rendered by the large choir and by the Children's Choir, the latter singing the "Te Deum" and the "Veni, Creator Spiritus."

At the conclusion of Mass, His Lordship Bishop O'Brien addressed a solemn exhortation to the newly-ordained priest, reminding him of the various duties of his state in life, with special emphasis on the duty of his obedience to his superiors, as promised in his solemn ordination vows. Just as the Bishop himself was bound by his duty to his superiors in religion, so was the young priest solemnly bound.

Vespers at the Cathedral last evening was solemnized by Father Lynch, assisted by Dean O'Leary and Father Joseph O'Leary, as deacon and subdeacon, and his first Mass was solemnized this morning at the Church of the Sacred Heart.

Rev. Father Muckle, taking his text from Hebrews vii, verse 3: "Without father, without mother, without genealogy, having neither beginning of days, nor end of life, but likened to the Son of God, continueth a priest forever," preached a very eloquent, inspiring sermon, as follows:

"There are moments in the lives of all of us when we lose all sense of time, and are carried in spirit back through the centuries reaching in thought the ages of long ago. In these transports we commune with the spirit of another day and another clime and live for a brief space a life apart from our own location on the pathway of time. It may be when for the first time we gaze upon some ancient ruin or some majestic cathedral of Europe, venerable with age, whose ivy-mantled tower looks down upon us with an almost conscious mien and seems to greet us as a child, yes, but an infant of the human race. It may be when first we behold a lofty mountain whose bulk upraised against the flitting clouds stands in sullen defiance of time's decay. It may have been the star-spangled firmament which at some time or other has impressed us beyond its wont as we reflected that those selfsame stars looked down upon the Son of God, made man, as He walked among the children of men, and on Abraham tending his flocks in distant Chaldea on Adam being driven from Paradise. Just as beholding the scenes of our boyhood cheats us out of our true self and we live again the care-free life of play, bask in the sunshine of a mother's love and join the happy throng; so too, at times, when in the presence of enduring monuments of antiquity, or of nature's changeless masterpieces of power and beauty, do we seem to stand at the cradle of the human race and live in another time.

The ceremony of this morning, the ordination of a priest is one of those monuments of antiquity which bring us back to the days of yore. For the rite of ordination of the Catholic Church is as old as the Church herself. No part of her ritual has been less modified through the ages. It is as a ray of light which, undiminished and untouched, shines down through the ages. In the same way has the power of the priesthood given by Christ to men been handed down in unbroken line from the time of the Apostles. In every age of the church's history you will find the record that just as this young man today is raised to the priesthood of Jesus Christ, so in every age and in every land have men been chosen out and vested with the power and dignity of that priesthood. Even as with him, so it was with St. Thomas a Becket, that a mitred bishop, clothed in those symbolic vestments by imposition of hands brought down upon him the power of the Holy Ghost; to St. Augustine of Canterbury and to St. Patrick, a bishop likewise extended a chalice with this commission: "Receive power to offer sacrifice to God and to offer Mass for the living and the dead." Upon Gregory and Basil and Jerome and Athanasius, back to Peter and Paul, have bishops imposed hands and said: "Receive ye the Holy Ghost, whose sins you shall forgive, they are forgiven them, and whose sins you shall retain, they are retained."

Yes, in beholding this rite of ordination today, we are able to pull aside the curtain of time and gaze upon a scene enacted everywhere in the church's history from the beginning. This rite is a monument enduring unchanged for well nigh twenty centuries. It goes back beyond our oldest records. It was an old ceremony when first enacted in those venerable cathedrals of England and France and Germany. Before this land was discovered, this ceremony was used, before our forefathers were civilized, it was old. Those same ceremonies, the imposition of hands, the giving of the chalice, the conferring of the power of forgiving sins come from Christ Himself.

But although it be a monument of former times, it is not simply a relic of a day departed, devoid of life and beyond the uses of man. It is of former times it is true but it has come down through the ages trailing clouds of glory. It is not as the ruins of some ancient temple whose toppling walls are scarred by the ravages of time. It is like the sun in the heavens which, though old is ever new. That orb of flame rises with the same regularity and brilliance today as when it looked down upon the ways of men who trod this earth centuries and centuries ago, yes, before this earth was peopled by man at all. It lights our path the same, it scatters the darkness and before its rising, rosy-fingered dawn comes tiptoe on the mountain tops, it warms the earth the same so that with the recurring seasons the hills and glades are carpeted with green and adorned with the flowers of varied hue. It ripens the grain, golden as of yore, when Ruth gathered the sheaves after the reapers; it still drives back winter's blasts and dissolves the frost's icy hold. So, too, with this rite of ordination, it is no mere relic of the past, no monument simply to arrest the attention or adorn, no memory merely of a glory that has departed, but it is still a living being of the same power and force and beauty and vitality and use as when first it came from Christ's own will, and it imparts to man the same God-given power to bring Christ down upon the altar, to announce the glad tidings of the Gospel to those who sit in the region of the shadow of death, and to stand between the outraged justice of God and the sorrowing guilt of the human heart.

It is no empty form, telling of things that have been, but are no more, but a channel of grace and power from on high to man. Within this sacred temple today we are in as close contact with the workings of the Holy Spirit as were those assembled in the upper room on Pentecost. 'Tis true the Holy Ghost does not appear in visible form, but that Holy Spirit descends upon that young man today at the imposition of the hands of the prelate just as truly as He descended upon the apostles at the bidding of Jesus Christ. For that prelate ordaining today is exercising a power which has come down from Christ Himself. His spiritual lineage is older than that of any line of kings. That bishop is exercising a power which he received from another bishop, that one in turn from a former one, and so on back reaches his genealogy, no earthly genealogy, in unbroken line until we come to Peter Himself and the other apostles who received the priestly power from Jesus Christ, the Son of God.

The power and authenticity of the Catholic priesthood rests not on the interpretation of any pasage of Holy Writ. It is older by far than any manuscript of the old or the new Law, and was before the Gospel itself was written. From the time that Paul imparted the priesthood to Timothy by the imposition of hands, that power of the priesthood has been handed down from bishop to Bishop in a continuous line. No one can arrogate it to himself, no one can make himself God's man between heaven and earth, but only those who are called by God through His church and receive that power which is not of any man, but of God. Just as life is transmitted from father to son, and no man gives life to himself, so is the power of the priesthood handed down from age to age by that spiritual generation of the Sacrament of Orders. And just as life continues, though the individual dies, so does the Catholic priesthood in undiminished power live on, though the mortal man who for a time is its earthly vessel is resolved into dust from which he came.

On every page of the world's history do we find the name of the Catholic priest. He has been the first to blaze a trail in the forest and visit the savage, his was the first swhite man's skiff to follow our winding streams, he was the first from the old world to be borne across our lakes' limpid waters. What land has been so distant, what clime so intolerable, what people so cruel and barbarous, what forest so dense that the priest has not been there in the van of civilization, bearing the Cross and teaching those saving truths which the Son of God came down from heaven to give to earth.

In every branch of culture and civilization we find that all we have and all we are has either been the fruit of his toil or flourished under his fostering care. The heritage of the past, the manuscripts we possess in which are enshrined the lore of ancient Greece and Rome are all the harvest of his weary toil. Our literature is rooted in traditions which he developed. Our music is a child of his genius, our architecture, whether of the imposing Gothic or ornate Norman, we owe to him. Our very laws were customs which grew up in the shadow of the parish church. It was at his preaching that the manacles dropped from the hands of slaves throughout Europe, not so much as one drop of blood being shed. There is no institution in the world today to be at all compared to the Catholic priesthood in its contribution to the civilization of mankind.

But to the faithful, to him who has the faith untouched and untarnished, he is much more than a benefactor of the human race. To the Catholic people he is emphatically their man. At the altar he renews for them and the world that Sacrifice of Calvary; and from the lips of the people he gathers the harvest of sacred utterance and passes it on to the throne of God; from heaven he brings down upon his people God's choicest blessings, grace and strength to bear up under the crosses of life, the grace of satisfaction for sin, of true sorrow for past offences; oh, yes, it is at the altar that he brings heaven and earth together in a holy kiss of peace, for though he stands upon the earth the words of the priest at the altar reach the very heart of the heavens where God abides with his Son.

And not only as the offerer of sacrifice does the priest represent the people is he acknowledged as the man of God. But everywhere in his sacred ministry, do the flock look to him for teaching and guidance and for sanctification through the sacraments he dispenses. Whether it be to administer Christ's Body and Blood to the innocent little child on the day of its first communion, or, when with uplifted hand he absolves the sins of the departing soul and speeds him into the presence of God, with old and young, with saint and sinner, the Catholic priest stands out emphatically in the world today as in all days near or far, as the recognized ambassador of Christ, possessed of a power, wielding an influence, commanding a respect belonging to no other man.

The great orator, Lamartine, gives us a beautiful pen picture of the position of the priest among his people. He says:

"There is a man in every parish who, having no family, belongs to a family that is world-wide, a councilor and an actor in all the most important affairs of civil life. No one comes into the world or goes hence without his ministrations. He takes the child from the arms of his mother and parts with him only at the grave. He blesses and consecrates, the cradle, the bridal chamber, the bed of death and the bier. He is one whom innocent children grow to love, to venerate and to reverence; whom even those who know him not salute as father, at whose feet Christians fall down and lay bare their inmost thoughts of their souls and weep their most sacred tears. He is one whose mission it is to console the afflicted and soften the pains of body and soul; who is an intermediary between the affluent and the indigent; to whose door come alike the rich and the poor—the rich to give alms in secret, and the poor to receive them without blushing. He belongs to no social class, because he belongs equally to all."

All this is the result of the power he receives in his ordination. For on this day Almighty God grasps the soul of the young man in the very centre of its being and sets a seal of power and dignity by which he shall be known forever more. He is no longer as the rest of men, but a being set between heaven and earth to bring them together in the exchange of sacred things.

And you, young man, my brother in Christ, today receive this sublime dignity of the priesthood. Like the apostles of old, you have received the call, "Come, follow Me," and you have followed Him. You belong no longer to yourself but to Christ, for whom you are an ambassador. You are not to be a priest for yourself but for God's people. Your ordaining bishop tells you today as the mouthpiece of the church—"Imitate Him Whom your hands will handle." That Christ, who, at your word will leave His throne to come down and take His place in your consecrated hands is a God of love. You must learn to love souls even as He, those souls He longs to save. No longer are you to concern yourself with the things of the world, but you are to spend yourself and be spent as the representative of God among His people. You are to be in the world, but not of the world. Though you will move amongst men, your conversation must always be in heaven. As you go daily to the altar of God, may He daily renew in you the youthful strength of virtue. You must always be a light for the enlightening of the people, that they may see in you a prophet of the Most High. And may many more, even of those who witness this scene today follow your footsteps. God grant that there may be amongst us today young boys of unsullied life and deep faith who will be encouraged in their generosity to the Sacred Heart to follow you. For the youth of faith and uprightness has always deep within his soul the aspiration to strike at the stars, to do something which will stand out as really worth while. May such realize that the Catholic priesthood, above all other walks of life, offers a challenge to the youthful heart not to play with trifles or to win an honor of a day, but casting aside all material and perishable things, to win achievements which will reach into eternity and of which the angels will sing, not simply to better man on earth and for this world, but to raise man to God, and to bring God down to man, to raise the earth to heaven and make the heavens bow down to earth in an embrace of holiness and peace and love which shall last for evermore."

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH.
Evening Service.
(Contributed.)

Continuing the Centenary celebrations at St. John's church, the services yesterday were of a particularly bright and cheerful character. It was Trinity Sunday which is always recognized as one of the outstanding festal days of the year.

Canon H. P. Plumptre M. A., of St. James' Cathedral, Toronto, preached at both services before large congregations, his sermon in the morning dealing with the "Blessed Trinity of God," and in the evening "The Saving Grace of Jesus Christ."

Taking as his text in the evening the words from St. Luke's Gospel, Chapter 19, verse 10 "For the Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost," he carried a message to his listeners in a very effective manner.

Dwelling especially on the life of Zacchaeus, who, whilst amassing great wealth, had lost everything of spiritual value the precious things, the things which touch and make the spiritual things, he portrayed the manner in which Christ met the man—in fact sought him in spite of his sins.

He showed that Zacchaeus had not only sacrificed personal friendship but also self-respect, and now that he was wealthy he realized how little he possessed since he did not enjoy the friendship and esteem of his fellow men.

He came to realize that his sufferings were deserved and there was now on his part a deep longing for friendship and self respect lost through riches.

That Christ knew this man's position was very evident and by friendship sacrifice and faith reclaimed him, showing once more His power of mixing with unalloyed friendship amongst the riff-raff of society. On Zacchaeus' part his recognition by Christ caused him to break completely, and, confessing his guilt he exclaimed: "Behold, Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor."

By this declaration, was not Christ's faith in man once more rewarded and vindicated.

The Canon alluded to the present day losses, questioning, he said, what of the high ideals which we once nurtured, and have now forgotten? What of those castles of enthusiasm and optimism which we were to erect, but instead were changing the plans so that now they had become a mere skeleton of our original purpose? What of our belief, goodness, purity of thought and deed, and truth? Were not those the highest standards of business and society life? Could we afford to allow ourselves to become unethical and lose these virtues?

He stated that from the Scriptures it was plainly evident that our God has a message for both young and old, especially for those nearing the great divide—"For the Son of Man is come to seek and to save that which was lost."

He did not come as our Judge, neither as a task-master, but to save, and should we not therefore worship and ever remember Him as our Saviour.

The music and choral work was particularly bright and effective. In the morning Woodward's Te Deum was sung, also parts, "Praise His Holy Name," and "Holy, Holy, Holy," from Spohr's "Last Judgment."

The Vicar, the Rev. R. C. Biagrave, D.D., officiated at the morning service and Evensong, which was fully choral was sung by Canon Plumptre, the choir rendering in addition to the 140th Psalm Smart's Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis in D with Prior's Te Deum as an offertory number.

Splendid assistance has been rendered Mr. Mann, the organist and choirmaster by Mrs. M. B. Hoyland, and her pupils, Miss C. Taylor and Mr. W. Gaskins, as first and second violins, their accompaniment being exceptionally effective, and adding considerably to the tonal quality.

The interior of the church both nave and chancel has been tastefully decorated with our national flags, which blend harmoniously with the rest of the decorative scheme.

The grounds adjacent to the church also present a pleasing appearance, their beauty having been considerably enhanced by the erection of a festal arch of evergreens surmounted with a white cross. This work reflects most creditably on the gentlemen comprising the Decoration Committee whose efforts under the chairmanship of Mr. A. E. Caddy, have been employed in this direction.

Favored with fair weather, St. John's church, when it receives within its portals Their Excellencies the Governor-General and Viscountess Willingdon on June 20th, the occasion of their official visit, should present to them a picture of the Motherland, fashioned by our hardy pioneers with an artistry and skill which should stand as a monument to their integrity of purpose and untiring devotion for time to come.

St. John's Church Music

Special music at both services in St. John's Church was rendered by the choir under the direction of F. G. Mann, organist. The following are the morning numbers: "Praise His Awful Name," anthem. "Holy, Holy, Holy," by Spohr. "Te Deum" in E. flat, by Woodward. At the evening service, "Evening Service" in D, by Smart, and "Te Deum" in A flat, by Prior, were the special numbers.

Next Sunday is to be a very impressive service and music is being specially prepared by the organist and the choir members for the occasion.

ST. PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The unusual subject of suicides and their cause was dealt with from the pulpit of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church Sunday evening, including the close relationship that exists between a right spiritual conception of God and the unnatural desire of people to take their own lives. In the announcements preceding the sermon, attention was called to the annual Sunday School and Congregational picnic, which will be held next Saturday afternoon at Wallace's Point. Virtually all the organizations of the church are assisting in the preparations and an unusually interesting outing has been arranged for all who attend. Next Sunday's services will be conducted by Rev. Mr. Thompson, of Hastings, who remarkable record in the ministry of forty-four years' continuous pastorate at Hastings, as well as many years of exceptionally valuable service as Clerk of the Peterborough Presbytery, were warmly eulogised by Rev. William Allan.

The text was chosen from Matthew 27, 3 to 5. It recorded the remorse of Judas over his action in betraying Christ, and ended with the words, and Judas "went out and hanged himself." The text included also the question found in James 4, 14: "What is your life?"

"Recently there has been," said Rev. Mr. Allan, "what newspapers have spoken of as an epidemic of suicides. These suicides have not been confined to the old, but have caused widespread comment because of their prevalence among the young. There may be a difference of opinion as to the cause, but all agree that they are self-murder." Statistics show that in 1925 there were over 16,000 suicides. This was a greater number than were recorded in the nine years between 1889 and 1898. It means that there were more suicides in one year recently, with all the boasted advantages of our modern civilization, than during the nine years when these advantages were not in evidence. So noticeable has this increasing tendency to suicide become that it has been spoken of as the footprints of civilization. It represents an average of 7.6 per 100,000 population, including the supposedly well-to-do and educated whits people of the Northern States. The percentage among the supposedly ignorant, poverty-stricken negros of the Southern States was only 1.9. In San Francisco the percentage was 37.8 and in Los Angeles 32.8, and this in spite of the fact that these two cities are located in what many consider to be the most beautiful State in the Union. In the City of Berlin the percentage of suicides was 50.2 per 100,000. There are more suicides in England and Wales than in Ireland and Scotland, and many more in the States than in Great Britain. The little Dominion of Newfoundland has the lowest percentage of any place in the world, namely 1.5. Fewer women commit suicide than men. Various reasons have been given for the smaller percentage of suicides among women, includig the fact that they live more sheltered lives, that they are capable of enduring more suffering, and that they are more religious than men. Statistics show that there are more suicides in cities than in the country. Life is at a higher pressure in the city than in the country. It is more artificial and more complex. That it is not normal for a person to choose death instead of life is generally admitted. Yet we find that young people possessing every advantage of brilliant intellects, advanced education and wealth, many of them under 21 years of age, are committing suicide. Some of these young people have left it on record that they have tasted all there is in life and have found it empty, and have stated that they were ready to pass on to the next world in order to find what it had in store for them.

Since the war there has been a marked change in the outlook on life of many people. There are too many reckless, dissatisfied women seeking satisfaction from life in inadequate ways. The lives of too many people, also, during the week do not agree with their Sabbath professions. They are materialists at heart and the logical conclusion of materialism is suicide. Many people attribute suicide to poverty, sickness, alcohol and family trouble. Yet such explanations do not apply to many of the young people who have committed suicide of recent years.

Whatever is wrong is fundamental in character. There is something manifestly wrong with a system whose product is suicide. Too many young people of today assume to be cynical. Modern educational methods lay too much emphasis on the material and too little on the spiritual. Members of the faculties of many universities are belitting the Christian revelation. Many of them do not attack it openly but ridicule it indirectly. The young man or woman today who would attempt to support the Christian revelation would be ridiculed and scoffed at in the college halls and on the campus. Too many graduates of universities of today return home with the remark, "Oh, Mother, you are old-fashioned. Nobody believes that any more." Unfortunately because the great majority of our universities are materialistic they are the cause of a spiritual bankruptcy among students that ends in suicide. Without proper moral and spiritual foundations modern education is of little value. What many of our universities need is another Henry Drummond, who will meet the students on their own level and prove to them the importance in their lives of the Cross of Christ and the sufficiency of the new life which is found only in Christ Jesus.

THREE GIRLS HURT IN CAR

Flapping Curtain Draws Attention of Driver From Roadway.

ONE UNCONSCIOUS.

STIRLING, June 13. — Three of the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Shea, were going home from school at the noon hour on Friday, in their motor car, when the attention of the one driving was diverted for an instant to the curtain flapping in the back of the car. In that instant the car turned to the side of the road dashing into one of the guy poles of the power line. The jolt threw the girls from the seat and injured them considerably. Two of them were cut by broken glass and the younger one was unconscious for some time. The one driving was the least injured of the three. The accident happened near E. T. Williams' home on the Frankford road, and the girls were taken there, and Dr. Potts summoned to their assistance.

A car driven by three strangers came to grief on the hills between here and Chatterton Sunday afternoon. The occupants were uninjured but the car was completely destroyed.

THIRTEENTH JUROR DIES IN DETROIT

Selected To Prevent Excuse For Mistrial, Man Drops Dead.

DETROIT, June 13.—When the trial of Dr. Frank Loomis, charged with clubbing his wife to death, started here a week ago, it was decided to add a thirteenth man to the jury to prevent any possible excuse for a mistrial. George Barron, 35 years old, was chosen to bear the unlucky number.

Yesterday Barron was taken ill in the courtroom, but recovered, and was able to continue with the jury. This evening, while eating dinner, he suddenly toppled over in his chair dead.

The trial will proceed without "the thirteenth man."

The delegates met with a royal welcome from the people of Pembroke, and were royally entertained by their hosts and hostesses during their three-day visit. A motor trip to the historic Petawawa military camp was among the many pleasant memories carried away.

The reports of secretaries on the many phases of the organization's work showed that great progress had been made in the year, with great promise for the future of the Women's Missionary Society.

Miss Paul, a retired missionary, for many years in active service in the Far West; also Miss Marion Coon, now on furlough from China, who gave a most inspiring account of her work among the young people of Chengtu.

The following are the branch officers elected for the coming year: President, Mrs. J. T. Daley, Port Hope; 1st vice-president, Mrs. W. H. Ashton, Campbellford; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. R. SEVERAL HOUSES CHANGE OWNERSHIP

Councillor Lang Has Improved and Resold Various Properties in Millbrook.

MILLBROOK, June 13.—Councillor T. J. Lang completed a real estate deal this week selling to Mr. J. H. George, Fallis Line, the residence on Anne street which formerly was part of the late Mrs. Gamsby's estate; and to Mr. Allie Fallis, who is at present on the Mitchell farm, Mr. George's farm of 160 acres, possession to be given by November 1st, next Fall. Mr. and Mrs. George will move to their new home in the village after harvest.

Councillor Lang has bought, improved, and re-sold quite a number of properties in the village and vicinity during the past two or three years, and it is apparently solely due to his initiative in this regard that real estate has had much of a turnover locally in recent months.

The new sidewalk, which was badly needed at the south extremity of Main street, has now been completed and extends past Mrs. John Fallis' residence, but stops short at the corporation limits, with several yards of the old, dilapidated board walk still doing duty to Mr. M. McDowell's property.

The ladies of Grace Presbyterian church are holding their annual garden-party on Tuesday, July 5, and the Centreville congregation has decided on Thursday, July 7, for a similar event; Thursday, June 16, is the date for Saint John's church, Ida, to hold its annual out of doors social, with a play, "The Time of My Life" as the chief feature of the programme.

Among those from this vicinity who took in the Warden's excursion to Rochester on Wednesday were: Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fallis; Mr. Austin Sutton, Mrs. David Sutton, Mrs. Lavergne Fallis, and Miss Ruth Keegan.

Mr. F. W. Bowen, M.P., who was attending the sessions of the Counties' Council at Cobourg this week, joined the picnickers from the local Rebekah and Oddfellows' Lodges at Victoria Park for the tea hour on Thursday.

Mrs. C. Thorndyke, and Mrs. T. H. Aiken were in Peterborough recently, and purchased the flowers for planting round the Soldiers' Memorial in the Town Hall square; the Women's Institute undertakes this task each season.

Mrs. J. R. Eakins was re-elected Supply Secretary at the annual convention of Peterborough Presbyterial W.M.S. which met in Saint Paul's church, Peterborough, this week. Mrs. Eakins ably filled this office last year; there is a very considerable amount of work involved when the annual bales from the various Auxiliaries in the Presbyterial are to be re-packed and sent on to their destinations.

Rev. Canon Allen, and his assistant, Rev. P. C. Howard, are in Toronto this week attending the sessions of the Synod for the Toronto Diocese.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Argue, and daughter, Miss Helen, of Bowmanville, and Miss Maud Benson, of Peterborough, were guests of ex-Warden A. J. and Mrs. Henderson on Sunday.

Rev. F. H. and Mrs. Howard, Miss Margaret, and Master Arthur, motored to Toronto on Friday to attend the graduation of their eldest daughter, Miss Mary Howard, who has completed her Bachelor of Arts course at the University of Toronto.

Mrs. Jas. Hutchison and Mrs. Stewart Hall were delegates from the Centreville church at the annual convention of the Women's Missionary Society of the Peterborough Presbyterial at St. Paul's church, Peterborough, this week.

LARGE CROWDS ATTEND CIRCUS

Many Are Attracted By Wonders That Are Found Within Big Top.

ACROBATICS GOOD.

What anxieties the youngsters went through on Friday night for fear that a mishap might occur to prevent the Sparks circus from arriving here the next day. Saturday morning, just as the sun was beginning to show a faint line in the East, boyish chatter could be heard for blocks as the kiddies—yes, grown ups, too, waited for the wonder train that would provide so much amusement during the day.

At last came the afternoon with the tents, long since erected by the human machine working like clock-work, filled with the strange animals from every country in the whole world. Large-eyed boys and girls stared at the huge "king of the animals" as he strode up and down the cage bellowing his fierce roars; over in another corner of the animal section of the Big Top, elephants were placidly eating of the peanuts that were being fed at an almost constant stream.

At last came the time for the big performance to begin. First came the grand march, representing people from practically every country in the world. Skilled acrobats then kept the audience in a spell as they went through their death-defying stunts. Japanese, dressed in the costume of their native country, performed some acrobatic stunts that brought many an exclamation of wonder from the spectators.

The lion and tiger acts in the centre ring were conducted by the trainers with almost unequalled skill, but the performance by the trained pigs was in a class by itself. To see stupid pigs sliding up and down on a steel chute was almost enough to convulse the audience with merriment, and any man or woman trainer who could train these animals must be able to train anything. Of course the clowns must be mentioned, for no circus would be complete without these wonderful men than can cause so much fun, and yet do such perfect acrobatic work as those connected with the Sparks' circus can.

The greatest feature to the circus, though, is the pageant they present of "Historical Canada," in view of the great observance of Confederation by all the Dominion this year.

Starting away back when Canada was first discovered, the Indians with their fierce war-cries appear. Then came bold Jacques Cartier dressed in the costume of the early times. Samuel de Champlain appeared next with all the pomp that he assumed on his arrival in this country.

Montcalm and Wolfe, the brave generals of 1759, rode in, followed by their respective countrymen bearing the British and French emblem flags. Alexander MacKenzie, the great explorer, next arrived, followed by a member of the old, stalwart Royal Northwest Mounted Police in his scarlet coat, that once flashed defiance to any law-breakers in those early days of settlers. Going on to modern times, heroes of the Great War, a khaki soldier, a sailor, a nurse and a member of the Salvation Army marched in, to be followed by the man who represents all: John Bull.

The Sparks' circus left early yesterday morning, but memories of its wonderful performances will remain for a long time with both the older and the younger generation of the city, and hopes that a return of the circus will be made in 1928.

HOTEL SUN-BATHS.

LONDON, June 11.—Rooms with sun-baths are the latest fad offered by a big London hotel. The sun-bath is an inside room with artificial sunlight, in which the bather reclines nude on a couch of gold-colored linen surrounded by jade-colored hangings. The light is automatically turned off after one hour, so the bather won't get sunburned.

The Coliseum at the Canadian National Exhibition is the World's largest exposition building.

FAST MOTOR BOAT PUT INTO ACTION

Cutboard Motor Makes Mile in Two Minutes Flat.

HIAWATHA, June 13.—On Wednesday evening the residents of this village were surprised by the appearance of a red speed boat on the lake, called the "Miss Hiawatha."

The boat was built by Robert Manross, a summer resident, after the fastest styles of outboard motorboats which were developed in Florida last winter.

It was hinted for some time that Mr. Manross was building a boat in his workshop but only trusted friends were allowed in to see the work that was being done.

The design is called the Baby Stepper step-plane outboard boat. This appeared as a supplement in the Motor Boating Magazine some months ago.

The speed boat has no seats, but as the operator has to be continually shifting his position he sits on the bottom. It weighs one hundred pounds, is 14 feet long, and is made of cedar and has oak ribs. The timber was grown near the Reserve.

During the first trial the little craft showed surprising speed and was put through several severe tests to see if it would split. Over a marked course it went, with one man in it, one mile in two minutes flat, and with two it went the mile in 2.07. It is run by an eight horse-power engine which is new and has not yet been opened fully.

Different people from Hiawatha were present when the timing took place. Several were treated to rides and others were wishing that they had been as lucky.

On Tuesday, Mr. Joseph Dunbar, of Bristol, Conn., arrived with his speed boat, which is of a Whiz design, step-plane outboard motor.

With these two fast boats and Mr. Lee Rockwell's green racer, residents and summer visitors will certainly have some thrills.

ANNUAL PICNIC HELD AT COBOURG

Millbrook I.O.O.F. Go To Lakeshore Town For Yearly Outing.

MILLBROOK, June 13.—Golden Sheaf Rebekah Lodge, No. 176, with the Millbrook Lodge I. O. O. F., No. 308, held its annual picnic outing on Thursday afternoon to Victoria Park, Cobourg, the cars leaving here at 1 p.m.

Considering the threatening weather the attendance was satisfactory, and a thoroughly good time was enjoyed. A game of baseball was a feature of the afternoon, and if the rules were apparently made for the occasion plenty of fun was provided until the rain, unfortunately, put a stop for a time to the proceedings. Adjournment was then made to the pavilion for the tea hour when healthy appetites did full justice to the good things provided.

The sports programme was run off when the weather cleared, the results being: Men's race (40 yards)—Dr. L. J. Stuart (Eversharp pencil); girls' race (20 and under)—Thelma Ball (handkerchief); fat men's race—V. R. Hunter (playing cards); ladies' race—Miss L. Syer (rose bowl); three-legged race—V. R. Hunter and Miss Lila Whyte (writing pad; egg slicer); children's race—Audrey Garside, Freddie Garside (candy); needle and thread race—Lila White and C. C. Garside (teapot stand; fountain pen); free-for-all race—W. R. Hunter (correspondence cards); slow race (a given point)—Misses Jean Syer and M. E. Morden (rose); fat ladies' race—Miss Kathleen Fowler (correspondence cards).

Sister Z. Bentley, P. G., presented the prizes at the conclusion of the sports list; the winning side in the ball game was awarded a large box of chocolates, which was generously shared with the losers as well: the sides lined up:

V. R. Hunter, p.; H. A. Fallis, c.; Thelma Ball, 1b.; Jean Syer, 2b.; Lila White, 3b.; E. Morden, r.f.; P. Burnham, l.f.; Ada Attwooll, c.f.; A. Jeffrey, s.s.

W. E. Ball, p.; D. Sheppard, c.; I. Syer, 1b.; T. H. Bradley, 2b.; K. Fowler, 3b.; Z. Bentley, l.f.; Mrs. H. A. Fallis, r.f.; M. Curtiss, c.f.; Isabelle Syer, s.s.

P. I. Bentley, umpire; score, 19–11, favor of W. E. Ball's side.

Quite a number of the picnickers remained for the band concert at 8:30 p. m., but the weather being unpromising, several cars left before that hour and were safely home before the heaviest rain came on.

FORMER MEMBER IS HONORED BY CHOIR

Perrytown Choir Present Mrs. Fred Lowery With Coleman Lamp.

MILLBROOK, June 13.—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lowery were pleasantly surprised at their home, Fallis Line, one evening last week when the members of the choir from Saint Paul's church, Perrytown, visited them and, in warm appreciation of Mrs. Lowery's faithful services when connected with that organization, presented her with a Coleman lamp. Rev. J. M. Crissal, the Rector of the church, made the informal address, expressing the general regret felt at losing Mrs. Lowery from the choir membership, and also referring to the help she had been through faithful attendance at the Sunday services, and assistance willingly rendered with whatever the choir undertook; the congratulations of the entire organization were extended for a generous measure of happiness and prosperity in her new home.

Mr. Lowery, on behalf of his wife and himself, briefly thanked the friends for their handsome remembrance, and also for the kindly words which were its accompaniment, and the remainder of the evening passed pleasantly with games, music, and dancing.

Previous to her marriage, Mrs. Lowery was connected with Saint Paul's church, Perrytown, and was actively interested in its various organizations, and was particularly helpful with the choir of which she had been a member for some time.

GENEROUS STABBER.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 11.—An argument over 25 cents worth of waste paper brought on a battle between Julius Dennis, buyer, and a negro who owned the paper. The negro stabbed Dennis in the back, sent him to a hospital, paid his expenses. "Got tired of arguin' 'bout a measly two bits," he explained. Dennis will not prosecute.

DAINTINESS is the keynote of this age . . . not that spurious and soiled 'daintiness' of smudgy and scented deodorants . . . but the genuine cleanliness of warm water and soft, foaming Lux suds—that freshness of April showers and of haytime skies. This, and this only, is the daintiness of immaculate women—everywhere!"

This letter was received from Mrs. Harvey Mitchell, R.R. No. 2, Hamilton, Canada.

Nothing could be a more fitting aid to daintiness than a complete wardrobe of washables, kept constantly refreshed by the exclusive use of Lux.

CAR OVERTURNS ON KEENE ROAD

The car of a Peterborough citizen completely overturned on the Keene Road yesterday afternoon about 3 o'clock, shaking the six occupants up badly but causing no serious injury outside of a few cuts.

The accident occurred half a mile south of the scene of the Diamond fatality about a year ago.

The owner, his wife, their two children and two friends were travelling south when the two Shaw brothers came out of their gate which is near the turn in the road and also turned south. The Peterborough man, on account of the bend in the road, was unable to see the second car, and just as it entered the traffic the accident occurred. Mr. Shaw, who was driving the car, claimed he blew his horn but as the wind was blowing in the opposite direction, the other car occupants could not hear it.

The car, which is a sedan, turned turtle in the ditch, but when it was righted it was able to proceed under its own power. The right front fender of Mr. Shaw's car was bent.

THAT FAMOUS BEAUTY.

(By Alma Whitaker.)

She must have been the first celebrated beauty I ever me. And that was, oh, over twenty years ago. I was awed and enthralled with her. I was just a bystander as the editor conversed with her.

She was Spanish, vivid, voluptuous, sirenical, and her vogue as a dancer of alluring rhythm was tremendous. All Europe flocked to her performances. And the manager of the theatre had brought her in to visit the editor.

She was the most naive thing, speaking very little English, yet startling us with every carefully contrived sentence. I think the manager had advised her to make a hit with the editor.

So presently she was saying with a pretty moue:

"Yees, sixteen men have committed suicide for love of me—keeled themselves dead."

She seemed satisfied with the deep impression this information made.

"See, here I have many jewels," she said again, as she produced a jewel-case from beneath her amazing fur cloak, which I afterwards learned cost nearly $10,000.

"Thees one, now, it was giveen me by the Emperor of ——," and she held up a cuirass of emeralds and diamonds—all genuine stones.

Then she held up jewel after jewel, necklaces, bracelets, tiaras, rings, sunspray diamond pins, hair combs, earrings, and mentioned names of monarchs, princes, dukes, and rich merchantmen who had presented them to her.

During this interview, half the staff managed to find some excuse to come into the editor's room. She was childishly delighted at the sensation she knew she was causing. And when she left, the office was breathless with excitement.

She had become famous in a flash. Her fame was brief but dazzling and she disappeared from public adulation as suddenly as she had captured it. And now I have just read a little paragraph on the inside page of the daily paper.

"Famous Dancer in Aged Retirement," is the heading. And we are told that she is now a white-haired charming old lady, living in a little Spanish village with her husband and grown son; that her home is very modest; that she occasionally goes to market herself; that she is a regular attendant at church; that she avoids any and every form of publicity, and that few of her old professional friends ever visit her. We are told that she seems very happy, that anyone seeing her would suppose her to be an ordinary nice mother and housewife, that her clothes are always a wee bit out of date and she never wears any jewels, nor has worn them since she settled in this village nearly twenty years ago.

None of this sounds at all possible about the voluptuous beauty I once watched entrancing an editor with her naive vulgarities and improprieties; of the woman who childishly bragged that sixteen men had committed suicide for her; of the woman stage johnnies raved about. One wonders what amazing transformation can have taken place. She must have developed some brains otherwise than in her lovely insidious dancing legs. She must have developed a soul, which she certainly concealed most successfully at that long-ago interview. I can't believe it is she—and yet the details of her former career are very positive. The emerald cuirass is recalled. . . .

Peterborough Lose Exhibition Game at Oshawa

PETES MANAGE TO PLAY GAME AT LAST AND LOSE BY 6 TO 0

SHOW NEED OF WORK.

(By F. D. C.)

The Peterborough Senior Ball Team showed a decided lack of training in its first game of the season at Oshawa Saturday, when Manager Swanston's outfit were given a 6—0 white-washing by Oshawa General Motors, in an exhibition fixture.

The Petes, without a game under their belts, lacked punch on the attack and steadiness on the defence. Facing pitching for the first time this season, their efforts with the willow were very weak and Matthews, the big General Motors twirler, using an effective hook ball all the way, had them at his mercy. A single by Ansaldo, the first man up, and another by Jack Hall in the fifth, represented the sum total of their batting activities, and Matthews, who seemed to be in mid-season form, hung up thirteen strike outs, getting Hackman three times in a row, which is about as often as "Hack" usually strikes out in half a season.

Until the sixth inning it was a scoreless deadlock. Manager Swanston sent Cliff Osterland to the mound, and the tall right-hander from the West got along nicely for five frames, holding the General Motors' crew to two more or less scratchy singles and showing plenty of smoke on his fast one. He developed a wild streak in the sixth, however, and three bases on balls, timely hits by Fair and Kellar and an error by Rose gave Oshawa four runs.

Jeff Hardill finished the game, and also suffered from lack of control, but he would not have been scored upon had it not been for a couple of wild heaves in the eighth by Ansaldo.

The Oshawa team is under the management of the veteran umpire and ball player, "Billie" Benson, and he has them playing smart ball. Only Reg. Fair in the outfield and "Hank" Morrison at third base, remain of the old Oshawa Central League outfit. Herb. Wolfe, outfield star of the Petes for a number of seasons, played left field for the motor gang and came through with two hits. In Cameron, the catcher, Kellar at first, Benson at second and T. Morrison at short, Oshawa possesses four snappy young players, who are bound to improve.

No team looks good when it isn't hitting, and that goes for the Petes Saturday. However, there is no need to worry. The material is available for a strong club, and a little warm weather and a few games will work wonders in the outfit. With Heckman, Osterland and Hardill, the team is well fortified with pitchers and in other departments has plenty of strength.

Saturday's game was a light-hitting affair. Of the twenty-three players who got into the line-ups, only six managed to come through with a single. A fast play by Ansaldo on a slow roller, a nice grab by Jack Hall of a grand smash from Wolfe and a smoothly-executed double play by T. Morrison, Benson and Kellar were the fielding features.

The Game by Innings.

Ansaldo started the Petes off right with a single that nearly tore a leg off Matthews. Johnston bunted a fly to Matthews and after Ansaldo went to second on a passed ball, Swanston filed to Wolfe and Heckman fanned.

Benson for Oshawa drew a pass, but was forced at second on H. Morrison's bunt to Osterland. Morrison went to second on a passed ball. Swanston threw out Fair on a roller in front of the plate, and Ansaldo made a great throw to retire Matthews.

In the second, Rose hoisted to Kellar. Ash rolled to the same player and Holyman struck out.

In Oshawa's half Hall made a fine catch of Wolfe's smash to left. Kellar scratched a hit on a high bounder to the box, but Johnston tossed out Cameron, and T. Morrison whiffed.

Hall drew a walk in the Petes' third, but Osterland fanned and Ansaldo hit into a double play.

For Oshawa, Williams and Benson fanned and Osterland tossed out H. Morrison.

The Petes' best chance to score came in the fourth. Johnston was passed, but was forced by Swanston. Hackman fanned. Rose's fly to right was dropped by Williams, Swanston reaching third and the batter second. Ash was called out on strikes.

In Oshawa's half, after Fair and Matthews had struck out, Wolfe singled to short, but Johnston threw out Kellar.

Holyman fanned to start the Petes' fifth, and after Hall had singled over second for the second and last Peterborough hit of the day, Osterland and Ansaldo also struck out.

Rose tossed out Cameron after Osterland had broken down the backstop's hard smash. H. Morrison lined to Hall, and Little, replacing Williams, struck out.

In the sixth Johnston fanned. Swanston was thrown out by Matthews, and Hackman struck out for the third time.

Won in the Sixth

Oshawa won the argument in their half. Benson walked, went to second on a passed ball and to third while Rose was throwing out H. Morrison. Fair doubled over third scoring Benson. Osterland filled the stocks by walking Matthews, and Wolfe and Kellar singled through short to score Fair and Matthews. Cameron forced Kellar at second or a roller to Ansaldo, but in trying to complete a double killing Rose threw low to first and Wolfe carried the fourth run over. T. Morrison struck out.

For the Petes in the seventh Rose walked. Ash fouled to Cameron. Rose stole second. Batten batting for Holyman drew a pass, but Hall popped to H. Morrison and Hardill, replacing Osterland, flied out to Fair.

Hardill went to the hill top for the Petes, with Collins behind the bat, and Spence taking Heckman's place in right.

Little struck out. Benson was passed, but was picked off first, Hardill to Ash. Morrison and Fair strolled, but Matthews fanned.

In the eighth Ansaldo fanned, Johnston walked, Collins flied to Kellar, and Spence missed three.

A pair of errors by Ansaldo paved the way for Oshawa's last two runs. Wolfe singled through short and stole second. Kellar hit to Ansaldo, who fumbled and then threw wide to first, Wolfe crossing the plate. Wolfe was, however, called out for interference. Cameron rolled out to Ansaldo, who again threw wide to Ash, and Kellar scored, Cameron going to second. He reached third on a bad throw by Hardill in an attempt to pick him off second. T. Morrison lifted one to Hardill, but Little singled past first to score Cameron. Benson fanned.

In the ninth Rose fanned and Ash was tossed out by T. Morrison. Batten was passed, but Hall flied to Fair for the final out.

Former Champ Says Will Fight Again

LOS ANGELES, Calif., June 13 ((Canadian Press). — Johnny Buckley, rotund manager of big Jack Sharkey, Boston heavyweight, arrived here on Saturday and heard from Jack Dempsey, former champion, that he will fight again—who, when, or where he does not care.

Dempsey, who on Friday broke up his "come-back" camp on a mountain ranch in Ojai Valley, and moved back to this city, informed Buckley that Gene Tunney, the present heavyweight titleholder, and Sharkey, both look alike to him.

The former champion declared that everything is up to Tex Rickard and that when he hears from the New York promoter the name of his opponent and the date of their conflict, he will leave immediately for the east.

De Paolo Wins 200-Mile Championship In Auto Race Marred By Two Accidents

SPEEDWAY, ALTOONA, Pa., June 13 (Canadian Press). — In a spectacular race, marred by two accidents, Peter De Paolo captured the 200-mile championship automobile classic here on Saturday. Harry Hartz was second, two laps behind the leader, and far ahead of Tony Gulatto, who was third.

De Paolo's time was 1.42.56.8-10(an average of 116.57 miles an hour.

By virtue of his victory De Paolo won $7,000 as first prize money. Hartz won $3,500 for second place, and Gulatto won $2,000. Others to finish were: Edie Hearne, fourth; Babe Stapp, fifth; Cliff Woodbury, sixth; Al. Melcher, seventh; Leon Duray, eighth; and Dave Evans, ninth. These were all that finished of a field of 16.

Frank Elliott figured in the most spectacular accident of the day when he lost control of his car while rounding a curve. Ralph Hepburn, who was close behind, could not avert a collision, and the rear wheel of Hepburn's car was torn off. Earl Devore's machine was struck by Hepburn's, and forced from the track. Hepburn crashed into a pit. He was uninjured, but a pit mechanic was slightly hurt.

Dave Lewis had a narrow escape from death when his car overturned at almost the identical spot where Elliott came to grief. He was thrown free of his machine. Taken to the emergency hospital within the grounds, he was found to have suffered only cuts and bruises.

LOCAL SOCCER MATCH DRAWN—TWO EACH MASSEYS TEN MEN HELD QUAKERS ELEVEN

HARD-FOUGHT TUSSLE.

Masseys Overwhelmed Their Opponents in the Second Moiety.

The final game in the Holloway Charity Cup between the Quaker Oats and Massey teams was played at King Edward Park before a large turnout of spectators who responded well to the Injured Players Fund, which included the selection committee of the C.G.E. team that was down spotting the talent that would be included in the select team at Cobourg.

After an excellent exhibition of the soccer code in the early stages, the play deteriorated into real cup tie tactics that was void of any scientific touches.

A Quaker representative when interviewed stated: "I thought we had the cup in our mitt after first half display, but oh! we were no place as the game progressed."

Masseys spokesman replied: "Our boys played good soccer in spite of the fact that TEN men played against eleven. We should have won."

Opening Beautiful.

After a threatening attack by Quakers, Masseys retaliated on the centre, Beggs movement being characteristic of clever play into goal, Stan Maker checking closely in the nick of time. His halves moved to the other end where the wing men indulged in swinging the ball, until Laidler relieved upfield. Every man was giving his best in soccer and Masseys were more aggressive around goal, in fact, a foul-throw in their favor about caused disaster to Edgar's charge when Blower's lightning drive missed the cross-bar by inches, from 20-yard drive, then the custodian a few minutes later, diverted a header from George Logan when a goal looked positive but Edgar made a clever clearance.

T. Wilson Opened Scoring.

Carmichael carried the attack along the right wing where Blowers was checked hard and fast. He lost possession to an opposing forward who banged across the goal to the unmarked left winger who evaded the defence with close dribbling and sent the ball towards goal that was turned aside into the net off T. Wilson. Not discouraged, the Masseys returned with renewed vigor in outfield play in which their forward rank moved with more precision while in possession of the ball. Blowers again missed by inches. Quick as a flash, Mitchell made an individual effort to increase the lead but Laidler's timely foot spoiled his chance.

Mitchell Increased Lead.

Exchanges were very even thereafter, until a scrimmage in front of the Massey's goal terminated in a solo play by their centre forward who slipped the ball far out of the reach of the goalkeeper into the far corner of the net. At this point, disaster came along the Massey's way when they lost the services of a player. They continued to play with ten men.

Geo. Logan's Beautiful Goal.

This caused a change in the lineup, Laidler falling back into full back, and Buchan coming into his regular position as a half-back, although while up in the forward rank he was an asset. Between these two players they held the fast moving Quaker team to mid-field play. Eventually Left-winger Sharman evaded his opposing defence to gain a corner-kick that let George Logan head a beautiful goal into the rigging, just three minutes before half-time. Quakers 2, Masseys 0.

HALF-TIME.

There were interesting passages of play early after resuming, a Quakers marksman first putting close over. Then a Buchan-Sharman combination raised a siege upon the Quaker's goal that found Jack Wade the stumbling block to penetrate the desired area. He repeatedly initiated movements and counter actions to put his disorganized teammates into their usual stride again but his men became bunched and lacked the pep of the first period. This let the ten Massey players formulate an attacking force that had everything but the necessary finish. Of course the result of such play being a brand of defence put up by the full-backs and the halves, while the forwards were in a quandry.

Hard Tackling.

At this point the Quakers replied with a long swinging pass that suited the Masseys style of tactics and both teams made changes in position of players. Cup tie tactics were demonstrated in keen tackles, close checking and legitimate body charges that gave the fans plenty of excitement. Play went from end to end with the custodians being called upon to clear long shots.

Sharman Equalizes.

Mann was injured by one of his chums, but resumed after the trainer's attention, with eagerness to play in abundance. From a clever tackle against the Quaker forwards, he travelled with the ball at his foot, then punted into goal where George Logan harrassed the Quaker's defence. A timely pass back to Beggs left the latter in possesion, who made Edgar sho whis stuff in a smart clearance. Buchan ripped a hot one back for the corner of the upright. A number of the players tried to head the ball but it became a ground ball. In the scrimmage that ensued, a Quaker player handled. Sharman was entrusted with the spot kick and made no mistake with a timed shot. The Quakers came back strong in the closing stages through Mitchell's individual effort, while the rest of the forwards were "all in." Final: Quakers 2, Masseys 2.

ROBINS CONQUER LEAGUE LEADERS

Come From Behind at Close To Defeat the Pirates 11-10.

NEW YORK, June 13. — Canadian Press. — Relief Pitcher Norman Plitt won a ball game for himself and the Robins at Brooklyn yesterday when his single in the eighth inning drove in the run that gave Brooklyn a hectic 11 to 10 victory over Pittsburgh. It was the second time in two days that Brooklyn came from behind in the closing innings to conquer the league leaders, and oddly yesterday's score was the same as Saturdays. Harris and Gooch of the Pirates hit homers. The Robins made 15 hits off Aldridge and Nichols.

Chicago ran its winning streak to eight straight by hammering three New York pitchers for a 7 to 6 victory before a record crowd of about 45,000 Chicagoans. The Giants made a four run rally in the fourth inning, aided by Beck's error but the Cubs came back with five runs in their half when Web led off with his tenth home run of the season. Chicago bunched their hits in the eighth off McQuillan to put across the winning run. Webb led Chicago's attack with a home run and two singles while Wilson had a perfect day with three doubles and two walks.

Boston evened the series at Cincinnati by winning yesterday's game 4 to 1. Genewich outpitched Donohue and held Cincinnati scoreless until the ninth inning ,while Boston bunched several hits in several innings. Boston got the real break of the game when Welsh caught a ball as it fell out of Richbourg's hands close to the bleacher wall. Critz hit the ball with two on and two out.

Lester Bell's home run in the ninth inning with Holm on base gave the Cardinals a 5 to 4 victory over Philadelphia at St. Louis. Mokan, Philly left fielder, had a perfect day at bat, getting five hits out of five trips to the plate. Southworth Cardinal right fielder, also got three hits out of three times at bat.

AUBURN WINS AT SOFTBALL

Defeats Campbellford Mills 12-10 in Saturday Game.

SNAPPY PLAY.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 13. — Auburn Mills, Peterborough vs. The Campbellford Mills, in a snappy nine inning game of softball, was the chief attraction in town on Saturday afternoon. It was a decidedly close game all the way through. At the end of the first half of the ninth innings the score was 10—10. In the final half Auburn wiggled in two runs, ending the games with an equal dozen to Compbellford's finger count.

Auburn's pitcher, Waddell, apparently the pet of the Peterborough nine, came near getting mobbed, many mistaking him for the guy who recently won the Dominion oratorical contest. Waddell seemed to have a great deal of trouble in getting the crowd to understand just exactly where the feet should be when in the box. The lengthy debate between fans and pitcher ended quickly when one of the fans made a decidedly personal remark about the different sizes of feet. It was Waddell's good pitching and not his efforts at oratory, that leaves any favorable impressions of himself in the town on the Trent. There was nothing Dutch about Holland, the silent half of the battery. The only one he couldn't hold were the ones struck towards field.

Doug. Runions and Cowell made a very strong battery for the locals. Doug started off a little weak, but was not long in getting his arm in, and soon had the Life-Lock crew abandon the idea that they were going to have a walk-away.

The following was the line-up:

Local Mills.—Doug. Runions, p; Coxwell, c; Montgomery, 1b; Vic Cochrane, 2b; Geo. Runions, 3b; Ibey ss; Ayrhart, cf; Ralph, rf; Blake, lf.

Score by innings:

Local Mill.....040103110—10

McCrea Is Defeated By Tilden On Courts

DUBLIN, Ireland, June 13 ((Canadian Press). — William T. Tilden, of the United States, defeated Dr. E. D. McCrea in stright sets at 6-1, 6-2, 6-2 in the final match of the Irish-American Lawn Tennis Tournament on Saturday.

The visitors thus won the series four matches to one, the only Irish victory being that of the Hon. Cecil Campbell over Francis T. Hunter in the first of aSturday's singles, the score of which was 6-1, 7-5, 3-6, 2-6, 6-4.

ORIOLES LOSE DOUBLE BILL

Offerings of Sextet of Pitchers Unable To Hold Canadians.

HOMERS FEATURE.

NEW YORK, June 13.—(Canadian Press.)—The offerings of a sextet of Oriole pitchers looked just right to Toronto and the Canadians took both games of a double-header at Baltimore by scores of 9 to 7 and 6 to 4. Three home runs were clouted during the twin bills, one each by Porter, Hargrave and Jacobson.

Errors by Conlan, McCarron and Kingdon in the tenth inning gave the Rochester club two runs to win the fourth straight game of the series at Newark by the score of 6 to 5. Jack Bentley, who started to pitch for Newark, was wild, walking six batters and hitting one before he was taken out.

Jersey City managed to salvage one game out of its series with Syracuse at Jersey City by dividing a double-header with the league's leaders. The Black Cats won the first game, 7 to 0, and then lost the second, 4 to 1, giving the Stars three out of the four games played.

Rube Parnham, making his first start of the season, was pounded hard by Buaffol at Reading and the Bisons took the final game of the series, 6 to 2. George Quellich hit a home run over the right field fence in the sixth inning. It was the eighteenth consecutive game in which he has hit safely.

INDIANS WIN SECOND GAME

Ruth Clouts Out 21st Homer of the Current Season.

TAKE EARLY LEAD.

NEW YORK, June 13 ((Canadian Press). — Babe Ruth connected with another of his heavy blows yesterday —No. 21 of the current season—but the Yankees were nosed out by the Indians, 8 to 7, in the second game of the series. Ruth made his homer off Uhle with none on base in the seventh. During his banner year in 1921 he hung up his twenty-first circuit clout on June 13.

Cleveland got off to seven runs in the first two innings and was never headed. Hoyt retired in favour of Pipgras during the second frame, the latter holding the Indians well in hand and contributing a home run.

At Detroit, three successive singles in the tenth inning gave Detroit an 11 to 10 victory over Boston. It was the Tigers' fifth winning game in a row. Boston gained a seven-run lead in the first four innings, but Detroit drove both Wiltse and McFadyen out of the box ,taking the lead in the sixth. Boston came back to tie the score in the ninth. Carroll, who relieved Gibson, was a big factor in the Tiger victory, batting in three runs with his triple and two singles and scoring two runs himself.

Held to five hits by Lisenbee at Washington, the White Sox dropped their second straight game to Washington, 6 to 1. The Senators touched the veteran faber for thirteen hits in seven innings, getting two more off Cole in the eighth.

MILLIONS TURN TOWARD CANADA

This is the highway map of Ontario and part of Quebec, with the main roads of the United States leading to Ontario ports.

OTTAWA, Ont., June 13.—The gates of Canada have been opened wider than ever this year and already thousands of tourists from the United States are rushing through them to enjoy the hospitality, as well as the captivating sports and the marvelous scenery for which the Dominion is noted.

Canadian authorities are preparing to receive more than four million tourists from the United States this year. Ontario province, it is believed, will entertain the greater part of these.

Ontario offers far more than respite for parched Americans south of the border line. Its lakes, forests and streams are known the country over for their fish and game, their rugged atmosphere and entrancing scenery. Rolling country interspersed among these finish a picture so completely variated in attractiveness as few other districts can supply.

Into this picture will come tourists by the hundreds of thousands, most of them by auto. The roads, nearly 60,000 miles of them, are ready a great portion wide and smooth, more than half composed of improved gravel pavement.

Good Roads Prevail.

Every part of this province is traversed by good roads, from Sault Ste. Marie at the western portal eastward into the province of Quebec, and especially through the great peninsula that extends between Lakes Erie and Huron to Windsor across the river from Detroit.

The main trans-continental trunk highway system that stretches across southern Canada runs eastward from Sault Ste. Marie, skirts the shore of North Channel, Lake Huron, and passes on eastward through Sudbury, along the north shore of Lake Nipissing to Mattawa. From here the road follows the beautiful Ottawa river to Point Fortune, 601 miles from the Sault, and from here proceeds to Montreal.

At North Bay, the tourist can hardly restrain his sporting desire to turn southward from this route and traverse the famous Muskoka lake district, where sumemr resorts, canoe routes and fishing grounds abound. If he does so, he may continue westward to Lake Simcoe and on to Toronto, 235 miles from North Bay.

Windsor is perhaps the second most important gateway to Ontario from the United States. It is opposite Detroit, by ferry. From this border city, after leaving Maidstone, the tourist has the choice of two main highways eastward.

Skirting Lake Erie.

One passes close along the north shore of Lake Erie to Niagara Falls, for 257 miles, giving access to all lake ports and summer resorts. The other route takes the tourist through London, Woodstock and other cities to Hamilton, whence two other routes may take him to Toronto.

All of this is wonderful driving on fully improved roads through picturesque country.

Past Toronto to the east, the route leads along the shore of Lake Ontario to Kingston and then by the St. Lawrence into the province of Quebec near Beudette.

Niagara Falls is the most important gateway to Ontario. This brings the motorist into a beautiful stretch of highway northward to Hamilton and on to Toronto.

Proceeding northward through any of many routes into the picturesque lake district of Ontario, the tourist may reach Parry Sound, on the east shore of Georgian Bay, after passing again through the picturesque and adventurous Muskoka Lake district.

From Parry Sound, there's a steamboat ride that shouldn't be overlooked, for it reveals the many nooks and crannies of one of the most entrancing landscapes in Ontario. This is the "Thirty Thousand Island" region, a place chock full of woody reefs and promontories.

Another Way Back.

The car can be run on to the steamer for this trip and taken off at Midland. This begins another enjoyable ride around the southern edge of Georgian Bay to Owen Sound, across to Southampton and down the Lake Huron shore to Sarnia.

At Sarnia a ferry may be taken across the St. Clair river to Port Huron, Mich., for a picturesque route known as the Blue Water Highway, still in Canada, may be followed southward to Chatham and thence along the south shore of Lake St. Clair to Windsor.

These are only the main highways. Throughout the Ontario peninsula there is a network of roads that crosses entrancing country in all directions.

One of the many scenic drives in Ontario runs along the Rideau river northward to Ottawa. This scene is at Long Island on the Rideau.

Theatres

AT THE REGENT.

A REAL THRILLER.

"My Official Wife," the Warner film now showing at the Regent Theatre, is a startlingly vivid picture of Old Russia. The glittering ladies, the gold-laced domineering officials; clattering Cossacks, plotting Nihilists; the wan and ragged Losts of the peasantry all pass before us in stirring panorama.

Through ominous days, we are brought into the mad fury of revolution. There is the story, too, of Helene, a beautiful Russian countess, and of the reckless young noble Sascha, who wrongs her, and for whom she harbours hatred which will be satisfied only with his death.

How the two with the rest of the mighty, are brought low, and love, without knowing each other's identity—how the bitter waters are turned into the sweet—is told superbly and with the sort of direction which only one who has known the old Russia and the new, and Vienna, the city of mirth and melancholy, can command.

Paul Stein directed the film which is an adaptation by Grahain Baker of Charles Blaney's play, which in turn was taken from Archibald Clavering Gunter's tremendous story of the same name.

Irene Rich and Conway Tearle are featured, and the supporting cast includes many notable names. The photoplay is real and thrilling melodrama in a setting of romantic terror and beauty. You should not fail to see "My Official Wife."

DECLINES OFFER.

JERSEY CITY, June 13 (Canadian Press). — Donnelly, of the Jersey City International League Baseball Club, announced on Saturday that the club had declined a lucrative offer to withdraw from baseball here and permit the franchise to be transferred to Montreal.

Although Donnelly refused to name the would-be purchasers or the sum of money offered, the Jersey Journal says it learned that George Stallings, who retired yesterday as manager and part owner of the Rochester Club, headed a syndicate of Montreal business men, backed by the Chamber of Commerce of Montreal, which made the offer.

NEWSBOYS DEFEAT 4TH BATTERY 17-11

Errors Costly To Army in City Softball League Fixture.

The Examiner chalked up its third straight victory, in the local Softball League, when they defeated the 4th Battery 17-11 at Central Park on Saturday night. The game was very poorly contested, loose fielding and poor pitching being turned in by both teams. Both Dormer and Hilliard were a trifle wild and, although not hit hard, poor fielding, along with the walks they handed out, helped pile up a big score. Ken Baker contributed a circuit clout for The Examiner.

The teams lined up as follows:

Examiner—Dugan, c; Bradshaw, 3b; Taylor, 2b, rf; Baker, lf, 1b; Baird, ss, 2b; Dormer, p; Guiry, 1b, lf; G. Dormer, cf; Parsons, ss; Oxley, rf.

Umpires—Coursey and Batten.

SOFTBALL NOTES.

Tonight at Central Park at 6.15 the Lockworks meet the K. of C. in what should be one of the best games of the year.

The K. of C. have to win tonight's game to stay in the running, while a win for the Lockworks will practically cinch them a place in the playoffs. With so much at stake the K. of C. can be depended on to be in there fighting all the way. They will trot out their strongest lineup tonight, and while Manager Kearns has not announced who will pitch it is likely he will send Murphy in to turn the trick. Murphy pitched great ball against the Belmonts in their last game and had been accorded better support would have won. Manager Miller is sending Jimmy Waddell in to do the mound duty for the Lockworks.

DRAW GAME IS PLAYED AT OVAL

eterborough Cricket Club Met St. Edmunds' of Toronto on Saturday.

BACK JULY 1ST.

The match on Saturday afternoon tween Peterborough and St. Edunds ended in a draw after one the most interesting games of the ason. The Peterborough captain n the toss and decided to bat first, ening with Dunkerley and Stuart the bowling of Lister and Larkin. oth batsmen played cautiously for few overs after which runs came eadily, Dunkerly making the most, hile Stuart played a fine defensive me. The score was carried to 30 fore Stuart was caught. Jefferson, ho was the next batsman, fell to a e catch in the outfield after serv- g two. F. Dyer soon scored 13 in s usual forceful way before getting ught, the 3rd wicket falling at 62. horpe then partnered Dunkerly, who as batting well. These two players rried the score to 117 before be- g parted, Dunkerly then being bowl- by a beautiful ball from Winkg; he had batted in fine style for and gave only one chance in the tfield. Seventeen more runs were ded when Thorpe was also bowled Winkling, who was by far the best the opposing bowlers. Thorpe ade a valuable 34, batting briskly ter the tea interval. Hammond was ught with six more on the score ard. R. Dyer scored 9 in quick style including one 5, the innings finally closing for 150 runs—Peterborough's biggest total of the season.

Stumps were arranged to be drawn at 7.30 so as to give the St. Edmunds' a sporting chance to get the necessary runs to win. Larkin and Adgey opened the winning at six o'clock, being opposed by F. Dyer and Jefferson. The score was steadily carried to 49 before the first wicket fell, Dyer bowling Adgey. Hunter was the next batsman and he immediately set about the bowling in rare style, hitting out at practically every ball, and assisted by an element of luck scored 47 runs before Dyer broke through the defence. Lister batted well for 35 runs, making some nice strokes before playing on to Dyer. The sixth wicket fell at 119 and the game was in a very interesting condition, but unfortunately the light was getting very bad, the fielders often temporarily losing sight of the flight of the ball. The 7th wicket was down at 141, and only ten runs were needed to win, but time was up, and the light was so bad that it would have been dangerous to have played on any longer. A very interesting game had had to be left drawn.

The visitors were delighted with the ground and the reception accorded them, and arrangements have been made for them to have another match here on July 1st. The home team are delighted to have these fine sportsmen back again at so early a date.

ULSTER UNITED WIN SOFTBALL FIXTURE

Windsor Defeated 2-0 in National League Soccer Match.

WINDSOR, Ont., June 13 (Canadian Press). — Failing to reproduce the same brilliant form that carried them to victory over the same opposition last week, Windsor went down to defeat before Ulster United of Toronto here on Saturday in a National League soccer match by a score of two goals to nil.

Ulster's were full value for their triumph as the locals never struck the form that means victory against a team of the calibre of the visitors. It was an interesting but not very brilliant game, the heat affecting the pace, which at times was slow.

The Toronto team gained the lead five minutes after the start when Graham accepted a pass from Clulow to drive the ball into the Windsor net. Play was very even for the remainder of the half with both sides missing splendid scoring opportunities.

Play in the second half favoured the locals, but they lacked scoring punch, while Fraser, guarding the Ulster goal, made many clever saves to keep his charge intact. Ulster increased their margin towards the finish when Graham scored his second tally of the match on a hard shot from close in, Campbell having no chance to save.

JACOBSON RELEASED.

BOSTON, Mass., June 13. — Canadian Press. — Bill Jacobson, former St. Louis Browns centre fielder, who came to the Red Sox last year, has been released to the Cleveland Indians via the waiver route, it was announced here.

CURING ERYSIPELAS

Every acute disease is really an effort of Nature to bring about a readjustment of metabolism. An "attack" of erysipelas is no exception to this rule.

Erysipelas is commonly regarded as an acute disease caused by the streptococcus erysipelatis and is thought by many to be contagious. The eruption, which begins on the first or second day, consists of dark red, spreading patches of erythema or redness, with edema or swelling of the underlying tissues. The affected parts become swollen and painful, and there is often intense itching and burning.

The disease is frequently complicated by the presence of suppression of urine which sometimes contains albumin, and occasionally there is swelling of the membrane in the throat especially of the soft palate. The back sometimes aches and there is always a rapid rise in temperature.

The red, purplish patches of erysipelas may start on the nose and extend to any part of the face, or these patches may appear in any other part of the body.

The most common form is that which locates in the skin of the face. When I say "locates" I mean exactly this: The poisons of the body, which really cause the trouble, begin to collect at some point because of insufficient elimination in other parts of the body. The swelling of the skin only shows that these toxins are trying to get out but cannot come out fast enough through the pores of the skin. The bacilli of erysipelas may or may not be present, for the real cause is deeper seated than any bacteria, and really lies in a systemic toxicosis.

In an acute "attack," patient should take either a water or the orange juice fast until all symptoms have disappeared. The fever will go down in three or four days, if this fasting is continued, along with daily enemas. The itching and burning of the affected parts can be soothed somewhat by the application of wet cloths which have been wrung out of cold water, to which has been added a small amount of lemon juice, about one-half lemon to a quart of water. This is all the treatment needed for an acute "attack," which is only a warning of under-lying causes which must be ascertained and eliminated.

The same poisoning with wrong foods which laid the foundation for an acute "attack" will continue to exist, if day by day the patient continues to live on the same indiscriminate diet. If no changes are made in the patient's habits, he can expect recurring "attacks," for the same poisoning may locate in some other part of the body and produce a disorder under a different name. A person suffering from such chronic poisoning could expect some internal disorder if it were possible to keep the skin entirely sterilized against the streptococcus erysipelatis.

One "attack" should be enough warning for the sufferer to search out the real causes and remove them.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

JOY

Red blossoms on a green hillside,
And yet you say that joy has died;
Blue waters sparkling in the sun,
And yet you say that joy is done;
Over it all a sky of blue,
And yet you see no joy for you;
Your heart has felt life's hurts and stings—
Yet these were only man-made things.

For there is more to earth than man;
The heart may hope, for hope it can;
And, when I hear some word unkind,
I'll leave the jostling crowd behind
And walk the world a little while,
The wider world where all things smile.
Yes, when my soul is sick of sin,
I'll let a little beauty in.

There is no hurt that hearts endure
A walk in summer cannot cure.
The joy of beauty never dies
In those who live with seeing eyes.
Aye, if you find no good in men,
In field and flow'r find good again.
Man's world is like a prison cell,
But in God's world there all is well.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

LINCOLN NUNNALLY, elderly American chemist, is summoned to the little jungle-bordered town of PORTO VERDE, in west central Brazil, by his young friend, VILAK, who is concerned for the safety of his beautiful cousin, ELISE MARBERRY, owner of a coffee plantation and other property near Porto Verde.

Several mysterious deaths have occurred, including that of TONY BARBETTA, one of Elise's foremen, and the girl herself has received warnings to get out of the country.

Vilak believes GAYLORD PRENTISS, a reticent and forbidding man, known to be an enemy of Elise may be involved in some way in the deaths. Accordingly, he and Nunnally set out for Prentiss' house, which is guarded by barbed wire fences and a vicious dog. Elise insists on joining them. Prentiss sets the dog on them and Vilak saves his companions' lives by chloroforming it into unconsciousness.

The next day Elise's two-year-old orphaned nephew is kidnapped. They suspect Prentiss. Vilak leads the pursuit, and they follow a circuitous trail of horse tracks and finally come upon the child near a railroad camp.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER XV

Vilak stood silently looking on, half amused, half thoughtful. Elise turned to him, still holding the baby. "You're a dear," she murmured. "I thought it before, but I didn't know it before today. I take back everything that I said about you. I was a pig. And when I cried and completely lost control of myself you said nothing, made none of the caustic, sarcastic remarks that you might have made, but instead set about finding Tinky . . . And found him. It's a long time since I broke down the way I did this afternoon. But Tinky has become a part of me somehow." She leaned over and kissed Vilak impulsively.

"Here, here," he said sheepishly, taking out his cigaret case. "You certainly are upset. Have one of my strong cigarets and quiet your nerves." He lit one. "I'd certainly like to know how Tinky got here. I have a theory, but our friend the civil engineer, who is coming up now, looks as if he might tell us a few facts." He turned to greet the newcomer, who came forward, his dark, pointed face aglow with pleasure.

"Good day, senhorita, amigos," he murmured, shaking hands cordially with the two men and bowing to the girl. "I see you the baby have once more in your arms. I am happy. Most happy."

"It is the senhorita who is happy," Vilak responded. "And she owes her happiness to you."

The other gave a disparaging shrug of his small, well-knit shoulders. "It is nothing that I do. It is nothing."

"Where did you find him?" Vilak queried.

"Over there by the bushes." He pointed off to the patch of vegetation from which they had just come. "It is very strange. Most strange. We were working here, my men and I, spreading gravel along the track where the water has washed the earth away—we cannot do much, but we do what we can—when we hear the noise of horses galloping up the road from which you have come. This is nothing. Often we hear the horses gallop. Many ride past this place. Is it not so?

"The horses stop for a moment, then they gallop on again. And then we hear other horses gallop. But this also is nothing. This also we hear each hour. But soon also we hear something which is not nothing, something which we who work in the wild places hear never in our wanderings, the weeping of a child. An Indian baby, I think, deserted by its mother. I go to the bushes to see. And there in the weeds I find it, a white baby. I am astonished. A beautiful baby, senhorita, a beautiful baby."

He took one of Vilak's cigarets. "I know at once when I look that it has not been deserted. It is lost or perhaps it is stolen. I am a stranger here. Also are my men strangers. I ask of one who passes on the road if he has ever before beheld the baby, if he perhaps knows the mother. 'Ah yes,' says he at once. 'Who in Porto Verde does not know? It is the nephew of the Senhorita Marberry.'

"At once I send a man to ride swift to your fazenda, for I know how great must be your agony. He returns. You are gone, he says, where your servants know not. But I know. You have gone to look for the child. It is not good for him to stay there in the damp bushes where there are mosquitoes which bite and snakes which kill. So I bring him here where I can watch. I fetch for him a blanket so that he will not be on the cold, wet ground. —I have also nephews, senhorita. Still he is not happy. He cries always, English words, which I cannot well understand. So I bring for him an orange. He eats. He is happy. At last I see you come. And he is very happy."

Vilak lit the other's cigaret, then his own. "Mighty decent of you. Mighty decent. Very few men would have been so thoughtful. I want to assure you that Senhorita Marberry and I are deeply grateful." He smoked thoughtfully. "You didn't have a chance to see the men who were on the horses?"

"No, senhor. It is too low here. We cannot see the road." He looked at his cigaret interestedly. "Very excellent, these cigarets. Your special brand, no doubt."

"Exactly. Oriental. I'm glad to hear you say you like them. Senhorita Marberry doesn't approve." He glanced toward her smilingly. "Incidentally I haven't introduced you. My client, Senhorita Marberry. I present for all your good wishes Senhor—" He paused for the name.

"D'Albentara. Carlos D'Albentara," the other responded graciously.

Elise stepped forward and heartily shook his hand. "I shall never forget what you've done for me. If there's ever anything that I can do or anything that my fazenda has which might help you I'll feel very much hurt if you don't ask for it. I hope you'll come out and call on me."

He bowed. "You honor me, senhorita. You do to me great honor."

She glanced at the men shoveling gravel at the river's edge. "Do you think there is going to be a flood? The river seems to be getting higher all the time and I'm beginning to be worried about my property over at Villapa, about fifteen or twenty miles from here. It's always the first to get the water. I've got a good man over there, a chap named Wilson, who is very good, but he's been quite ill lately with fever and I hate to have him be compelled to do all the fearful work of an emergency such as a flood."

D'Albentara looked surprised. "Wilson, you say this is his name? Could it be perhaps that I know him? A little man, black hair, and large feet, who has once worked on this railroad as an engineer?"

"No. It's a different man altogether. The one that works for me is a blond, and I brought him direct from the States. . . . Do you think we'll have the flood?"

"That I wish I knew, senhorita. No one can say and perhaps afterward not he called a teller of falsehoods. But to me the river seems rising, always. And if it rises there cannot but be a flood."

The stunted Indian of the enormous nose who had brought them from the road came forward and, grunting a few gutteral sentences to him, pointed off to a group of laborers sawing some trees. He turned to the visitors. "I must go back to my men, amigos," he murmured. "It is to me a great pleasure to have made your friendship. A great pleasure. Goodby, senhorita, senhor."

"Don't forget to come to see me. Soon." Elise called out blithely as they climbed to the road again.

She jumped into her saddle, then took the baby which Vilak gently lifted to her. "Life's a queer thing," she said as the horses paced slowly toward the fazenda, and she leaned down and kissed the child again. "At two o'clock I am heartbroken, at five I am simply bubbling over with joy. Simply because this little bit of humanity we happen to call Tinky is with me. Oh, I know I make a fool of myself over him," she added with a half apologetic glance at Vilak. "But I do love him. Whatever my sardonic cousin pretends to think about the folly of human emotions in general, and the emotion of affection in particular. Some people can go through life with a poker face and a poker face disposition. I can't."

Vilak untied a knot in his horse's bridle. "A poker face in my profession is at times a necessity. I thoroughly approve of love . . . applied to . . . Tinky." He watched her thoughtfully as her delicate hand caressed the child. "I'm sorry. I've got bad news for you."

CANADA AND U.S. IN DISCUSSIONS

Negotiations On Border Crossing Difficulties Are Now Unofficial.

WASHINGTON, June 11 (Canadian Press).—Negotiations between the Canadian Legation and the United States State Department to clear up the border crossing difficulties were resumed unofficially today. Further diplomatic correspondence is not likely, United States having replied to Canada's note and Canada having gone on record two days ago.

There are a few points arising out of the general principles, such as the question of what will be the status of Canadians, who qualify as border commuters and later set up residence on the United States side. Will they be already qualified as immigrants, immune from further question by United States immigration officers? The Canadian Press is informed by students of the situation on both sides that much study of constitutional and legal points will be necessary before the problem can be completely cleared up.

Six hundred thousand dollars in gold coin recently was shipped from the United States to the Straits settlements to serve as wedding presents among the natives, who have little regard for their value but treasure them as ornaments.

Blueberries have seeds so small that they are unnoticeable, while the seeds of the huckleberry are large and coarse.

OUTLINE OF SCIENCE — CCV—Why Edison's Newspaper Quit. — by MAX HAHN

EDISON MIGHT HAVE BECOME A GREAT PUBLISHER IF HE HAD REMAINED IN THE NEWSPAPER BUSINESS. HE POSSESSED ORIGINAL IDEAS AND A NEWSPAPER NEEDS ORIGINALITY TO DISTINGUISH ITSELF. HIS CREATIVE JOURNALISM IS SHOWN IN THE FACT THAT WHILE A NEWSBOY ON A GRAND TRUNK TRAIN HE PRINTED A WEEKLY PAPER. NO ONE ELSE HAD EVER PUBLISHED A PAPER ON A MOVING TRAIN.

AFTER THE LABORATORY FIRE CAUSED HIS LOSS OF HIS TRAIN JOB, HE BEGAN TO PRINT A WEEKLY IN PORT HURON. IN THIS PAPER, WHICH HE CALLED "PAUL PRY," HE PRINTED CRITICISMS OF PORT HURON BUSINESS MEN AND WOMEN, AS WELL AS THE ROUTINE NEWS OF DEATHS, BIRTHS AND MARRIAGES.

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate

THE GOSSIPY MATERIAL CREATED A BIG CIRCULATION FOR PAUL PRY. IT CONTAINED SOME VERY PERSONAL ITEMS WHICH SPICED THE COLUMNS AND CAUSED EACH PORT HURON RESIDENT TO SCAN THE PAPER FOR FAVORABLE OR UNFAVORABLE ALLUSION TO HIMSELF

THE RESULT WAS INEVITABLE. PAUL PRY WAS DISCONTINUED AFTER AN INFURIATED READER THREW EDISON INTO THE ST. CLAIR RIVER. EDISON HAD PUBLISHED A JUICY BIT OF GOSSIP ABOUT THE READER. IT WAS UP TO EDISON TO APOLOGIZE OR PAY THE PENALTY AND THE YOUNG PUBLISHER WOULDN'T APOLOGIZE.

CANADA LIVES AGAIN IN MONS

Entry of Canadians Into Belgian City in 1918 Commemorated.

PLAQUE UNVEILED.

MONS, June 13 (Canadian Press Cable).—Canada lived again yesterday in this historic Belgian city where at high noon on Armistice day November 11, 1918, the Grande Place, and the acclaiming populace witnessed the march past of all arms of the Canadian corps, the salute taken by the corps commander, Lieut.-Gen. Sir Arthur Currie, the while the ancient carillon rang out the notes of "O Canada."

Yesterday, in commemoration of this historic entry, a plaque was unveiled in the entrance arch of the Hotel de Ville. The unveiling was performed by Lieut.-Gen. Sir Henry Burstall, who commanded the second Canadian Division. The plaque is of bronze, about eight feet in height, and bears a couple of Canadian standards and the Dominion coat-of-arms, with in English and in French, the following inscriptions: "Mons was recaptured by the Canadian corps, November, 1918, after 50 months of German occupation freedom was restored to the city: here was fired the last shot of the Great War."

The plaque has been presented by the Canadian Battlefields Memorial Commission.

A large company assembled for the ceremony. Under the command of Lieut.-Col. W. Rae a guard of honor of Canadian ex-service men now resident in Great Britain was mounted. This contingent, at the special request of the burgomaster and with the approval of the French Government, was billeted in Lille overnight. The Belgian army was also represented by a detachment of troops.

An impressive oration was delivered by the Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Speaker of the Canadian House of Commons.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux Speaks

Opening his address, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux said he brought Canada's sincere fraternal greetings. He paid homage to King Albert of Belgium, Queen Elizabeth and Cardinal Mercier. They were gathered there, he said, to commemorate the deliverance of Belgium from the armies of Germany, and it was fitting that a Canadian voice should proclaim and interpret the deep and abiding admiration all felt for the noble Belgian country. The victory achieved was insufficient in itself. Victory involved difficult problems of peace. "I would that this peace," he continued, "for which the world is craving might be a peace founded on justice and security."

The speaker continued that when he arrived home he would tell his fellow-countrymen that the little Belgian nation was rising again despite the trials confronting its peasants and artisans; that labor, because of its energy, was facing the future confidently, that its artists were continuing the ascent towards the summit of their ideals. To peasants, attracted by wide stretches of continent and to artists lured by the quest for new impressions, he recommended Canada, where nature offered no more magnificent picture. Its diverse aspects constituted its beauty.

Canada, continued Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, like Belgium, found its moral unity in harmonious diversity and in the liberal institutions which it enjoyed and which were founded on justice, right and liberty. Upon these Canadians intended to develop their country. It was in that spirit that the soldiers of the Third Canadian Division entered Mons in 1918. The world would never forget that the parting cannon shot on behalf of right oppressed and peace recovered through victory, was fired by Canadian soldiers. He brought with him and offered this page from their history on a bronze tablet. When the grandchildren of Belgians of today read the inscription they would but need to cast a glance at the battlefields nearby to learn that it was written in the blood of brave men.

IN MEMORIAM.

KINNEY. — In loving memory of Henry Kinney, who departed this life, June 11th, 1925.

June brings and memories
Of a loved one gone to rest;
And those who think of him to-day
Are those who loved him best.

Friends may think we have forgotten,
When at times they see us smile,
But they little know the sorrow
That smile hides all the while.

Inserted by Wife, Daughter and Alex.

OBITUARY.

DR. C. D. McCULLOCH

The death occurred in Belleville hospital on Saturday, June 4, of Dr. C. D. McCulloch, whose wife was formerly Myra Moore, daughter of Harry Moore of Peterborough.

Born at Enfield, Ontario, June 13, 1886, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alexander McCulloch, destiny had marked him for the medical profession. The McCullochs have given freely of their sons to medicine and the ministry of the former Methodist Church.

Graduated from the University of Toronto and having taken post-graduate work in Chicago, Dr. McCulloch first practised medicine in Erin, Ont., afterwards at Chapleau, Ont., and finally settled in Wellington where his work reached its zenith. Skilled as a surgeon, Dr. McCulloch made a distinct impress upon Prince Edward County by the extremely grave cases with which he dealt with eminent success. Happily for the community his work in this particular field did not detract from his services as a general practitioner. He also developed the traits of the family physician. For this latter work nature and nurture equipped him well. He had a kindly heart. His intense sympathy, rare in one so young, was one of the outstanding qualities of the man.

Dr. McCulloch loved his home. Quiet and retiring, he lived a life the beauty and worth of which was fully known only to his most intimate friends.

He had the early faith of the fervent religion of his forefathers in which he was cradled, and combined the skill of modern surgery with faith in the Great Physician.

Dr. McCulloch was a lifelong Methodist before becoming a United Churchman. A Liberal, his heart glowed with a wholesome Canadianism and loyalty to British institutions.

During his eight years in Wellington he poured out his life in service to all conditions of men, and finally laid it a sacrifice upon the altar of that service.

That the community appreciated was strikingly manifested in the common sorrow that marked the vast assemblage which gathered in and about the family residence to pay tribute at his funeral, to a public servant who gave so freely of his own life.

The Masonic Order, with the well-known beauty of the Craft, paid its tribute to a brother Mason and Shriner at the home as well as at Prospect Park Cemetery, Toronto, where amid the beauties of nature, the body of one who in life combined beauty and strength of character was laid to rest.

An unnumbered host of friends sympathize with three sisters, Mrs. (Rev.) Stolsbury, Mrs. H. Volker and Mrs. (Dr.) Carman Brown, bereft of their only brother, with Mrs. McCulloch, so sorely bereaved, and with the little daughters Beatrice and Ruth, all of whom amid the shadows of sorrow, rejoice in and revere the memory of one who, loving his home and kin, held not his own life dear unto himself, but spent it freely for others.

W. D. KETCHESON.

TORONTO, June 13. — William David Ketcheson, for the past few years a resident of Toronto, passed away at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. H. Polley, Lansdowne Ave., Friday morning, June 10. The late Mr. Ketcheson, a staunch Orangeman of splendid old United Empire Loyalist stock, lived for the greater part of his eighty years in Sidney Township, County of Hastings, where he was well known and highly esteemed by all, especially in and around Frankford and Belleville, where he was a successful farmer.

He enjoyed exceptionally good health up until the evening previous to his death. He followed out his usual custom of visiting the members of his family on Wednesday and Thursday and that evening while in the act of writing to his son in Frankford, he was seized with a stroke of apoplexy. He lived but a few hours thereafter, passing peacefully into rest on Friday morning, June 10.

Carrying out his expressed request, his body was taken to Frankford where the funeral service was held today under the Orange ritual.

Surviving him are his widow (Cynthia Scott), his two sons, D'Arcy R. Ketcheson, Frankford, and Maurice E., Peterboro; four daughters, Mrs. W. Branscombe, Toronto; Mrs. V. M. Parke, Hamilton; Mrs. R. J. Campbell, and Mrs. W. H. Polley, Toronto. Twelve grandchildren and one great-grandson. A brother, R. H. Ketcheson, and two sisters, Mrs. William Hazleton and Mrs. W. H. Gilbert, all of Belleville.

JACK SEENY.

The remains of little Jack Seeny, the victim of last Thursday's shooting accident at Ida, were committed to the dust on Saturday afternoon.

A short service was held at the home of his parents, and the cortege then proceeded to St. John's Anglican Church. Rev. Canon Allen, rector of St. John's, assisted by Rev. P. C. Howard, conducted the service in the church, which was filled with sympathizers and friends of the bereaved family.

The pall-bearers were Allan Winslow, W. Winslow, Borden Morton, Joseph Palmer, Foster Eggleston, and T. Breathwait, six playmates; six cousins, Bessie, Jennie and Lois Dawson, Muriel, Jack, and Harold Hootan, preceded the hearse, carrying the innumerable floral tributes.

Jack was seven years of age when he died. He is survived by his parents and three sisters, all of them younger than he.

The sympathy of the whole community has gone out to the stricken family, and also to the unfortunate cause of the tragedy, Jack Elliott, who has been prostrated with grief since the terrible outcome of his playful threat.

Included in the many floral tributes were wreaths from the family, a wreath from his grandparents, MCr. and Mrs. Teasdale Harkness and family, a wreath from Sharpe's School, a spray from Mrs. H. Dawson and Mrs. W. Wearing, a spray from Mrs. Gorgee Sisson, Mrs. T. Sisson, and Mrs. Bradburn, a spray from Mr. and Mrs. Herb. Sceney, a basket from Mr. and Mrs. W. Hootan, a spray from Mr. and Mrs. Scott, a spray from Miss McCulloch, teacher in Sharpe's School, a spray from Mrs. George Stewart, a basket from Mrs. Dave Curtis, and a spray from the Lindsay Creamery.

The bride was given away by her father, and wore a dainty gown of ivory georgette, with embroidered veil. She was attended by her sister, Miss Emma Kells and the brother of the groom, Mr. Will McIntosh, acted as best man. The ushers were Messrs. Arthur Smart and Jack Gimmell. Mr. Ronald Saddington played the wedding march.

A reception was held at the home of the brides parents following the ceremony, and later the young couple left on a motor trip. Upon their return they will reside at 37A Thornhill Avenue.

The bride's parents formerly resided in Millbrook, and they still have a number of relatives in the community.

They received many useful presents, including a tea set and tray from the Spinning Department of the Canadian Woollens and a carving set from the Bag Department of the Quaker Oats Company. They will reside in the city.

Hughes, and the choir sang the bride's favourite hymn, "Lead us, Heavenly Father, lead us," and Mr. Bruce Quinn presided at the organ. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore white crepe de chine with veil and orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet of pink Ophelia roses.

FOUR CONVICTS FAIL IN DASH FOR LIBERTY AT JOLIET PRISON

Were Condemned To Death For Killing Sheriff on May 5th, 1925.

THIRD ATTEMPT.

One Effects Getaway While Companion is Killed By Guards

JOLIET, Ills., June 14 (Associated Press) —Overpowering three jail guards and kidnapping Sheriff Albert E. Markgraf, four of the six convicts condemned to death for killing Sheriff Peter Klein, a deputy at the new Statesville Penitentiary, May 5, 1925, in their original break, were turned back in their third attempt yesterday by a shower of bullets from police and prison guards.

The convicts, armed with a rifle, a shotgun and a pistol taken from the prison arms room, never had an opportunity to use them.

Reaching the outer gate of the yard with the sheriff, a pistol pressed against his side, driving his own automobile, they were ambushed by guards hiding outside the wall, causing the death of one convict. Gregario Rizo, his life already forfeited, died after bullets fired from the very scaffold waiting to take his life and a window of the sheriff's residence fatally wounded him.

One Escapes.

As in each of the other two breaks, one man gained his freedom, this time Charles Schader, youngest of the group and at voting age, the slayer of three—his father, a policeman and Deputy Warden Klein.

Yesterday's break bore the earmarks of spontaniety.

Walter Staleski and Schader were being released from their cells for exercise in the "bull pen" when they seized a guard, from whom they took the keys to the cells housing Charles Duschowski and Roberto Torrez. Torrez started to go with the others but returned to his cell and sat down while his comrades in the other two desperate breaks, left him for their third.

Purloined Arms.

The slayers hurried to the jail office on the first floor and opened the lockers where the arms and ammunition are kept, taking a rifle, a shotgun and a pistol. Seizing the keys that opened the side door connecting the jail with the sheriff's residence, the men encountered Sheriff Albert E. Markgraf.

"Come on, Sheriff," Staleski said, "I never shot anyone and don't make me shoot you."

Dragging the Sheriff with them, the four men succeeded in crossing the yard to where Markgraf's automobile was parked. Staleski forced the Sheriff into the driver's seat with a pistol pressed against the Sheriff's side. Rizo and Duschowski climbed into the rear seat.

Police arrived just as the Sheriff was being forced into the automobile Fearing they might shoot the Sheriff as the convicts used him as a shield, they withheld their fire. The policemen ran to the front of the jail and brought the guards to the back gate. Together they waited in ambush outside the jail gate as it creaked open and Sheriff Markgraf, desperately stalling for time, drove his big sedan slowly through.

Ambushed By Police.

As the car cleared the stockade, a volley crashed. One bullet tore its way through the shiny back of the automobile and found its mark between Staleski's shoulder blades. He slumped just as a hail of bullets hit the car, the guards firing from either side, but careful to miss the Sheriff.

After the second crash of gunfire Duschowski, Schader and Rizzo lifted their hands in surrender and the Sheriff signalled to the guards to cease firing. He reached into the back seat and collared Schader and Rizzo. Other hands snatched Staleski and Duschowski from the machine and the four were hurried back into the stockade but not before 200 men tried to seize them and lynch them. In the excitement Schader and Rizzo escaped again. Rizzo tried to fight his way out in a final desperate bid for liberty, but Jailer Leo Land, firing from a window in the Sheriff's home, sent a pistol bullet through Rizzo's head.

Schader had better luck and lost himself in the crowd.

GERMANY MAY WARN SOVIET

Communistic Propaganda in Foreign Countries Strengthens Hands of Enemies.

SAYS STRESSEMANN.

GENEVA, Switzerland, June 14.—(Canadian Press). — German newspaper correspondents, after interviewing Foreign Minister Stressemann today, telegraphed Berlin that Germany had decided to warn Soviet Russia that it was advisable to bring to an end Communistic propaganda in other countries. The German Foreign Minister was quoted as saying it was a "great pity" that Soviet Russia did unwise things which strengthened the hands of her enemies. He believed, however, that responsible persons in other countries did not wish to break with Russia, though "hot heads" in some of them were demanding extreme measures.

British Aviators Will Start To-Day

CRANWELL, Lincolnshire, England, June 14 (Associated Press). — The big bombing plane in which the British flight lieutenants, C R. Carr and P. H. MacWorth, hope to smash the long distance records set up by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Clarence D. Chamberlin, arrived her yesterday and will hop off for India at 8 o'clock this morning, if the weather is favourable.

The machine, a Hawker-Horsley Rolls-Royce, it is hoped, will make a flight of 5,000 miles. Although no definite destination in India has been set, the fliers will head first for Karachi, 4,100 miles, which would break the present record of 3,905 miles accredited to Chamberlin, but with favourable conditions the airmen will attempt to fly to Calcutta, which is about 5,000 miles from Cranwell.

Lieut. Carr is not new to a long distance flight to India, having started a flight to Karachi last month, but having been forced down in the Persian Gulf.

The British machine was tried out on Sunday, and was found to be in excellent order, and capable of 135 miles an hour.

THREE LIVES LOST IN MID-ATLANTIC

Two Sailors Drowned in Attempt to Rescue Woman From Waters.

LONDON, June 14. — (Associated Press).—The tragic story of the loss of three lives at sea from the steamship California, bound from New York, was told yesterday to the correspondent of the Westminster Gazette by passengers arriving at Glasgow.

The steamer was 600 miles from Ireland on Saturday when the cry of "man overboard" was raised. It was a woman. Life-belts were thrown into the water and a lifeboat with an officer and five sailors was launched, but it immediately shipped a heavy sea. Two sailors, Gilchrist and McIsaac, were carried away by the heavy swell, and neither the woman nor the men were seen again.

The woman was Mrs. Louise Traynor, whose home was in the United States. She was on her way to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rodgers, who reside at Kirkintilloch, Dumbartonshire A passenger, Mrs. Harrison, returning from New Jersey to Paisley, said she saw Mrs. Traynor standing on the top of the ship's rail with her hand over her head. She suddenly turned and lurched into the water.

Cabin companions of Mrs. Traynor said she had been bright and cheery the first three days of the voyage, and talked expectantly of seeing her father, 80 years of age, but was quiet and reserved.

Jumped Overboard.

The Press Association prints a Glasgow despatch giving what is termed an official account of Mrs. Traynor's death. At 9.30 Saturday morning an alarm was given by two women passengers to sailors working on the starboard side aft that a woman passenger had jumped overboard. Lifebuoys were immediately thrown and a lifeboat was launched. A heavy sea struck the forward end of the boat and practically swamped it. Two of the crew, Seamen Gilchrist and McIsaac, were seen for a moment holding onto a life-line, but lost their grip and disappeared. No trace of them or the passenger was found. The lifeboat picked up the first buoy thrown and remained searching in the vicinity. The ship cruised around until 2 o'clock in the afternoon but without result.

COMMISSION IS TOLD OF FUNDS

Political Contributions of Consolidated Distilleries Totalled $380,608.

IN THREE YEARS.

MONTREAL, June 14 (Canadian Press). — Political contributions of Consolidated Distilleries Limited of Montreal from July, 1923, to the close of 1926 totalled $380,608.59. They were paid to both parties and deducted as part expenses of business for the purpose of the income tax. Amounts paid are charged under various headings in the books of the company.

This information was given the Royal Customs Commission today by James Lawrence, Secretary-Treasurer of Consolidated Distilleries. He also revealed the fact that 'substantial" payments had been made to W. M. Egan, a Windsor, Ontario, lawyer, by his firm.

Claims against Consolidated Distilleries for sales tax on export liquor shipped from Corbyville, Ontario, amount to $894,000. In addition to this the Government claims $86,000 on export shipments from Wiser's Distillery at Prescott which is a subsidiary of Consolidated Distilleries. This makes a total claim of $980,000.

The right of the government to collect sales tax on these shipments is contested by the distillers.

Dealing with shipments of duty paid liquor, a large quantity of which moves from Corbyville to Detroit via Border cities. Certain shipments were sent to W. B. Jones of Detroit, said Mr. Lawrence. Orders came in from Detroit and an intermediary acting for Mr. Jones handled the transaction.

"Who is Mr. Jones' intermediary?" asked Mr. Rowell.

"J. F. Munro of Belleville," replied the witness. Mr. Lawrence said that a number of these shipments were made direct from Belleville.

Mr. Munro, he thought, was in receipts of a commission from the distillery.

Dalton Carlisle, accountant of Wiser's Distillery, was examined by Mr. Rowell in regard to liquor shipments from Prescott. All United States shipments of duty paid liquor went to Denoit's Dock at La Salle, Ont. Names of the boats which were to carry the liquor across the Detroit River were not inserted in the export entries sent with the shipments.

"Do you get the B-13's back?" asked Mr. Rowell.

"About 75 per cent," replied the witness.

"Do you ship from Wiser's to St Pierre?" asked Mr. Rowell.

"Yes."

Mr. Carlisle said that he signed documents covering shipments to St. Pierre. The money came from St Pierre to pay for shipments.

"Who do you ship to at St. Pierre?" asked Mr. Rowell.

"The American House," replied the witness. Liquor was also shipped to Havana, Cuba, and Nassau.

Ernest L. Phillips, manager of the Wiser Distillery informed the Commission that shipments went to agents at St. Pierre, who were paid a commission on the sales of the Wiser product. Landing certificates, duly signed and vised by the Governor of St. Pierre were received for these shipments.

Byng Has His Feet in the Mud, He Declares And Will Keep Them There; Refuses to Pay Tax

LONDON, June 14 (United Press).—Lord Byng's flat refusal to pay the heavy fees officially demanded for the formal registration of his elevation from the rank of Baron to that of a Viscount is likely to result in a change in the ancient system.

Lord Byng has influential friends in politics acting in his behalf. He says: "I have got my feet in the mud and I am going to keep them there. I see no reason why I, either as a soldier, as a plenipotentiary, as a governor, or as anything else you like to call me should be forced to pay for an honor which politicians get for nothing."

Lord Oxford and Asquith, Lord Balfour, Lord Birkenhead, Lord Oliver, Lord Arnold, and Lord Lowther are politicians who have had fees remitted under similar circumstances, and Earl Haig, Viscount Jellicoe, Earl Beatty and Viscount Allenby were not asked to pay.

Innermost Secrets of City's Mystic Order Exposed in Story of Initiation Ceremony

Six candidates were initiated into one of the mystic orders of the city last night. The ceremony was very simply. Each aspirant was laid over a form and a stick was applied three times, not too heavily, to his person. Then he was seized and hoisted six times in the air. At the sixth time of asking, the hands of the members which had hitherto supported him from falling to the floor, were suddenly withdrawn and the initiate fell with a grunt and a gasp, which proclaimed to the world that he had been duly admitted to the Right Noble and Worshipful Company of Examiner Newsboys.

JURY DECIDES THAT SKELETON IS REMAINS OF HENRY HUGHES

Rubbers, Knife and Purse Clasp All Aid in the Identification.

INQUEST HELD.

Death Resulted From Being Lost in the Woods and Swamp.

It was the verdict of the coroner's jury that the bones bound on Lot 24 of the Eighth Concession of Dummer, were those of the late Henry Hughes, and the deceased came to his death through consequences arising from being lost in the woods.

The inquest was held this morning in Warsaw by Coroner Dr. J. C. Smith, of Lakefield and seven witnesses were called. Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton, K.C., appeared for the Crown.

On Friday afternoon Alexander Emery and William Saltren, of the township of Dummer, were peeling pulpwood in the woods on the eighth concession of Dummer. Late in the afternoon they changed the place where they had been working and while walking along a swamp trail Mr. Emery noticed a pair or rubbers about a hundred feet ahead of him. When he arrived where the rubbers were he saw bones.

Most of the bones were under water and Constable Henry Clements of Warsaw was notified. The next day Constable Clements made a thorough search in about two feet of water for the skeleton. He found a jackknife, the jaw of a purse, parts of a khaki shirt and trousers, two rubbers with red soles, human hair and part of the skeleton of a human body, but no money. It was very difficult to make a thorough search as part of the remains were under the water.

The place where the remains were found was two miles directly north of the deceased's home, and the searching parties who scoured the woods for days during September, 1924, never searched as far north as this place.

Alexander Emery.

The first witness called by Crown Attorney Hatton was Alexander Emery. Mr. Emery had known the deceased for many years and last time he had seen him was about two weeks before his disappearance. He had spent many days thoroughly searching the country, but witness said no search was ever made where he found the skeleton.

Mr. Emery then described finding the skeleton in the swamp last Friday afternoon. When he noticed the bones he said to William Saltren, who was accompanying him: "A deer must have died here" and Saltren replied, "A deer doesn't wear rubbers." With that witness said, "It is Henry Hughes."

One rubber was then produced, which appeared to be in a fair state of preservation, the jackknife was rusty and the clothes on being examined were found to be khaki in colour.

Mr. Emery was not able to identify any of the exhibits as those belonging to Henry Hughes.

William Saltren was not able to identify any of the exhibits as those belonging to Henry Hughes, but as far as he knew no other person had been lost in the swamp.

Identifies Knife.

Floyd Emery, the little boy, who used to go with Mr. Hughes for the cows, identified the knife. He said he had often seen Mr. Hughes whittling with a knife just like the one on exhibit.

Hugh Little, son in law of the deceased, said Mr. Hughes was in the habit of wearing rubbers in summer time and early fall, but he could not identify those exhibited as belonging to the deceased.

Mrs. Hugh Little.

Mrs. Little identified the jaws of the purse exhibited as being similar to the one her father carried. WiWtness said that he had good teeth and he had one missing on the left side of the lower jay. The exhibit produced had a tooth missing on the right side but witness thought the teeth rather looked like those of her late father.

Mrs. Hughes, widow of the late Henry Hughes, was the last witness called. She said her husband was 74 years old, and had never suffered from loss of memory. She told of the clothes her husband wore when last seen, and thus was able to identify the shirt and trousers but said: "that rubber does not look like his." Witness said he always carried a pocket knife and a purse resembling the one exhibited. His hair was white in front and light brown at the back, which appeared to be the color of the hair exhibited.. Mrs. Hughes said her husband had a tooth out on the left side of his lower jaw, and he was five feet six inches in height.

Constable Clemens, the last witness, told of getting the bones out of the water and mud, in which he made a thorough search. The bones were rather scattered and those not under water had been partially gnawed. The rubbers were size 7 and the sock was home knit, which Mrs. Hughes, who was later recalled, thought was the same as those she knit.

Dr. Smith told the jury that the bones resembled those of a man about five feet six inches, and weighing about 140 lbs. He told the jurors that many people often make the mistake when looking at a person with teeth out, or other ailments, they relate the side to that of their own body when in reality it is the opposite side.

The jury consisted of:

Fred Morgan, Joseph Miles, Hilliard Darling, Charles Calder, O. B. McIlvena, Fred A. Sharp, E. Hendren, George Lonsberry, Thomas Clements, and H. B. Hetherington, foreman.

Eleven Sentenced To Death By Soviet

LONDON, June 14.—(Canadian Press.)—A Reuter's dispatch from Odessa says that eleven persons charged with espionage in behalf of Rumania have been sentenced to death by the Soviet authorities. Three others were sentenced to ten years' imprisonment while two were acquitted.

Besides the charges of espionage brought against them, the despatch adds, they were accused of having helped fugitives from the Soviet authorities to escape across the Rumanian border and asserts that the majority pleaded guilty to the charges against them.

TASCHEREAU IS TORONTO GUEST

Union of Quebec Municipalities Meets Aboard Steamer on Lake.

FREEDOM OF CITY.

TORONTO, June 14. — (Canadian Press).—Toronto's traditional "freedom of the city" was conferred to-day on Hon. L. A. Taschereau, Premier of Quebec, T. D. Buchard, Mayor of St. Hyacinthe, Que., and other delegates of the Union of Municipalities of the Province of Quebec when they arrived here aboard the steamer Kingston on their convention trip around Lake Ontario. Premier Howard Ferguson accompanied the party on a tour of the city.

In extending his welcome, Mayor Foster expressed the hope that the visits of the people of Quebec would become so frequent that the people of Ontario would know the beauties of the French tongue "as well as our French brothers know the English tongue."

W. P. MacLaugan, of Westmount, Que., responding for the visitors, referred to the occasion as unique and epoch-making. It was the first time that the Union of Municipalities of Quebec had held a convention meeting in the harbor of the capital of this sister province. Such occasions, he said, tended to develop the intimate interest and correct understanding which should exist between the peoples of two such great provinces.

MANY HEADLIGHTS ARE BEING TESTED

Kiwanis Safety Committee Is Busy From 8 to 10 at Market.

The testing and adjusting of headlights on motor cars will be continued every evening this week under the auspices of the Safety Committee of the Kiwanis Club. The hours are from 8 to 10 p.m. and the place is the Market Square.

Last night Kiwanians Tom Mark and Harry Huffman were on duty and two expert mechanics, one from the Brewer Motor Sales and the other from Selkirk and Elliott's, did the adjusting. There was a continual line of cars during the two hours of the tests.

That such a test is serving a useful purpose was demonstrated last night by the fact that only two cars had headlights approved without any adjustment being made. Those cars were owned by T. Brightman and H S. Huffman.

Tonight Kiwanian Tom Mark will be in charge again and be will be assisted by Kiwanians Chas, Lacheur and Doug. Grant. Mechanics are being kindly furnished from the Howson Garage, Water Street, and Magee's Garage, 211 Hunter Street. Motorists generally should take advantage of this opportunity to have their headlights properly adjusted.

The National Association of Travellers' Aid Society helped 1,300,000 persons last year and a million dollars was spent in the task, according to the annual report.

TRUCK KNOCKS DOWN CYCLIST

Bell Telephone Employee Suffers Injuries To Leg in Mishap.

WHEEL BROKEN.

Failing to see a truck belonging to W. J. Oke going west on Hunter Street this afternoon, Mr. Pierce, an employee of the Bell Telpehone Company, was struck down when he attempted to turn his bicycle into the drive adjoining the building, injuring his leg and foot badly, and smashing the back wheel of his bicycle beyond repair.

Pierce stated after the accident that he attached no blame to the driver of the truck, although he remarked that at the time he did not see the truck till it was on top of him, and then it was too late to swerve to one side to avoid the impact. First Aid was rendered to the injured man by fellow employees of the Bell Company, and he was taken to his home in an automobile. Pierce's wheel is a total wreck at the back, the forks being smashed right in to the spokes. The rim of the bicycle, being of steel, was not broken but was bent in about six different places.

"I thought my leg was broken for sure," remarked Mr. Pierce to the men that were so carefully bandaging up the wounds on his leg.

INVESTIGATION OF CUSTOMS AT MONTREAL NEARING CLOSE

Now Expected That Sittings Will Conclude Some Time This Evening.

QUEBEC CITY NEXT.

Probing of Distilleries is the Last Big Item on Agenda.

MONTREAL, Que., June 14.—Canadian Press. — Investigation of the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company of Montreal, the Consolidated Distilleries of Montreal and allied companies, opened before the Royal Customs Commission here yesterday afternoon.

This inquiry constitutes the last big item on the agenda for the Montreal sittings of the commission. It is now expected that the sittings will conclude this evening, and that those in Quebec will open on Thursday.

John Gibson Lawrence, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company, explained that this organization is the parent company for a number of others. It is the sole owner of the Consolidated Distillers of Montreal, and the two companies have their plants together at Corbyville, Ont near Belleville. The Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company as indicated by its name, manufactures non-potable spirits. The distillery is engaged in the manufacture of liquor for beverage purposes.

But, Mr. Lawrence explained, the activities of the organization extend far beyond the Corbyville plants. The Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company and the Consolidated Distillers, are joint owners of the Consolidated Distillers of Manitoba and of the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company also of that province; also the Consolidated Distilleries owns and operates the Wiser Distillery at Prescott.

Shipped from Corbyville.

Examined by Hon. N. W. Rowell, K. C., counsel for the Commission, Mr. Lawrence said that shipments of liquor for beverage purposes were made largely from the Corbyville plant. The quantities shipped from the two other plants were smaller than from the parent plant. He believed that there were still four bonds covering export shipments which remained uncancelled.

Three of the shipments covered by these bonds had been made through Vancouver, and the remaining bond had been issued in connection with the shipment of 12 drums of alcohol to St. Johns ,Newfoundland. This shipment is the one which according to the evidence before the commission, was tampered with en route and water substituted for the alcohol.

"The bonds outstanding would be in excess of $500,000?" Mr. Rowell asked Mr. Lawrence.

"I think so," was the reply.

This witness informed the commission that shipments of liquor were made to the Consolidated Exporters at Vancouver for export to John Douglas and Company, La Libertad, San Salvador. When the shipments were made the distillery took a guarantee of indemnity from the Vancouver forwarders in case anything went wrong with them.

"Why did you take this guarantee of indemnity?" asked Mr. Rowell.

"Because we did not know the the consignees," was the reply.

Mr. Lawrence said that he did not know anything of John Douglas and Company.

"Did you know whether or not they existed in fact?" asked counsel.

"No," replied the witness. He said that under the agreement with the Consolidated Exporters it was not necessary that his company should know that. The guarantee was taken partly to make sure that "none of the liquor backed up into Canada."

Question Officers.

The inquiry into the alcohol companies was preceded by a questioning of officers who administer the customs at Prescott and Belleville.

William C. Brown, collector of customs at Prescott, said that although there was an international ferry operating between Prescott and Ogdensburg, he had very little trouble with smuggling. Cars crossing from the United States into Canada were searched. A lady customs officer was stationed at this point to examine feminine passengers. There had not been any complaints of commercial smuggling in the past few years.

Liquor shipped from the Wiser distillery at Prescott was cleared through his office, Mr. Brown said, and he told of a large shipment which went to Vancouver for export via the Steamer "Malahat." The liquor was later seized by United States revenue men. n spite of this, however, he had received a landing certificate for it, he said. The case was now in the hands of the customs department.

Edgar A. MacPherson, excise officer stationed at Wiser's Distillery, dealt briefly with the export shipment of duty paid liquors. J. Aaron, of Detroit, was usually the consignee of these shipments, he said. Sometimes there were over one hundred export entries with each shipment, and none were returned to the Customs office at Prescott. He believed, however, that the distillery got back, but he did not think that they received enough of them to cover all the liquor shipped.

No Traffic at Belleville

Mr. Rowell then turned to the port of Belleville. Ernest A. Geen, collector of customs there, stated that there was very little international traffic by water into Belleville. He had no complaints of commercial smuggling. The greater part of the export business done through the

LUMBER BURNED BUT TOWN SAFE

Pembroke People Breathe Easier as Wind Veers To-day.

PEMBROKE, Ont., June 14.—(Canadian Press).—Fire destroyed about six million feet of high grade lumber in the yards of the Pembroke Lumber Co. on Saturday.

People are breathing easier, after hours of anxiety as the blaze at one time threatened to destroy the town, but a sudden veering of the wind when the flames were at their height carried the sparks over the Ottawa River. A pall of smoke overhung the town and intense heat was felt several blocks from the scene of the fire. The loss was estimated at $250,000, covered by insurance, and the cause ascribed to a bathing party of boys who had used the lumber pile for dressing and smoking.

KIDNAPPER PUT ON PROBATION

Mrs. LePage Under Supervision of Montreal Court.

WILL LEAVE TORONTO.

TORONTO, June 14.—The drama surrounding the kidnapping of baby Lloyd Daley a month ago had an epilogue in women's police court yesterday when Magistrate Dr. Patterson remanded Mrs. Adrienne Le Page for sentence and placed her on probation for two years, under the supervision of the Montreal court.

Pleading guilty to a charge of abducting the baby from its carriage outside a downtown department store, Mrs. Le Page, through her counsel, declared that she wished to return to Montreal, her native city. Police told of having found the Daley baby in Mrs. Le Page's possession and of her having at first stated that it was hers.

Magistrate Patterson expressed approval of the proposal that the woman go to Montreal, and counsel promised that she could start to-day.

FARMER FINDS CATTLE DEAD

Goes to Ranch and Finds One Missing and Two Dead.

HASTINGS, June 14.—On Saturday, June 11, Norman Rusaw, a farmer living in Percy township, two miles from this village buried two young steers on his ranch near the Alnwick boundary.

Mr. Rusaw stated to The Examiner that he could not understand what caused their death. Less than two weeks ago, he "salted" the thirty head of stockers and they seemed quiet and contented. On Saturday morning he and his son, Martin, took a mare and foal and a flock of sheep to the ranch. Only to find twenty-seven young cattle. Two were lying dead and giving off a very offensive odour and the men buried them immediately.

They then searched the hundred acres over carefully but could not find the missing animal.

Mr. Rusaw said the absent steer was marked with red and white. The three animals would be valued at about seventy-five dollars.

Some scientists think petroleum is the result of purely chemical action on inorganic substances, others that it results from animal remains, and some think it originally was vegetable matter.

Mussolini Toils at Head of Harvesters On Farm He Sowed For Grain Competition

ROME, June 14 (A.P.)—"Where there's a will there's a way," thinks Premier Mussolini, who does not let a little thing like the task of single-handedly running the affairs of the Italian nation stand in the way of his working wholeheartedly to get what he wants.

Having entered his little farm at Carpegna, near Forli, in the wheat raising competition promoted by the Minister of National Economy and having plowed and sowed it himself, the Duce paid a surprise visit to Carpegna yesterday to supervise personally the beginning of the harvest.

For several hours in his joint capacity of farm owner and national commander of the "Battle of Grain," he worked at the head of farm laborers gathering splendid specimens of "arditor" and "mentana" wheat which mature several weeks earlier than the ordinary specimens of wheat.

The group of expert inspectors appointed to tour the farms entered for cash prizes in the competition, admiringly watched the Premier's skill and listened to his technical speech, in which he told of the superior merits of the "precocious" wheat, illustrating his argument by specimens from a special test field on his property. About 140 varieties of grains from all parts of Italy were planted for experimental purposes on this field.

An interesting aspect of the Premier's visit to his farm is the light it throws on measures which were taken for his safety, his absence from Rome being unknown until he was seen at Carpegna. In the past ,all the Premier's movements were known in advance.

OUTPOST HOSPITAL OPENED AT APSLEY

Rain Failed To Halt Big Fete Day—Good Attendance.

APSLEY, June 14.— Apsley's big day, Friday the tenth of June, the occasion of the formal opening of the Red Cross Outpost Hospital, despite most unfavorable weather conditions, was a huge success in every way, the objective of $500 for the campaign set by the committee being exceeded by more than $100. The total amount received from all sources was a little over $600. Undaunted by a terrific thunder storm which broke over the district at 11.30 a.m., people from the surrounding country flocked into the village and the parish hall, where dinner was served, was a busy spot for two hours. In the meantime visitors from more distant points began to arrive, Peterborough, Lakefield, Warsaw and other places being represented. After dinner, part of St. John's, Peterborough S. S. orchestra, consisting of Mrs. Evans, Mrs. Hoyland and Miss Turner, charmed the crowd with musical selections, after which the parade of decorated vehicles of all kinds took place. The judges were Colonel R. Birdsall and Mr. G. A. Gillespie, the following being the awards :Best decorated car, first, Gordon Earnshaw; second, Herbert Tucker; best lady driver of car, Cecil Spence; buggy, Owen James; baby carriage, Mrs. S. Windover, decorated by Helen Lean; doll's carriage, Helen Lean; child's express wagon, Clarence James.

An adjournment was then made to the hospital for the opening ceremony, which in the absence of Dr. Embury, M.P., was performed by Mr. F. D. Kerr, K.C., of Peterborough, on the invitation of the president of the committee, Rev. C. A. G. Spence, who acted as chairman for the occasion. Duncan Brown, Reeve of Burleigh and Anstruther, in a few well-chosen words, welcomed the visitors, bestowing upon them the freedom of the village, and then the secretary, Rev. J. W. Ogden, was called upon to read messages of congratulation and regrets at unavoidable absence which had been received from the following: His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor, Hon. G. S. Henry, the Minister of Highways, Hon. W. Finlayson, Minister of Lands and Forests, Messrs. E. A. Peck, M.P., W. Anderson, M.P.P., Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., Magistrate O. A. Langley, Revs. Dr. Boyle of Cobourg, Rev. Dr. Blagrave, J. L. Hughes, and others. Congratulatory addresses were also delivered by Mr. G. A. Gillespie, Mr. Killaly, and Mr. McNabb. After a prayer had been said by Rev. C. A. G. Spence, and the doxology sung, Mr. F. D. Kerr, in a most eloquent speech, in which, amongst other things, he referred to the splendid contribution made by Apsley in the Great War as evidenced by the war memorial, declared the hospital duly opened, the ceremony terminated with the benediction pronounced by Rev. J. W. Ogden. The rest of the afternoon was taken up with an exhibition of skill with the lasso by Shorty Campbell, Canada's rambling cowboy, and a softball game between Coe Hill and Apsley, which resulted, after an exciting contest, in a victory for Coe Hill by two runs, the score being Coe Hill 34, Apsley 32.

After supper the attraction of the evening was the production by the Lakefield Cheerios of the musical comedy, "Oh, For Pity's Sake." The hall was packed to overflowing, and many had to witness the production from the street, the proceeds taken at the door amounting to the handsome sum of $88.00. Handicapped by the smallness of the stage, the Cheerios nevertheless presented the play in a masterly manner, and the audience was most demonstrative in their approval ,interest being keyed to the highest pitch from the beginning of the first act to the final drop of the curtain at eleven o'clock.

After a display of fireworks, the hall was prepared for dancing, which lasted until two o'clock, and then ended what will long be remembered as Apsley's big day, and the tired but happy workers, who had laboured so faithfully and hard to make the event the success it was sought their well earned rest. The heartfelt thanks of the committee are due to the St. John's orchestra and the Lakefield Cheerios who gave their services gratuitiously, to the visitors from Peterborough and Lakefield and other places who contributed generously to the fund, and to all who by their presence and providing of eatables, and by thier labour, made the day so successful. The village presented a feature spectacle, being liberally decorated with flags and streamers.

OLD MASTERS

Beware the deadly sitting habit,
Or, if you sit, be like the rabbit,
Who keepeth ever on the jump
By springs concealed beneath his rump.

Man was not made to sit a-trance
And press, and press, and press his pants;
But rather, with an open mind,
To circulate among his kind.

And so, my son, avoid the snare
Which lurks within the cushioned chair;
To run or rise, if hath been found,
Both feet must be upon the ground.
—Theodore F. MacManus: Cave Sedem (Beware of Sitting).

BELIEVES COULD REACH AGREEMENT

Polish Foreign Minister Says Would Make Satisfaction to Soviet.

GENEVA, June 14 (Associated Press). — Foreign Minister Zaleski of Poland, in an interview with correspondents here yesterday, said that he thought Poland could easily reach a satisfactory agreement with Russia concerning the assassination of Peter Voikoff, Soviet envoy in Warsaw.

The Foreign Minister gave an impression that the young assassin would not be executed, but would be imprisoned, when he said that only on rare occasions was judgment of death passed upon minors in Poland. He said that the assassin, Boris Kowarda, aged 19, was born in Vilna, the son of a Russian functionary, and that he had a right to express an option for Polish citizenship when he was 21, but not before.

M. Zaleski revealed that the powers had recently made new representations to Lithuania to resume diplomatic relations with Poland which still do not exist because of Lithuania's insistence ,that a state of war exists as a result of the holding of Vilna by Poland. He said that he hoped that this move would be successful, a there is no intercommunication between the two countries, even letters being prevented from passage.

After declaring that Polish relations with Germany were normal with satisfactory progress achieved in the negotiations of a commercial treaty, the Polish Foreign Minister concluded by expressing his conviction that the Powers would reach an accord concerning the supervision of the destruction of German forts near the Polish frontier.

NO TOURIST RUSH ON LIQUOR SHOPS

Only 500 Non-Resident Permits Issued at Windsor.

TORONTO, June 14.—According to the observations of Ontario's "strong man," there is not such a terrible rush of Uncle Sam's thirsty thousands to this province to wet their whistles.

D. B. Hanna, chairman of the Liquor Control Board, spent the week-end at Windsor and adjacent points, and he said that he had found conditions very good.

"I believe there were only 500 tourist permits sold at Windsor, so that the demand from Detroit, with its 1,800,000 people, has not been so very startling," he said.

Mr. Hanna's attention was called yesterday to the ruling of the Liquor Board official at London that a tourist, who wanted a permit, must show his motor car license or card. He could not be a tourist if he chanced, as this man did, to be travelling by train

"Of course such a thing is foolish," said Mr. Hanna, "and we will deal with that in our instructions to the vendors."

FIRE KILLS ONE; TWO INJURED

$125,000 Damage Done When Block Burns in Timmins.

TIMMINS, Ont., June 14.—(Canadian Press).—William Oke, 67, died of suffocation, two others were injured and property damage of upwards of $125,000 was caused when fire practically destroyed the Reed block. The block was one of the most important business and residential buildings in Timmins.

Oke, a clothing salesman, was found dead in his room in the building. Miss Mary McKeown, school teacher, sustained an injured thigh, broken arm and lacerated face when she fell to the sidewalk from a third storey window. W. L. Booth, merchant, suffered head and arm cuts while escaping from the building. The cause of the fire which started in the basement, has not yet been determined.

AGED LADY AND CHILD HURT IN AUTO WRECK.

Others received Minor Injuries when Car Ran into the Ditch.

NEWMARKET, June 14. — An accident that turned the motor car of Mrs. R. A. Sheehy into a ditch near Belhaven Sunday resulted in injuries to Miss J. E. Dwyer, aged 72, and little Annie Sheehy. Miss Dwyer was removed to the Toronto general hospital with serious scalp wounds. Annie Sheehy was admitted to the hospital for Sick Children, suffering from shock and possibly internal injuries. Annie is just three years old.

Both patients were reported yesterday as having passed a comfortable night and to be doing as well as could be expected. Mrs. Sheehy, of 58 Oakwood avenue was driving a sedan car containing Mrs. B. M. Ryan of Rose Park drive, her daughter, June, Michael Sheehy, aged 5, and several other children.

The accident occurred at a bad turn in the road, where Mrs. Sheehy lost control of the car. There was gravel on the road and she was driving the car more heavily loade than usual. The car skidded and turned completely over into the ditch. All the occupants were badly shaken up.

There is one ordinary business method that is illegal to send on a post card. It is demand for payment of a debt, threatening legal proceedings if not paid.

The distinguished visitor will go to Toronto, but it is not known whether they will visit the Ontario Capital before or after visiting the West. They will see the Prairie Provinces when the wheat fields are at their best.

Both will go as far west as Banff, where they will part company, the Prince probably proceeding to his ranch at High River, and the Prime Minister returning east to embark on the Empress of Scotland on August 17 for England.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR GOOD CROPS

Warm Showers Give Rapid Growth to Grain and Hay Crops.

BURNBRAE, June 14.—Fine warm showers, with a week of good growing weather, have made a decided improvement in the crop prospects. Grain has shot up rapidly and the later sown crop is gaining on the earlier seeding. Pasture has seldom been better and hay, which promised to be rather light on low land is making rapid strides. The cutting of the hay crop will be about two weeks later than usual due to cold weather in May.

The milk flow is high at the cheese factories and although some local factories have less patrons than in 1926 the total milk is about as high. Mr. Murray, owner of Prince of Wales factory, reports a high average per herd with about as much milk from seventeen patrons as there was last year from over twenty. Several are sending around 700 to 800 pounds daily. This naturally means some work for the farmer and his wife and boys and girls who do the stripping.

While most local farmers are being held up in preparing their corn ground, by wet weather, Percy Oddie has a field of early sown corn up and growing fine. A few who sowed corn two weeks ago in low ground find that the seed is rotting. Only a small number have their corn crop in the ground as yet. Some increase is noted in ground devoted to root crop for this season.

The hog and cheese prices are both a little weaker and farmers feel a little gloomy, but it is hoped that these prices will right themselves before the summer is over.

APPLES TO BRITAIN.

RICHMOND, Va., June 14.—Two shiploads of Virginia apples comprising nearly 12,500 barrels recently put out from Hampton Roads for England . With an increase of more than 2,000,000 barrels over last year's crop, Virginia's apple production ranks third largest in the United States, only New York and Washington exceeding this state.

An Ex-Buck Private Goes Back to France

TUNICS WERE OUT AT THE ELBOWS, ALRIGHT, AFTER THE SOMME

Dear Mac:

Do you remember on the march to the Somme in the fall of 1916 how the officers used to say, "Today, we are to have an easy march. We are to be billetted tonight at 'B' farm, four kilometres the other side the town of 'A,' which is exactly twelve kilometres from here?" A map might be produced to show that this statement was correct, but the map had to be read with a good deal of caution. The distances which had just been given were as the crow flies, not as any infantryman ever walked. No roads led in that direction, or anything like it. Even at the best, the distance through the town was never taken into consideration in the calculation. A man who was careful and accurate at figures would gather from the officer's remarks that sixteen kilometres would cover the travel for the day, but he would probably be easier in his mind if he were not able to count at all. He would get there just as soon as his comrades and would need no second telling when the order came to "fall out."

However, that march was interesting. We had been stuck so long in trenches that a sight of the open country, without shells and ruins, was like a new life. France was at her best. Flowers bloomed everywhere. There were frequent rests, that we might arrive on the Somme in perfect condition for the serious business that lay ahead of us. The British attack had pushed within 500 yards of Thiepval when we arrived. On Sunday (remember the Sundays at the front?), September 3, the whole front pushed forward, and we supported the Australians at Mouquet Farm. We, if you remember names, were in a position at Tom's Cut.

That was our debut on the Somme. We went in singing:

"My tunic is out at the elbows,
My trousers are out at the knee,
My puttees are ragged and frazzled,
But the Q. M. says nothing for me."

It was worse than that—much worse—when we scraped the last mud of the Somme off our clothes.

The 2nd Battalion drove home the first Canadian attack on the Somme. Relieving the 4th on the afternoon of September 9th, the Iron Seconds went over the top three hours later south-east of the Windmill and captured the position, with 138 prisoners. Two officers were killed, and nine wounded (three subsequently died), and the casualties in other ranks numbered 259. It was a clean-cut affair, fully successful, and gained a position that was to be important in the following days.

THERE'S A DESOLATION OF MINE CRATERS AND SHELL HOLES STILL IN MANY OF THE VALLEYS OF THE SOMME AREA.

As I wandered over the old battlefield I recalled those stirring days—every one with its hard battle or sharp skirmish. There was the daylight attack on the German O.P., made by three companies under Major Vanderwater, when the Hun machine gunners worked their guns until we had them surrounded and most of them bayonetted. And the counter-attacks! It seemed at some times as if the whole Central Powers' armies were coming over, didn't it?

But I'm getting ahead of my story. My last letter told you about Poizieres, and though I would like to jump right over to September 15 and Courcellette, I must tell about the country in between and on the flanks, country well enough known to us.

Strategists, those "scientific" soldiers, whose existence is more obvious after a war than during its progress, tell us that it is a mistake to speak and write of the Battle of the Somme. They point out that this was not a battle, but a series of battles, any one of which had a greater magnitude than the battles that figure so prominently in our history books, and about which Agnes MacPhail worries so much. Moreover, they assert, and rightly, that the conflict extended far beyond the Valley of the Somme. Well, we won't argue the point. I know darn well it wasn't all one battle, for I recall half a dozen separate ones myself, including the battle in the estaminet back at B. . . .

But to get back to the Ancre.

In point of size, the Ancre is not a river to make military commanders think of engineers and elaborate pontoon bridges. It is so narrow that, in parts, a man may take it in his stride. The problem of the Ancre resides in the fact that the ground rises sharply from either bank, and the valley is one long, straggling marsh, half a mile in width at some places.

Part of this marshy ground was behind our lines when the Somme battle opened, but troops approaching our trenches had to concentrate themselves at the few points at which the marshes could be crossed, and the enemy, commanding the valley from the heights of Thiepval, did murderous work among them with his guns. To the south of Beaumont Hamel, the line actually crossed the marshes and such was the enemy position that at St. Pierre Divion he could rake this quagmire from three sides. There was a touch of grim humour in the fact that the Royal Naval Division won fame in this sector.

THE NAVAL BRIGADE FITTED IN FINE WITH THE SOMME'S DAMPNESS

Looking upon the simple but noble memorial to that division, by the roadside at Beaucourt, with its background of young trees and its surrounding border of bright monbrecia, it is difficult to visualize the inferno which this valley could be to those who struggled through the marshes in the teeming rain on a pitch black night, while the plight of the wounded will hardly bear recalling.

When, if ever, the authorities award those bars to war medals which have always been the right of British soldiers, there should assuredly be one bearing the sinister name of The Ancre.

In the old days, one went up the Ancre Valley from Aveluy, and though a more interesting impression of the battle can be gained by coming down from the high ground about Beaumont Hamel, sentimental impulse moves one to make the journey from the old starting point, for thus it is easier to recognize, if they still exist, old landmarks and "hot corners."

Thus, one looks, but in vain, for some remnant of the old saw-mills by the railway at Aveluy, where, during "rest periods" battle-tired battalions whiled away the time making duckboards for the trenches, while the shells screamed their way over the valley in an effort to find one or other of the many dumps about the railway. But the military sidings have gone, grass grows where once thousands of men lived and worked, and one's search fails, just as it failed when one looked, a little way back, for a trace of the famous Bruce Huts, near the cross roads that lead to Albert.

A fine, new concrete bridge crosses the marshes and the railway at Aveluy, and the trees are green and thriving again in Aveluy Wood, which though it played no great part in the offensive in 1916, was the scene of many bloody struggles after the enemy returned in 1918.

Authuille sleeps peacefully on the gentle rising ground, as though war were a stranger to it. But it is a new Authuille, of bright red brick like a new garden suburb. It is useless here to ask for Campbell Avenue or Black Horse Road; those names belong to a past age when another race occupied this valley.

All we can do is alles around and try to picture them—aided by the vin ruddy that is dispensed at the corner of the rue St. Pierre. And there I leave you.

PAUL ADAMS.

MISSION CIRCLE HOLDS BANQUET

Mothers and Daughters Are Guests, While Fathers Wait on Tables.

WOOLER, June 14.—On Friday evening, June 10, the Sunday School rooms of the United Church were made very attractive by the long tables, so profusely decorated with cut flowers, and palatable dishes, such as salads, fruit jellies, cold ham, rolls, jams, cakes, coffee and maple ice cream, so thoughtfully arranged by the members of the Mission Circle, to the Mother and Daughter banquet, the Fathers being the waiters. The President, Miss Margaret Teal, in her opening remarks, emphasized the fact, that this banquet was not only to create bonds of union, but the organization has one aim.—Watchfulness, Piety and Significance of Self-Sacrifice.

Miss Teal asked Miss Ethel Gunter to propose a toast to Our King, and God Save the King was sung in response to this toast. Toast to Our Country, Miss Teal. On July 1st we remember the sixtieth anniversary, a time to reflect. Had it not been for the Fathers of Confederation, in 1867 this Canada of ours might have gone her own way, cut loose, as it were. In response to this toast, O Canada was sung very heartily.

Toast, Church; proposed by Gladys Vosburg. A desire to worship, God has made Himself known by the ministry of the Saviour. From reformation to reformation, revival to revival, we have the great church that now is.

Response, Rev. H. B. Neal; after expressing his appreciation of being a guest and pastor, and the church being the strongest and oldest institution in the world. We read in the 72nd Psalm: "He shall have dominion also from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth.

Mrs. Sweetman of Brighton brought greetings from the Women's Missionary Society through Mrs. Daley, Port Hope, President of the Cobourg Presbyterial; Mrs. McGillivray, President of the Dominion Board; Mrs. McKinna, Perth, leader of the young women's work.

A toast was proposed to the Mothers by Myrtella Mutton: Who is dearer to us than our Mothers for their untiring efforts, and we owe our success to them.

Response, Mrs. Neal: We delight to have our girls engaged in this work, and Mothers bear the torch of life—physically and spiritually.

Reading, Miss Sweetman of Brighton: Italian dialect, "Red Rose."

Toast to the Girls, Mrs. W. W. McColl.

The young people's work is fourfold: We have in our spiritual life, length, width and height. Length—great aim in life. Width—Reaching out to help others. Height—Our relationship to God.

Response, Stella Nelson. Mothers and daughters exert great influence, individual problems to solves, and we must look upon our own responsibilities.

Instrumental Solo, Aletha Ellis.

Toast to our Fathers, Mary Teal: We do love and honor our Fathers, and when finances are low, we say, Charge it to Dad. All through sincerity to him.

Response, Edward Nelson: Congratulations to the girls for the honor bestowed on their mothers—God's gift to earth. And tonight, Fathers have a place to wait on the tables.

Vocal Solo, Frances Terrill, "Dreamland."

Toast, The Girls' Work Board, by Thelma Buell. The C.G.I.T. is fourfold throughout all Protestant denominations, 31,000 girls in training.

Response, Miss Campbell, a missionary from Central Africa. Miss Campbell very briefly told the customs of the natives, and how they are helped and guided through God by the Christian leader. The last song on the song sheet concluded the program.

Plans for Diamond Jubilee

Very extensive plans are being made for the success of the Diamond Jubilee celebration, to be held on July the second. A most enthusiastic meeting of six of the Public School teachers, who sponsor the event, was held last week, when the program was outlined. It is of more than passing interest to note that in addition to this annual celebration taking the form of the celebration of the Diamond Jubilee of Canada, it is the linking up with the Sunday Schools, basket picnic. It is planned that the event will be the lightest, happiest, noisiest, greatest day that has ever been staged in this section. There will be music, parades, baseball, sports, and races. The park is at its best—shady and spacious grounds, large playgrounds, tables without number, cold and hot water; and arrangements will be made to provide meals for a very large crowd.

INVESTIGATION OF CUSTOMS

port originated at the Corbyville Distillery. Landing certificates covering these shipments had been received "since it became necessary." Mr. Geen mentioned a shipment from Corbyville to John Douglas and Company, of La Libertad, by the "Malahat."

"Have you the bond in that case?" asked Mr. Rowell.

"No, the Department at Ottawa has it," replied Mr. Geen.

Mr. Rowell glanced over the papers connected with this shipment. "The duty on that shipment would be approximately $240,000 and the bond about twice that," he stated.

Apart from the distillery have you many sales tax arrears?" counsel asked the collector.

"No, very few," was the reply.

"The arrears of the distillery are very large," Mr. Rowell said.

Export Entries Shown

The large number of export entries which were required with shipments from Corbyville was brought out during the examination of George H. McArthur, who is in charge of the excise work at the Consolidated Distillery. At one time he had signed them all himself, he said, but he gave it up because they became too numerous. Sometimes there were 2,000 a day, he thought. "It takes an officer almost the day signing B13's," he asserted.

From F. C. McLennan, Customs officer stationed at Belleville, the Commission received the information that there were still a few shipments of liquor a week by water from that port.

"What becomes of the liquor after it is loaded on the boat?" he was asked. He did not know. "I presume it goes to its destination," he replied.

Before the Commission turned to the examination of the customs officer, A. E. Nash, Commission auditor, said that there were arrears in taxation owing by the Silver Springs Brewery of over $40,000. This brewery operates in Sherbrooke, Que. He understood that the brewery was not disputing this, and that the government had been given security of the amount.

Joseph Roy, secretary-treasurer of the brewery, explained the shipment of some of its product as "groceries" by stating that the company sold to licensed grocers who actually shipped the beer. Sales for cash at the brewery were limited to employees, he stated.

Major Nash stated that the import taxes due by the Silver Springs Brewery had been paid.

PUFF BALL INN NEARLY READY

New Summer Hotel at Trent River Well Filled Up.

MANY CONVENIENCES.

TRENT RIVER, June 14.—"Puff Ball Inn", which has been under way for a number of weeks will soon be a reality.

A. H. McKeel and son, Clarence, of Campbellford were given the contract to build this up-to-date resort for Mr. Dobscha of Cleveland, Ohio, on his property of some eight hundred acres known as McKenzie's Island and formerly owned by Richard McKelvie of Campbellford. The work was commenced along the first part of April, Mr. McKeel and son coming from Campbellford daily and leaving his cottage, "Waterside", at half past six by motor boat in order to begin work by seven a.m., returning the same evening about six forty-five to his cottage and on to Campbellford. Mr. and Mrs. McKeel have now moved to their summer home for the season which will be more convenient for his work.

The size of the main building of "Puff Ball Inn" is 26 feet by 75 feet, two storeys; kitchen 20 feet by 25 feet, two storeys. The roof is shingled with slab slate shingles, red and green in color, formed in a beautiful design. The verandah is 11 feet by 75 feet with projecting cornice of 28 inches. The verandah will be all screened in. The entire building is finished in the interior with Gyproc. There are two baths, three fire escapes, and a fine cellar under the kitchen.

The large range for cooking was purchased from James Jacobs, Campbellford, and weighs 1,200 pounds. The plumbing has been done by James Jacobs, who has made a very successful job. The entire building is lit from an electrical plant, the contract of which was given to the agent, Fred Macoun of Campbellford. The electrical wiring throughout was done by Mr. Pherson of Campbellford, which has all been installed satisfactorily. On Monday the electricity was turned on and the building illuminated.

There are two beautiful fire places of Milton pressed brick, one in the dining room and one in the sitting room. The dining room is 26 feet by 30 feet, clear floor which will give ample room for private dances for the guests. The floors throughout are of maple. There are twelve windows in the dining room. All open on hinges and are equipped with screens. The dining room is fitted to seat eighty guests at one time. The reading room is beautifully lighted up and equipped with easy chairs. The verandah is lighted with electricity.

The stairs are platform. There are six bedrooms downstairs and twenty-five bedrooms upstairs. Six of these are family rooms. The roof is of the cottage style. The carpenters have just finished the log cabin which will be occupied by Mr. Dobscha and family.

Mr. McKeel, during the winter months made forty-six beds of mission style and thirty-six wash stands, all of maple wood. All the beds are furnished with the best of springs and high grade mattresses. Mr. Dobscha is determined to make everything as convenient and comfortable as possible for his guests. He has secured one of the best cooks.

The teams are now working at the road from the main road to island. The road winds around through oak trees. There is a first-class drilled well which supplies good water. A large boat house, 20 feet by 40 feet and a large car barn have been erected. A large ice house has been filled with ice.

The men are working at the large wharf which is under way. Mr. Dobscha intends putting up several swings for his guests.

The building proper is surrounded with evergreen trees. There are beautiful grounds all around the resort. The water is supplied for bath and house purposes by the "Caron" plant. Mr. Dobscha is a man who means business and is not afraid to take off his coat and go to work. His two sons are working also. Mrs. Dobscha is expected to arrive from Cleveland this week, having disposed of their home in that city and the family will remain at "Puff Ball Inn" throughout the season, spending the winters in Cleveland. The exterior of the building is to be painted light cream with dark brown trimmings. Mr. Dobscha has purchased a motor boat from Mr. McKeel and is negotiating for a large number of skiffs. All work is under the supervision of Mr. H. McKeel and his son. Mr. Dobscha is receiving daily calls for rooms and accommodation for July 1st and everything is being rushed to completion for the grand opening.

WATER SPORTS AT THE JUBILEE.

Included in Peterborough's Diamond Jubilee celebration programme is an exhibition of water sports which will contain a number of novel features that should prove of great interest.

A celebration of sixty years of Canadian progress and advancement that did not pay some attention to the part Canadian-made watercraft has played in the development of this country would not be complete.

This city, the home of the Peterborough canoe, the craft known by that name the world over, does well to include in its jubilee celebration a programme of water sports, and this feature should be among the most interesting of the local demonstration.

With water sports, aeroplane flights, the biggest parade in the history of Peterborough, a huge pageant, a jubilee choir of 500 voices, nine bands, fireworks, special decorations, elaborate illuminations and many other features, Peterborough's celebration promises to set a new record for such occasions in this city.

THE SAFE-DRIVERS' CLUB.

Membership in the Safe Drivers' Club is rapidly increasing, and before the end of the week it is hoped that the majority of the city's car-owners will be enrolled in the organization.

It is natural to think that the average motorist would be glad to belong to such a club, and that he would take as much pride in being known as a careful driver as he does in the appearance of his car.

Membership in the organization entails the carrying out of a simple pledge that one will see that his brakes are in proper condition and his headlights focussed properly, and that he will use every care in the handling of his car.

These are responsibilities that should be gladly accepted by every motorist; indeed there should be no driving license extended to motorists who pay no attention to their brakes and headlights, and who refuse to obey the traffic rules or to treat other drivers or pedestrians with courtesy.

The casualty list as a result of automobile accidents is becoming so heavy that in the general interest those who cannot see the advisability of practising safety first rules at all times must be kept off the roads.

LEARN TO SWIM.

The action of the local Rotary Club in securing the services of a competent swimming instructor who will be on duty here until the end of August eliminates all excuses for inability to swim.

The slogan, "Every Peterborough boy and girl a swimmer," should be completely realized before the end of the summer, if the opportunity offered by the presence of a competent instructor is embraced by those who have not yet mastered the art.

A census taken by the Rotary Club last autumn revealed the fact that there are in Peterborough some 1,500 children who do not know how to swim.

The majority of these youngsters, it is hoped, will be classed as swimmers before August is out.

The instructor will be on duty at Inverlea Park, and will also use the Y.M.C.A. pool, and every opportunity will be given the city's non-swimmers to learn how to take care of themselves in the water.

When the hours of the classes are announced parents should see to it that their children are given a chance to learn.

The rivers and lakes of Ontario claimed more victims than did automobile accidents last season, and by far the biggest proportion of those who lost their lives were unable to swim a stroke.

MOTOR CARS IN JACKSON PARK.

A correspondent sends the following to The Examiner:

"There are too many people who drive cars around Jackson Park—the only convenient picnic grounds where families can visit on Sundays. Why not drive the cars out in the country and leave the parks to the city's children to be out of danger. If they are on the streets causing brakes to be jammed on, the autoist is kicking, so let us keep our parks for the kiddies."

The Examiner believes that this is a reasonable suggestion.

Jackson Park is a delightful spot, one of the most beautiful natural parks in Ontario, and motorists naturally like to take their friends out to admire it, but there would be no particular hardship entailed if cars had to be parked outside and their occupants completed their inspection on foot.

It is a favourite picnic spot, especially for families who have no means of transportation to more distant picnic grounds, and there is much to be said in favour of giving such families a chance to enjoy a Jackson Park outing without placing their children in danger from motor cars.

At all events if automobiles are not banned from the park, motorists should drive slowly and carefully, remembering that there are usually many children there.

THE WAYS OF THE LAW.

Orators tell us the world is getting better. We are reminded that criminals are treated humanely, progress has been made in the war on disease, the infantile death rate has been brought down, every other family has an automobile and a telephone and even farm houses have electric light, there are child labor laws and workmen's compensation and old age pensions and service clubs. It is all most impressive. Then we read that in the Ottawa Police Court a man was fined $20 "for selling ice cream and matches on Sunday" and we stop to wonder.

It is the law, of course, even though the law is an ass, as someone has said. The purpose of the law is not very clear. If the eating of ice cream on Sunday is an evil deed in itself why is consumption permitted so long as it takes place within the confines of the premises Mr. T. Wilson it is sold? If the wrong-doing is in the financial ...ion of purchase and sale, it is difficult to see why the discrimination is made between the deal which involves putting a quart in a bag to be taken away or putting it in dishes for immediate use within the shop. The law is queer that way. Presumably a man could buy a meal at a restaurant on Sunday and take it away with him on a tray in utter legality, even though it included a plate of ice cream, but if the ice cream is unaccompanied the law says "No" in its twenty-dollar voice.

We are permitted to buy gasoline on Sunday, and if all the people who drive cars insisted on the right to buy ice cream also on that day and eat it where they wish we suspect the law would be made to conform. We may buy Sunday newspapers but not bananas—unless we eat them on the premises. If we were logical we should have to read the paper where we buy it, and use the gasoline driving 'round and 'round the service pump.

It may be that the man who uses his last match on Sunday afternoon and thereafter must perish for a smoke unless he finds a neighbor at home is brought to a highly devout state of mind, but we doubt it.—Ottawa Journal.

THE VITAMIN LOZENGE.

A process for manufacturing synthetic vitamins has been discovered by a German chemist, and we are told that this brings nearer the time when meals will be abolished. But does it? The dyspeptic and the toothless and, perhaps, the over-worked housewife, might welcome such an age, but we doubt if the vast majority of mankind will take kindly to the idea of replacing delectable food with vitamins put up in lozenge form, no matter how tasty these lozenges may be. This German chemist has succeeded in producing vitamin A, which is known as the fat soluble, or anti-rickety vitamin, which is present in fresh fruit and in cod liver oil in large quantities.

Sir Alfred Mond, the great British industrialist and economist, who saw this synthetic vitamin while in Germany, is quite enthusiastic about its possibilities. Here are his words:

"The discovery has great possibilities. If we can produce in a laboratory all the vitamins we require, it will not be necessary to grow more plants, or to eat more fruit, or to drink more cod liver oil.

"It might conceivably change the whole economic life of this country, because it would make us largely independent of our food supply from overseas."

We fancy, however, that the Britisher, with his traditional love of roast beef and Yorkshire pudding, to say nothing of plum pudding and the many other delectables which make eating a real joy, will not share Sir Alfred's enthusiasm. The vitamin lozenge, if it renders unnecessary the drinking of cod liver oil, will be welcome, but it will not be so popular if it seeks to replace toothsome viands, the mere thought of which makes the mouth water. A man hasn't to be a gourmand in order to enjoy the pleasures of the table. A normal man finds much enjoyment in refreshing his system with appetizing food. And why shouldn't he? Why was he given the sense of taste if not to be gratified? If one's sustenance is to be secured through lozenges, much of life's zest will depart. Gone will be the individual pleasure that comes from satisfying the inner man with things that are most acceptable to him; gone is the pleasure the family derives from gathering around the dining table; gone is the pleasure that good fellows experience when they assemble around the banqueting board; gone is the good-will that men exude who have a comfortable feeling under their belts. The lozenge will certainly not make for the gaiety of men or of nations. Nor would it make for the beauty of the race, for with no food to chew, the teeth would have nothing to do and they would finally become extinct. Then would come the uninviting spectacle of a toothless humanity.

The vitamin lozenge brings us a step nearer to the realization of one of the dreams of H. G. Wells, the novelist. Those who have read his romance, "The Sleeper Awakes," will remember that in the country of the future in which this man found himself at the end of his age-long trance, the people had no meal times and no elaborate food, as at present. All the sustenance their body required was contained in capsule form, and all they needed to do was to take a yellow lozenge for breakfast, a red one for lunch and two blue ones for dinner.

We think, however, it will be a long time before the lozenge meal comes to pass. For countless ages men have been taking their nourishment from the fields, from the animals that live thereon and in the forests. It will take more than the invention of a German chemist to change all this.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

THIS TIME MAY COME.

The time may come:

When someone will not be extolling the "good old days."

When oldsters will not be viewing with alarm the goings-on among the young people.

When the comic sheets will not pretend that husbands are henpecked.

When a reporter, a detective and a parson on the stage or in the movies will resemble a reporter, a detective and a parson in real life.

When popular magazines will think up some new way to adorn their covers without glorifying the Canadian girl.

When a man will work as hard as he leads his wife and friends to think he works.

When a "business conference" means a business conference and not a game of golf.

When cynics will not be knocking the church and the church will not be knocking the world.

When an employee admits he is being paid all he's worth.

When professional reformers admit that society is O.K. and voluntarily quit their jobs.

When a man gives up his automobile and explains that he cannot afford one.

When somebody will not be prophecying that the world is coming to an end.

When suckers will not be stung by fake investments salesmen.

When bores will not take the perfunctory cue "how are you?" as an invitation to give an "organ recital."

Yes, the time may come. But we don't expect to be alive to enjoy that millennial dawn!—Kingston Whig-Standard.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., June 14 (Canadian Press). — There was some inquiry from the United Kingdom for Canadian spring wheat in the Montreal market over the week-end, and sales of several loads were made.

A feature of the local grain trade was the demand from New York exporters of Canadian spring wheat and sales of a few loads of No. 3 Northern were made at ½c per bushel over the Winnipeg July option, c.i.f. Montreal. The demand for Canadian Western oats was fair and values were steady.

Owing to the renewed strength in the future corn market at Chicago yesterday local dealers advanced prices three cents per bushel for the cash article. Car lots of Argentine corn were quoted at $1.03, and American sample corn at $1.04 per bus., ex-store.

The trade in spring and winter wheat grades of flour was quiet, but the undertone was firm.

A fair amount of business was done in all lines of millfeed and values were unchanged. The demand for standard grades of rolled oats was fair and prices ruled steady.

Owing to the weakness that has prevailed in the United States markets for new crop potatoes an easier feeling developed in the local market for old crop Canadian stock yesterday, and prices were reduced 15c to 25c per bag. Indications are that values will go still lower. The market was quiet. Sales of odd cars of Quebec white B grade were made at $2.50 per bag, and reds at $2.10 to $2.25 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk, ex-track.

The egg market was moderately active and firm. The receipts were 1,115 cases.

The undertone to the butter situation was steady, but the volume of business was small. The receipts were 902 packages.

A steadier feeling prevailed in the cheese market under an improved demand from spot buyers combined with reports that some business was worked with English importers over the week-end. The receipts were 5,508 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 14 (Canadian Press). — Corn prices ran up fast yesterday as a result of the heavy rains which halted field work. Wheat was helped upward by corn. Closing quotations for corn were strong, 3½c to 4 3-8c net higher, with wheat unsettled at 1c to 1½c gain; oats showing 3-8c to 5-8c advance and provisions a rise of 7c to 20c.

Both wheat and oats owed their upturns largely to corn. Prospects of a wet harvest for wheat in the south-west were partly offset by auspicious field advices from the north-west and west. On the other hand, the Liverpool wheat market displayed unexpected firmness and there were bullish despatches from Australia and from Argentina.

An advance in hog values gave strength to the provision market.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir: Year by year I take pride in making improvements about my house and property, yet at the same time it all seems to no avail. I pay my taxes regularly and think of the benefits others will derive from them. I also think of the service others get, who pay no more, yet live in a slightly more central locality, enjoy the Garbage Collection Service, oiled roads and all public Utilities. From time to time I read of residents in Monaghan connecting up with the city sewage service at a nominal charge. I notice too, the avidity with which the city seems to offer its utilities to residents, west of Monaghan Road.

Yet here, located in the city I cannot enjoy these privileges, for such they seem to be. I pass over the oiled roads; I pass over the Garbage Service—what I do want is Sewer Service.

The city is wretched in its policy and woefully dissolute in its attitude to its own ratepayers. I maintain that our section of this city, i.e., east of Burnham and south of Sophia is neglected in respect to other sections. We are no further advanced than the Middle Ages or a squatter in the trackless woods, although we live in a civilized community.

We are unprotected from disease, yet we pay for protection. The summer time leaves us doubly liable to infection with the heat and flies. In winter we are exposed to cold. What privilege is this for our women and children in this community.

These are a few of the unpleasant features of 20th century living conditions in a modern, progressive city. Even the weeds and dogs are given more attention than the citizens. There are places within this city that are abominable and unbearable, yet they are allowed to exist, although we have an Inspector and Health Officer.

This city is about to celebrate the Jubilee Anniversary. The Council, in its dignity, makes grants to celebrate the prosperity and progressiveness of our community. However, it protests against spending money for the one essential for a healthy city, i.e., Sanitation. Sixty years of progress! Just think that we live surrounded by dirt, filth and infection.

I am a citizen and entitled to citizenship and all it implies. Chief of these is protection from unhealthy surroundings. It is high time our council put aside the pre-conceived idea that this city is sanitary and healthy, and saw conditions as they really exist.

Thanking you, sir,
I remain,
RATEPAYER.

WORTH HAVING.

Good manners are the result of good thoughts, of good sense, of good nature, of a sincere desire to be kind, to be considerate and to please.

Good manners make you forget a plain woman's plainness; good manners please long after a pretty face has grown old and unattractive.

Oh, the charm of good manners—and the joy of them and the profit too.

HAIL, THE EQUATION

A super-Newtonian equation to define laws of motion is on the verge of being worked out, says a scientist. But we have a feeling that it won't be a bit of help to the lady who strips her gears. . . . Jiggle an atom here, the law states, and every other atom in the universe somehow jiggles in response. In other words, the Black Bottom, done with sufficient stamping on the second floor, will chase the sleep particles clear off the first floor and may result in shocks on the stairs. . . . Stub your toe and Mars feels it, according to this equation. Yes, and no doubt hears about it, as well.

TYPHOID OUTBREAK DISGRACES CANADA

Says Dr. McKay, of Oshawa, in Address To Ontario M.O.H. Convention.

TORONTO, June 13. — (Canadian Press.)—Characterizing typhoid fever as 'a communicable and preventable disease,' Dr. T. W. G. McKay, of Oshawa, in addressing the Ontario Medical Health Officers' convention indicated that he considered the recent typhoid epidemic in Montreal to be a blot in Canadian annals. "Outstanding above all other failures of co-ordinated human relationships, as far as the general public is concerned," he said, "is that very evident and common failure to appraise at its real and proper valuation human life, as well as to instil properly into and fix the minds of all of us that definite realization of value."

An interesting event at the Young Women's Christian Association last night was the farewell dinner given to the Normalites and other departing residents of the House by the superintendent, Mrs. E. Morrison. The reception rooms and hall were decorated for the occasion with huge bowls of lilacs and tulips, and the dining room, where the ninety guests assembled, was also arranged with glass bowls of lilacs and pink tulips as centerpieces of the individual tables, which were crossed with crinkled streamers of orchid and mauve paper. Miss Margaret Hamilton proposed the toast to the girls leaving the 'Y,' and a response was made in the name of the Normalites by Miss Laura Robinson ,with the singing of "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows." The musical programme of the evening included a vocal solo by Miss Helen Macdonald, with accompaniment by Miss B. Allen, and an instrumental duet by the Misses Berenice Allen and K. Sanderson. FOR LOVE-TRIFLERS -- TEARS!

A TRAGIC TRUE-ISM WHICH CHERRY LANE FAILED TO SEE IN HER BLIND, HEADLONG, MAN-MANIA.

The wages of philandering is tears.

That's a lesson Cherry Lane, man-mad example of flapperism carried to extremes, might have learned from the degradation and shame brought her by a false charge of murdering her aged fiance, Ralph Cluny.

But Cherry's penchant was unconquerable. It began to overcome her again shortly after her exoneration. Motherhood, the solicitude of her loving, self-effacing sister, Faith, and the fresh memory of her great ordeal failed to show her the light.

The astonishing domestic complications which ensued is an enthralling story, the theme of a new phase upon which The Examiner's great fiction serial, SAINT AND SINNER, will enter on next Wednesday. Here you will follow Faith, the SAINT, and Cherry, the SINNER, their relatives, friends and loves, into their home.

Readers of The Examiner have asked for this continuation.

Anne Austin's lucid style and dramatic narrative have made SAINT AND SINNER the greatest newspaper fiction serial in years; the unprecedented extent and length to which it has been published attest to that. And she will keep you absorbed and constantly thrilled in the continued epic of the curious yentwined lives of the two Lane sisters.

Those who have followed SAINT AND SINNER thus far know what manner of entertainment awaits them in the daily instalments to come; and for those who have not, an extraordinary treat is in store.

Remember the date—Wednesday—in The Examiner.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 15, 1927

Astrologers read this as an uncertain day in planetary influence, since good and evil aspects conflict.

The total eclipse of the Moon on this date, visible over the Atlantic Ocean and North America, is read as threatening to the West Indies and to the northwestern part of the United States.

Tidal waves, inundations and severe storms are prognosticated, owing to the aspects which seem to presage many convulsions of nature.

Unusual weather may be expected in various parts of the country, sudden changes of temperature and heavy rains being forecast.

Earthquakes, also, may be expected and they will be prevalent in places not usually threatened with seismic phenomena.

All the signs appear to be sinister for Great Britain, which may pass through an eventful summer in which extraordinary calamities are sustained.

This day is held to be fortunate for those who start on ocean voyages.

Friendliness and understanding are supposed to be encouraged under this rule of the stars, which is especially favorable to pleasant traveling associations.

This day is one of the most lucky for those who go in search of employment. The right places should be found and suitable earnings assured. Love of power may be strong while this sway continues, but with it is a kindliness that should benefit employees.

Persons whose birthdate it is should avoid signing notes or mortgages in the coming year, which should be fairly lucky.

Children born on this day probably will be lovers of nature and endowed with poetic insight. They are likely to be exceedingly ambitious and to attain prominence.

MOTH DAMAGE

is expensive. Protect your woolens, clothing and furs by spraying them with Parke's Mothbane, a colorless liquid that destroys the moth larvae and prevents damage. Prevention is easier than hours of unsatisfactory mending. $1 per package with sprayer.—Bond's Drug Store, corner George and Hunter streets.

Celebrate July 1 in Peterboro'

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Extreme brevity is the present maxim in making little girl's frocks and coats. This little ensemble is of red and beige with a red hat and red slippers.

American makers of clothes for little girls have been rather laggard in following French fashions for extremely abbreviated frocks and wraps—and this of course is because most American mothers have been a little reticent in adopting the fashion. On cold winter days and chilly spring ones there is something a little painful to most of us in the sight of a little girl with legs bare from the top of short socks to the hem of a skirt that ends only an inch or so below the hips. Such frocks and wraps of course require the most abbreviated of underthings. So although we may permit our children to wear short socks even in winter we make their frocks and coats long enough to permit the wearing of little bloomers or petticoats that give a little protection to the leg above the knee.

With the coming of summer of course, all such objections are removed, and you may already have seen quite a number of American children dressed in frocks short enough to make them look entirely French. You may still object that the effect is grotesque. There is, you may contend, something extremely ungraceful about a little girl dressed in a straight frock or coat that entirely hides the lines of her body—that ends abruptly just below the hips to show an amazing length of uncovered legs. The effect is especially unbecoming, you may think, to little girls who happen to have pipe-stem legs. They look like little match boxes with two long matches for legs. On the other hand, there is something just as grotesque in this fashion when imposed upon the little girl who departs from perfect symmetry in the other direction.

Still there is no doubt about the attitude of the French dressmakers in the matter—and apparently there is no doubt that Americans are at last going to take up with it. We may hope that before many months have passed French makers of little girls' clothes will adopt a type of frock that has a more graceful, more clinging outline—with possibly skirts that are a trifle longer.

WEDDING BELLS.

BEAUCLERC—HOLMES.

The wedding was solemnized at two o'clock on Saturday afternoon, in St. John's Church, Lakefield, of Sylvia Daisy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Holmes of Lakefield, and Charles Joseph Beauclerc, son of the late J. Beauclerc and Mrs. C. Mills, Sherbrooke Street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. J. Creighton, M.A. The church was prettily decorated with lilacs and tulips by girl friends of the bride, and the vested choir preceded the bridal party, singing "O Perfect Love."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of Wedgewood blue canton crepe, trimmed with silver, blue hat, grey shoes and hose, and carried a bouquet of pink roses, lily of the valley and maiden hair fern.

The bridesmand, Miss Dorothy Holmes, was in rose taffeta, with hat to match, and carried ophelia roses.

Mr. Chris Jay of Peterborough acted as best man.

After the ceremony, a buffet luncheon was served at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Beauclerc leaving later by motor for Crowe's Landing, where the honeymoon will be spent. The bride travelled in a coat of Wedgewood blue, with trimmings of grey squirrel fur.

The gift of the bridegroom to the bride was a gold pin and to the bridesmaid a gold ring.

The bridegroom is a popular member of the editorial staff of The Examiner, and the bride has many friends in the city.

NAISH—YARDLEY.

The wedding took place at three o'clock on Saturday afternoon, at the George street parsonage, of Horace Edgar Naish, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Naish, Lock street, and Dorothy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Yardley of Oshawa. The ceremony was performed by the pastor, Rev. J. E. Todd.

The bride wore a charming gown of sand crepe, with hat shoes and hose to match, and carried ophelia roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Ida Eagleson, was in figured crepe with large hat, and carried roses and carnations.

Mr. John Wilson acted as best man.

After the ceremony, a supper to fifty eight guests was served at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Naish leaving later for a trip to Oshawa, Toronto and Niagara. On their return they will reside in Peterborough.

The gift of the bridegroom to the bride was a handsome red fox fur scarf, to the bridesmaid a bracelet, and to the best man a gold Waltham chain.

DAVIS—PLUNKETT.

A very pretty wedding took place at one o'clock this afternoon at St. James' United Church, when Alice Hazel, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Plunkett, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Alvin Hamilton Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Davis, both of Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by the pastor, Rev. J. D. Richardson, and the church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with a profusion of lilacs, tulips, peonies, ferns and palms.

The bride, who entered the church on the arm of her father, to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Edith Edwards, of Ottawa, wore a lovely gown of orchid satin-faced crepe, with the draperies falling from the right shoulder to the hem caught by a large satin flower in pansy shades. Her hat was of orchid georgette trimmed with pansies and her shoes were of blonde kid, with hose of blonde silk. She carried a shower bouquet of roses and lily of the valley.

The bridesmaid, Miss Ada Davis, of Toronto, was in coral flat crepe with hat to match and blonde shoes and hose. She carried roses.

Little Marilyn Plunkett, of Detroit, niece of the bride, made a charming flower girl, wearing a gown of rose pink crepe with rose bandeau and carrying a basket of lily of the valley.

Mr. Elmer Plunkett, of Kingston, acted as best man. Ushers were Mr. Fred Nelson and Mr. Walter Wright.

During the signing of the register, Miss Mary Wood, A.T.C.M., wearing rose taffeta, and a large white hat, sang "O Promise Me."

Later, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, on Prince street, and a buffet luncheoen was served, the decorations of the table and rooms being carried out in coral shades. Mrs. Plunkett wore a gown of poudre blue flat crepe, with hat to match and corsage bouquet of sweet peas, and Mrs. Davis was in black satin-faced canton crepe, trimmed with blonde, wearing a blonde hat and corsage of sweet peas.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis left on the afternoon train for a trip to Detroit, Cleveland and Buaffio, N.Y. On their return they will reside at 82 Lansdowne street.

The bride's travelling costume was a blue crepe dress, with a coat of blue and grey, and hat, shoes and hose to match.

Jungle Breath

© 1927 by NEA Service

by Ben Lucien Burman

THIS HAS HAPPENED

LINCOLN NUNNALLY, elderly American chemist, is summoned to the little jungle-bordered town of PORTO VERDE, in west central Brazil, by his young friend, VILAK, who is concerned for the safety of his beautiful cousin, ELISE MARBERRY, owner of a coffee plantation and other property near Porto Verde.

Several mysterious deaths have occurred, including that of TONY BARBETTA, one of Elise's foremen, and the girl herself has received warnings to get out of the country.

Vilak believes GAYLORD PRENTISS, a reticent and forbidding man, known to be an enemy of Elise, may be involved some way in the deaths. Accordingly, he and Nunnally set out for Prentiss' house, which is guarded by barbed wire fences and a vicious dog. Elise insists on joining them. Prentiss sets the dog on them and Vilak saves his companions' lives by chloroforming it into unconsciousness.

The next day Elise's two-year-old orphaned nephew is kidnapped. Vilak finds the trail and in a few hours they come upon the child, deserted by its captors and being cared for by a gang of railroad workmen. Returning with the baby, Vilak gravely tells Elise he has bad news for her.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER XVI.

"Bad news?" Anxiety was evident in Elise's voice. The old man, too, who had been bent over in his saddle so absorbed that to the passer-by he must have seemed asleep, looked up with a start.

"I hate to be a kill-joy just when you are so happy," said Vilak. "But if you want to keep on being happy you'll get Tinky away from here as quickly as you can. Take the boat that leaves here next week."

Her dark lips tightened. "What do you mean?"

"Persons don't steal babies merely for the fun of dropping them on the ground. I don't know just what happened this afternoon, but as I told you I have a theory. And that theory prompts me to the certain belief that Tinky will not be safe until he is far from Porto Verde."

She gazed directly into his keen blue eyes. "You're not telling me that merely to make me leave?"

"No."

She hesitated. "Very well. I'll take him away. When the boat comes next Thursday. But as soon as I have put him somewhere where he'll be safe I'll come back. I personally will not stay away from Porto Verde. No matter what happens. I belong here."

"If a person happened to own an active volcano, he wouldn't necessarily be called upon to live inside its crater. I tell you again that your life is in danger every moment here and the dangers are increasing constantly. This affair of Tinky's may be just a development of that. I don't know. But I've given up arguing with you. My only regret is that there is no way of getting you out of here before Thursday."

It was dusk when they neared the fazenda and the two spreading castanho trees marking the entrance already had begun their melodious whispering in the evening breeze.

"I don't like those Indians. Er . . . Indians," the old man remarked suddenly, after half an hour's silence.

Vilak looked at him amusingly. "What Indians, Nanny?"

"Those half breed and Indian laborers who work for, er . . . D'Albentara. Not nice faces, Vilak. Not nice. Er . . . ratty. And that foreman with the big nose is ugly as a . . . a . . . er . . . er . . . he's ugly. How can a nice fellow like D'Albentara live with them? It would put my health completely out of order . . . yes, quite completely."

"You can't saw down a tree with a razor blade," Vilak responded. "Section hands aren't housemaids. D'Albentara takes what he can get."

"Which reminds me that I've got to do something for him to show my appreciation," Elise put in. "What'll I send him?"

"A little er . . . wine is always welcome," the old man answered.

"An excellent idea, Mr. Nunnally. "I'll send him over a case of my best champagne, that Pommerey 1912, and some other wine for the men. They'll all be glad to get a change from the dreadful stuff they drink here all the time. Better for them, too. If Vilak will be good enough to take it over to them after dinner I'd be awfully grateful."

"I'll be delighted," Vilak responded. "I have a particular reason for wanting to go back anyway."

After dark the two men set out on their horses again. Behind them rode one of Elise's ebony-faced servants, driving a little cart which contained one of the heavy stone jars used to transport wine in the region and a wooden case from whose cracks peeped fragrant wisps of straw. They reached the camp and delivered the presents.

D'Albentara was highly pleased. Giving the jar of wine to his foreman to be distributed judicially among the men, he opened a bottle of the champagne and drank the health first of Elise, then of his guests. They chatted about engineering, chemistry, the competition of the Brazilian railroads with the steam boats and the question of which would eventually win out, the cruelty of the jungle and its weakening effect upon the white man, the value of the jungle land when an overpopulated world would have to reach out for new fields to supply its workers, the myriad motley subjects that any three men of scientific instincts would talk about with a jungle encircling them.

As they chatted, the Indian and half breed laborers who had ceased their work for the night also talked and sat around the crackling fire and noisily drank the heavy wine out of their battered tin cups. But the old man could not understand their loud, sometimes shouted conversation, for when it was not an Indian dialect it was usually some perverted Portuguese patois of which he knew nothing.

The conversation of the white men finally drifted to the repairs on which D'Albentara was engaged. Vilak inquired whether he might see how they were proceeding with the fill where the river had cut dangerously into the banks. The engineer gladly assented. Calling over his foreman of the enormous nose, whose breath now reeked strongly of wine, they walked toward the river's edge. Here the soil was wetter and marshier than elsewhere and the stones which occasionally appeared above it were covered with a thick slime which made walking very difficult.

They had gone only a few yards when Vilak, usually so agile, slipped on one of these stones and pitched forward. Grasping for support, he caught the hand of D'Albentara, who was at one side, and the arm of the foreman who was at the other. But the movement did not check his fall. Instead it brought the foreman sprawling to the ground as well. Vilak was the first to gain his feet. He aided the foreman to arise and began brushing off his clothes. "Terribly sorry," he murmured apologetically. "I don't know what the devil made me so awkward."

The half breed's shifting eyes glared angrily a moment. His dwarfed, knotted fingers seemed to start to the knife at his belt, then he smiled and gave an affable grunt.

"Tagos does not mind," D'Albentara murmured as Vilak still sought to repair the damage he had wrought. "It is nothing. All that goes up must also fall down. Is it not so? Once I heard an English sailor say this. And it is true."

The incident forgotten, they strode on to the tracks where the engineer explained in detail how the piles were driven, a retaining wall built of rocks, and earth piled into the vacant spaces between. Half an hour later the two visitors made ready to leave. The Indians and half breeds still sat around the fire drinking and shouting more lustily than ever.

"One or two of them look as if they might be getting a tiny bit tipsy," Vilak declared to the engineer, as they shook hands. "I hope Senhorita Marberry's wine isn't going to have any bad effects."

D'Albentara laughed. "Have no fear of that, amigos. The stomachs of my men are as iron. Good night."

They walked toward the road. "I feel proud. Quite er . . . proud," the old man declared, as they plodded through the marshy turf. "You fell and I er . . . didn't."

Vilak chuckled. "Sorry to put a pin in the bubble of your self flattery, Nanny, but it happens that I slipped purposely in order to pull our Indian friend, the foreman, down with me."

The old man looked bewildered. "But why should you want to do . . . such a thing? You almost ruined your suit."

"Look at this," Vilak responded. He withdrew a small object from his pocket and flashed his light upon it so that the other might see. It was a ring, consisting of a thin gold band, set with a large black stone. The stone was carved in the fashion of so much of the jewelry seen in the remoter parts of the globe, jewelry crudely wrought but nevertheless masterpieces of craftsmanship, now depicting some mythical personage or animal, now a stiff conventionalized tree. In this instance the design consisted of what appeared to be a bird-like or perhaps fish-like figure with a single claw or fin. "Make anything of it?"

"Er . . . nothing. Where did you get it?"

"From the finger of the Indian foreman. I saw it and wanted to study it at my leisure. I pulled him down and fell sharply on his arm so that the pain I was causing him would allow me to wrench the ring away without being noticed."

The old man brushed a mosquito from his scanty fringe of beard. "It looks to me quite like er . . . quite like the other native rings I've seen here. Do you know what it is?"

"No, amigos. But I intend finding out. What are you getting so desperate about that little mosquito for? Are you afraid that he'll destroy that feeble trace of a beard you're so proud of? Now I'm going to town for a few minutes, and then to come back to Elise's to spend the night again. Events are approaching a climax, I feel sure, and I want to be there every minute I can."

SECRETARY CHOSEN.

Ralph Godfrey Succeeds James Gray in Employ of School Section.

HIAWATHA, June 14.—At the Public School, on Tuesday evening, a special trustees' meeting was held.

Other matters as the enlarging of the playground, painting the school buildings and erecting a new fence were under discussion.

LAMPREY EEL.

BELLINGHAM, Wash., June 14.—A Puget Sound fisherman thought he had caught a baby sea serpent when his net disclosed a wriggling creature with a sheep-like head, glaring eyes, long teeth and a big black fin. But naturalists pronounced it a baby lamprey eel—one of the few ever found that far north.

School Girl's Nerves

Lost year's time from school with St. Vitus' Dance.—Completely restored by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

The anxiety and strain in connection with school life and examinations are too much for many girls who are naturally of a nervous temperament or have become so as a result of anaemia or a run down physical condition.

Nervous conditions are most difficult to overcome and there seems to be no treatment to compare with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to restore exhausted nerves. Children's health responds quickly to this well known restorative treatment.

Mrs. George A. Moot, St. Anns, Lincoln Co., Ont., writes:—

"Our daughter, who was never very strong from birth, at nine years of age became all broken down, suffering from what the two doctors we consulted called "Midnight Walk," which was caused from overtax at school. She seemed to show symptoms of St. Vitus' Dance and had queer spells, something like fits, at nights. She was out of school for a whole year, as her nerves were so bad. Acting on a friend's advice, we gave her Nerve Food and after a few months' time we began to see a noted change in her, so we kept on with the Nerve Food until she was completely relieved and for the last year she has been absolutely free of the old trouble, sleeps well and is doing fine at school. Now we are never without Dr. Chase's Nerve Food in our house, as we owe our daughter's health to it."

New rich blood, steady nerves, new energy and new vigor come with the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. 60 cts. a box, all dealers or The Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto.

(Report of M.H.O., Toronto, Continued from Saturday.)

We found on different occasions when fuel was scarce and high in price, that there was a tendency of some of the dairies to cut short the period for holding the milk at a temperature of 145 degrees and in some cases they did not even raise it to 145 degrees, so that we concluded that if we were going to have an absolutely reliable system of pasteurization, we must have it removed from the frailties of human nature. We, therefore, have secured from Cambridge, England, self-recording thermometers. These are owned and controlled by the Department of Public Health and are placed on every pasteurizing plant in the city. Our inspectors carry the key, and therefore, we know that they cannot be tampered with. We can see at a glance whether or not the requirements of the department for pasteurization are being complied with.

This, I feel, is advisable and, in fact, imperative, if a municipality wants to be sure that its milk is at all times rendered safe by the process of pasteurization.

Control Preceding Pasteurization.

The only two objections worthy of note, raised as to pasteurization, and these are untenable, are—first—that pasteurization of milk tends to diminish the activities of a municipality to provide a clean milk; second, that pasteurization interferes with the nutritive value and digestibility of milk. The first of these objections has I think been thoroughly dealt with by describing how the City of Toronto continues despite compulsory pasteurization to ensure that only clean milk reaches the pasteurizing plant.

It would be difficult to understand any municipality not requiring milk to be absolutely clean and free from barnyard contamination or gross contamination of any kind, before considering it fit for pasteurization.

Since the passing of our Ordinance for the Pasteurization of Milk, we have not relaxed in the slightest degree as regards the safeguarding of our milk supply from the cow to the consumer, our system of inspection consisting of specially trained veterinarians who inspect the dairy farms, and inspectors of the dairies within the city, who have had special training in connection with milk and all dairy products.

No Gray Hair!

A wise man or woman won't use a dangerous hairdye; nor anything that gives hair the dull, dyed look that's worse than grayness. Kolor-Bak is a very different proposition! A clean, colorless liquid which gently and gradually brings the hair to the color it should be. Your hair is unharmed—doesn't even lose its lustre—and the scalp is actually benefited!

Blonde or brunette; auburn, brown or black; no matter about the shade, for the one bottle of this clear liquid is right for everybody. Lots of people you know may use it—you can't detect it! Kolor-Bak will give you the same perfect results; that's guaranteed when you buy it.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE HOLDS MEETING

Subject of Address Delivered Was 'Woman—Her Place, Her Power.'

MADOC, June 14.— An enjoyable open meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. A. Kincaid recently. In spite of heavy showers over forty of the members and their friends attended to hear the speaker of the evening Miss McGee, of Chesterville.

Miss McGee took as her topic, 'Woman, Her Place, Her Power," winding up her very inspiring address with some of the "Essentials i: Institute Work." The speaker said she drew inspiration for the first part of her address from Ruskin's Sesame and Lilies. Woman's power is for rule not for battle. She should make the home a place of peace, free from terorr, doubt and division. Woman's duty is to relieve, to guard, to guide. From a discussion on team-work in the home, Miss McGee went on to team work in the community and in the nation. Co-operation won the war. She appealed to women to read the current events in the newsappers that they might understand the questions of the day and be able to poll an intelligent vote. Too many women read only the 'homey' parts of a paper and the stories.

In speaking of the work of the Institute, Miss McGee said there are now thirty thousand members and one thousand and fifty branches. In these days of anniversaries, she said, Institute members should remember the sixty years of Confederation and thirty years of Institute work. The essentials of Institute work, she said, are optimism, high aims and tact. We should aim to do the small things well. Little tasks faithfully done, accomplish most. Miss McGee interspersed her interesting address with humorous stories and beautiful quotations. One helpful motto she quoted was, "I am. I have a life. No other can live that life. I have a handicap no other can lift. If I am, I can. If I can, I ought, and if I ought, I will."

A hearty vote of thanks, moved by Mrs. R. Bristol, seconded by Mrs. R. Wellman, was extended to Miss McGee for her helpful and delightful address, and also to all who assisted during the evening. The entire programme was as follows:

A SERIES OF LESSONS ON FOOD COMBINATIONS

I speak so often in these daily articles about good food combinations, and for the benefit of those who have not yet learned just how to combine their foods properly, I am going to prepare a series of daily articles on this subject.

A few days ago, I explained to you how food is digested in the stomach and also in the intestines. From these articles, you have no doubt received some hints and warnings about food combinations I will briefly outline some of the points brought out in the previous lesson.

The digestion of the food begins in the mouth, but only one kind of food is really digested by the saliva: that one food is starch. Meat, greens, fruit and all other foods, except starches, are not digested in any way in the mouth, except that mastication breaks these foods up into smaller particles. The ptyalin, or digestive ferment in the saliva, acts only upon the starch and partially converts it into sugar.

When a mixture of meat, bread and greens is taken into the stomach, the chemical action of the gastric juice changes the meat from protein into peptone. The digestive juice of the stomach has no effect whatsoever upon the bread and greens, except to make them sour, because of the one-half of one per cent hydrochloric acid contained in the juice.

No digestion of starch can take place in the stomach, as there is no part of the gastric juice which has the property to act upon the starch. As the food passes into the intestines, the bile, which is alkaline, is mixed with the combination of bread, meat and greens, and if this mixture is already too acid, the bile is capable of converting it into a liquid alkaline, most of which can then be acted upon by the amylopsin, steapsin, trypsin and intestinal renin. These fermentations chemically digest the different food elements and can handle almost any mixture, if enough bile has been combined with it. The chief difficulty seems to be in getting bad mixtures through the stomach and into the intestines without setting up a conflict between the digestive juices of the stomach and those of the intestines.

No trouble is experienced if one protein is mixed with greens or if one starch is mixed with greens; but if the starch and protein are used at the same time, a perfect digestion cannot take place.

Therefore, one of the best plans to adopt in choosing a meal is to use protein food at one meal and starchy food at another.

German Promoter Says Levine Owes Him Commission on Loan.

THREAT MADE

BERLIN, June 14 (Canadian Press).—Charles A. Levine, who accompanied Clarence Chamberlin in his trans-Atlantic flight, is confronted by seizure of his monoplane Columbia as the result of a claim made by Dr. Huppe, German financial promoter.

The German alleges that a sum is due him from Levine as commission for promoting a loan with various steel mills in Germany two years ago. The loan was not negotiated, as Levine failed to exercise his option. Dr. Huppe claims an additional amount for services due him and threatens to attach the Columbia if the claim is not settled.

FLARES SEEN CALLING HELP

Story That Missing French Fliers May Be Found is Discounted.

IN NORTH QUEBEC.

QUEBEC, Que., June 14 (Canadian Press).—Nungesser and Coli, missing French trans-Atlantic aviators, may be stranded in the northern part of this province. A wire to Parliament Buildings from Forestry employees at St. Germain Township, north of the Saguenay River, states that for 30 minutes on Sunday night distress signals were seen in the mountains north of that township. He states the signals were seen by four men. The signals were in the form of flares sent up at three minute intervals. The Quebec Government is hot on the trail and every endeavor is being made to get more information on the matter.

Story Discounted

PARIS, June 14 (Canadian Press).—The report that the missing fliers, Nungesser and Coli, might be in Northern Quebec was discounted here by the statement that they left their flares at La Bourget Field.

CRISIS AVERTED.

LONDON, June 14. Canadian Press.—The threatened Anglo-Egyptian crisis is believed to have been averted. A note from the Egyptian premier to Lloyd George, the British High Commissioner, is understood to offer a basis for negotiations regarding Egyptian army problems.

Under the constitution of April 19, 1923, declaring Egypt a sovereign state, the question of defence was reviewed, remaining under British control. The Sirdar, or Commander-in-Chief, and a few of the other higher army posts are held by British officers. A movement has been under way in Egypt to remove these men in favor of Egyptians.

Sir Austen Chamberlain, Foreign Secretary, stated in the House of Commons on June 1 that "extremist Egyptian politicians" were trying to convert the Egyptian army into a political weapon at the disposal of one political party.

Great Britain, he declared, would not permit the full play of subversive influences which would complicate her vital interests and obligations in Egypt, notably the defence of the Suez Canal. She was ready, however, to open negotiations for the settlement of the problem.

Million People Are Left Without Any Nationality

GENEVA, Switzerland, June 14 (Canadian Press).—Post-war developments, including readjustment of frontiers, have left more than a million people in Europe without a country, it was declared to-day by Dr. Fridtjof Hansen, High Commissioner of the International Committee for Russian Relief. It is hoped to alleviate this condition, he said, by extending the system of special League of nations passports.

MILLIONAIRES LOSE.

Hydro Wins Softball Game at Campbellford, 20 to 15.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 14.—Hydro defeated Millionaires in the league softball game here last night. Employing only one Watt, Hydro found it sufficient to light their path to victory, and to send the Millionaires back to their club room to debate the question propounded by Bill Shakespeare some few years back: "What's in a name?"

Tinney, Hydro's high jumper, did some ascension work last night, and while in the air pulled in a ball intended for far out in the field.

Johnston, the Hydro pitcher, cut short the 4th and 5th innings with some nice pitching. On his 4th throw in the 4th the Millionaires were retired, and in the 5th he only required three throws to accomplish the same thing.

The following was the line-up:

Hydro.—Johnston, p; P. Saunders, c; DeCarroll, 1b; Cowrie 2b; Watt, 3b; Tinney, ss; H. Saunders, lf; Beatty, cf; Long, rf.

Millionaires.—Darling, p; Bush, c; Davidson, 1b; Weston, 2b; Ferris, 3b; Free, ss; Mitchell, lf; Osborne, cf; Massie, rf.

Umpires—Daniels, plate; Blakely, bases.

Score: Hydro 20, Millionaires, 15.

AT THE CAPITOL.

MADGE BELLAMY IN "ANKLES PREFERRED."

"Ankles Preferred" is one of the light, frivolous pictures that form such excellent entertainment for warmer weather audiences. It is also one of those excellent pictures, from a moral point of view, that portrays virtue as triumphant in the long run, with the excitement-seeking heroine forsaking primrose paths for the steadier ways of matrimony with a plebeian beau, after trying out the giddier tempo of the bright lights.

Madge Bellamy is a charming heroine of "Ankles Preferred." She is Norah Young, who strives to capitalize her brains, forgetting that her ankles are a speedier asset. Her search for fame and fortune leads her to act as a model for lingerie in a gorgeous uptown establishment in New York which purveys to the wealthy and extravagant. Her employers use her attraction to force a loan from a hard-headed business man, and champagne and excitement lead her to various minor indiscretions. Then she goes for a drive with the aforesaid business man and walks home later, limping with a swollen ankle back to the refuge afforded by Barney Tucker, whose modest flivver she has spurned in favor of more luxurious motors.

The cast is excellent, with Norah's companions in her flat a duo of romance-seeking ladies, with Marjorie Beebe as Flo Smith and Joyce Compton as Virginia Wade. Allan Forrest enacts the role of Hornsbee, the business man infatuated with the pretty model.

An added attraction on the program is the inclusion of the pictures taken at the Canadian Legion Convention, recently held here. These are excellent, with a metropolitan air to the city settings and a truly impressive touch given by the cenotaph itself, with its black sword etched against the sacrificial cross. The kilties swing through the opening of the picture, with the Rangers and Salvation Army bands following later, and a fine panoramic view of the soldiers and the crowds that witnessed the ceremonies at the cenotaph.

AT THE REGENT.

IF YOU LIKE THRILLS.

If you want to be thrilled, "My Official Wife," is your picture. This new Warner Bros. production, which opened yesterday at the Regent Theatre for a run of three days, is sizzling with excitement from start to finish. And it is replete with beauty! beauty that recalls the dazzling magnificence of Czarist days in Petrograd and the lilting loveliness of old Vienna. And it contains some of the best melodramatic acting that has been seen upon the screen this season.

The picture is a triumph for Paul Stein, the Austrian, who makes his American debut as a director with this production. Long celebrated upon the Continent he now proves himself worthy to be ranked with the best in Hollywood.

The story, by Archibald Clavering Gunter, tells of a Russian countess, who is waylaid in a wayside inn by six drunken young nobles, who cast lots for her. A grand duke's son is the winner. As a result of her efforts to expose him, she is sentenced to Siberia. With his companions, he holds up the convict train, and rescues her; an action that he regards as the least he might do for any lady under the circumstances. But she is an exile, and she takes up a career as a cabaret dancer in Vienna. From then on her adventures in revenge are exquisite in their refinement and heart-pounding in their excitement.

Irene Rich and Conway Tearle play the leading roles magnificently, and they receive excellent support from Jane Winton, Stuart Holmes, John Miljan, Gustav von Seyffertitz, and Emil Chautard. The screen version, by Graham Baker, was adapted from Charles Blaney's stage play.

TOURING SCOTS BLANK CALGARY

Over 3,000 Spectators Witnessed Munro Score Four Goals —Six Goals to Nil.

The touring Scots shut out Calgary's representative team on Saturday, scoring 6 goals to 0, and marking up their seventh win of the tour, five straight since they were beaten at Toronto, and increasing their goal average to 41 goals for, against 9. The tourists provided for the 3,000 spectators an education in soccer, the like of which had never been witnessed in Calgary. It was not a match of thrills, but an afternoon of entertainment to which the visitors contributed the fascinating part.

Only for ten minutes in the opening stages was there really a hope that the Calgary attack would beat down the opposing defence. Twice Cartwright got the ball in the danger zone and was between the backs, but before he could shoot he lost his foothold on the greasy surface. Thus was Calgary's chance of scoring avoided.

Four Goals for Munro

The tourists scored two goals in the first half and four in the second. After fourteen minutes of play McLean gave Munro an opening, and Wilson had no chance. Hunter and McLean engineered the movement for the second goal which Cunningham scored.

Early in the second half Hunter beat Wilson with a hard drive, Munro headed in from Archibald's pass to make it 4—0. Archibald lobbed the ball to Munro who registered the fifth goal with ease. Munro wound up the scoring when the ball hit the upright and it bounced into the net. The teams:

Scotland—Hamilton, Scott, McStay, Muirhead, J. McStay, Craig, Archibald, Cunningham, Munro, Hunter, McLean.

Calgary—Wilson, Kilpatrick, Stephens, Moyes, Nisbet, Pate, Wakelyn, Cartwright, Strachan, Kirkwood, Stenhouse.

BOBBY JONES FACES FORMIDABLE FIELD

PITTSBURGH, Pa., June 14.—(Canadian Press).—It will be "Bobby Jones against the fields" in the battle of golfing giants that starts today over the velvet turf and hazards of the Oakmont Country Club with the American open championship at stake.

The stocky Atlanta amateur, present open champion of Great Britain as well as the United States, faces a formidable international field, but he was nevertheless a topheavy favorite among players and experts yesterday after the last practice shot had been exploded from Oakmont's tricky assortment of traps and bunkers.

The old axiom that "anything can happen" in such a test as the 72-hole championship grind through the next three days has buoyed some hope in behalf of at least a half dozen other aces, for whom Jones will be the "marked man". "Wee Bobby" Cruickshank, debonair Johnny Farrell, Leo Diegel and "light-horse Harry" Cooper loom in the front rank of the American pros who will be gunning for the big title, while "Slim" Aubrey Boomer and Charley Whitcombe of the group of British invaders, likewise have their followers.

Of the pros who got in their last practice licks yesterday, Diegel gave the flashiest exhibition, scoring a brilliant 70, two under par, and within a stroke of the championship course record. In a foursome which he paired with Walter Hagen to defeat Jones and Watts Gunn one up, Jones registered a card of 73 in what developed into a personal duel between the champion and Diegel, who struggled home in 80, Hagen had 76.

Farrell negotiated his last workout round in 74, in company with Mac Smith, Bill Mehlhorn and Al Waltrous, while Cruickshank had an approximate 75, and Boomer the same for a whirl with George Duncan, former British open titleholder.

K. OF C. DEFEATED BY LOCK WORKS

Victors Overcome Knights' Lead By Five Run Rally in Seventh.

The Lockworks won another victory last night when they defeated the K. of C at Central Park by 9 runs to 2. The game was well played with the exception of the seventh inning when the Lockworks scored five runs on three hits, four errors and a couple of walks.

Murphy started for the K. of C. and breezed along nicely till the seventh when he was relieved by Rose, who only allowed one run for the remainder of the game. Waddell was on the rubber for the Lockworks and turned in a great performance. He mixed a tantalizing slow ball with a wicked fast one and he kept the K. of C. boys in hand at all times. He had eight strikeouts and issued only two walks. Murphy struck out four and walked two.

Kane and Ranger turned in some nice fielding, both having great catches. Johnston also supplied some nice fielding.

Redfern, playing third for the Lockworks was injured early in the game and had to retire. LeBarr also was injured, but he returned after repairs.

The teams lined up as follows:

Lockworks— Redfern, 3b; Smith, 1b; Weese, ss; Nichols, lf; Galbraith, rf; Dobson, c; Holland, 1b, 2b; Johnston, 2b, 3b; Montgomery, cf; Waddell, p.

K. of C.—LeBarr, 1b; Jones, cf; Rose, 2b, p; Murphy, p, rf; O'Hearn, c; Ranger, ss; Spence, lf; Kane, 3b; Primeau, rf, 2b.

Umpires—Johnston and Scates.

HOMER IN 8TH SETTLES LEAFS

Newark Opponents Roll Up Five Runs Off Sorrell.

RALLY IN SEVENTH.

NEW YORK, June 14.—Canadian Press).—Kingdom's home run in the eighth inning with the bases full, another circuit drive by Carlyle and brilliant pitching by Cheves enabled the Bears to come out of their four-game losing streak and defeat the Toronto Leafs in the first game of the Newark series yesterday by the score of 8 to 4. Outside of the last inning when Hargraves hit a homer, the Leafs were easy for Cheves, an error letting in two runs in the final frame. Harrington scored the first Toronto run on a circuit drive in the fifth, the ball caroming off Conlan's glove. Harrington, by fast run. Runs by Urbanski, Scott and Lake in the seventh overcame the one-run lead of the Stars and gave the Baltimore Orioles a 3 to 2 victory over their visitors today. A ninth inning rally fell short when, with two down and a man on third Archdeacon grabbed Brown's fly.

The Skeeters dropped an 8 to 4 decision to the Buffalo Bisons at Jersey City in the opening game of the series. The locals scored three runs in the first frame but a five run rally in the fourth wiped the lead out and from then on the Bisons were never headed.

Scoring six runs on five walks and two hits in the first inning, Rochester took a lead and was never headed yesterday by the Keys in the first of the Reading series. The tribe won 12 to 7. George Quellich hit safely in his fifteenth straight game.

Royalty to Attend Opening of Races

ASCOT, England, June 14.—(Canadian Press). — England's fashionable race week which begins today with the Ascot stakes and the Gold Vase as the principal features, with its attendant pageant of feminine fashions, promises to attract the biggest international crowd since the war, provided the weather holds good.

The king and queen and other members of the royal family and their guests at Windsor Castle will drive along the course in seven state coaches to the royal enclosure.

The king had two horses running. Viscount Astor and A. McComber are among the other owners, while there are also several French of French-bred horses competing.

The culminating event of the week's racing from the society viewpoint is the gold cup race on Thursday when society will turn out in full force. According to fashionable modistes, feminine styles will be at their flimsiest and skirts shorter than ever. Wide brimmed beflowered hats will again be favored, while ostrich plumes worn as ruffles or scarfs will strike a new note.

PIRATES OUTHIT 13-7.

NEW YORK, June 14.—Canadian Press).—Paul Waner's home run in the sixth with Rhyne on base gave the Pirates a 4 to 3 victory over Brooklyn at Pittsburgh. Kremer pitched seven innings for the National League leaders and then gave way to Hill in the eighth with one out and two on bases. It was Kremer's first start on the mound since being injured a month ago in Brooklyn. Brooklyn outhit the Pirates, 13 to 7, but failed in the pinches.

Pounding Fitzsimmons and Henry for 12 hits, the Cubs won their ninth straight game yesterday, beating New York 6 to 2, at Chicago. Grimm led the attack with a triple and a single that drove in three runs. Only one hour and 39 minutes was required to play the game. Zack Taylor, Boston catcher, acquired by the Giants in Sunday's trade, reported to Rogers Hornsby, acting manager, and was pressed into immediate service.

COGS COME FROM FAR BEHIND TO DEFEAT BETHANY TEAM 8-7

Losers Unable To Hold an Early Lead of Seven Runs.

BATTERIES.

Visitors Introduce Team of Smart Fielders and Husky Stickers.

Manager Fred Cripps inserted a three-base clout to send Williams in with the tieing run, and went home with the winning tally on Rooke's single, when Cognawagas came from behind and defeated Bethany at the Exhibition Park last evening, the count being 8 to 7. The outburst came in the sixth and the visitors were retired in order in their half of the seventh.

Bethany got away to a rousing runfest. Ralph, who started firing for the Cogs, was wild, and his good ones were banked right and left. When he left the scene in the second, Bethany had seven runs, and two were out, and two runners were on. Vannest took up the burden, and when McGill slapped a grounder down short, Johnston interfered with the play, retiring the side. Vannest did well for the remainder of the game, the opposition helping him out by introducing several lapses when on the runways.

The visitors introduced a team with a real good battery, smart infielders, and some husky stickers. McGill is a hard worker, and effective at back-stopping, and Jackson proved much of a puzzle to the Cogs. Ryley, who also does a turn at pitching, handles the first station well; R. Staples, another pitcher, is steady at second, and G. Staples at short, and Reynolds at third, complete a tiny infield. Tom Staples, a catcher of renown in bygone days, works in left, Stinson in middle and Johnston in right.

The game had two unusual features. All the putouts by Bethany were credited to the catcher and the first baseman, and Harvey Smith, left fielder for Cogs had two runs without a time at bat. He got on first through interference by the catcher, and was passed twice.

First Innings.

G. Staples and Reynolds roused enthusiasm in the ranks of the Bethany contingent by drawing walks. Rooke took Stinson's grounder and threw out Staples going into third. R. Staples fanned. Ryley singled to score Reynolds. Tom Staples took one in the slats, filling the bases. Johnston shot a single through short to score two. McGill slapped one through third to count another brace. Jackson was passed and Staples grounded out.

Jackson showed some stuff when he fanned Williams and Crary. Cripps singled into centre, stole second and also pilfered third. The catcher took Rooke's high foul.

Second Innings.

Reynolds hit safely down third only to be forced at second when Rooke took Stinson's grounder, and threw to Wilson. With Stinson trying to steal, Davis threw the ball to the bay, the runner going all the way home. R. Staples fanned; Ryley singled and Tom Staples beat out a short bounder. The two advanced on a balk. Johnston poked one through short to score Ryley, and send Ralph to the shower. With Vannest pitching, McGill grounded down short and when Johnston interfered with the play the side was retired.

Wilson singled into right and a grounder from Davis went through second unhindered. A wild pitch allowed Wilson to score. Prest walked and Smith went down on the catcher's interference. Vannest grounded out, scoring Davis, the choice of Williams' smash failed to get Prest at the plate, and Smith counted as Crary lined out to first. G. Staples threw out Cripps.

Third Innings.

Jackson fanned, G. Staples singled, was forced at second by Reynolds and Stinson missed three.

Rooke and Wilson grounded out, Davis walked and Prest's drive was straight at Ryley.

Fourth Innings.

R. Staples singled, Ryley sent Wilson back for a high one, and Staples' failure to touch the bag after the catch, put him out. T. Staples flew out to Crary.

Smith walked and Vannest singled, both scoring on Williams' double. Cripps fanned and the pitcher threw out Rooke.

Fifth Innings.

Johnston was passed, and doubled off first on McGill's fly to Prest. Jackson skied to Williams.

Wilson was safe on R. Staples' fumble. Davis fanned. Prest's drive landed in Ryley's glove, Smith walked and Vannest struck out.

Sixth Innings.

G. Staples fanned and Reynolds flew out to Cripps. Stinson singled to right; Williams lost R. Staples' spiral inside the line. Bethany hopes for more runs soared high with Ryley coming to bat, but his best was a fly to Wilson.

Williams singled and went to second when Ryley allowed a throw from the catcher to go through. Crary fanned. Cripps tripled to left, the ball bounding away from Tom Staples. The hit scored Williams and the teams were tied. Rooke supplied the needful with a smash through short to score Cripps. Jackson came right back and fanned Wilson and Davis.

Seventh Innings.

T. Staples was thrown out by Crary, and Johnston and McGill fanned.

HOMERS FEATURE IN CLEVELAND TILT

Four Indian Pitchers Unable To Hold Yanks From Winning 14-6.

NEW YORK, June 14.—(Canadian Press).—The Yankees converted 15 hits into a 14 to 16 victory over Cleveland yesterday. Five New York home runs figured in a parade of four Indian pitchers to the mound, Pascal getting two and Lazzeri, Dugan and Collins one each. Pascal also got a triple and a double and scored five runs. Collins' homer came with the bases loaded in the sixth. Pennock had Cleveland well in hand and was not scored on until the sixth when he began to ease up. Neis hit a home run in the ninth with two Cleveland runners on bases. New York's 15 hits yesterday were good for 37 bases. The team has collected 57 home runs in 54 games.

While Crowder was holding the White Sox at Washington to three hits and a shutout, the Senators batted Blakenship and Jacobs hard for a total of ten runs. Every man in the Washington lineup made at least one hit and one run.

Van Gilder pitched an old-fashioned game against the Red Sox at Boston, and St. Louis won the second game of the series, 2 to 0. The Pitcher held Boston to five hits and his bat figured prominently in the result. In the fifth inning Van Gilder knocked a home run over the left field fence. In the third his single started a one-run rally for the Browns.

A ninth inning rally started by a triple by Eddie Collins, pinch hitting for oJe Boley, enabled the Athletics to overcome a one-run lead and land a 7 to 6 verdict over the Detroit Tigers. Collins, who had been out of the game because of an injury to his hand, scored the tying run on a sacrifice fly. Max Bishop's double, Wheat's infield single, and a pass to Cobb filled the sacks and Cochrane, who had hit a homer earlier in the game, ended the fray with a hit to centre that scored Cobb.

We know a Thoughtless Man

HE'D no more think of going into a cigar store and asking for just "cigars," or of walking into the pro's shop and asking for just "golf balls"! Not he! He's mighty particular about his cigars, golf balls and most other things.

Yet that same man will drive up in his expensive motor car to a service station and remark to the mechanic "I think I need some oil!!!"

Ordinary "oil" will give his car about as much satisfaction as an unbranded cigar would give him. Plain "oil" will give his car just about as good results as he himself could expect from a cheap, unknown golf ball.

Don't subject your car to the inferiorities of poor oil. Don't just ask for "oil." Ask for "CASTROL", which is becoming so tremendously popular in Canada.

Millions of Users

CASTROL is used by millions of motorists all over the world. It not only provides faultless lubrication, but gives 2,000 miles to the filling, not just the usual 500! CASTROL is sold by leading garages. Write for pamphlet, "Lubrication Wisdom," to Constitution Supporters Have Shown Great Strength in Ireland.

MINISTERS ELECTED.

DUBLIN, June 14 (Canadian Press).—Talk of a probable coalition government for the Irish Free State was uppermost to-day as returns continued to be reported in the general election for the new Dail. Parties supporting the constitution have shown overwhelming strength in the election. At midnight the returns were: Government 39, Fianna Fail (Republicans) 37, Labor 21, Independents 10, Farmers 8, National League 7, Sinn Fein 4.

Up to the present the following Ministers of the Government have been elected: President Cosgrave; Desmond Fitzgerald, Minister of External Affairs; Gevin O'Higgins, Vice-President of the Council; James Burke, Local Government; Patrick Hogan, Minister of Agriculture, and Finia Lynch, Minister of Fisheries.

11,000 WOUNDED FILL HOSPITALS

Physicians Fear Outbreak of Epidemics Will Follow Crowding.

HANKOW China, June 14. Canadian Press. — Eleven thousand wounded, 3,000 of them in a serious condition, are jammed in the emergenucy hospitals here. They have been returned from the Honan front where fighting has been proceeding between the northern forces and those of the local Nationalist government. Physicians fear an outbreak of summer epidemics because of the crowding and the unsanitary conditions.

STRANGLER NOT FOUND.

Man Arrested Last Night is Merely Held For Mental Examination.

WINNIPEG, June 14 (Canadian Press).—The man who was arrested last night by the police and troopers who are hunting for the slayer of the woman and girl inthis city is not the "gorilla strangler," but he is being held pending examination of his mental condition, the police state. Meanwhile the search for the strangler is being pressed by every agency at the command of the authorities. It has narrowed down to the Hutterite settlement, a short distance from Headingly. The killer is believed to be hiding in this district.

The bodies of the two victims were viewed by the Coroner's jury last night. The throat of Lola Cowan bore the killer's finger prints. Her nude body was found under the bed of the room the man sought for as "the strangler" occupied in a rooming house. The girl had been selling artificial flowers, and it is surmised that "the strangler" offered to buy her flowers if she would bring them to his room. The slayer evidently took her clothes away with him. The body was discovered on Sunday, four days after she disspeared. He took some clothing and money from the Patterson home, where Mrs. Patterson's body was found.

CLEMENCY FOR DAUDET.

Royalist Who Defied Police is Still Main Topic of Press.

PARIS, June 14.—(Canadian Press.)—An agreement to grant clemency to Leon Daudet, Royalist leader, until Bastille Day, July 4, is understood to have been reached by the Cabinet to-day, although no official announcement was made.

Mr. Daudet's surrender yesterday after three days' defiance of the authorities in the office of his paper, was still the leading feature in the press to-day. He was holding out against serving five months' imprisonment for criminal libel.

OUTLINE OF SCIENCE — CCVI—When Edison Nearly Starved. — by MAX HAHN

EARLY IN 1869 EDISON DISEMBARKED IN NEW YORK FROM THE BOSTON BOAT WITHOUT A CENT IN HIS POCKETS. PASSING A WHOLESALE TEA HOUSE, HE BEGGED A CUP OF TEA FROM ONE OF THE TASTERS EMPLOYED TO SAMPLE THE WARES. THIS HELPED TO POSTPONE STARVATION AS HE SEARCHED FOR A FRIEND.

IT HAPPENED THAT EDISON'S FRIEND ALSO WAS OUT OF WORK, BUT HE LET EDISON HAVE A DOLLAR. FEARING STARVATION, EDISON HOARDED THE 85 CENTS HE HAD LEFT AFTER BUYING A LUNCH. HE GOT PERMISSION TO SLEEP IN THE SHOP OF THE GOLD INDICATOR CO., SO THAT HE COULD USE HIS MONEY SOLELY FOR FOOD.

FOR THREE DAYS HE LOITERED ABOUT THE GOLD INDICATOR CO.'S SHOP, SLEEPING A FEW HOURS AT NIGHT AND SPENDING THE REMAINDER OF THE NIGHTS AND DAYS IN LEARNING HOW THE INDICATORS OPERATED. THESE MACHINES KEPT 300 NEW YORK BROKERS INFORMED ON THE RAPIDLY CHANGING PRICE OF GOLD. IT WAS LUCKY THAT EDISON WAS CURIOUS ABOUT THE INDICATOR SYSTEM, FOR ONE DAY THE MACHINES STOPPED SUDDENLY

IMMEDIATELY THE OFFICE WAS INVADED BY IRATE BROKERS. THE CHIEF MECHANIC WAS TOO EXCITED TO KNOW WHAT TO DO. EDISON QUICKLY VOLUNTEERED HIS AID, AND WITHIN TWO HOURS THE SYSTEM WAS OPERATING AGAIN. FOR THIS TIMELY ASSISTANCE EDISON WAS GIVEN A SALARY OF $300 A MONTH, ALTHOUGH ONLY 22 YEARS OLD.

Chamber of Commerce Has Installed New Cabinet For Pamphlets.

FREE TO ALL.

Citizens Planning Vacations May Investigate and Plan Their Routes.

A new booklet cabinet has been installed by the Chamber of Commerce for the use of tourists and citizens. This cabinet is equipped with racks for holding the separate books of information, including those of the Kawartha Lake District, Trent Canal System, Dominion of Canada, British Columbia, and Georgian Bay. These booklets have been supplied by the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways, the Natural Resources Intelligence Service at Ottawa, and some of by the local branch of the Chamber of Commerce.

In speaking to The Examiner this morning, the secretary remarked that these books have been placed there for the benefit of citizens and tourists, and it is the wish of the executive of the Chamber of Commerce that their members and everyone interested will take advantage of this opportunity to obtain literature of the two countries, Canada and the United States. The great bulk of this material is to be supplied free, and if any citizens intends to take motor trips to the United States this summer, literature will be supplied from this new cabinet of any part in that country.

WEDDING BELLS.

SMITH—HOPCROFT.

In a report of a wedding given the Examiner yesterday an inadvertent error was made in the names. The report, which should not have included the names of John Prosper Paquette or Kathleen C. Sadler, should read as follows:

OBITUARY

JEROME K. JEROME

NORTHAMPTON, England, June 14 (Canadian Press)—Jerome K. Jerome, noted British author, died at a local hospital today from cerebral hemorrhage.

Mr. Jerome, who was also a noted playwright, was perhaps best known for his "Three Men in a Boat." He was first a clerk, then school master, later turning actor and finally journalist, becoming editor of The Idler and Today. One of his plays is successful: "The Passing of the Third Floor Back."

MRS. MARY CAVANAGH.

The death occurred on Saturday afternoon of Mrs. Mary Cavanagh, one of the oldest residents of this community, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Roger Torpey, 585 Elm street.

The late Mrs. Cavanagh, who was in her 90th year, was born in the State of Vermont, and came to this country when a child, with her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Peter Flood, to settle in the township of Ennismore, and endure all the hardships of the early settlers. Twenty-one years ago she came to reside in Peterborough, where she made many friends.

Her husband, the late James Cavanagh, died several years ago, leaving her with eight small children to fight the battles of life, but with her cheerful disposition, strong faith and trust in God, she succeeded, and endeared herself to all who knew her. It could be truly said that her whole life was a preparation for death Always ready to assist and comfort those in sorrow and need, she was rewarded with a most beautiful and happy death sanctified with all the rites of her holy religion and surrounded by her family, who dearly loved her, and gave her the care of a most tender child.

She leaves to mourn her loss, three daughters, one son and twelve grandchildren: Mrs. James Kearney, Mrs. Roger Torpey and Miss Annie, all of Peterborough; and William F. Cavanagh, of Ennismore. Two daughters and two sons predeceased her some years ago.

The funeral was held on Monday morning at nine o'clock to St. Peter's Cathedral, where requiem mass was sung by Rev. Cyril Carroll, a relative of the deceased, and proceeded to St. Martin's cemetery, Ennismore, where Rev. Fathery Corkery officiated. The large number who attended the funeral was an evidence of the high esteem in which the deceased was held. The pall-bearers were T. Cavanagh, E. Murphy, D. Hayes, J. Hoar, J. Roach and M. Torpey.

The Corinth Canal was started by Nero about 2,000 years ago. The project was abandoned and finally completed in 1893.

The regular monthly meeting of the North Monaghan Council was held at the Court House, Peterborough, on Monday, June 13th, all the members of the Council being present. The minutes of the last three meetings were accepted as read.

Moved by Mr. Hunter and seconded by Mr. Kent, that the Reeve and Clerk interview the insurance company re loans for school purposes. Mr. Paxton, of the Globe Indemnity Company of Toronto, was present in the interests of securing a renewal of Policy No. 162,481 ,which has been in effect for the past two years. Moved by Mr. Hunter, seconded by Mr. Dobbin, that we receive the request of Mr. Paxton, and that we lay this matter over for further consideration.

Mr. Thomas Henry, sanitary inspector, township relief officer, and school attendance officer, made a full report of the work done by him since his appointment in January. In regard to the sanitary inspector, Mr. Henry reported that he had gone over the greater part of the ground three times. He also reported that the dump ground needs more attention.

Reeve Lillico presented a bill from the Nicholls Hospital for the care of a woman admitted from 305 McDonnel Street. The Clerk was instructed to notify the Hospital that this patient is not a resident of the municipality, and that the Council will not be responsible for this account.

Moved by Mr. Hunter, seconded by Mr. Kent, that Mr. Henry, township relief officer, be and is hereby instructed to look after and to notify all persons that are generally dependent on public charity to prepare themselves for the next winter, as this Council intends to abolish the present generous system of dispensing charity.

Moved by Mr. Hunter, seconded by Mr. Dobbin,, that whereas the assessor, Mr. John McIntosh, who is at present with us to-day has pointed out the very great difficulty in verifying the lands liable for sale on Plan 40, that the Reeve, the Assessor and the Clerk be appointed a committee to try and get the arrears on taxes of Plan 40 in shape so that this property may be sold by the Council, property may be sold by the County in the fall of 1927. That they ask for the assistance of a County Clerk, and that they call on the Registrar for information regarding the title, and that the said meeting be held at the call of the Reeve.

Reeve Lillico now called upon Mr. Norman Moncrief, who was present. Mr. Moncrief said that he had a bill against the township for the breaking of a battery on Concession 11 and also for drawing out cars stuck on this road.

Mr. Kent reported re tools and materials which had been stored some time at Mr. Mahoney's. Mr. Kent also reported that Mr. Mahoney would not give anything for the material, and that he took what remained of it to his own premises. Mr. J. T. O'Connell wrote asking the Council to have culverts put in front of his property in the township.

Moved by Mr. Hunter, seconded by Mr. Kent, that the Council is not responsible for maintaining culverts in front of Mr. O'Connell's property or any other person's property; and that the Township is not responsible for accidents on private approaches and that the Township is not responsible for accidents on private approaches.

The accountant of the Utilities Commission wrote the Clerk asking for assistance in the collection of $82.43 for the electric light bill due by a ratepayer of the township. It was moved by Mr. Kent, seconded by Mr. Dobbin, that the amount authorized by this Council for expenditure on the Smith boundary shall not exceed the sum of $75.00 for 1927, and that this Council will not pay any extras, so that the Clerk will notify the Reeve of Smith Township in regard to the above allowance.

By-law No. 899, to provide for the issue of debentures for the purchase of a site and the erection of a new school in School Section No. 2 of the said Township of North Monaghan for the sum of $30,000 was regularly read and finally passed. The debentures will cover a period of twenty years, and the rate of interest will be 5 per cent.

The meeting then adjourned for supper at 6.30 p.m.

At 7.30 p.m. the Council resumed business, and the following bills were passed for payment:

Higgin Hardware Co., shovels, $3.00; Kingan Hardware Co., supplies, 83c; Peter Hamilton Co., plough points, $1.80; Registrar of Deeds, searches by the Assessor, $3.04; Trebilcock Bros., supplies, $2.40; Harry Seabrook, taxi service, $7.00.

The following charity bills were passed for payment: W. J. Byers, $9.74; W. J. Byers, $3.21.

The petitioners for the sewer and water main on the Provincial Highway were present as follows: Messrs. John MacDonald, James Juby, Earl Moncrief, George Grange, Bert Sanderson, E. H .White, and G. W. Hatton, Mr. E. A. Peck, M.P., was present, as was also R. L. Dobbin, engineer of Utilities Commission, and R. H. Parsons, city engineer. The costs of the proposed water main and of the sewer on the Provincial Highway for a distance of three hundred feet west of the present main and sewer were submitted to the ratepayers present for their consideration and approval. The estimated cost of the said water main being $1,800 for the six hundred feet, and an additional cost of $1.25 per foot for the service price. The estimated cost of the sewer being $3.50 per foot. The estimated cost of a six-inch private connection from the sewer in the centre of the street to the street line is $25.00; there will be also an additional annual charge of $20.00 for the use of the said sewer by residents of the township.

The Council resolved to leave this matter of the laying of the water main and sewer main in the hands of the petitioners present at the meeting, with the result that all those present voted in favour with going ahead with the work. The petitioners present were also unanimous that the costs of the construction of connections with the water main be equalized and that all those petitioners who are now asking for connection of the said water main pay an equal share of the cost thereof. This condition in equalizing the cost of the connection to the water main is brought about by the proposal of the Utilities Commission to lay the said water main on one side of the street.

The Peterborough Utilities Commission reserves the right to lay the water main and connections. The City Engineering Department, however, are unable to lay the sewer, but City Engineer Parsons has agreed to prepare plans and specifications for the said sewer. The Council will then look for some contractor to do the work.

By-law No. 900 was introduced, regularly read and finally passed, authorizing the Reeve and Treasurer to enter into an agreement with Bank of Nova Scotia for a current loan for $30,000 for the purpose of furnishing the School Board for School Section No. 2 with funds to enable them to proceed with the erection of the new school until the debentures are sold. The debentures shall also be issued for the proposed water main and the sewer on the Provincial Highway, and the said debentures shall be for a period of fifteen years. The following allowances for meetings and committee meetings and salaries for the half-year were passed as follows:

R. T .Lillico, $54.00; R. A. Dobbin, $54.00; T .N. Hunter, $48.00; W. G. Waterman, $48.00; Andrew Kemp, $54.00; Bruce Johnston, clerk and treasurer, $450.00; John McIntosh, assessor, $112.50; T. B. Henry, sanitary inspector, school attendance officer, and township relief officer, $100.00.

NEILSON WINS IN GROVE SWIM

Lakefield Preparatory School Long Distance Race Draws 13 Entries.

Cheered on by schoolmates, Derrick Neilson, of Toronto, defeated thirteen entrants in the one mile long distance swim held in Lakefield yesterday afternoon at The Grove, Lakefield Preparatory School, across the lake of Katchewanooka that borders the beautiful grounds of this boys' school. Lind, also of Toronto, only thirteen years of age, was the second man to finish, with Griffiths of Montreal, only ten yards behind, fighting for supremacy over Lind.

Thirteen boys started the swim and ten completed the mile course. This race is a very important event in the history of The Grove, as the entrants were competing for a cup donated some time ago by C. Strickland, the first old boy to swim across the lake.

A fast hundred yards race was staged this morning, and Neilson again showed his skill in the water by being the first man to cross the line, with Griffiths only five yards behind for second place.

Acute Weakness Strikes On Heels Of Heavy Sales

NEW YORK, June 14 (Canadian Press). — Acute weakness developed in to-day' stock market because of heavy selling believed to have been inspired largely by the unexpected large increase last week of more than $56,000 in brokers 'loans which are now within $23,000,000 of the record high for all time, established early last year.

High-priced shares were the hardest hit, South Porto Rican Sugar old stock, broke nine points; Commercial Solvents B. 8½, General Motors and Baldwin extended their early losses to 7½ points each, and Dupont, Houston Oil, International Harvester, and several others sold down five points or more. Rails sold down with the Industrials.

Leaders Are Unsettled; Weakness In Whole List

TORONTO, June 14 (Canadian Press).—Unsettlement of the active leaders on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning was responsible for a weaker tendency throughout the list, only one or two issues registering advances, these being fractional. Brazilian led the decline, closing with a net loss of 3⅜ points at 166½ after dropping as low as 164. Nearly 8,000 shares of International Nickel changed hands during the morning, the issue closing at 67⅛ for a loss of 1⅞. Bell Telephone declined 1¾ at 147¾, Massey Harris 1⅜at 39, while Goodyear Preferred and Kelvinator Preferred each lost a point at 102 and 88 respectively. Recessions of less than a point were recorded by Brantford Cordage, Cosmos Common and Preferred, Davies A, Seagram, Shredded Wheat, Gooderham and Worts, Imperial Oil and McColl. Fractional gains were made by Northern Bakeries, British American Oil and Hayes Wheel.

Mining Trading Quiet; Gains and Losses Even

TORONTO, June 14. — (Canadian Press).—Trading was quiet on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning, with gains and losses being about evenly distributed. Noranda was fairly active and dropped back ten points at 26.65, while similar losses were registered by Nipissing and Lake Shore at 5.65 and 19.80. Potter Doal continued to decline, losing four points, with the noon close at 19. Mining Corporation on a few transactions moved up ten cents to 3.40. Dome Mines gained five cents at 7.45, and Hollinger a similar amount at 19.90.

Low Liverpool Prices Contribute To Slump

CHICAGO, June 14. — (Canadian Press).—Unexpected relative weakness of Liverpool quotations had an early bearish effect to-day on the wheat markets here. Besides, optimism was expressed regarding the beneficial influence of rain in parts of Kansas. Starting at 1-8 cent to ¾ cent off, Chicago wheat underwent a further sag and then rallied to about yesterday's finish. Corn and oats developed strength, corn starting at 1-8 cent decline to 5-8 cent gain, and later advancing all around. Provisions were steady.

Opening prices: Wheat, July 144⅝, Sept. 143 5-8; corn. July 96¾, Sept. 102¾; oats, July 47 3-8, Sept. 47¼.

NO CASES HEARD AT SESSION OF COURT HELD HERE TO-DAY

Adjournment Made When All Jury Cases Report Not Ready.

SIXTEEN ON DOCKET.

His Honor Judge McGlade is Presiding at June Sessions.

With sixteen cases entered for trial, the first sitting of the June Sessions of the Peace and the County Court of Peterborough adjourned to-day at 3.20 until 9.30 to-morrow.

Five jury cases were entered; one of these, Leach versus Sprague, was settled out of court. None of the others could be proceeded with on account of the absence of, in some cases, one or other of the principal parties, and in another the absence of a material witness.

"Are there any cases at all which we can proceed with?" plaintively asked the presiding judge, His Honor Judge J. E. McGlade of Cobourg, but as it had been confidently anticipated by the various counsel that the jury cases would occupy the first day of the sittings of the court, none of the eleven non-jury cases were available for presentation.

The Grand Jury was empannelled as follows:

J. J. Turner (foreman), Peterborough; G. R. Coleman, Peterborough; John Douglas, Peterborough; Alexander Grant, Peterborough; G. W. Green, Peterborough; Edward Hyland, Peterborough; H. Hodgins, Peterborough; H. Nigh, Peterborough J. J. Young, Ennismore; Robert Tanner, Chandos; James Lobb, Dummer; A. W. Northey, Harvey

DE VALERA IS PLEASED WITH PARTY SUCCESS

Says Government Has Suffered Signal Defeat at the Polls.

STANDING 45-44.

O'Higgins Says People Showed Allegiance To Treaty With Britain.

DUBLIN, June 15 (Canadian Press) Eamon de Valera, head of the Fianna Fail wing of the Republican party, is pleased with the result of the Free State election. In a statement issued last night, he said, the Government had suffered a signal defeat and that the successful candidates of his party would take their seats. The people, he added, would not tolerate their being barred by a penal oath of allegiance to the King.

On the other hand, Kevin O'Higgins, Vice-President of the Free State Cabinet, asserted that the electorate by a two to one majority showed its allegiance to the treaty with Britain and the Constitution. Except for Fianna Fail and Sinn Fein all parties in the election support the Constitution but are widely divided on other issues. The Government has now 45 seats and Fianna Fail 44.

"I may be in Australia within ten days," Black continued.

BRITAIN DOES NOT SHARE IN PESSIMISM OVE R DISARMAMENT

Dr. Stresemann, of Germany, Declares Accord is Imperative.

LEAGUE MENACED.

Discussion Centres Around Report of Preparatory Disarmament Commission.

GENEVA, June 15 (Canadian Press). — A serious blow will be delivered at the prestige of the League of Nations unless the disarmament negotiations are given a new impetus Foreign Minister Stresemann of Germany declared in a vehement speech before the League Council to-day, when M. Bones presented the report of the Preparatory Disarmament Commission.

Dr. Streemann stated that the report clearly indicated the cause of disarmament had not been advanced. He warned the Council of the urgent need of reaching an accord on vital disarmament problems when the second reading is given in November to the draft treaty prepared by the Commission.

"The solution of the disarmament question, which appeared so simple a few years ago, now seems to be definitely defered," he said. "The very existence of the League depends upon a general reduction in armaments."

Foreign Minister Vandervelde of Belgium agreed with Dr. Stresemann that political conditions at the time made a solution of the problem imperative.

Sir Austen Chamberlain, British Foreign Secretary, said Lord Cecil, the British disarmament delegate, did not share in the popular pessimism over the results of the disarmament negotiations.

To Prevent War.

Statesmen attending the League Council meeting are reported increasingly convinced that the time has arrived to take preventive steps to avert an outbreak of war in Europe.

Fear of such an eventuality is mainly inspired by the reported attitude of Soviet Russia, following the diplomatic break with Britain and the assassination of the Soviet Minister to Poland. Another situation has also presented itself in the break of diplomatic relations between Jugo-Slavia and Albania.

Ministers Meet To Talk About European Affairs

GENEVA, June 15 (Canadian Press). — The Foreign Ministers of Great Britain, France, Germany and Belgium, and also representatives of Italy and Japan, met privately yesterday evening, and for two hours discussed the general European political situation ,but especially the problem of the Rhineland occupation.

Later they issued a common communique, limited to revealing that they will meet again at five o'clock this afternoon. M. Briand, however, added that he hoped today to reach agreements on the questions at issue.

Allied supervision of the dismantling of German fortresses, it is understood, is one of the questions to be considered, and the German spokesman indicated that Germany would accept some modified arrangement.

FACTORIES ASK HIGHER TARIFF

Canadian Woollen and Knit Goods Manufacturers Present Case.

DUTY NOT ENOUGH.

OTTAWA, June 15 (Canadian Press). — Representing Canadian woollen and knit goods manufacturers in their application for increased tariff before the Tariff Board to-day, F. H. Phippen declared that there was a market in Canada for approximately $40,000,000 worth of cloth, and that Canadian mills produced only 30 per cent. of the clothing consumed. He claimed that by working days only, the mills now operating could produce 50 per cent. of the requirements, and said there would be no difficulty in producing 65 per cent. of the requirements.

The reason, he argued, why Canadian mills did not obtain a greater proportion of the home market was that production costs were lower in Europe than in Canada, and that the Canadian duties were not sufficient to allow for this. Increased duties, Mr. Phippen asserted, would result in increased employment in Canada, and would not increase the cost to the consumer.

PERJURY IS CHARGED TO ROCCO PERRI

Eight Counts Against the Self-Styled King of Bootleggers.

ON CUSTOMS INQUIRY.

Wife is Also Accused of Perjury in Evidence Before Commission.

TORONTO, June 15 (Canadian Press).—Rocco Perri of Hamilton and his wife, sought for three weeks on a charge of perjury in connection with their evidence before the Royal Customs Commission today surrendered to the police in the office of Assistant Crown Attorney Edward Murphy. They were accompanied from Hamilton by their counsel, M. J. O'Reilly, K.C.

Perri, self styled "King of Bootleggers," and his wife, Bessie, appeared in Police Court where Mr. Murphy requested and obtained a remand until July 28. On pledging to appear on that date accused were allowed out on cash bail of $10,000

Mr. Murphy explained that the long remand was necessary for completion of evidence to be offered against the accused.

Information against Perri was laid by Albert J. Cawbron, Superintendent of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, and it contains eight charges of having committed perjury in testifying before the Royal Customs Commission on April 4.

Two informations were laid against Mrs. Perri. In one she is charged with falsely swearing before the Commission that the only bank account which she had under any name was that with the Canadian Bank of Commerce in Hamilton. In other information there are eight charges of swearing false.

First: That he said he had not been engaged in any business or occupation since 1920.

Second: That since 1920 he had been living on his private income and had done nothing to supplement that income.

Third: That he did not state to the representative of a Toronto newspaper in November, 1924 that he was in the bootlegging business.

Fourth: That he said he was not engaged in the bootlegging business in 1924, nor had he been engaged in the bootlegging business for a long time prior to 1924.

Fifth: That he never ordered any liquor over the telephone.

Sixth: That he never buys any liquor.

Seventh: That Mrs. Perri did not put through any telephone calls for shipments of liquor which were sent in the name of J. Benna.

Eighth: That he did not know what business Mike Barnado was engaged in.

War Can't Be Trusted to Produce Justice; Sir John Simon Says Arbitration Needed

LONDON, June 15 (UCnited Press). — The terrible thing about war is not its cruelty or its crippling expenditures, but the fact that it cannot be relied on to produce justice, Sir John Simon, former Attorney-General of Great Britain, and one of England's most noted lawyers, said in an address last night. He spoke before the Peace Society at the Guildhall in advance of the naval arms limitation conference at Geneva.

"That is the fundamental fact which must always be remembered when we consider arguments for some substitute for war," Sir John said.

"If we mean to find a substitute for war, there is but one way to look, and that is in the direction of arbitration."

MANY MOTORISTS TEST BRAKES AND JOIN SAFE DRIVERS' CLUB

Forty-two Cars Go Over the Jumps on Water Street in One Afternoon.

KIWANIANS WORK.

Thirty-four Pairs of Headlights Tried Out and Properly Adjusted.

Forty-two cars had their brakes tested at the testing ground on Water street yesterday afternoon, in the campaign being conducted by Kiwanis Club. Last night thirty-four cars had their headlights tested on the ground laid out by the City Engineer. Cards were issued showing the adjustment, needed, if any, and owners of cars are at liberty to have the repairs made at any garage and with any material they choose, or not to have the adjustment made at all if they do not wish to profit by the information given by the tests.

Minor adjustments of headlights are made by mechanics at the time of testing.

A display of safety posters has been arranged in the south window of The Examiner office, by W. H. Dickin, a member of the Safety Committee of Kiwanis Club. In it may be seen a pair of crutches reserved for the first jay-walker who is unfortunate enough to be caught.

The streets were given attention last night when Kiwanians stencilled safety signs at some of the most dangerous crossings.

More Clergy Needed For Work Overseas

LONDON, England, June 15 (Canadian Press Cable). — Two hundred and twenty additional clergy are required for service overseas; fifty thousand pounds sterling is needed annually for church work, and a capital sum of two hunded and fifty thousand pounds sterling is required to form new dioceses ,declared Rt. Rev. St. Clair C. Donaldson Bishop of Salisbury, in submitting the fifth world call report at the London Diocesan Conference here yesterday.

Rt. Rev. Arthur Foley Winnington Ingram, Bishop of London, stated that the work of the churches in North-West, Canada would die out if they were not helped. In establishing branches of the Church in new areas on the Prairies, brotherhoods should be fostered by the Church, and Empire settlement schemes should receive greater support, he said.

"The difficulty is that we cannot get young people to stir from England. If young people are sent out and properly looked after, they will get a ten times better chance in Australia or Canada," Rt. Rev. Ingram said.

MOSCOW SAYS REPORTS 'ROT'

SOVIET ANNOYED.

MOSCOW, June 15 (Canadian Press). — Despatches from Warsaw and other centres published abroad reporting a reign of terror in Russia were characterized by official Soviet circles today as "sensational and rot."

Rumors Current

LONDON, June 15 (Canadian Press).—Rumors of a new terror in Russia with summary executions, wholesale arrests, drastic military preparations, an impending declaration of martial law and crowds of foreigners fleeing from Moscow, are current here. They emanate from Warsaw, Riga and other centres which are notoriously given to circulating anti-Soviet reports and which are based on reports which could not be substantiated to-day.

Court Again Delayed; Counsel Not Ready To Present 16 Suits

Absences of Material Witnesses and Principals Hold Up Sessions of the Peace—Judge McGlade Intimates That Start Must Be Made This Afternoon.

JOHN J. TURNER PRESENTS COMPLETE REPORT OF GRAND JURY ON COUNTY INSTITUTIONS

Another Helper and More Comforts Suggested For House of Refuge to Make Lives of Old People Easier—Judge Points Out Responsibility Of County Council.

At 10.55 this forenoon the June Sessions of the Peace and the County Court adjourned until 2 p.m. without having considered any of the sixteen cases on the docket. Absences of material witnesses and of some of the principals were the causes assigned by the lawyers in explanation of their inability to proceed.

"Are any of you gentlemen ready to go on?" asked His Honor Judge J. E. McGlade. "Now don't all speak at once," he added, as none of the legal lights present showed any undue eagerness to begin. "If this extraordinary state of affairs continues," remarked His Honor, "I don't know how long the good humor of the Court will last."

His Honor also intimated that both he and Judge Huycke were desirous that all the counsel concerned with the non-jury cases would meet with the judges to arrange dates for a special sitting for consideration of these cases. His Honor also intimated that such cases as were not disposed of by July 15 would stand over until the September sitting of the Court.

Expressing his regrets to the jurymen, His Honor said: "These learned gentlemen are responsible for the position in which you and the Court are placed. Perhaps," he added hopefully, "the clouds will lift before the day is much more advanced."

In announcing his intention to adjourn the Court, His Honor intimated that a start would be made with the business at 2 o'clock. The tone of His Honor's voice hinted a determination to brook no further delay.

The reading of the report of the Grand Jury came as a welcome relief.

Grand Jury Report

The report of the Grand Jury was as follows:

"To His Honor, Judge J. E. McGlade:

May it please your Honor:

We the Grand Jury empanelled according to law to co-operate with you to investigate and report on the institutions receiving support of public moneys, have made careful inspection and wish to report as follows:

In your address you referred to a suggestion made by some one, that the laws be amended to dispense with the work of the Grand Jury and to some extent Petit Juries. You pointed out the value of the system of law as we have it at the present time and thought due consideration had not been given to the suggestion of changing, before submitting the statement to the public.

The consensus of public opinion and the weight of editorials have all been directed against any change and your endorsement of the system of Grand Juries and Petit Juries is in agreement with our thought on the same subject.

The system is old and tried and has reached a high point of efficiency in the British system of law. You stressed the value of the Jury System as the representatives of the City and County to investigate and report on public institutions, whether they are functioning as intended and in this we see good, a channel to establish confidence in the public mind as to the expenditure of monies out of the Public Treasury by various bodies elected to manage and control the business of the community.

You stated the examination of our institutions was not to be perfunctory but careful and thoroughly done ,that a true report might be presented of each institution as we found them with such suggestions as we though might conduce to the happiness and safety of those confined therein—having in mind the exception of the County Jail which was a place of detention, expected to be comfortable and sanitary, yet not intended to be measured with the standard of the home; on the other hand it is most desirable to see the homes for children, the aged and infirm are comfortable, sanitary and properly equipped to carry on the work, in which they are engaged.

The hospitals also would be inspected and included in our report.

We first visited the County Jail and found: 1 insane foreigner; 3 men; 3 women.

We understand from Gosler Nesbitt the insane man will be deported to the Government just as soon as the necessary arrangements have been

DOMINION DAY WATER SPORTS PLANNED TO BE BIGGEST EVER

Aquatic Demonstration Will Be Biggest Part of Half Day List.

CONTESTS ARRANGED.

All Popular Water Events To Be Indulged With Suitable Prizes.

The aquatic sports to be held in this city on Dominion Day, July 1st, are to be the biggest and best ever staged in Peterborough, the programme including practically every line of water games and races possible to put on. The sports are to begin at 9.30 and last all the forenoon in the area of water in front of the George Street Wharf and below the C.P.R. bridge.

There are to be some competition events, but the biggest part of the programme will constitute an aquatic demonstration. One special feature will be the log-rolling contest to be staged by the river drivers. This will provide plenty of fun for the spectators and thrills for the participants, but it will also bring back memories of the old river driving days on the Otonabee to the city's older residents.

A water polo game will then be put on, and following this will be swimming races for men and girls.

A huge tower is to be built from which both boys and girls will take high and fancy dives. Following this the fast motor boats will race, and one boat is to provide plenty of thrills by jumping a raft placed in the water as an obstacle, and like the ski jumper, the boat will strike it at a terrific speed, and clearing the raft, land in the water on the other side. [illegible] is now under way to give an exhibition of aquaplaning, that is, one member will be towed on a toboggan-like piece of wood behind a swift motor launch.

Although not sure of the following plan, Claude Rogers told The Examiner this morning that an effort had been made to have a man or girl on skis riding behind a fast enough boat to keep the skis on top of the water. If an exhibit such as this can be given, the person on skis must be very skilled in the art to be able to maintain his balance. Another idea that is under way is that the motor boat that will take the jump will also pull an aquaplane behind it, thus making a double jump with the launch and the aquaplane.

Open canoe races will also be held for valuable prizes. A complete list of the prize list will be published at a later date. The committee in charge of this programme has also arranged for a band to be present, and with the above programme for all to enjoy, a large crowd is expected by the committee to be present. Nothing of this kind has ever been so extensively put on for the benefit of the citizens of Peterborough.

THE WEATHER

Lowest temperature last night, 45° highest point yesterday, 70°. Lately there has been very little variation in temperature one day with another. It still continues unseasonably cool. Last night, or more correctly this morning from 2 a.m., to daybreak, there was an eclipse of the moon, "fair Luna," as the poets call her, setting in the west totally covered by the round shadow of the earth. The night was particularly clear and sparkling, and the spectacle was a beautiful one. Better proof of the rotundity of the earth could not be required than to see the earth's shadow slowly encroach on the bright surface of the full moon, and finally completely cover it.—W. P.

Three Citizens of Lands Far and Near Make Application in Court For Naturalization

Giving evidence on his own behalf in his appeal for naturalization in the County Court yesterday before Judge McGlade, Moses Samuel Zacks took the oath in Jewish fashion. When called upon to swear he stepped from the witness-stand, picked up his cap, returned to the box and took the oath on the Old Testament.

There was a touch of pathos in his account of his family. His wife is still in Poland, and Mr. Zacks, in explanation of the fact, stated that they had a little daughter who was unable to pass the medical tests imposed under the authority of the Immigration Department—hence Mrs. Zacks was compelled to remain with her child in Europe.

Canada gets a bit of her own back from the United States, in the person of Daniel Leonard, whose application for naturalization also came up yesterday. Mr. Leonard states that he was born in Vermont, the son of a French Canadian who became a naturalized American. Mr. Leonard came here many years ago to work for the Vermont Marble Company. He intended to remain only three months; but had lived in Peterborough ever since.

In both these cases and in that of a third, Dominic Caravaggio, favorable evidence as to the character of the applicants was given by Police Sergeant W. E. Wigg. His Honor intimated that all the applications would be granted.

JUDGE M'GLADE SAYS A WORD ON BEHALF OF PRESENT SYSTEM IN HIS CHARGE TO GRAND JURY

Originated in Primitive Beginnings of Civilization Among Men.

TRIAL BY PEERS.

Attained Highest Development in Old Land and British Dominions.

A defence of the jury system marked the charge of His Honor Judge J. E. McGlade to the Grand Jury at the sitting of the June Sessions of the Peace and the Peterborough County Court which opened yesterday in the Court Room of the County Buildings.

His Honor said he did not desire to make nor did the Grand Jury desire to hear a long speech on their duties. He was glad to say that their task would not be so heavy as it might well have been. There was one criminal case before the court which under ordinary circumstances would have necessitated being dealt with by the Grand Jury for the purpose of determining whether the person ought to be placed on trial. In the instance they had to deal with, the young man had been convicted by the Magistrate and had appealed the case to the Second Divisional Court at Osgoode Hall which had quashed the conviction and had ordered a re-trial before the country court with judge and jury. His Honor said that the counsel on either side had discussed the matter with him and by common consent they had agreed that under the terms of the order, it was not necessary that the Grand Jury should be called on to bring in a True Bill or No Bill, so that their labors would be lightened to that extent.

Originated in Primitive

He wanted to refer first to some discussion in the province seven months ago when it was suggested that the Grand Jury should be done away with and that the petit jury might also be left off to some extent. His Honor was happy to tell the jurymen that in the discussion which followed, it seemed to be the concensus of opinion of men learned in the law and of the press that the gentleman who made the statement had not given to the matter all the consideration to which it was entitled.

If any of them had studied the rise of the jury system, they would agree that the offices filled by the Grand Jury were intended to be important to the nation. It was popularly believed that the jury system had had its origin within the British Dominions. That was not at all correct. History related that in the primitive beginnings of all people there had existed something akin to the jury system. Before laws were established at all, among those nations that laid claim to civilization, the opinion was that not only in criminal offences was a man entitled to a trial by his peers, but likewise in civil affairs, and so juries evolved. It was, however, true to say that within the British Dominions and especially in the Old Land the jury system reached its highest development.

Investigate Institutions

He reminded the jury that they were the representatives selected in the manner prescribed by the law to represent the City and County of Peterborough in order that they might investigate and report to the court their findings as to the manner in which the public institutions of the city and county were conducted, especially those institution which were in receipt of public funds, such as jails, hospitals, houses of industry, and orphanages, if any.

Their inspection was not to be of a cursory nature. It was not to be merely a general walk around. His Honor wished the Grand Jury to pay special attention to the homes for the aged and for the orphans. It was their duty to see that these poor and afflicted ones received all the attention that they required.

There was another public institution which was here and everywhere. He referred to the jail, where were detained those unfortunates who had broken the law of the land. It was not expected that the jail would be a de-luxe hotel. They were not called upon to see that the prisoners got all the luxuries that were going, but they were entitled to get reasonable accommodation and proper wholesome food. The Grand Jury was called upon to perform a public duty. Under our system of Government one of the best safeguards was to know the manner in which public money was being expended, and that poor afflicted ones were being looked after in a proper manner.

Jury Notice Struck Out

On an application by Joseph Wearing, the jury notice in the case of Sherwood Gerow versus the Purdy Lumber Company was struck out, in spite of an obepction by the opposing counsel; B. E. Park. Mr. Wearing said the action which was for wages and disbursements made was one of those long drawn-out cases which were so tedious that they almost put the judge to sleep. Mr. Wearing quoted a number of precedents in support of his contention that the case was merely a matter of law to be argued before a judge, and stated that the practice of striking out the jury notices was increasing in comercial cases.

Judge McGlade will hear the case on a day which will be convenient to all concerned.

STUDENT'S BLOW KILLED HOUDINI

It Is Said He Dared Student To Hit Him.

NEW YORK, N.Y., June 15.—(United Press).— The ate Harry Houdini, famous magician, died from the result of a blow delivered by a student of McGill College, Montreal, according to officials of the New York Life Insurance Company who have paid the magician's widow $25,000 as accident indemnity. The agent who wrote Houdini's accident policy described in detail the blow that is said to have caused the magician's death, and which yielded Mrs. Beatrice Houdini $25,000 in addition to $86,000 in straight life insurance.

He said that Houdini while in a dressing room of the Princess Theatre, Montreal, dared a McGill student to hit him and that the student playfully gave him a blow in the region of the appendix, which caused a rupture and brought on his death.

COMMISSION SESSION ENDS AT MONTREAL

Customs Board To Open Sittings at Quebec on Thursday.

LAST FOR TWO DAYS.

Paid Egan $8,998, Says Secretary-Treasurer of Consolidated Distilleries.

MONTREAL, Que., June 15 (Canadian Press).—Sittings of the Royal Customs Commission in Montreal closed last evening. About two weeks have been devoted to the inquiry here. The Commission will now move to Quebec where sittings will open on Thursday morning. It is expected that they will occupy only two days, and that the inquiry, insofar as the Province of Quebec is concerned, will be concluded at the end of the week. Then the Commission will move to St. John, N.B., to open there on or about Tuesday, June 21. After the St. John sittings, Halifax will be visited. The Commissioners will make the trip to the Maritime Provinces by motor car.

Yesterday's sitting was devoted largely to questioning officials of the Consolidated Distilleries of Montreal. In the afternoon, James G. Lawrence, secretary treasurer of this company, gave the total amount of payments made to W. M. Egan, former Windsor, Ont., lawyer, by the Consolidated Distilleries, as $8,998. Egan, he said, received a commission of $2.00 a case on orders which he sent into the company.

Asked to Buy Liquor

Mr Lawrence was asked by Hon. N. W. Rowell, K.C., Commission Counsel to explain a transaction with Mr. Egan involving the exchange of $24,800. Mr. Lawrence said that, in the month of October, 1924, the Consolidated Distilleries had received from Mr. Egan the sum of $24,800 to purchase liquor. He believed that in this transaction Egan was acting for some Windsor, Ont., liquor exporters. On the day after the money was received from Egan, however, the Consolidated Distilleries decided not to participate in the transaction, so, he said, the money was returned to Egan.

"Why did you not go into the proposed transaction?" asked Mr. Rowell.

Mr. Lawrence replied that his company understood that Egan and his associates proposed disposing of the liquor in Quebec. This might have caused trouble.

In earlier testimony, Mr. Lawrence revealed the fact that political contributions of the Consolidated Distilleries from June, 1923, to the end of December, 1926, totalled over $380,000. Payments were made to both parties.

"Even-handed justice," interjected Commissioner Wright.

Another liquor company which came under brief review yesterday afternoon was the Dominion Distilleries, Ltd. A. E. Nash, auditor for the Commission, filed a report covering operations of this company from May 1, 1926, to March 31, 1927. Mr. Rowell explained to the Commission that the company under review had been investigated extensively by the Parliamentary Committee, and that the auditor's report was concerned only with transactions subsequent to the parliamentary inquiry.

GARDEN PARTY WELL ATTENDED

St. Andrew's Girl Guides Hold Festive Evening.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 15. — Although the afternoon was a little on the cool side and the skies above threatening rain, the garden party in aid of St. Andrew's Girl Guides drew a goodly crowd, and everyone enjoyed the company in which they found themselvs, as well as the nice cup of tea, the tasty sandwiches, and the cake like mother used to make.

HOW TO REDUCE VARICOSE VEINS

Rub Gently and Upward Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way.

Many people have become despondent because they have been led to believe that there is no remedy that will help reduce swollen veins and bunches.

If you will get a two-ounce original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) at any first class drug store and apply it night and morning as directed you will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunches are reduced to normal.

Moone's Emerald Oil is a harmless, yet most powerful germicide and two ounces last a very long time. Indeed, so powerful is Emerald Oil that old chronic cases of Piles are often entirely absorbed and anyone who is disappointed with its use can have their money refunded. Bond's Drug Store, McDermid Co., Ltd., and McDermid & Jury sells lots of it.

SPECIAL SERVICE AT CAMPBELLFORD

Closing of Forty Hours' Devotion Marked at St. Mary's Church.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 15.—The Forty Hours' adoration of the Blessed Sacrament in memory of the forty hours during which the sacred body of Jesus was in the Sepulchre, began at Milan about the year 1534. It soon spread into the other cities of Italy and throughout the Catholic world; and to-day it is the universal devotion of the Catholic Church.

The closing of the "Forty Hours" brought large numbers to St. Mary's Church last night, when the Rev. Father O'Hare, C.S.S.R., Redemptorist missionary, in an eloquent discourse, explained to the faithful the Holy Eucharist.

He spoke of the principal fruits produced by Communion, and of the Holy Eucharist as a sacrifice. Speaking of the Mass as the sacrifice of the new law, he explained that the sacrifice of the Mass was the same as the sacrifice of the Cross—the sacrifice of the Mass being known as the bloodless sacrifice—and showed that it was infinite in value, and made the hearing of Mass on Sundays and holy days obligatory.

The manner of hearing, fruitfully and profitably, was presented as follows:

1. To give God honor and glory.
2. To thank Him for all His benefits.
3. To obtain the pardon of our sins.
4. To obtain all graces and blessings.

The reverend speaker exhorted his hearers to appreciate the Holy Eucharist and to go often to Communion. The doctrine and teaching of the Church on the Holy Eucharist rests on the promises of Christ and the fact of the institution of the last supper, which was the fulfillment of the promises: "If any man shall eat of this bread he shall live forever"; "I am with you all days, even to the consummation of the world."

Urging upon his hearers the necessity of attending Mass, and enumerating some of the excuses offered for non-attendance, the reverend gentleman asked the congregation how they could expect God's blessing during the week if they began the first day of the week by falling out with Him.

The Church, said the speaker, only commands attendance at Communion once a year, but nowhere does she say that's enough. You must go often enough to keep in a state of grace. "God bless that parish," continued the speaker, "where the people go to Communion once a month. Take away the Mass and the Holy Eucharist from the Catholic Church and you have nothing left."

At the close of the discourse some twenty little boys and girls, all in white raiment, who made their first Communion on Sunday morning, were in the prescribed procession; and no doubt the earnest prayer of the congregation, as the little ones slowly marched with clasped hands, in the attitude of prayer, was that the Lover of little children would keep them throughout life in the same holy environment.

BEN TURPIN ACTS AS TRAFFIC COP

Arrests Daughter of Mayor of Atlantic City.

ATLANTIC CITY, June 15. — (United Press).—When Ben Turpin, motion picture comedian joined the Atlantic Police Force, downtown traffic was thrown into a seething jam because the autoists could not tell where the cross eyed cop was looking.

Turpin, who decided to earn his keep while in Atlantic City with some hundred thousand Shriners sought employment on the police force because he claimed to have had experience on various forces in Hollywood during the "shooting" of certain pictures.

When the jam became too much for the frantic copper, he leaped upon the running board of a sporty roadster, driven by an attractive young woman.

"You're under arrest," he shouted. "Drive to the station." Arrived at the station, Turpin charged that the young woman had not driven where he looked.

"Prisoner dismissed," declared the Chief of Police.

"And, as for you Turpin—you're fired."

The girl arrested was the daughter of Mayor Adolph Goller. Some cynic suggested that the whole affair was a publicity stunt.

PRODUCERS COLD TO MARKET PLAN

Government Foodstuff Order Not Taken Up By Canadian Exporters.

OTTAWA, June 15.—Parliament at the last session appropriated $100,000 to assist British Empire marketing in the sale of Canadian foodstuffs. The plan generally was that the government should, within the limitation of the vote, put up dollar for dollar with producers in a campaign to advertise and sell the Canadian output.

Curiously, as it is considered, the offer is not being taken up by Canadian exporters to the degree that was anticipated. There have been some requests for information, but the apple growers are about the only ones displaying a desire to participate in the scheme. Nothing, for example, has been heard from the fish canning industry. The money is available, and will be spent under the conditions mentioned, but it would require co-operation among associations of producers of certain commodities. No grant will be made an individual firm. Department officials express surprise that the offer has not been snapped up.

KEEP LOOKOUT FOR FLARES OVER LIMITS

Quebec Government Acts Quickly on Report From Forestry.

U. S. OPINION.

Thought Missing Aviators May Have Displayed Distress Signals.

CHICOUTINI, Que., June 15.—(Canadian Press.)— Beyond the fact that the Quebec provincial government is acting quickly on the report received from a forester yesterday that four men had seen flares, presumed to be distress signals, fired at intervals on Sunday night in the heavily timbered region of St. Germain township, some distance across the Saguenay River from here, nothing further had been elicited early last evening. Whether the flares were ordinary verey lights or were flashes of burning gasoline had not been determined, but intense interest surrounded the forester's report, since it was hoped that these may have some connection with the missing aviators, Nungesser and Coli. Messages have been sent out to all forestry officials in that sparsely settled district and news is momentarily awaited. Since communication of any sort is slow, however, some time may elapse before anything definite is established.

Forced Down in Wilds.

Speculation as to whether these flares were fired by Nungesser and Coli is rife. Following upon reports from Newfoundland a month ago to the effect that the "White Bird" had been heard flying over various places in that island, the news from St. Germain is accepted tentatively as an indication that the aviators may have flown across Labrador and been forced down somewhere in the wilds of Northern Quebec.

The Price Brothers Company of Quebec, who own extensive timber limits in St. Germain, gave out today that no report of flares having been seen had been turned in to them by any of their employes, but they added that their observation towers had not been manned on the evening the lights were seen. They have now instructions that a strict lookout be maintained.

The report from Paris that Nungesser and Coli had ditched their verey lights prior to the flight is not taken as discounting the St. Germain report, since it is felt that the aviators could well have brought from their plane a little gasoline to be used for just such a purpose as distress signals.

Little Hope In U. S.

PARIS, June 15.—The report received from the United States yesterday afternoon that flares had been seen in Northern Quebec Sunday night, raising the possibility that Captains Charles Nungesser and Francois Coli were still alive and trying to attract attention, re-awakened hope here for the missing aviators, but it was only for a moment.

Inquiry at the Le Bourget air field, whence the fliers hopped off on their ill-fated voyage on May 8, revealed the fact that the aviators who had signal pistols and flares weighing about eleven pounds, left them with other equipment regarded as not absolutely necessary, in order to reduce the weight of their already heavily loaded machine.

Some of Captain Nungesser's friends, however, still cling to the hope that he might have taken a few flares apart from the package which is now lying at Le Bourget and that these may have been the signals reported to have been seen in Northern Quebec.

Expert airmen, on the other hand, are skeptical about the Quebec report. Despite the various reports which have been received that the sound of a motor was heard on May 9 over Newfoundland, their conviction is growing that Captains Nungesser and Coli struck unfavorable conditions off the English Channel and never got across the Atlantic.

WEDDING BELLS.

CLARKE—McFALL.

HAVELOCK, June 15. — A very pretty June wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Hubble, William Street, on Tuesday, June 14th, when their niece, Evelyn Marguerite May McFall, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick McFall of Blairton, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to James Clarke and Mrs. Clarke, of Jamse Clarke and Mrs. Clarke, of Stirling. The ceremony was performed at high noon by Rev. W. R. Archer, of the United Church, assisted by Rev. H. Clarke, of Hilton, brother of the groom.

Mrs. Bert Robson played Lohengrin's Wedding March, and accompanied Mr. Robson when he sang "Why Song Is Sweet," while the register was being signed.

The rooms were attractively decorated with pink and white and the ceremony was performed amid a setting of bridal roses banked in ferns.

The bride, who was unattended, was given in marriage by her father. She was daintily attired in poudre blue georgette crepe with coronet of orange blossom, and wore the gift of the groom, a green gold wrist watch. Her shower bouquet was chrysanthemums.

After the marriage ceremony a wedding dinner was served. Later, the happy couple left amid showers of confetti for Toronto, the bride wearing salmon satin-faced crepe, with navy coat and poudre blue hat. On their return they will reside in Stirling.

OLD CRIMES RECALLED.

Invariably Takes Room in a Boarding House as Lodger.

WINNIPEG, June 15.—The strangler, who has already taken two victims in Winnipeg, has operated over an extensive territory in the United States, where he is known as the "Gorilla." He has taken toll of over twenty lives. From Seattle to San Diego on the Pacific Coast, through Kansas City, St. Louis and Chicago, the brute has left a trail of horror, for his specialty is garroting of women who kept boarding houses.

The strangler is classed as the most fiendish murderer at large today. His tsall of victims began at San Francisco last February where he choked to death eight women. Three days later in Portland, Ore., he strangled three more, later moving to Seattle, where he killed a twelfth. His next victim was at Council Bluffs, Ia., and scarcely had the woman's body been buried before he appeared in Kansas City, and within a period of 36 hours he choked to death two more women, and an 18-months-old baby. Other murders, similar to those committeed by the "Gorilla" were later reported in Toledo and Chicago.

Comes as Lodger

On almost all the occasions, the man gains entrance to homes under the guise of a lodger, and once certain that there are no men about the house, he begins his fiendish work, searching the establishment thoroughly for valuable after his victim is dead. Continental police had had very poor luck in capturing the brute, and the speed with which he gets from one point to another has proved a baffling mystery to police throughout all the states in which he has operated.

According to police, he drives a small, dilapidated car, and his description has been broadcast throughout the country. Pacific Coast American detectives, in Winnipeg Monday, identified the Winnipeg strangler's description as that of the much-wanted "Gorilla." The detectives are returning from the Windsor convention.

Portland Crimes

PORTLAND, Oregon, June 15.—The strangling to death in Winnipeg of two women recalled the trail of gruesome murders left here by a maniacal strangler last year. Four Portland women were the victims of the attacks of the man who has been the object of search by police in every city of the United States. In each case the strangler approached his victims under the guise of looking for a room to rent. In each case "room for rent" signs were hanging in the front windows of the house.

In the first murder, Mrs. Beata Withers was slain and her body hidden in a trunk in the attic. The second victim's body was found stuffed behind the furnace in the cellar of her home, the third body was found in an attic and the fourth under the bed of the victim.

OLD MASTERS

I sat with love upon a woodside well,
Leaning across the water, I and he;
Nor ever did he speak nor looked at me,
But touched his lute wherein was audible
The certain secret thing he had to tell:
Only our mirrored eyes met silently
In the low wave; and that sound came to be
The passionate voice I knew; and my tears fell.
And at their fall, his eyes beneath grew hers;
And with his foot and with his wing-feathers
He swept the spring that watered my heart's drouth.
Then the dark ripples spread to waving hair,
And as I stooped, her own lips rising there
Bubbled with brimming kisses at my mouth.

Despite the chill of the evening, a fairly large crowd was in attendance and an enjoyable evening was spent in patronizing the various attractions and in dancing later in the upstair hall. HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

FOR THURSDAY, JUNE 16, 1927

One strong benefic aspect dominates today in planetary direction, according to astrology. There is, however, a conflicting sway that makes for uncertainty.

There is a good sign for banks and bankers. This should be a favorable rule for financial matters.

Advertising is subject to the best possible conditions and should be most profitable. There appears to be special benefits in personal publicity under this direction of the stars.

According to the seers there is to be a reaction against personal exploitation and free advertising that will relieve readers.

Since there is an ebb after each flood-tide of enthusiasm or interest, it is foretold that dignity and conservatism will succeed present-day flamboyance in dress and manners.

Under this planetary rule there may be discontent and restlessness, but these are passing moods that should be ignored, astrologers point out.

Again there is a sway presaging a flood of oratory. Speeches will multiply everywhere and new public figures will attain fame through intensive talking.

This is not an auspicious day for starting journeys and it is foretold that voyages begun under this sway may be disappointing.

Travel to Europe will be more popular than ever before, it is prophesied, but despite troubles in the Orient tourists will be keenly bent on traveling in China as well as Japan.

There is a sign presaging marvelous achievements in laying out and cultivating American gardens, which are to be more wonderful and more varied than any in the world.

Women and children should be especially protected in the coming months when there is an ill omen presaging crimes against them.

Persons whose birthdate it is should safeguard property in the coming year which may bring losses.

Children born on this day may be too original for their own good. They should be carefully guided as they have great possibilities.

DRESS

Boa of rose-colored ostrich.

—Interesting word, boa! Authorities on such matters tell us that when "boa" was coupled with "constrictor" to designate the fearful serpent that crushes its victims in its folds, the first word was derived from bo or boh, a world-old exclamation of terror. The use of the word to designate the long neckpiece worn by women—comparable in shape to the fearful serpent—dates from about 1836, when that type of neckpiece first became fashionable.

An amusing old fashion plate bearing the date 1832 shows one of these harmless boas made of fur passed across drooping shoulders at the back, crossed over the breast in front, with the two ends passing under the folded arms and hanging precisely over the enormous gathered skirts. Ballooning sleeves and a poke bonnet with a large ostrich feather sticking up skyward from the center front of the little crown of the hat finish the picture. But though there appears to be something stiff and prim about this arrangement of the boa it was said at the time that artists never tired of the graceful snake-like play of the boa over pretty shoulders and arms." It did not go out of fashion for a decade or more—not until the fashion for high-cut necks made such neck coverings unnecessary.

The boa both of fur and of ostrich was revived in the last quarter of the last century. Old-fashioned ladies wore their long ostrich boas right up to the end of the century.

The ostrich boa as revived in this year of grace 1927 has little in common with the boa as it was worn at any time in the last century. It appeared this spring and last at the races about Paris. It is an accessory dear to the heart of the English woman, who never feels more appropriately dressed for the races than when she wears lace and carries a parasol and has some soft sort of frill or boa round her neck. This spring it was the mannequins of certain well-known French dressmakers who made the revived feather most conspicuous. They wore enormous boas of uncurled feathers in lovely shades. Women here and abroad have shown their inclination to follow this fashion. The short pierrot ruff of ostrich may be more in keeping with present-day notions of comfort and convenience than the boa with long ends that must be disposed of in graceful manner—but perhaps it is the very fact that the boa is not easy to wear that recommends it to certain women who want to achieve distinction in dress.

Style Takes Stock of Stockings

And Finds Smart Hose For all Occasions, For Milady's Every Taste.

BY JULIA BLANSHARD.

It is still a moot question whether short skirts put smart stockings on the map of fashion—or vice versa.

Not that it matters, anyhow. Both shirt skirts and smart stockings have justified themselve by now.

But, while skirts grow moody and show signs of getting conservatively longer, hosiery, with real independence, takes new steps to chic and shows signs of becoming not only seasonal fashion apparel but the type of clothing that must be chosen individually, to suit the wearer's personality.

For Every Feminine Taste.

Surely the stocking designers must have had that thought in mind this season! For the summer's showing of diaphanous, gleaming, multi-colored hosiery allows latitude for every femining taste in the world, it would seem. And a type of stockings for every occasion.

The season's mode falls into three divisions; silks, lisles and sports.

Taking them in order, the cobwebby, sheer daintiness and the exquisite coloring commends the first to Milady's discriminating taste. Textures are even finer than ever this summer, with chiffons as clear as a woodland lake and caressing in their loveliness. Colors put Nature on her mettle, for in their compose shades they achieve soft tones never known before, either naturally or artificially.

Dozens of Tan Hues.

Tans still lead for street wear, embodying dozens of shadings in their group, many of them with the new rose tint that adds appeal. Grays grow in popularity for wear with black shoes. White is for the bride but oyster or bisque white should be worn with white kids by others. Evening tones in dawn and moonlight are best, though there is a growing tendency to have the hosiery reflect the gown's shade. Greens, lavender and soft blues are good with white shoes for afternoon.

Clocks run down the leg from the top as well as up from the ankle this season. Open-work clocks are best in chiffons. And the variety of odd-shaped heels increases daily, with all of them endeavoring to give slenderizing lines to Milady's ankle.

The outstanding new touch in silk this season is the mesh hosiery. Filmy, delicate as the most cob-webby bit of lace, the new mesh stockings are delightfully flattering. The majority of the new mesh stockings are plain, but some come with clocks and stripes of plain chiffon. White mesh with delicate pieces of real lace woven into them in inserts form the most exquisite of bridal hosiery.

French Lisle Vies With Silk.

French lisle hosiery vies with silk in popularity for street and smart day-time wear this season. Sheer, durable, with a pleasing crispness in their texture, lisle stockings take all the popular new colors and embody in their manufacture all the latest touches of novelty clocks and French open-work and shadow clocks. While they do not gleam as silk does, they have a cool beauty about them that especially commends them fur summer.

Sport stockings, like sports wear of all kinds, is branching right out into competition with silks and lisle. They are brazen in their patterns—combining all the season's vogue for stripes, polka-dots, checks, odd zigzag and geometric designs and two-toned compose effects that give the appearance of floating clouds in all the imaginable colors of a futuristic artists's heaven.

Nothin' Quiet About 'Em.

Loud, indeed, is the word for many of the patterns on the season's sports stockings. But the soft colors save some of them. Black and white form many striking and stunning designs. The season's craving for prints shows here too. For there are stockings in cream, soft greens, blues and lavender that have all-over printed patterns, just like chintz.

The rule for hosiery this season seems to be to subordinate design to texture and color when worn for formal occasions and when the slippers or gown deserve the center of attention. But when one goes in for sports, all suppressed desires for novelty is allowed to burst into expression in the form of hosiery.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

"What's the big idea, Sis? A family pow-wow?". "Long" Lane, very conscious of his new dignity as a husband and of his twenty-two and a half years, strode briskly into the Lane living room in the shabby little house in Myrtle Street. "Come on in, Fay!" he called back over his shoulder to the girl who hesitated in the doorway. "You're family too, sweet child. Isn't she a sweet child, Faith?" the boy's voice went suddenly warm and rich with prideful love as he swept the pretty girl into his arms and challenged his sister with his glowing dark eyes.

"She's a sweet child and a pretty woman, as well as the happiest looking wife I ever saw," Faith answered generously, her own hand reaching instinctively toward Bob Hathaway, who sat beside her on the cretonne-covered sofa. "I hope I shall be able to compete with her for that title," she added softly, her large, soft brown eyes misting over with sudden tears of happiness.

"So that's the ticket," grinned 'Long.' "Thought it was about time you two bill-and-coo artists got hitched. Going to break the news to Dad this afternoon?"

"I'm not going to tell you a thing until we're all here," Faith retorted, smilingly, but a little shiver of fear made her hand tremble in Bob's. It was not going to be easy to readjust the lives of the entire family so that they would all fit happily into new conditions. But it was her job. They all looked to her now, since Mrs. Lane had died, as the real head of the family, although she was only twenty-one years old.

Her heart contracted sharply with pity as her father, Jim Lane, came shuffling into the room, her younger sister, Joy, just turned ten, clinging to his hand. These last few months of sorrow over the sudden death of his wife, and of heartbreaking trouble and disgrace over his daughter Cherry's unjust imprisonment and trial for the murder of her aged fiance, Ralph Cluny, had permanently bowed his shoulders and marked his thin face with lines which no future well-being could eradicate.

Faith looked at him with infinite pity and understanding in her loving brown eyes. He was an old man, broken and almost spent, although not yet sixty years old. She felt more like a mother than a daughter to him now. Ineffectual, a failure both as a father and as a provider, he still clung to the belief that he was the master of his house and the arbiter of the destinies of his children. It would be hard to keep from hurting him, to make him feel wanted and appreciated, and yet to prevent him from flying into a puny rage in a childish effort to enforce his authority.

"Faith, I want to go to the movies and Dad won't give me a quarter," Joy whimpered, her little sallow face, framed but not softened by a bell-shaped bob of straw-colored, straight hair, twisting into a tearful grimace.

"Come and sit here with me, honey," Faith urged tenderly. Her heart felt charged to the bursting point with love for these who were her people. "I want you to hear all that I've got to tell the family, darling, and help me to decide just what is best for all of us."

"All right," Joy beamed suddenly, wriggling with importance as she took her seat. "I bet I know! You and Bob's going to get married and go off on a honeymoon. Why do they call it a honeymoon, Faith?"

"That's what Bob and I are going to try to find out," Faith laughed. "Where's Cherry, honey? Run and tell her that Faith said to hurry. We're all going to take a mysterious trip just as soon as this family conference is over, and it mustn't be dark before we start."

They waited for Cherry a little nervously, "Long" and his father exchanging man-to-man confidences on business conditions and the prospects of an early spring. Fay, "Long's" wife, lay cuddled in his arms, her hazel eyes smiling as she ran impudent little finger tips over the straight glossy black brows that, in her opinion, helped to make her husband's face look so characterful. As if the sight made him envious, Bob Hathaway suddenly flung an arm about Faith's broad, splendid shoulders and drew her close to him.

Everyone in the room involuntarily drew a quick breath of relief. There was no counting on Cherry's moods since her imprisonment and trial for murder. Sometimes the wide round golden eyes were hot discs of pain and fury, burning in her small, childish face that not even disgrace, suffering and imprisonment had been able to mature. Sometimes she was a drooping, hopeless little picture of misery, brooding on her wrongs, bitterly resentful of the wedding ring she still wore on her left hand, and of the child that was soon to come—Chris Wiley's child!

But now—and they all began to laugh and talk in their relief—Cherry was unaffectedly gay, as if not even a tiny cloud sailed across the blue horizon of her young life. Faith, yearning toward her with the tenderest love she had ever given to any human being, marvelled at her pendulum-like swing from gayety to despair. But she was deeply grateful that Cherry was gay on this occasion, at least. She felt that half her hard battle was already won.

"Sit by me, Cherry-blossom," Bob invited, crinkling his blue eyes at her in a fond smile.

"If you'll let me rumple your hair like Fay's tousling up Long's," Cherry laughed.

"All you like, but no fair tweaking my forelock," Bob grinned at her.

Faith hated herself for the pang of jealousy that shot through her heart as Cherry's lovely, delicate little fingers, rose-tipped after one of her careful manicures, wove in and out of Bob's thick chestnut curls, parting them, petting them, twisting locks of them into funny little points. And Bob looked so pleased that Faith expected him to purr at any minute, like a cat that is being stroked.

"I don't see why Cherry has to be mushing over Bob all the time," Joy piped up, resentment bringing a faint color into her pale, freckled little face. "She's got a husband of her own, bet Faith's jealous!"

Faith's face flamed. She could have jerked Joy out of her seat and hauled her off to the kitchen for an old-fashioned spanking, as her mother would have done.

"Cherry is Bob's little sister now Joy," she told the child, "or she will be as soon as Bob and I are married."

"Going to get married soon, daughter?" Jim Lane cleared his throat and ran a trembling hand over his thin pepper-and-salt hair. "I been expecting this, but I swan 'I don't know what's going to become of the family, now that your Ma's gone. But—" he sighed heavily and uttered the words which had so often exasperated Martha Lane—"such is life! Such is life!"

"Yes, Dad," Faith smiled at him. "Children just will grow up and get married. Joy will be doing it herself before we realize it. I hope you're glad, Dad—"

"Bob's a mighty nice chap. Couldn't ask for a better son-in-law, I reckon," Jim Lane agreed. "Guess you'll be—be leaving to make a home of your own?" It was a question, rather than a statement, ending on a high note of querulous self-pity.

"That's what I want to talk about," Faith told him quickly. "I've told Bob all along that I wouldn't leave you—and I won't. Not Joy, nor Cherry. You all need me, and I—I need you, all of you," she assured them bravely.

"You've sacrificed yourself often enough for us." Cherry surprised them all by flaring up in defense of her sister, of whose unselfishness she had made use all her life. "I'll stay here and keep house for Dad and Joy."

"You forget, Cherry, darling, that you're not going to be well enough to work for very long. Why, honey, you're going to need me more than any of the others."

"I hate myself!" Cherry's hands dropped from Bob's hair and clenched against her breast. "I don't want to have a baby—Chris' baby! I'm not married, really. It's not fair. I've had enough to bear without this! Oh, I hate Chris!"

"Everybody listen, please," Faith cried, forcing herself to ignore her sister's outburst. "This is what Bob and I have planned to do, if the rest of you agree. You know those two houses you built for Bob in Enfield, Dad? You didn't know then that you were building your future home, did you? For Bob and I, and you and Joy and Cherry are going to live in the corner house."

"Well, I like that!" "Long" blustered, forgetting his dignity. "Where do Fay and I come in?"

"You don't come in," Faith laughed. "You stay right here, if you like the house well enough. You can pay Dad rent for it, and make it into an awfully nice little home for two. And plenty of room for expansion of the family," she smiled significantly.

"Well," Jim Lane considered, pleased at being a prospective landlord, "I reckon fifty dollers a month would be about right."

"Cherry," Faith turned to her sister appealingly. "I hope we can make you happy and comfortable, darling. You're sure you won't go back to Chris? Not that I want you to," she added quickly, "but I want to have things settled today."

"I told Chris after the trial was over that I was going to get a divorce as soon as possible," Cherry answered. "He doesn't know there's going to be a baby. I'd rather die than let him know," she added, with passionate vehemence.

There had already been far too much publicity for the ill-fated Lane family, Faith thought, with a brief recurrence of the bitterness she had known when Cherry's name had been blazoned on the front page of every newspaper in the country. But it was all over now. She tried to comfort herself. Cherry had been cleared of the charge of murdering old Mr. Cluny on the day they were to have been married. She and Bob had discovered the real murderer, Hutchinson, who was soon to be tried.

Faith realized, as her eyes wandered lovingly from one face to another, that their future would not be an easy one to work out happily. Cherry hated the man, Christopher Wiley, for whom she had jilted her millionaire fiance. And now she was to be the mother of his child, a child she did not want. Pleasure-loving, beautiful, pampered little Cherry, who had become, for a brief hour of glory following her notoriety as an accused murderess, a national heroine, would not easily reconcile herself to being a wife who was yet not wife, a girl and yet not a girl, for she was to become a mother.

And a dark premonition stirred in Faith's heart, warned her that Cherry, incorrigible flirt that she had been, was not through with love and playing at love. Cherry's hands fluttered over Bob's hair—

What if Cherry had never really lost her love for Bob Hathaway, even if she had been so infatuated with Chris Wiley that she had eloped with him on the very night of her wedding to another man? Cherry had had Bob's love first. He had come to her—Faith—only after Cherry had proved untrustworthy. Was she foolishly tempting fate in arranging for her adored little sister to live with her and the man who would soon be her husband?

"It's all settled then?" Faith asked. "Bob and I want to be married as soon as we can get the house furnished. Now, let's all go and see the new house."

Faith laughed, but her eyes, as they sought Bob's, were shadowed with a faint worry. Was she doing the best thing? But—what else could she do? Oh, she loved them all so! She wanted to spread her arms and gather them all to her breast, forcing them all to love each other enough and yet not too much, protecting them from themselves and from the world.

Bob's eyes, as brilliant as blue sapphires, seemed to leap at her with love and understanding.

SEE CANADA FIRST.

Premier Ferguson, in the selection of a place to spend his vacation, has set a good example to Canadians generally.

Ontario's Prime Minister chose northern Ontario as the "logical location", thus giving an impetus to the Jubilee year slogan, "See Canada First."

It is to hoped that his lead will be followed generally and that Canadians will resolve that they will help to celebrate Canada's Diamond Jubilee by learning something at first hand of their own country.

Why people of this favored land should spend their vacation in red-hot summer weather, sweltering in some of the big cities across the international line when Canada offers them such an infinite variety of worthwhile places to visit has always been a mystery.

This year Canadians should spend their holiday at home.

Ontario people can utilize their vacation to see their own province, the north for example or the lake country, the ycan view the beauties of Quebec, enjoy a trip via the great lakes or travel out to the Coast.

OLD AGE PENSIONS.

In spite of the fact that the situation has several times been explained by The Examiner, inquiries are still being made, by people who would be eligible for this assistance, as to when the old age pensions system will be in operation in Ontario.

The answer, of course, is that until old age pensions are adopted by the Ontario Legislature aged citizens of this Province cannot be helped.

It is true that an Old Age Pensions Act was passed at the last session of the Dominion Parliament, but it is not a purely Federal measure.

The Dominion Government took the position that one-half the cost of carrying on the system would have to be assumed by the Provinces participating, and the legislation therefore does not become effective in any Province in Canada until the Provincial Legislature adopts it.

If the people of Ontario want the benefits of old age pensions they will have to impress the Ontario Government with the fact that public opinion in this Province demands such legislation.

Otherwise the Federal Act will not be of the slightest value to them or to the people of other Provinces whose Governments refuse to act.

HEAVY PENALTIES.

The fact that a Toronto man who pleaded guilty to purchasing a bottle of liquor from a bootlegger was fined $500 by a magistrate indicates that it is going to be a dangerous operation to buy liquor anywhere but from the Government stores.

The theory seems to be that when the privilege of legal purchase has been restored it is the duty of the people to respect the law, and for those who refuse to do so the penalties are to be severe.

Illegal sale of liquor in the Province is changing in form with the advent of Government control, and already it is stated that sale by the glass is being carried on by those illicit dealers who formerly did business by the bottle and the case.

This new situation is one that will have to be faced by those entrusted with the enforcement of the law.

Under the conditions established by Government control there are numbers of people who find themselves with no place in which to consume the liquor that it is legal for them to purchase.

There are others who cannot or will not pay the price of a bottle.

These classes furnish a field for the bootlegger to exploit through the medium of sale by the glass, and there is reason to believe that such sale is being carried on briskly.

Penalties such as are being handed out in Toronto will do much to discourage such traffic, however.

A $500 fine for dealing with a bootlegger when a legal channel of purchase exists hardly seems a profitable investment, and customers are likely to see it in that light.

SAFE DRIVING.

No driver in Peterborough should be left, after this week, with an excuse for driving a car with defective brakes or badly focused headlights.

Thanks to the Kiwanis Club the opportunity is being given every car-owner to have these important parts of his car equipment fairly tested, and only the motorist who is so careless as to be indifferent to such matters will fail to take advantage of the chance offered by the local service club in the interests of public safety.

It should be the first duty of every motorist to assure himself that his car is in good condition mechanically, that his brakes will stand the test when an emergency arises and that his head lights are not a menace to the safety of others along the roads at night.

The first step to safe driving, of course, is to make sure the car is right.

Then the human factor enters into the situation.

A car in bad condition, even in the hands of a good driver, is a source of danger but even more threatening is the combination of a good car and a careless driver.

In the latter category must be placed far too many Peterborough drivers, who not only ignore the stop signs but who drive too fast over through street intersections.

This week's campaign should produce a great improvement in this respect—but if an educational effort fails it will be up to the police to teach the lesson in another way.

THE ANGLO-RUSSIAN CRISIS.

(From The Detroit Free Press.)

The British Government's decision to break off diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia comes as a tragic upshot of years of effort by a self-respecting nation to deal on terms of ordinary civility with a perverse, cynically faithless regime. The experiment was doomed to failure from the beginning. The least proud of lions isn't likely to allow its tail to be twisted indefinitely.

At the time recognition was granted, Britain could have harbored few illusions about Moscow. Rather the step was taken in the expectation that, through contacts with the West, the Red barbarism could eventually be tamed. It may be noted, in passing, that recognition by the United States used to be urged on identical grounds by some of our own self-styled statesmen. Among others, Senator Borah stuck to this plea long after the British had realized its bitter fallacy.

What did happen was that the Red Bear grasped at the privileges of diplomatic immunity for the sole purpose of undoing those who had given him shelter. The revelations contained in Prime Minister Baldwin's speech in the House of Commons provide evidence of how ruthlesaly and brazenly the Reds worked their destructive game behind the diplomatic screen.

Before long, London became a clearing-house for the dissemination of a revolutionary propaganda throughout the British Isles and the far-flung imperial possessions. According to Mr. Baldwin, the plotting extended also to China and the Americas. Next to Moscow, it was from London that inspiration and orders went forth to the hirelings of the Third Internationale everywhere.

The gravity of the action upon which the Baldwin Cabinet has decided may be estimated from the fact that only a few weeks ago, following a note of protest to Moscow, Foreign Secretary Chamberlain opposed a severance of relations because he feared that such a course would endanger the peace of Europe. It is to be assumed that, in the view of London, this danger has been diminished by means of the understanding on Russia that is said to have been reached with France.

IN THE OPEN PLACES.

At this season of the year when thousands of motorists and others are seeking the joys of the great out-of-doors it is timely to once more call attention to the wanton mutilation by some thoughtless individuals of the trees, shrubs, wild flowers, and ferns which make our highways and sylvan retreats a wonderland of beauty. So serious has been this dreadful vandalism during the past decade that one of our most eminent flower culturists has declared that many of the country's loveliest wild flowers are being completely exterminated. If those who have been guilty in this respect in the past will try to remember that there is no offence in picking a reasonable quantity of wild flowers so long as they are cleanly cut or broken from the stem instead of being ruthlessly torn out by the roots, they will be doing their bit in helping to preserve that heritage of beauty which a kindly Providence has given to all for their continuous solace and delight.

Another point which motorists, picnickers and campers should keep in mind is the leaving of places at which they camp or picnic in a neat and wholesome condition. It is only too common a sight to see some otherwise lovely nook made hideous with dirty papers, bottles, broken glass, and tin cans. It only takes a few minutes to gather up the garbage and refuse of a camp or picnic, and it means that the place which gave joy to you and yours will give equal joy to the other fellow and not be an eyesore to the public.

The final and most important point to be remembered is to take the utmost caution in the prevention of fire. Some doubt has been expressed as to whether a carelessly tossed away cigarette butt, lighted match, or partially put out camp fire has ever started a big blaze in the woods. Let there be no doubt on this point. Fire rangers and those best qualified to know the facts state that hundreds of major fires with their terrible destruction of huge areas of valuable forest lands have been directly traced to the wanton carelessness of thoughtless picnickers and campers. In this joyous summer period let the equipment of all those who seek the solace of the open spaces include a decent respect for our common heritage and a little more consideration for the pleasure and comfort of our neighbor.—Ottawa Journal.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, June 15 (Canadian Press). — There was some business worked in Canadian Western oats with the Continent yesterday on the Montreal grain market, but apart from this the trade was quiet.

In the domestic market prices were well maintained with a little business passing in oats for export and country account.

The flour situation was without any special feature to note, prices being unchanged with a moderate amount of business passing in spring and winter wheat grades.

Prices for all lines of millfeed were firm under a continued good demand. A steady feeling prevailed in the market for standard grades of rolled oats, and the trade was fair.

The undertone to the egg market was firm and the volume of business was good. The receipts were 3,173 cases.

The demand for potatoes showed no improvement and the undertone continued easy. Car lots of Quebec White B grade were quoted at $2.50 per bag, and Reds at $2.10 to $2.20 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk, ex-track.

The trade in butter was again of a limited character and values were unchanged. The receipts were 620 packages.

A feature of the cheese trade was the increased demand from English importers and a moderate amount of business was done in this direction. The trade in spot was also active and values were firm. The receipts were 8,133 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 15. Canadian Press. — Clearing skies and prospective warmer temperature both over winter and spring crop territory led to a lower average of prices yesterday for wheat. Conflicting reports in regard to the outlook at Springfield affecting proposed grain trade legislation were a disturbing factor both as to wheat and corn.

Wheat closed nervous 7-8 to 1 1-3c net lower; corn 3-8c to ¾c up; oats at 1-8c to 5-8c gain, and provisions 7 to 22c down.

Forecasts of fair weather, especially for the harvest region southwest, brought about increased offerings of wheat to-day, whenever the market showed a tendency to advance. So likewise did Canadian railway estimates that the seeded territory this season in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, will total 19,473,150 acres, an amount considerably larger than has hitherto been figured.

Corn met with heavy selling in the last half of the day and lost most of an early advance. Oats swayed with corn. The provision market was easier.

A Thought For To-day

LONESOME.

The active-minded man gets lonesome, for "Thoughts are things." But sometimes we get tired of our own thoughts.

I can see how a bell-buoy at sea can look lonely. I can understand how lonesome a single rose can look in an abandoned garden. Even a stray cloud on a sunny day looks lonesome, and what a lonely sight is an eagle's nest when all have fled! But these are the inanimate things, not the intellectual "things."

A man with an active mind can call a thousand thoughts to him for his companions — little thoughts. We are often tired of the big thoughts.

The next time you get as lonely as a deserted ship, stop the radio, shut out the world, and, all by yourself, bring back the memories of childhood. Leave out the bi gthings in life and take up the little things—the simple, little things.

An unknown writer has given us a good way to get away from our thoughts that are on self or on success—thought on the "little things."

"Oh, it's just the little nomely things
The unobtrusive, friendly things,
The 'Won't-you-let-me-help-you' things
That make our pathway light.

"And it's just the jolly, joking things,
The 'Never-mind-the-trouble' things,
The 'Laugh-with-me-it's-funny' things
That make the world seem bright.

"For all the countless famous things
The wondrous record-breaking things
Those never-to-be-equaled things,
That all the papers cite.

"Are not like the little human things,
The every-day encountered things,
The 'just-because-I-like-you' things
That make us happy quite!

"So here's to all the little things,
The done-and-then-forgotten things,
Those 'Oh-it's-simply-nothing' things,
That make life worth the fight."

PETERBORO PASTOR VISITS AT CAVAN

Rev. R. T. Richards Conducts Anniversary Services at United Church Sunday School.

CAVAN, June 15.—On Sunday, June 12th, Cavan United Sunday school held their anniversary services with the Rev. R. T. Richards as the special speaker.

In the morning Mr. Richards spoke to the children. Displaying to them a watch he said from that word he wanted to show them how a character is built up. He said life was very much like weaving carpet on a loom. Day by day by our acts and words we are weaving a character on the loom of life.

Taking the letters in the word W A T C H, he said first W meant watch our words, which we might place in two classes, kind and untind. We should cultivate the habit of saying the kind word about and to people.

A—Watch our Acts. These also are in two classes. Those done in the open that we care not who sees, and those done in the dark, or when we fancy no one will ever know. To every boy and girl comes the temptation at times, to do things which his or her parents would not approve of, things which they would not dream of doing in their parents' presence. If this temptation was resisted always, it would save so much trouble and regrets.

T—Watch our Thougths. "As a man thinketh in his heart so is he." Thoughts might be classified as clean or unclean. We must be careful to keep our thoughts pure.

C—Companions or Chums—Choose true friends, those who help us to be true and good; avoid false friends who would not be helpful in living a good life.

H—Habits. Sow a thougnt, reap and act; sow an act, reap a habit; sow a habit, reap a character. He told the children to form good habits, and in conclusion showed that if we watch and use good kind words, keep our acts and thoughts right, choose our chums wisely and form good habits, we cannot fail to build a good character.

Taking Jesus as the great example in so doing when a boy upon earth, he built up the one perfect character. He said if such a character were striven for, a boy would never have to vainly wish "That he was the boy his mother thought he was, but on the contrary he would be the boy his mother thought he was

Mr. Richards gave his address in a very interesting manner, using words and illustrations which appealed to the children, that he had perfect attention from the children and the older people were equally interested.

A special chorus of Sunday School children occupied the choir and gave two selections which were much enjoyed.

Miss A. Tinney, the Sunday school organist, presided at the organ.

Evening Service.

On Sunday evening the church was filled to capacity, many motoring from Millbrook and other points to hear Mr. Richards. He delivered an excellent sermon from the text, "Ye cannot serve God and mammon."

The choir added greatly to the service by the music contributed.

The Rev. Mr. Howard, Millbrook, occupied Mr. Richard's pulpit at Mark Street Church, Peterborough, while Rev. J. O. Totten, Cavan, preached morning and evening in Millbrook.

"A solar halo" of two large rings encircled the sun recently, as shown above, the smaller one enclosing what looked like an area of cloud. The meteorological observer states that it was caused by ice crystals floating several miles up in the air. The two rings were different layers. This halo is sometimes called a sun-dog or parhelion, and has been described as a mock sun appearing in the form of a bright light near the sun usually tinged with prismatic colours. It was seen in many parts of Canada.

These great Dresden vases, made for Ludwig II. of Bavaria, the extravagant palace-builder, who added new rooms to his castle every little while, are now in Canada. The vases bear his crest and a crown on the top. The huge chest is a genuine William and Mary one, and came from the same palatial home, and is now in an Ontario art gallery.

The above bust of Dr. James Hughes, prominent Canadian educationist, was sculptured in Edinburgh, Scotland, by his friend, the noted sculptor, B. S. Gamley, the subject sitting sixteen hours for the work.

SOME DAMAGE DONE BY STORM

Telephone Connections in Warsaw District Broken on Wednesday.

TREES BLOWN DOWN.

WARSAW, June 15.—A short but heavy thunderstorm passed over this district last Wednesday. For a few minutes there was an extremely heavy wind, almost like a whirlwind, and a deluge of rain.

Telephone connection with long distance is wholly cut off. All the lake service was cut off and nearly all the lines; only about seven were working.

Trees are blown over the lines in many places, and Central thinks it will likely be several days before all the trouble can be repaired. On the English Line, and on the boundary, fences are blown down. Some smaller trees are uprooted; fair-sized trees are broken off close to the ground. A large single maple in a field is split.

Mr. William Davis came from the lake, and reported that it was the worst storm he had ever known. The linemen were putting in lines to a cottage on the lake, and had all they could do to bring their skiff safely to shore. The squall struck very suddenly.

The U.F.O. had a short business meeting on Wednesday evening.

There was a cowboy entertainment on the street at the post office corner on Wednesday. A Western cowboy, in leather cowboy riding suit, gave some demonstrations of lassoing, and some other stunts; told some Western stories, sang and recited. After his performance was over he chatted with the men. Those who were present were much interested.

BAND PRESENTS GIFT TO LEADER

Mrs. J. N. Lovelace is Leaving Roseneath at End of Month.

RECEIVES TRAY.

ROSENEATH, June 15.—A jolly little gathering of Mission Band members was held at the home of Rev. and Mrs. J. N. Lovelace on Monday evening, to present to Mrs. Lovelace a lovely serving tray.

Miss Bessie Turner read the address and the two youngest members of the Band, little Audrey Mouncey and Lavine McMillan made the presentation:

Dear Mrs. Lovelace:

We, the members of the King's Workers Mission Band have assembled here together to manifest to you our sincere appreciation of the interest you took as leader of our Band in the year 1926.

As we look back over the past year we have many pleasant memories, and your loyal support given, with such good will and wholeheartedness, will serve as an example to those whom you leave behind. As a little remembrance we desire you to accept this gift, not for its intrinsic value, but rather because of the good will and appreciation it represents.

Our prayer is that as you go to your new home, the grace of God may accompany you, and may you have good health, strength and happiness.

Our friendship we seal as a lasting memory to what the past has been between you and us.

Signed on behalf of the King's Workers Mission Band.

Hazel Covert, Pres.,
Bessie Turner, Secy.

Mrs. Lovelace, though taken by surprise, replied in a few well-chosen words and expressed her appreciation for the useful gift and the kind words which accompanied it.

Rev. J. N. Lovelace and family will soon be leaving for his new charge in Ivanhoe. Rev. Mr. Brown of Cordova will be in charge here.

Miss M. Pugh, Bailieboro has accepted a position in Mr. Charles Brown's store.

Mr. Howard Lapp has resumed his position in the Royal Bank, after being confined for several weeks to his home with sickness.

A ruling has been made by the French government providing for the elimination of every candidate for a scholarship whose examination paper shows more than five mistakes in spelling.

SAFETY HINTS FOR FACTORY OWNERS.

(By Fire Chief George Gimblett.)

If there has been one branch of public service in which Peterborough's fire chief has been more active than another it has been fire prevention for the benefit of the factory owners. This being Kiwanis safety week, the fire chief has issued the following to the factory owners of the city of Peterborough:

Which is cheapest—to shut your eyes to your many fire hazards and have your plant burn down; scattering your workmen among your rival plants; losing profits on unfilled orders; losing customers to competitors; losing goodwill and the many advantages you have already gained; plus the uninsured value of your property—or to take the steps necessary for proper fire prevention and fire protection and thus to feel the confidence that comes of knowledge that your plant is safe from fire?

That's just the situation. It's a matter of dollars and sense—a few dollars and a little common sense.

Fire prevention, Mr. Factory Owner, or superintendent, means dollars in your pocket. Just that. For when the fire comes—and remember, every minute of the day somebody's factory is burning and yours is not immune—when it comes your turn to suffer—your competitor will be called upon by your customers to fill the contracts that you can't.

Fire loss, you see, is not limited to fire damage. A little thing like a burned out dynamo or a switchboard put out of business may tie up your whole plant for days and weeks. Ten dollars might repair the damage, but $10,000 could not repay the loss. One dollar for prevention might have remedied the cause. One dollar for $10,000 protection is cheap insurance. The loss due to one small fire may far outweigh the slight cost of taking every modern precaution.

What precautions you should take depend upon your individual problems. In no two cases are they just the same. They are all simple, basic. They depend upon conditions, not theories. You know the conditions in your plant, but you are too close to them to recognize them. That or familiarity has bred contempt for them.

How to Safeguard Your Plant and Lives of Employees.

Organize a fire drill. The easiest way to organize a fire drill in large cities is to invite the assistance of the fire chief. Put your problem up to him. Tell him what you want. He will assist an officer to undertake the work, and it will be done right. This officer will come to your plant and instruct your men in the way to take care of themselves.

The sole expense to which you will be put is to put in a signal bell—preferably a gong—on each floor with an annunciator in the office; this will show the location of the station from which the alarm is sent and signal station from which to transmit the alarm.

The first step in organizing a fire drill is to number each exit on each floor. Stairs, fire escapes, bridges to other buildings or doors leading to the surface, should be indicated by red lights and by a sign—Exit—in red. The number should be plainly indicated in red. Passageways to all exists should always be kept clear.

Floor Captain.—Appoint one man, preferably the foreman on each floor, to be floor captain. It is the floor captain's duty to give the signal to the employees to leave their work and to direct which exit to use, should one or another be cut off by fire or smoke. Each floor captain should have an assistant to act for him in case of his absence. The floor captain's orders are final on his floor.

Squads.—Divide the employees into squads of twelve to twenty individuals, depending upon the number on the floor.

There should be a choice of exits for each squad. To accustom the workers to all exits it is well during drills to close one exit or another—a different one each time.

The floor captain should choose which exit to close. When the alarm sounds it should be for him to announce which exit is not to be used.

In short, effort should be made to reproduce conditions of a fire as nearly as possible, and to have each employee know what to do under any and all circumstances.

1. Organize a fire drill. 2. Form a fire brigade. 3. Equip your plant with means of fire prevention. 4. Install fire extinguishers and other fire protection appliances. 5. Reduce or remove fire hazards.

Educate the Individual.

The most important thing to cultivate is the sense of individual responsibility.

Undoubtedly the fire waste can be kept down a great deal if the individual can be made to feel his own responsibility; human nature is prone to blame some one else for its troubles.

It is a very large subject, and a great deal can be said.

How You Can Prevent Fire Starting in Your Factory.

1. Have regular inspections made.

2. Install the following appliances: (a) Waste cans; (b) safety cans; (c) metal ash cans; (d) fireproof lockers for employees; (e) wire guards on all gas and electric lights; (f) other fire prevention appliances.

3. Forbid the use of "strike-anywhere" matches.

4. Provide a fireproof room where men may smoke. Forbid smoking elsewhere.

5. See that electric wiring is kept in repair and not abused.

6. Guard against spontaneous combustion in stock.

7. Get co-operation of employees.

8. Isolate all rooms where oils, paints, varnish and other chemicals are stored.

9. If rooms are in factory, have all doors of approved, self-closing, fireproof type.

10. Protect all oil, gasoline, acetylene gas and electrical risks with Pyrene or Foamite extinguishers.

11. Have extinguishers close to all japanning ovens, dip tanks, mixing kettles, etc.

12. Keep all combustible material away from acids.

13. Provide drip pans for all machines.

14. Have your plant inspected by a fire prevention engineer.

15. Act on his advice.

Pickers.—Cotton, moss, hair, excelsior and other pickers and shredders should be in isolated fire-proof buildings or in fire-proof rooms, with self-closing fire-proof doors. The rooms should be protected with sprinklers. Pyrene should be kept outside the doors.

The rooms should be cleaned every day and no combustible material stored in them at any time. A ventilator should be carried to the outside of the building.

See that all machine bearings are free from rust.

Drip Pans.—All machines, machine bearings, etc., should be provided with drip cups or pans, which should be emptied each night. Also see that metal borings or shavings which are oily do not fall to the floor. They should be deposited in metal receptacles.

Before Your Neighbor's Plant Sets Fire to Yours.

1. Close every wall opening not absolutely needed for exits, light, ventilation, power, etc.

2. Openings you can't close, have equipped with metal doors, sashes, frames, etc.

3. Protect all windows with fire shutters.

4. See that all shutters are closed each night.

5. Equip all windows with wired glass.

6. Divide all large floor areas by fire walls.

7. Doors in fire walls should all be automatic closing, fire-proof.

8. Sheathe outdoor woodwork with metal if exposed to sparks.

9. Bar shingle roofs absolutely.

To Insure Fire Appliances Being Ready When Needed.

1. Be sure to see that all water in standpipes are protected from freezing.

2. Guard chemical extinguishers, pails, casks, etc., from exposure.

3. Have extra charges for extinguishers always on hand.

4. See that all employees understand use of appliances.

5. Test fire pumps regularly.

6. Replace defective appliances at once.

7. See that fire appliances are in their proper places at all times.

Think Fire Before it Happens.

Between the time of the discovery of the fire and the appearance of the firemen, at least five minutes must elapse. And that particular five minutes is the "vital time" in the life of the fire.

It is the time when you, alone, may do more in that five minutes to save your property than the entire fire department can do fifty-five minutes afterwards.

It is the time when the smallest blaze may gain sufficient headway to become a serious conflagration. During these five minutes, the fire is the personal responsibility of the occupant of the building.

When one surveys the great loss to the country through fire waste, the chief's public-spirited interest is easily understood. In 1926 the loss in Ontario alone, not including that through forest fires, was $12,535,909, caused by fires.

The average fire loss for the last three years exceeds $1,000,000 a month, a per capita loss of $5 for every man, woman and child in the province. The average annual fire loss in the principal cities of Europe, under normal conditions, is 83 cents per capita. It is now a criminal offence for one to cause a fire through negligence.

Fires in the Criminal Code.

His Majesty, by and with the advice and the consent of the Senate and House of Commons of Canada, enacts as follows:

1. Section 515 of the Criminal Code is amended by inserting of the following subsection immediately before subsection 2 thereof:

"(1A). Everyone is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to two years imprisonment who by negligence causes any fire which occasions loss of life or loss of property.

"The person owning, occupying or controlling the premises in which such a fire occurs, or on which such a fire originates shall be deemed to have caused the fire through negligence, if such person has failed to obey the requirements of any law intended to prevent fires or which requires apparatus for the extinguishment of fires or to facilitate the escape of persons in the event of fire, if the jury finds that such fire, or the loss of life, or the whole or any substantial portion of the loss of property, would not have occurred if such law had been complied with."

2. The said Act is further amended by inserting immediately after section 515 the following section:

"(515A). In any case where any fire insurance company which carries any policy of fire insurance on the property, or any dominion, provincial or municipal fire officer or authority recommends that the owner, lessee or other person controlling or operating any building, structure, factory, shipyard, vessel, dock, wharf, pier, sawmill, or yard in which logs or lumber are stored or held should make any change or alteration in such building, structure, factory, shipyard, vessel, dock, wharf, sawmill, pier or yard, remove any material therefrom, or supply any apparatus therefore, with a view to reducing the risk of fire or for the extinguishing of fire, and such recommendation is approved by any officer in the service of His Majesty, thereto authorized by the Governor in Council, and notice of such a recommendation and of such approval thereof has been served personally upon or forwarded by registered mail to such owner, lessee or other person refuses or neglects to forthwith carry out such recommendation, such owner, lessee, or other person shall be liable upon summary conviction to a fine not exceeding $1,000 or to imprisonment for any term not exceeding six months, or to both fine and imprisonment."

Chief Gimblett has endeavored for years to impress on the citizens of Peterborough the desirability of keeping in mind and of putting into practice the following:

Suggestions on Fire Prevention.

Unquestionably the public are, through the effort of fire prevention campaigns, being brought to a realization that the stupendous loss by fire is not wholly a subject of concern for insurance companies.

It is still very difficult to disassociate from the minds of the great majority of people that a loss covered by insurance offsets the destruction and thus closes out the occurrence.

Every fire means so much property absolutely lost, for in no sense do insurance companies restore values—they merely distribute the misfortunes of fire among a community.

Endless suggestions present themselves for the improvement in existing conditions, many of which can be accomplished only with great difficulty, but it seems judicious that efforts in this direction should at this time be concentrated upon those remedies which will respond the quickest and save the most.

Four famous fire fiends contribute one-third of our fires: shingled roofs, defective chimneys, faulty electric installation, and last, but foremost of all, the strike-anywhere match.

To this infamous incendiary is attributed five per cent of the fires, but insurance men generally believe that double this figure is nearer a correct estimate.

Their cheapness causes them to be a plaything for children in almost every household, and they are with disastrous results scattered about indiscriminately almost every place—for the reason that they cost next to nothing.

Keep them out of the reach of children.

There are no fire prevention rules more important than those applying to the use of matches, and habits of carefulness should be formed by all.

Matches should be kept out of the reach of children and away from stoves and stovepipes, the sun's rays, or any other place where they may become overheated. Matches should not be left loose in a drawer or on a shelf, but should be kept in a covered metal or other non-inflammable receptacle.

It should be made criminal to manufacture, sell or use any other than a safety match, and the cost of these should be advanced by tax to a price that will compel economy in their use.

Try to make Peterborough a fireless city.

Keep cellars and attics free from rubbish, ashes, waste paper, etc.

Notify the city salvage department and they will take away all your waste paper, rags, etc.

Always use the safety match, which is lighted on the side of its box. Employees found carrying any other should be suspended.

Don't hang electric wires over nails or any kind of metal pipes. This is liable to wear the insulation off and start a fire by short-circuiting.

Don't look for a gas leak with a lighted match or candle. You might suddenly find it—to your sorrow.

Don't use gasoline for cleaning purposes near an open light.

Don't use a match to look for anything in dark closets, as the head may fly off and set fire. Neither use a candle.

Don't use coal oil, gasoline, or any other inflammable oils in lighting fires or to quicken a slow fire—it may result in death.

Don't throw away a lighted match, cigar, or cigarette butt where it will set fire.

Don't put ashes in wooden receptacles. Keep ashes away from woodwork. Hot ashes will take fire themselves, as frequently they have small bits of coal mixed in with them.

Don't have storage closets under stairways. Fires in these places cut off your main exit.

Don't store oils, paints, grease or fats in the house. Keep them outside if possible. If you must have them on hand, put them in a metal box with a cover on it.

Don't neglect to have the chimney flue cleaned once a year.

Don't leave holes in the flooring, walls or ceiling. These enable fires to travel throughout the building when once started.

Don't pour your gasoline, benzine or naptha down the drain. Pour it on the ground in the yard if you must get rid of it. One quart of either makes two hundred feet of explosive vapor. One quart of gasoline has substantially the power equal to 83 pounds of dynamite.

Don't set kitchen or heating stove close to woodwork. Put a metal shield behind stove. Leave at least 12 inches of air space behind stove and the shield clear of woodwork.

Don't use fire for thawing out frozen water pipes, but use hot water cloths.

Don't use rubber or metal tubing on gas plates or stoves, as they are very dangerous. Connect them up with proper iron gas piping.

Don't use paper or cotton shades on electric light bulbs, as they will take fire.

Don't use a match or any other open light to see how much gasoline you have in the tank of your automobile. You might find it out—to your sorrow.

Wigs were quite commonly worn in Egypt 3000 years ago.

W. R. Reynolds Reports On Safety Meetings Held in Toronto.

MARMORA, June 15.—The monthly meeting of the Deloro Safety First Committee at the Hub on Monday evening was made unusually interesting through the reading of a report by W. R. Reynolds one of the three local delegates to the recent Convention of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association held in Toronto. Cullings from his report follow:

"After registering at Convention headquarters, we looked over the exhibition of safety appliances and found much to interest us. Perhaps the most interesting exhibit of all—to us, was the steel stairway and decking shown by the McGregor and McIntyre Company. As the subject of steel stairs or rather steel treads for the stairs was before your Committee (Deloro), at a recent meeting, we paid special attention to this exhibit and were convinced that the stairs and treads shown by this company were a great improvement on anything we had seen in that line and would increase the factor of safety, as far as stairways are concerned, in any plant where the high cost of installing them would be justified. We paid attention also, to the exhibit of goggles and [illegible] several admirable [illegible]ors, such as o[illegible]wn and we tried to get information as to the experience of other plants with leaking cylinders, but could get nothing save assurances that something must be wrong with the method of filling the cylinders—that the inhalators were perfectly reliable.

"We had short talks with Messrs. Morley, Twist and Sutherland. Mr. Morley spoke of our Deloro Safety work as surprisingly effective. We were careful to impress upon him the fact that we worked out most of the details of our organization ourselves.

"In our opinion, the address of Mr. Greenwood, of the Christie Brown Co., of Toronto, was the best of the Convention. He told of the difficulties encountered at first in the organization work, of the trouble they had in getting all the foremen wholeheartedly behind the movement and in making them realize its importance. His company has a nurse at the factory during all working hours, and all injuries, no matter how trivial they may seem, are treated by the nurse or doctor.

"Mr. Greenwood emphasized the necessity of keeping up the interest in Safety work. He said it was one of the hardest things to do, but every effort must be made to prevent the enthusiasm from lagging. To give more than a resume of the Convention programme would take up too much time.

"We were impressed with the fact that Accident Prevention work has done a great deal in industry in Canada already, but we were also brought to realize that there is a great deal to be done yet. To use a phrase often applied to electrical science—"Safety work is still in its infancy.' May we suggest to this Committee that we should not only do our best to maintain our high standing in safety work, but try to win first place on the roll of honor. We desire to thank the management of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Co., for their generosity in making our attendance at the Safety Convention possible and to the members of this Committee for their part in the competition."

The competition referred to, was participated in by the foremen of the plant for least accidents during the safety first year that had closed, Messrs. W. R. Reynolds, A Kennedy and E. Hewitt being the successful three. The banner for this month is awarded to the Oxide Plant. Seven awards were also made to individuals at Monday's meeting for worthy suggestions sent in during May.

Celebrate July 1 in Peterboro'

The arival of the first consignment of 29 bells of the Victory Tower carillon at Ottawa is shown in the above photographs. The complete set comprises 53. Included in those already at hand is the massive Bourdon bell, numbered 53, shown by itself, the inscription on which reads: "This carillon was installed by authority of parliament to commemorate the peace of nineteen eighteen and to keep in remembrance the service and sacrifice of Canada in the great war MCMXXVI." The numeral "53" appears just below the inscription, and a scriptural passage is engraved at the base of the lip of the bell.

5TH PETERBORO TROOP.

The meeting opened under our Scoutmaster's supervision, with roll call and flag break. Hikes were suggested, but not agreed upon, as a great many of the boys are writing on their examinations. There was a large turnout of boys, as there usually is. We have twenty-five boys now invested in our troop and have three jolly patrols going.

The Wolf patrol challenged the rest of the troops in a field to be held in the near future to any form of an athletic sport such as swimming, running, relaying and jumping. The Bulldogs quickly rose to the occasion and are now in training for the event. We have a softball team going and we issue a challenge to all troops. Our hockey team was rather late in starting, but our ball team is on the spot ready for action.

The Bulldog patrol have gone in for the leather workers badges. As you all know there are sixty-two proficiency badges to be earned. Most of the troop are well on their way towards passing their second class badge. Arnold Smedmore, of the Bulldog patrol won the patrol competition, with Lindley Pratt a close second. In the troop competition the Bulldog patrol is so far holding the lead.

A public meeting of the Humane Society will be held on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in the Chamber of Commerce. Judge Huycke will address the meeting. Those interested are invited to attend.

THE HOME GARDEN

As soon as the sweet-pea plants are up an inch or so keep the hoe going. Constant cultivation is the price of a good showing of sweet peas. Do not let them lack for water, but do not sprinkle them. Give them a real soaking, and then don't water them for several days. A little good fertilizer sprinkled along the row, just before the buds begin to swell, and well watered in, will help the plants a great deal, and will add to the depth of the color of the flowers.

Shade Loving Flowers.

Brightening up the shady corners of the flower garden is usually quite a problem, although many annuals actually prefer to be away from the sun part of the time. Of course, it is almost impossible to get anything to grow in a spot which is without sunshine during the whole of the day, except, perhaps, ferns; but the following will do well in partial shade: Alyssum, Lupine, Marvel of Peru, Newophila, Nicotiana, Pansy, Phlox and Verbena.

Summer Care of Roses.

Until the first of July new and established roses can be helped along by surface applications of quick-acting fertilizers, such as nitrate of soda. Use a scant tablespoonful of this fertilizer, and dig it lightly around but not touching the plant. One or two applications a fortnight apart are sufficient. After July, according to A. H. Tomlinson, O.A.C., Guelph, slower acting fertilizers should be given. Weak liquid manure in this connection is valuable. To be safe deep forking after the roses become settled should cease, but shallow cultivation is advisable. A few low growing plants such as Pansies and Calendulas, growing about the roots, after the bed is established is an advantage.

Timely Hints.

If the birds are eating the lettuce, cover the same with a light lattice or a strip of chicken wire. This will scare them away.

Plant cosmos along the fence and be ready to tie it up when it gets a couple of feet tall.

Four o'clock seed for a row along a walk should be planted immediately. Plant two seeds a foot apart and pull up one plant if both come up.

Yellow Ponderosa tomatoes seem to have made considerable strides in popularity in the last few years. They add color to a salad, pickles or preserves.

A Few Annuals Worth Trying.

There should always be space in the amateur's garden for a few new flowers of more than average merit. In this connection the Calliopsis can be recommended. This is a half hardy annual producing brightly colored yellow flowers with dark brown centres, on long stems. They are good bloomers, do well under ordinary conditions and are particularly fine as cut flowers. The Scabious is another worth trying. It can be sown any time now, and will furnish very sweet scented bloom from late summer on. It grows to a height of around two feet, and, therefore, requires plenty of room, in good soil and an open position. Calendulas or Pot Marigolds, can still be sown. These giant yellow and orange flowers are excellent for cutting as they will last a long while indoors. The Clarkia, Salpiglossis, Godetia, the lupines and several others all good, but rather unfamiliar may well be included.

ELECT EXECUTIVE OFFICERS AT FIRST MEETING OF C. G. E. ATHLETIC AND SOCIAL CLUB

Representatives of Different Zones To Be Elected in Factory.

PICNIC DISCUSSED.

Payment of Dues Be Taken Out of Individual Pay Envelopes.

The Athletic and Social Club of the Canadian General Electric Company held its first meeting in the Canadian Legion Hall last night. N. Crowe occupied the chair. Mr. Crowe in a brief address, told the members present that this meeing was called together for the organization of a social and athletic club for the company, and stated that Mr. Hardy and Mr. Foster had originated the plan to form this club after seeing a similar one in operation at Davenport. He then called on Mr. Hardy for a few words, stating how he and Mr. Foster had originated the idea.

Mr. Hardy remarked that some time ago he and Mr. Foster had got together on the scheme, and had resolved to put it across to the employees. A meeting was held and 1200 men joined and then the management had promised liberal support.

Mr. Foster then told of the activities of Davenport, and stated that the local membership had now reached a total of 1086.

He also stated that a letter had been sent to Mr. Patterson asking for a dollar from the company for every dollar that the men put in the club to defray all expenses.

The following constitution was then read:

Elect by Ballot.

The picnic to be held on June 25, was then discussed, and it was decided that the executive would look after the full details of the picnic.

In regard to the elections it was decided that the executive officers for the year would be elected in the meeting last night, but that the representatives of the different zones in the factory would only be nominated and elected in the factory by ballot to-morrow. Messrs. Menzies, Young, Kerr, Crease, Dick and Williams were chosen as scrutineers for both elections.

The question of the payment of dues, amounting to fifteen cents a week, came up, and after a lenthy discussion it was decided by vote that payment of dues would be taken out of the individual pay envelopes every second pay by the paymaster of the company.

A rule was also passed that any member could discontinue membership by notifying the secretary one month in advance.

The following executive officers were elected for the coming year:

Last night's meeting marks a very important step in the sport of the Canadian General Electric Company, and with such a live executive at the head should prove a decided success from every angle.

POWER AT LONG DISTANCE.

Cheaper electricity for everyone, because it can be transmitted economically thousands of miles where only hundreds have heretofore been possible, may be one of the results of a new system of handling electricity perfected by Frank G. Baum, San Francisco engineer. By it, reports "Popular Science Monthly," electric power generated in the Rocky Mountains may be sent to the Mississippi valley or even farther east, and the power of Niagara might span the country.

The new system divides the entire transmission line into sections of 100 and 200 miles, linked by rotary regulators or condensers, each of which transmits the current onward with small losses. It promises to make possible the utilization of waterfalls which are now idle because they are in isolated ocalities.

KIWANIS LOSE TO THE CANUCKS

Defeated 13-10 After Tieing Score in First of Sixth.

After tieing the score in the first of the sixth, Kiwanis Juveniles went down to a 13-10 defeat in a twilight fixture with the Canucks at Exhibition grounds last night. The first three innings spelled the disaster for the Kiwanis boys, but coming back with a rally tied their opponents in the sixth 10-10.

Jack Deannard didn't expect to do anything with the battery last night, but the game to be played on Saturday will provide a big surprise to the fans when Jack shows his real hand with two new players on the line-up. Canucks showed better form than the Kiwanis last night, both in fielding and handling the willow. Westbrook pitched good ball to the fatal inning when the Kiwanis opened up, and he was yanked for Crary, who held the Club boys down to very few hits. Deforge and Wolfe were the lights of the hitting men for Kiwanis, while Westbrook, Crary, Austin and O'Brien showed up well for the Canucks.

The line-up:

Canucsk: Westbrook p; O'Brien c; Collins, 1b; A. Weir 2b; Whaley ss; Saunders 3b; L. Burke lf; Meaher rf; Austin cf; Crary p.

ST. ANDREW'S TOSS BALL GAME AWAY

Had Lead of Six Runs at End of First, But Lose 20 to 12.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 15. — St. Andrew's simply threw away the softball game to the Clerks last night. At the end of the first innings the score was 6-0 in favour of St. Andrew's. With this lead St. Andrew's started to pull off some grand stand stuff for the benefit of Aggie and Mary Jane, who were present in their best pinafore and sweetest smile. To show the said Aggie and Mary Jane how a ball could be caught (or missed) with one hand, and several similar stunts, they were willing to toss and did toss the game away.

St. Andrew's nas the strongest team in the league. Their one weakness all along has been their batting; this they seem to have overcome. Last night they played two strange players, but no blame for the result of the game can be attached to either. Owen Hendry, one of the new men, did good work in left field. St. Andrew's have many backers who are looking for them to get down to business and cut out the comedy stuff on the diamond. A homer by Feeling and some double play work by Bailey featured the game.

The following was the line-up:

St. Andrew's — Storrie, p; Fox, c; Bailey, 1b; Peeling, 2b; Little, 3b; Blakely, ss; Hendry, lf; Dunk, cf; Bland, rf.

Score, 20-12 in favour of Clerks.

Umpires — Plate, Weston; bases, Massie.

League Standing.

The standing of the different teams in the league is as follows:

Clerks, won 5, lost 1; Millionaires, won 4, lost 2; St. Andrew's won 2, lost 3; Mill, lost 4, won 0; Outlaws, won 2, lost 3; Hydro, won 2, lost 2.

Hydro and St. Andrew's have two postponed games.

GIANTS PROTEST CUBS' VICTORY

Argue Pick's Blow Along the First Base Line Was Foul.

WAS NOT ALLOWED.

NEW YORK, June 15 (Canadian Press).—The Cubs stretched their winning stride to ten straight at Chicago to-day by conquering the New York Giants by 4 to 3, Pick's single in the eleventh driving home Beck with the deciding run.

The Giants protested vigorously that Pick's blow was a foul along the first base line and Hornsby had an argument with Umpires McCormick and Klem in front of the New York dugout. A mob of fans then surged upon the field but the protest was not allowed.

Beck started the final inning by getting a free pass and went to third on Adams' base hit.

After Hack Wilson's thirteenth home run of the season with Webb on base in the sixth put the Cubs in front, New York levelled the count in the succeeding session. Terry was given a base on balls with the bases full, forcing in Reece with a tally.

The Reds made it two out of three from Boston by defeating the Braves yesterday, 1 to 0, at Cincinnati. Jakie May gained the verdict over Henry Wertz. The Red hurler allowed only four hits and struck out nine batters, two of whom fanned in the ninth with a runner on second base with one out. The contest was attended by the smallest crowd that has seen a ball game at Redland Field in years, totalling about 900.

The Cardinals bunched hits off Alex. Ferguson, veteran right hander, in the first three innings of St. Louis and won from the Phillies, 6 to 4, for a clean sweep of the series. Grover Cleveland Alexander relieved Flint Rhem in the sixth after he had allowed three singles and forced in one run with a walk. Cy Williams hit his eleventh homer of the season.

Royalty Attends Opening of Ascot Stakes; "Duke of Buckingham" Wins First Honors

ASCOT, June 15 (Canadian Press Cable).—Ascot's brilliant race meet was ushered in yesterday, the presence of King George and Queen Mary, the Prince of Wales and other members of the Royal family and nobility contributing to make the event outstanding even in Ascot's long record as a society fete par excellence.

The day's great races were the Ascot Stakes and the Gold Vase. Today the finest of handicap thoroughbreds will race in the Royal Hunt Cup, seven furlongs, 166 yards, for which the 29 probable starters were named last night. Thursday's great race is the Gold Cup, and the meet winds up on Friday, when the long-distance Alexandra Stakes features a rich closing-day card.

The Ascot Stakes went to W. M. Cazalet's Duke of Buckingham, a Buchan-Silver Bullet colt. He won by three lengths from Lady Ludlow's Incitatus II., who finished a head in front of Mrs. Whitelaw's Castlederg. Eighteen went the distance of two miles for the prize of about $10,000. The Duke of Buckingham started at 11 to 2 against; Incitatus at 100 to 7, and Castlederg at 25 to 1.

Ten thoroughbreds raced over the two-mile course for the Gold Vase and added money of $6,000. F. W. Horlock's Adieu, by Argos-Dame French, won, with Lord Durham's filly, Beam second, and the Aga Khan's colt Mario, third. Adieu started at 100 to 6, winning by four lengths, and Beam stated at 5 to 1, and Mario at 7 to 1.

It was the 85th running of both the Gold Vase and Ascot Stakes.

Sam Gray is one of the most efficient sight-handed pitchers in the American League, yet I doubt if he ever forgets a bombardment the New York Yankees subjected him to in one inning of a game at Shibe Park, September 10, 1925.

Gray had been going along nicely until Bob Meusel stepped to the plate to start the fourth inning. On the very first ball pitched, Meusel hit a home run, high into the upper tier of the left field stands.

Babe Ruth, following him in the batting order, was greeted by the customary "razzberry" when he took his position. The jeers turned to cheers when the Bambino hit the first pitched ball far over the right field wall.

Gray wasted the next ball on Lou Gehrig, high on the outside and the Yankee first sacker refused to bite. Then came a fast ball, right through the middle and Gehrig took a healthy cut. The result was the longest drive of the trio, a home run over the scoreboard in center field.

Ben Pascal was next up. He hit the second ball pitched on a line to left center. In a sense, it was a harder hit ball than any of the three circuit drives but it failed to go into the left field stand by a matter of inches. Pascal made two bases.

On six pitched balls by Gray the Yankees had driven out three successive home runs and a two bagger for a total of 14 bases. Some batting!

"I try my best to forget that home run barrage, but simply can't," says Gray.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE — By Ahern

Hooper Was Caddy On Hamilton Links

HAMILTON, Ont., June 15 (Canadian Press).—Ten years ago "Light Horse" Harry Cooper, who led the star of the golfing world through the mud of the Oakmont links on the first round of the United States Open Championship Tournament, was a caddy at the Hamilton Golf and Country Club, Ancaster. Old timers out there remember him as a clean cut lad with a world of self assurance and a golf swing that was rhythm personified. The family moved from Hamilton to the Coast just about ten years ago, where the boy took up golf seriously and fought his way to stardom. Cooper is recognized as being one of the best money players in the game. The sobriquet "Light Horse" was coined to indicate the galloping speed with which he moves around the links. Cooper spends no time fiddling. He walks up to his ball, hits it, and goes over to it at a dog trot.

UNKNOWN LEAD IN U.S. TOURNEY

Johnny Johnston and Harry Hampton Lead the First Half.

JONES SHOOTS A 78.

OAKMONT, Pa., June 15 (Associated Press).—While the rain-swept bunkers and bogs of Oakmont yesterday took a heavy toll in title hopes, two unsung and unheralded contenders splashed to the front of an internationally notable field in the first 18-hole round of the American open golf championship.

Harrison R. (Jimmy) Johnston, of Minneapolis, former western amateur champion, and Harry Hampton, Memphis professional, attracted little attention as they went off and less trouble as they carried on, with the result that each finished in a fine 73.

But for an unruly putt that hit the back of the cup on the last green and bounced off, Johnston would have bagged a par 72 and occupied the lead alone.

Closely pressing the two leaders, a stroke behind at 74, came the more famous aspirants, Gene Sarazen and "Light Horse" Harry Hooper, professional stars from opposite sides of the continent, while the defending champion and favorite, Bobby Jones, in spite of a troublesome round, was within striking distance with a 76.

Hooper, who learned his game on the links at Hamilton, Ont., held the lead for some part of the day. Ernest Penfold, of Minneapolis, formerly of Winnipeg, came through late in the afternoon with a 79. Anything under 80 was considered excellent for such a tough course and such rotten weather. Frank Thompson, the former Canadian open champion, who is playing for the Knollwood Club of Chicago, took an 87 for his initial eighteen holes.

With the day's score sheet complete, Bobby Jones stood in ninth position, tied with the veteran Briton, Ted Ray, who won the American open crown in 1920, when Bobby, at the age of 18, was making his first appearance in the tournament.

Others standing between Jones and the leaders were Dave Robertson, Dearborn, Mich., professional, and another dark horse, who finished with a fine 74 late in the day, to tie Sarazen and Cooper for second place and three more professionals bracketed at 75, Larry Nabholtz, of Sharon, Pa.; Emmett French, of Southern Pines, N.C., and "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn, of New York.

Walter Hagen, salvaging a bad start with a flourishing finish, landed a stroke behind Jones and Ray with a 77, the same figure that "Wee Bobby" Cruickshank picked as one of the fore most contenders registered.

Thus, to the accompaniment of a steady downpour of rain nearly all day and playing conditions that dealt disaster unceremoniously to champions and ex-champions alike, the vanguard formed for the title trek that continues with another 18-hole test to-day and a final march of 36 holes for the 64 low scorers on Thursday.

BELMONT CLUB DEFEAT C.G.E.

Harrison and Frick Hit Lucky Homers For Victors.

BATTERIES GOOD.

Playing good ball behind the steady pitching of Carruthers and Harrison the Belmonts defeated the Industrial Control 15-2 at Central Park last night.

Simmons was on the mound for Industrial Control and pitched good ball, but he was awarded terrible support from his teammates. He had a great fast ball working and would not have been scored upon very much had he been given good support. Two home runs by Harrison and Frick should have been easy outs with good fielding.

The teams lined up as follows:

Industrial Control—G. Williams, A. Griffin, Rishes, Bennett, Billingsly, E. Williams, F. Simmons, Heffernan, Conroy, Clancy, Darling and Simmons.

Belmonts—Green, Holyman, Haskill, Harrison, Frick, Fanning, Jobbitt, Batten, Delahaye, Stuart, Carruthers.

Umpires—Jackson and Scates.

SEVEN OAKS CLASH WITH PETERBORO CANOE TONIGHT

Tonight at Central Park at 6.15 the Seven Oaks meet the Peterboro Canoe team. This should be a closely fought battle as both teams are evenly matched. A good crowd should be out to see this battle.

BASEBALL NEWS.

DELORO PLANS BIG FETE DAYS

Jubilee Challenge Cup Has Been Contributed For Road Race.

TO ENCOURAGE SPORT.

MARMORA, June 15.—Proportionately speaking, no more auspicious program will mark the Confederation Jubilee than that attempted by the residents of Deloro, Ontario's smallest incorporated village. That they should plan to carry out a two days' celebration, in itself speaks volumes for the survival of that patriotic spirit which characterized the smelting village in the days of the Great War. Outstanding among the many varied attractions arranged for July 1st and 2nd, is the inauguration of a yearly marathon to Marmora and back, open to youths of 20 and under, resident in Hastings County. This race will be known as the Deloro Road Race. Kent's Limited of Toronto have donated a very handsome cup designated the "Kent Jubilee Challenge Cup", which will be held by the winner for the year in which he is successful. He will receive a miniature replica for permanent possession. To further stimulate interest, the Sports Committee in connection with the celebration are offering five useful prizes to those finishing next and every entry will receive a memento. The running of the marathon is primarily to encourage and perpetuate long distance running in the country. That the idea has caught on is evidenced by the fact that local youths have been out training. The date of closing of entries has not yet been announced but it will probably be around June 30th. Entries stating age and length of residency in Hastings County may be sent to H. A. McNally, Deloro. There is no reason why every town in the county should not be represented in this great event.

A CASE OF ERYSIPELAS

I receive many letters from physicians who read these daily health articles, and I am able to say that most of these letters are pleasing to me, as they contain many compliments about the work I am doing in educating the general public in the ways and means of preventing and curing disease.

But, occasionally, some doctor writes me and criticizes my view-point about the cause of disease. The other day I received a letter from a doctor who objected to a statement I made in a recent article in which I claimed that erysipelas was caused by a faulty diet and could be cured by the fasting and diet treatment. He asked me, in the latter, if I did not know that this trouble was caused by the memolytic bacteria streptococcus erysipelatis, and that dieting had nothing to do with it. Yes, Doctor, I am perfectly familiar with the statements made in the medical text-books about this bacteria being the cause of erysipelas, as I have probably studied the same medical text-books as you have. I do know I have gone a step further than this in my studies, for I have found, as you must have found by now, that the destruction of this bacteria will not cure erysipelas, or prevent its recurrence. There must be a systemic acidosis present in the body before the bacteria of erysipelas can find a suitable hunting ground. Such acidosis is built up through the use of improper foods and faulty food combinations. When the patient is in such a condition of chronic poisoning, it only takes an extra day or two of the wrong food to bring on an "attack" of erysipelas.

The day I received the Doctor's critical letter, a mother brought her little boy to my office for diagnosis. He was suffering from some ugly looking, purplish, red spots which appeared on both legs below the knee; also, a few spots were showing on his thighs. His trouble was easy to diagnose as erysipelas. The boy, apparently well the day before, had eaten a dish of ice-cream during the afternoon after already having eaten a large meal. He became nauseated shortly afterwards and disgorged the whole contents of his stomach by violent vomiting. The rest of the day he felt fairly well, but in the morning the discolored spots appeared.

What do you suppose the connection could be between the boy getting sick from over-eating and the streptococcus erysipelatis? Had the bacteria of erysipelas just been waiting around the corner to grab this boy whenever he over-ate? Why no, of course not! He had all the possibilities of erysipelas lurking inhis system and only needed the additional bad meal to bring the trouble to the surface of the skin.

What was the treatment given? Simply keeping the affected parts clean and having the boy fast on orange juice and water until the temperature, which he had, reduced to the normal. The curing of an acute case of erysipelas is very simply accomplished by this same treatment.

Whether any streptococcus erysipelatis were present or not is not important, but if they were—they apparently left after a few days fast to look for some more suitable feeding ground.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

THIS IS'NT HOME

I know I love the green tree more
That grows beside my own front door
Than any tree, however great,
That stands upon some proud estate.
One little tree
That smiles at me
Each morning when I look to see
Means more than forests I might roam,
For, after all, that isn't home.

And so it is with city streets:
Whatever majesty one meets
In other towns, what roofs arise,
They don't mean much to homesick eyes.
One little road
To my abode,
With grasses that the neighbors sowed,
Means more than boulevard or dome,
For, after all, that isn't home.

And you will find it so with joys:
The world will sell you tinsel toys,
Tinsel you soon will weary of,
For only home can give you love.
One face you miss,
One youngster's kiss,
Mean more to you than all of this.
And so why spend, and so why roam?
For, after all, that isn't home.

ACCOMPLISH WINS CAPITAL CITY PURSE

Leads Classiest Field Run at Connaught Park Spring Meet.

CONNAUGHT PARK, AYLMER, Que., June 15. — Accomplish, three-year-old filly, running under the silks of E. LeRoy King, won the Capital City Purse yesterday from the classiest field that has been brought together at the Connaugh Park Spring Race Meeting. The daughter of Polymelian-Finis ran in masterful style to cover the six furlongs in 1.14 2-5 and lead home Sandhills and Dignus who captured second and third respectively.

Dignus set all the early pace but could not withstand the gruelling stretch run of the winner, who had been held well back by Jockey M. Fishman. Sandhills got up in the last few jumps to take second money, a length back of Acomplish and half a length in front of Dignus. The King representative was a hot favorite paying only $3.70 for straight tickets.

The opening dash for two-year-olds furnished the keenest competition of the card, J. A. Parsons' Totara, Partake and Bedford Dream finishing in that order, only noses apart. The Parson filly covered the five furlongs in 1.01 4-5, only a second slower than the track record.

"Johnny Get Your Hair Cut" Shows His Prowess on the Race Track

Jackie Coogan's tutor taught him that a man plays many parts during a lifetime, and the young star of the movies has come to realize the truth of his teachings. They were never more forcefully impressed on the keen intellect of the famous child star than when he was cast for the role of a jockey in his newest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture play, "Johnny Get Your Hair Cut," coming soon to the Regent Theatre. For many years—in fact ever since he was able to toddle—Jackie had been able to stick on a bronco in a Western saddle, but riding a "bang-tailed streak of lightning" around a muddy track is, as the saying goes, "a horse of a different color."

So Jackie was obliged to go into training, just as an athlete trains for a big event. The big scene in Jackie's film was to be a running race, so the little Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star proceeded to prepare himself for the task. Down on Jackie's 1,000-acre ranch near the Mexican border his father built a half-mile race track, and from Tia Juana, Mexico, a few miles away, imported six of the finest thoroughbreds in that part of the country. Under the tutelage of two of America's foremost jockeys, Bobby Doyle and Ken Erickson, Jackie acquired the art of urging the ponies under the wire.

When Jackie began riding for the camera, interested bystanders were moved to remark on the ease and familiarity with which Jackie conducted himself on a horse. Jackie weighs seventy-four pounds and is four feet six inches tall—an ideal jockey.

Uncle Wiggily

By Howard R. Garis

To-day's Bedtime Story.

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE FUZZY ROCK

One day Uncle Wiggily's glasses fell off his nose and broke. No, no, if you please! His nose didn't break—just his glasses.

"Oh, dear me! Now I can't see to go adventuring!" sighed the rabbit gentleman. For, though he did not wear glasses every day, this Tuesday was one of the times when he needed his spectacles to look for jolly adventures in the woods and fields.

"I am going downtown shopping," said Mrs. Longears, as she helped her husband pick up the pieces of his glasses. "I will have them mended for you."

"But what about my adventures?" sadly asked the bunny. "Must I stay in the bungalow until you get back with my mended glasses?"

"Can't you see well enough to hop around?" asked Nurse Jane.

"Yes, but I can't see well enough to pick out adventures," answered Mr. Longears. "If I had some one to go with me to tell me when an adventure was coming—"

Before the bunny uncle had a chance to say anything more Jingle and Jangle and Baby Bunty, who were the last to leave for school, piped up and cried:

"We'll lead you to adventures!"

"Ha! That isn't a bad idea!" said Mr. Longears. "But if you stay home from school to lead your half-blind Daddicums adventuring, what about your lessons?"

"Oh, we are so smart at our lessons that staying home one day will not make us miss much," said Baby Bunty.

"And we can study twice as hard tomorrow," added Jingle.

"All right," chuckled the rabbit. "That suits me. Come along! Adventuring we shall go!"

So he hopped out of the bungalow, holding Jingle and Jangle by the paws, while Baby Bunty ran on ahead to look for adventures. Mrs. Longears went shopping and Nurse Jane gave the breakfast dishes their bath.

Over the fields and through the woods hopped Uncle Wiggily and the little rabbits. Mr. Longears could see well enough not to stumble and fall, but he couldn't have picked out an adventure if some one had held it under his pink, twinkling nose so much did he need glasses that day.

"Well, don't you see any jolly 'adventure yet?" asked Mr. Longears after they had hopped around for half an hour.

"I see two June Bugs in a little green moss house," said Baby Bunty.

"I had that adventure yesterday," laughed Uncle Wiggily.

"I see some lace handkerchief flowers growing in the field," called Jingle.

"I had that adventure Saturday," her daddy replied.

"I see a nice big toadstool," added Jangle.

"Your brothers Toodle and Noodle had an adventure with Mrs. Hop's toadstool on Friday," said the rabbit gentleman. "Try again. Surely there must be an adventure around here. If I only had my glasses!"

Then Baby Bunty shouted:

"Oh, Unkie Wig! I see a big fuzzy rock over in the middle of the field! Maybe that's an adventure!"

"A fuzzy rock, what do you mean, Bunty?" asked Uncle Wiggily trying to look where the little rabbit pointed. But without his glasses he could see nothing but a big, brown shape.

"It's a rock," reported Bunty, "and it looks as if fuzz was growing on it—black and brown fuzz."

"She means moss, I guess!" said Jingle.

"I guess so," agreed Uncle Wiggily. "Well, we'll hop over and sit on the fuzzy rock and maybe an adventure will happen."

So they hopped over and sat down on the fuzzy rock, and when Uncle Wiggily felt of what he thought might be brown moss he exclaimed:

"Why, it feels just like fur!"

And then, all of a sudden, it seemed as if that fuzzy rock turned a somersault in the air. Uncle Wiggily with the three bunny children were spilled off and a voice growled:

"Who is trying to sit on me?"

"Bless my pink nose! It's Mr. Stubtail, the daddy bear father of Neddie and Beckie; isn't it?" asked Uncle Wiggily as he heard the voice.

"Ha! Ha! That's who it is!" laughed Mr. Stubtail. "I curled up and went to sleep in the field, and the first I knew somebody came and sat on me. I was so surprised I jumped up."

"We—we thought you were a fuzzy rock!" explained Bunty.

Then they all laughed and Mr. Longears said it was as jolly an adventure as he had had in a week.

FLAPPER "SLAYER RETURNS"

CHERRY LANE, EXONERATED, IS COMING BACK TO PETERBOROUGH.

Vivacious Cherry Lane, the pretty, man-crazy flapper, whose trifling with males hearts brought her face to face with justice on a false charge murder, is returning to Peterborough today. Cherry, you remember, with her quiet, self-sacrificing sister, Faith, is the title character of The Examiner's moving, life-true serial, SAINT AND SINNER.

Concluding the first phase of the story was the dismissal of the accusation against Cherry that she had slain her aged fiance, Ralph Cluny, just prior to her loveless marriage to Chris Wiley. A girl-wife marked by nation-wide publicity attending the trial and facing motherhood, she emerges upon a new existence.

Anne Austin's record-breaking story is now to enter another phase, a phase complete in itself. It deals with Cherry's post-trial escapades, her uncregeneracy, her incorrigible philadenring, and how all members of the Lane household came to bear a portion of their consequences. Cherry, Faith and their loves in the privacy of their home.

An absorbing tale of intermingled love and hate, laughter and tears, sorrow and joy. In short, life, as distorted by extreme flapperism—a story dramatic and heart-moving as only Anne Austin's inimitable style could make it—rare entertainment in daily installments for those who did read the first phase as well as those who will begin with the second, an impelling story complete in itself.

ALL STARS WILL MEET THE PETES

Picked Team From East Peterborough League To Play Seniors.

The Peterborough Senior ball team will get some action here Saturday at Riverside Park when they will clash with a picked team from the Rayoestos, Crescents and Cognawagas of the East Peterborough League. The E. P. circuit contains some starry performers and a team will be selected that will provide Manager Swanston's crew with plenty of opposition, especially as the Intermediate squads have had more work. It is likely that Al. Heckman will start the game for the Seniors.

This clash will give the fans a chance to get a line on the ability of the Senior squad as well as to size up the Intermediate players. It will be a real battle all the way and should provide some interesting baseball for the Saturday afternoon crowd.

ASCOT, England, June 15 (Canadian Press). — M. M. Boussac's Asterus won the Royal Hunt Cup, one of the features of to-day's card at Ascot. J. B. Joel's Priory was second, and Reid Walker's Delust was third in a field of 29.

THE OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFETIME

Have you a goal in view? Then don't only glimpse it. Strive to attain it. A desire in the heart for anything is a sure promise sent beforehand that it is yours in the limitless realm of supply.

Perhaps your mediocrity is a matter of will power. Opportunity! Earnestness, vision, ambition—these are some of the compounds necessary to the person who would succeed.

To the girl with ambition Famous Players Canadian Corporation offers the chance of a life-time, and announce a "Screen Personality Contest," which will be conducted at Famous Players theatres throughout the Province of Ontario during the week of June 18th, the selection of the winners taking place at the Uptown Theatre, Toronto.

The winners of preliminary contests held throughout the province will be brought to Toronto; their travelling expenses will be paid and each winner will be permitted to select a chaperone, whose travelling expenses will also be paid by the Corporation.

A trip to Hollywood, California, and return, with all expenses paid of winner and chaperone, with arrangements for a screen test, and an automobile, will be the first prize.

This ought to be startling news to the girl with a vision. All that is necessary to enter the contest is a desire, a photograph and a street frock (costume being optional).

Contestants will be judged for beauty of face and figure, poise, personality, carriage and general appearance, consistent with the characteristics of a motion picture star.

The contest will begin in all motion houses controlled by Famous Players Canadian Corporation, on June 18th. The winners will be determined by a committee of three judges, who will be guided by the applause of the audience in the theatres in which they appear.

It is desirable that each entry be accompanied by a photograph of the contestant.

No employee of any theatre or film company is eligible for entry in this contest.

Winner of the local contest will receive a beautiful silver cup presented by the manager of the Capitol Theatre, as well as practically a complete outfit, donated by local merchants, in which to make her Toronto appearance. All expenses to Toronto for both chaperon and herself will be paid by Famous Players Corporation.

Entries close on Friday night at nine o'clock. So get yours in now. Entry forms and full particulars of the contest may be had by applying to the manager of the Capitol.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Posing at times as a barber, at others as ATTORNEY DAVIS, a curious man called Vilak has come to the queer little town of PORTO VERDE, in west central Brazil, to help his cousin, ELISE MARBERRY, solve a strange mystery.

Elise, a beautiful American girl, has inherited a coffee plantation and other property adjoining Porto Verde. Several mysterious deaths occur, including that of one of her foremen. She herself has been threatened and warned to leave. Vilak, learning that LINCOLN NUNNALLY, a famous American chemist and once a teacher of his, is in South America, sends for him.

Vilak believes that GAYLORD PRENTISS, a mysterious and forbidding man, is somehow involved in the deaths. He tries to visit Prentiss but is ordered to stay away. Elise's two-year-old orphaned nephew is kidnapped and Prentiss is suspected. Vilak tracks the kidnappers, who are on horseback, and finally he and his companions come upon the child, unharmed and being cared for by a gang of railroad laborers in the charge of one CARLOS D'ALBENTARA.

Vilak tells Elise she and the child must leave on the next boat. He and Nunnally return that evening to reward D'Albentara and his men with some wine. Before they come away, Vilak, through a seemingly accidental fall, manages to get hold of a ring which he says he snatched from the finger of D'Albentara's half-breed foreman.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER XVII.

"Incidentally I might add," Vilak said, "that the way things look now the usefulness of my esteemed relative, Mr. Riggs, the barber, is about over. Are you coming down to the shop with me?"

The old man nodded. Vilak sent the servants back with the cart. They turned into the highway. As they did so they saw an Indian staggering through the brush, obviously in the last stages of intoxication. He was constantly lifting to his mouth a tin cup which he refilled from a sort of crude canteen at his belt. As he walked he continually muttered an incomprehensible jargon. Nunnally recognized him as one of the Indians with the filed teeth who worked in the railroad gang. He zigzagged up the road in the direction of Vilak's house and Elise's fazenda. Vilak looked after him a moment. "That fellow is just fit for getting into trouble," he said. He continued thoughtfully down the road.

They rode to the shop, then returned to Vilak's modest house hidden behind the grove of mango trees. Vilak took some musty, dog-eared notebooks out of a suitcase which he had transformed into a sort of traveling desk and began to study them, smoking with quick feverish puffs, his eyes again slanted, his whole face again touched with a Chinese pallor. The old man busied himself with a great dull volume which he found lying on a table, a book describing the chemical resources of Brazil.

Two hours later they were on their way back to the fazenda. They had passed the barrier of mango trees, and were just riding into the open highway when a cry, suddenly cut short, rose from the thick jungle back of Vilak's house. Short though it was, the cry was undoubtedly that of a human being. Vilak wheeled his horse, dashed back the way he had just come, and dismounting at his door, began running along a path which led from the old stone well to the narrow courtyard at the rear.

The old man followed, panting. For a quarter of a mile they bolted along, now in forest so black that though the moon was shining clearly they could see nothing of the sky, now past a pool of dark, evil-smelling water, along whose borders sat huge bullfrogs chanting their hoarse and mournful refrain. They saw a light between the tall trees ahead. Vilak halted. "Step softly as you can," he said to his companion.

They crept forward stealthily over the soil made into a veritable cushion by the leaf mould of centuries. As they went on they saw that the light was the light of a fire, around which two shadows were moving. They reached the edge of a small clearing and looked from behind the shelter of a tree.

Now they could see plainly the two shadows: they were Pasquale Branza of the patched cheek and the one-armed Detto Cicerone. On the ground lay a third man, the drunken Indian they had noticed going up the road. He was trussed with ropes like a wild beast just captured and made ready for shipment to some far off zoo. His arms were tied flatly behind his back, his mouth was gagged with a piece of old shirt, undoubtedly to stifle cries such as they heard a few moments before.

His skinny bare legs were also lashed together and placed over a log so that the bony feet projected high in the air. It was at this extremity of their victim's body that the two Italians were standing, Pasquale keeping up a running conversation in some uncouth Portuguese or Indian dialect, Detto holding in his one good arm a stick with a glowing ember at the end which he had drawn from the fire blazing a few feet away.

He gazed at the prostrate Indian a moment, grunted, then pressed the red ember against the victim's sole. Though the Indian was bound as in a vise, the horror-struck old man could see his lean body quiver with agony; the shirt over his mouth twitched convulsively as he vainly tried to express that agony in a cry. After leaving the ember against the other foot for perhaps five seconds, Detto withdrew it and put it back into the flame to be repeated. Then he removed the gag, and with his hand at the other's mouth ready to check any call for help, began growling a rapid series of questions at him.

The Indian's answers were evidently not satisfactory, for after several menaces with the hot coals again, he at length whistled a curse through the ugly orifice in his teeth, replaced the gag and lifted the glowing stick to the Indian's foot once more, this time directing it to the delicate and far more sensitive ankle.

The sight was too much for the old man's tense nerves. He gave an exclamation of horror. Vilak, forced to act before he was ready, leaped from the darkness. The astonished Detto dropped the burning stick and, turning saw the tall, lean figure of the American. He whipped out a stiletto tucked in his belt and, as the other bounded on top of him, struck wildly.

Vilak had caught the shoulder which lacked an arm and thus gave him no hold. The stiletto struck him full in the wrist, weakening his grip for an instant. But it was for this instant that the wiry Italian had hoped. Wriggling away from his attacker, he struck at him again, but ineffectively this time, and darted for the shelter of the woods.

Vilak took quick aim and fired. But the darkness beyond the range of the fire made accurate shooting impossible. The bullet crashed to the lower hanging branches of the trees, and whether it had found its mark or no he could not tell. Pasquale, who had seen the chemist bursting excitedly through the bushes, evidently believing they were attacked in force, had fled ignominiously, without lifting a hand to aid his comrade.

"God, what cruelty!" Vilak murmured as he whipped out a knife and with his bleeding hand cut the Indian free. He took out a small first aid kit and put some salve on the aborigine's burned sole, then looked at his own arm. The blood was coursing faster.

"You're wounded, er . . . badly," the old man panted in alarm. "It's my fault, too, er . . . my fault. If I hadn't cried out he wouldn't have seen . . . er . . . seen us. I'm a doddering . . . old fool . . . yes . . . old fool."

Vilak cooly whipped his brilliant necktie from his collar. "It wasn't your fault any more than it was my carelessness. Don't pay any attention to me. I'll make a tourniquet and stop it in a hurry. You look after that poor devil there. Put some more of that salve on his feet."

He knotted the necktie quickly round his arm and with a lead pencil tightened it so that it cut deeply into his flesh. The flow of blood perceptibly slackened. Then he took out a sealed tube of iodine and, breaking it open, spilled the contents over the wound. "May not be necessary," he said. "But I don't want to take chances of infection. I haven't too great an admiration for Detto's personal habits. This poor devil is fortunate in that he does not need any disinfectants at least. The fire's perfect for that."

With his good hand he aided the old man in applying the salve to the seared places of the other's foot. The labor caused his arm to bleed again. He wrapped it tightly with a bandage. Satisfied that it would bleed no longer, he stooped once more and began lifting up handfuls of mud and putting them on the burned feet. "The best thing for burns, by far," he said, as the nervous old man who was guiltily eyeing his wound began following suit. "It'll fix him in no time. Make a regular cast, if you can. It's lucky we arrived when we did. I believe they would have actually burned his feet off."

"It's ghastly . . . er . . . nothing—but ghastly. It makes me almost . . . er . . . makes me . . ."

"Faint? You're not used to the cruelty of your fellow men as I am. Here. Have one of my strong cigarets. It'll straighten you out. No joking."

The Indian, who, with his whole body a-quiver, had been watching like a wounded dog, suddenly became rigid. His eyes closed, the throbbing of a vivid purplish vein showing in his copper black cheek ceased.

Nunnally paled. "Is he going to die? . . . Like poor . . . er . . . Tony . . . Tony did yesterday?"

The name for foot soldiers originated in Spain. The King, abducted by the Moors, was rescued by an army of foot-soldiers organized by the Infante. Thus the term "infantry."

On Warm Days you long for Simple Foods

When hot weather weakens the digestive system, you long for simple foods which are easily assimilated. But few simple foods are attractive to the appetite.

As a change from commonplace foods, try Quaker Puffed Wheat or Quaker Puffed Rice. They are just whole grains, but their nutlike flavour is enhanced by the puffing process. Thoroughly cooked, and made easily digestible because every food cell has been broken down.

Serve with fruit, fresh or cooked, on ice cream, or with whole milk or cream. At any meal or between meals when the appetite fancies light refreshment.

ENGINEERS ARE BUILDING ARCH

To Be Erected Over George Street For Jubilee Celebration.

HELP WANTED.

The Peterborough branch of the Royal Engineering Institute of Canada is constructing an arch to be erected on George street for the Diamond Jubilee celebrations.

The arch will be three span in the form of a bridge and will be built over the whole width of the street. Construction was started last Saturday and every evening on which the weather is fine the members are requested to meet in the Utilities Commission yard on Aylmer street to help along with the work as the time is getting very short.

The use of the word "Hello" comes from the old hunting cry, "Haloo." Its origin is French from "au Loup," which means "to the wolf."

COURT AGAIN DELAYED

made. The other male inmates are confined for various reasons and will shortly be liberated. The women are waiting to be removed to other institutions which have already been designated and arranged. We found everything spotlessly clean, ventilation good, and have no suggestions to make.

We divided ourselves into two parties to visit St. Joseph's Hospital and the House of Providence, and report all the inmates in the House of Providence properly cared for and very comfortable. The building is properly equipped with fire exits, fire escapes, and fire hose. There is an air of contentment about the place which is pleasant to observe.

St. Joseph's Hospital is a splendid building with high ceilings, good ventilation, and standing north and south enjoys plenty of sunlight on three sides, every convenience for the comfort of patients has been provided, the establishment standing very high in medical circles and the hospital world. Those in charge are attentive to their duties and we are glad such hospitals are possible to take care of sickness.

We again divided to visit the Children's Aid Shelter and St. Vincent's Orphanage. The Children's Shelter has eight children, one having left yesterday; of this number three children are not old enough for school. Everything was clean and in good order—being looked after by the very competent matron and her husband. The premises are well adapted for the work, situated about the centre of a block or land which provides a garden and room for outbuildings. While speaking of the Children's Shelter, mention must be made of those constituting the Children's Aid Society, who give much time and thought to the work and provide for those not able to take care of themselves. These men and women, the women especially, deserve the thanks of the Community for the untiring work they carry on.

In St. Vincent's Orphanage we found 44 inmates about equally divided in sex. Here everything was clean and in good order, with fire escapes in place, and the Matron stated fire drill was held at intervals to get them familiar with the drill in case of emergency. The Sisters in charge give every care and attention to the little ones and they all appeared bright and happy. The health of the inmates is good. The system of heating is hot water and boiler inspection by the Government inspector is made at regular intervals.

We remained divided to visit the Nicholls Hospital, new quarters for the nursing staff, and the Protestant Home.

The Nicholls Hospital is well staffed and well equipped to carry on its work and one finds difficulty in passing through, for there is a strong desire to remain and receive some of the care and attention which is bestowed so graciously by the nursing staff. The hospital equipment is complete in every detail and the hospital is registered as one of the standard hospitals of the dominion. The nurses' home, just recently completed, adds materially to the comfort of those whose work is arduous and exacting. There are thirty-two nurses in residence and the building has been furnished with comfortable chairs and rugs to make the building as homelike as possible. The building is just two storeys. A fire escape at the west end of the corridor of the new wing is being considered by the Hospital Board, which would provide an exit from the building in case the approach to the main stairway was cut off.

The Protestant Home has 35 inmates, 21 women and 14 men. This is a real home for the aged and infirm, under the splendid supervision of Miss Lancaster, who has the entire confidence of the Board of Managers. The Board of Management is composed of representatives appointed each year from the different religious bodies of the city, and these representatives devote much time and thought to the work of making the inmates happy and comfortable. Many rooms have been furnished by private families and a brass plate on many doors testifies to the many bequests which have been made. We offer as testimony the care and attention given the inmates when we state recently one of the inmates passed away at the age of 97 and at the present time some of the inmates are over 90. A memorial clock was recently presented to the Home which bears an incription plate to commemorate the donor. Mr. Hamilton is the efficient caretaker.

We met together to visit the County House of Refuge in a body, where we were received by the caretaker and matron, Mr. and Mrs. Maize. There are 16 men and eight women in this institution—three men and three women almost entirely helpless and bed-ridden. These require much personal attention. We inspected the premises and found the floors and windows clean, the Matron has the help of two women who do the cooking, cleaning and washing. The farm on which the building is situated is about 100 acres with new barn and stable below. The new building is a splendid one with high airy basement containing three or four horses, four cows and three calves. There is also a good chicken house with a number of chickens. Everything appeared to be in good order with sufficient machinery for the purpose of farming. Mr Maize has an assistant for the work about the farm.

We wish to speak about the Home and make suggestions which we believe will add much to the comfort of those who have no other home but the one in which they now find themselves. The rooms could be made more pleasant by arranging the windows to pull down from the top for ventilating purposes, as they now pull up from the bottom, causing a draft to those who naturally sit beside the windows to see out, as something to occupy their minds and distract their attention. These old people cannot stand cold and frequently close the windows, making the room close and stuffy. If the windows draw down from the top, there would be no draft and a circulation of air would be obtained making the atmosphere more sweet and wholesome. The men's lavatories are smelly and disagreeable and this could be remedied by liquid disinfectant or germicide which would give off a pleasant odor and change the present atmosphere. Some attention is necessary to the closet seats, one of which is broken. The walls are done in kalsomine, and we suggest cleaning off the walls and painting in enamel paint, which could be washed and more easily kept clean.

The bath tubs are discolored and require scouring with some materials which will remove the discolor and improve their appearance.

Not much comfort has been provided for the old men and women in the way of easy chairs, and some money could be spent to advantage in providing comfortable chairs, for the name implies Home of Refuge and we believe the ratepayers would approve of any expenditure which would help to make those less fortunate than ourselves, as comfortable and happy as possible.

There appears to be too much to do for one woman, considering the age and condition of the inmates, for while there are two other women helpers, they have their work to do and cannot give attention to the invalids. These invalids require much attention, and it seems to us extra help should be provided to assist in attention to the invalid men and women.

The building appears to be well adapted for the purpose for which it is used, but could be more pleasant and comfortable if the few suggestions contained herein are put into effect.

In conclusion, many members of the Grand Jury meet Your Honor for the first time and, even though late, desire to extend a welcome to the City and County, and trust you may long be spared to come among us and adjust our difficulties. We are glad to know just one criminal case will come before the Court, which speaks well for the County of Peterborough as a law-abiding community, having proper respect to law and order.

Signed: G. R. Coleman, John Douglas, Alexander Grant, G. W. Green; Edward Hyland, H. Higgins, H. Nigh, J. J. Young, Robert Tanner, James Lobb, A. W. Northey, J. J. Turner (foreman)."

Judge McGlade's Reply.

His Honor in reply congratulated the Grand Jury on the thoroughness with which they had carried out the duties imposed on them by the law. He learned with great pleasure that all the institutions of the city and county were in an eminently satisfactory condition, and from the tenor of their report, he had no difficulty in gathering the impression that had things been otherwise, the jury would have brought this fact to his attention.

He appreciated that they had concurred with his remarks concerning the jury system as it now existed and their hope that it would continue. There was ample reason for the continuance of that system in the report which they as a jury had presented to him. He had noted their reference to the House of Refuge. Their report would be placed before the proper authorities, in this case the County Council, and would be read by that body at their meeting next week. His Honor knew that if the County Council appreciated its responsibility and the duties it owed to the old people in the House the recommendations of the Grand Jury would be carried out.

He thanked the jurymen for their kindly reference to himself. If they had known him better, he said, they might not have spoken so well of him. He hoped always to retain their approval. They could rest assured that the whole Judiciary of the Province of Ontario was inspired with one object, namely, to see that the ends of justice were carried out.

A CORRECTION.

The attention of The Examiner has been drawn to a mistake in a heading in Friday's edition. The heading reads: "Boys eand girls of Children's Shelter and St. Vincent's Orphanage see the shows," referring to an entertainment by Harry Lotteridge. This should have read only "St. Vincent's Orphanage," as the children from the Children's Aid Society were not included. The two institutions are so seldom separated in affairs of this kind that the error is excusable.

Lakefield Cheerios Present "Oh, For Pity's Sake" To Large Audience.

LAKEFIELD, June 15.—A large audience greeted the return engagement of the Lakefield Cheerios in their musical farce, "Oh For Pity's Sake." A great many who enjoyed the first performance very much attended the second and the verdict was practically unanimous that the repeat performance was even better than the premier. There were one or two slight alterations which did not detract in any way from the performance. The original entertainment was in two acts and on Thursday last it was given in three acts, the pageant being the second act. The dialogue was considerably more snappy and the singing was even better than on the former occasion. The pageant was remarkably good and the dance numbers were loudly applauded, especially the old fashioned country dance, which brought down the house. The financial results fully justified the repeat performance.

AUTOS CRASH.

Mrs. Norman Heigh, of Peterborough, Required Hospital Treatment.

PORT HOPE, June 15. — Mrs. Norman Heigh, Peterborough, was admitted to Port Hope Hospital on Sunday morning suffering from injuries and shock sustained when she was thrown from an automobile in a collision at Dale Corners.

Mr. and Mrs. Heigh and two children were passengers in a touring car being driven south on the Provincial Port Hope-Peterboro Highway by Adam Douglas of Asphodel. As they were about to pass Dale Corners, a sedan driven by R. Ainsworth of Toronto made the turn from the Welcome-Dale road from the west. The two cars came together, almost head on, smashing the wheels, front axles and fenders of each auto.

The force of the impact threw Mrs. Heigh and one of the children from the rear seat of the touring car to the roadway, a distance of about eight feet. Mrs. Heigh suffered a severe cut on the neck, painful abrasions upon her leg, and shock; the child escaping serious injury.

Dr. H. W. Benson was called to the scene and ordered Mrs. Heigh's removal to Port Hope Hospital. She is reported to-day to be resting comfortably.

Mr. and Mrs. Ainsworth were accompanied by three other passengers, none of whom were injured.

GROOMBRIDGE—HILL.

A very pretty wedding took place at two o'clock to-day at St. John's Church, when Gladys Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Hill of Bournemouth, England, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Leslie R. Groombridge, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Groombridge, 461 Bolivar Street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave. The organist, Mr. F. G. Mann, played the wedding music. The church was decorated with lilacs and honeysuckle.

The bride wore a lovely gown of white satin trimmed with silver lace, with train and white veil caught by orange blossoms She wore a string of pearls, silver slippers, and stockings, and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies.

The bridesmaids, Miss Lily Groombridge and Miss Queenie Montgomery, were in frocks of pale mauve silk and georgette with mauve hats trimmed with silver. They wore black slippers and silver stockings, and carried bouquets of lilac and bridal wreath.

The small train bearers, nieces of the bridegroom, Doren Groombridge and Audrey Thompson of Toronto, were also in mauve silk, wearing silver mesh caps trimmed with lily of the valley.

The bridegroom's brother, Mr. Geo. Groombridge acted as best man.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents, and a buffet luncheon served. Mrs. Groombridge wore deep blue satin, trimmed with accordion-pleated sand georgette, sand hat and corsage bouquet of red roses.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Groombridge left for a honeymoon trip to Niagara Falls, to reside on their return at the corner of Water and Argyle streets.

The bride travelled in a tailored suit of navy blue brown tailored hat, and English travelling coat of fine wool, with lambs-wool collar, and cuffs.

The gift of the bridegroom to the bride was a diamond ring, to the bridesmaids gold bangles, to the train bearers silver French enamel pendants, and to the best man a pair of silver cuff links

Corn Bounded Upward; Wheat Remained Weak

CHICAGO, June 15 (Canadian Press). — Corn suddenly bounded upward to-day after down turns at the outset. Low temperatures and bullish crop comment, especially from Missouri, were responsible for corn strength, which, however, failed to extend to wheat in the face of auspicious field advices from the North-West. Opening ¾ cent to 1¼ cents off, corn soon ascended to well above yesterday's finish. Wheat started ⅛ to ¼ cent lower and continued relatively weak. Oats were easy. Provisions tended to sag.

Corn, July 96⅝, September 101⅝
Oats, July 47⅞, September 47½.

Mine Market Weakness Fails To Affect Most

Toronto, Ont., June 15 (Canadian Press). — Weakness appeared in the list during moderately heavy trading on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning, but the majority of the issues held steady. Argonaut, the active leader, was sold down three at 22½ and Area lost 3½ at 38½. McIntyre eased 10 at 25.15 and Teck Hughes lost 12 at 765, Amulet easing 2 at 204. Duprat, however, firmed a half at 10½, while Laval Quebec held firm at 24. Potter Doal at 18¾ was fractionally better.

Brazilian Gave Toronto A Display Of Strength

TORONTO, June 15. — (Canadian Press.)—Brazilian, in active dealings, provided the Toronto stock exchange this morning with a display of strength by advancing 1½ at 106½ against the generally lower trend of prices International Nickel, a leader in activity, sold down another point at 64½ and City Dairy dropped 3½ at 113 Walker firmed ⅝ at 52½ after slumping to 50, while Massey Harris was fractionally firmer at 29⅜ 8 Seagram at 24½ and Shredded Wheat at 65 were steady but Gooderham and Worts lost a point and an eighth at 55 7-8. Northern Bakeries eased slightly at 29½ and British American Oil slightly lower at 23⅝. Cosmos was slightly lower at 25¾.

Wall Street Recuperates After Yesterday's Break

NEW YORK, June 15. Canadian Press. — The stock market displayed splendid recuperative power to-day, after yesterday's sharp break, and prices of many issues rallied 2 to 12 points. The advance was halted now and then as 'bear' traders put out experimental short lines to test the character of the buying. Weakness of the rubbers was associated with the unsatisfactory price and inventory situation in the crude product and some of the smaller motors lost ground on downward revision of second quarter earning estimates.

Commercial Solvents B which was one of the weak spots yesterday had rallied 12 points before the end of the third hour. Oils were helped by reports of a small decrease in crude production last week. Texas and Pacific Land Trust, Houston and Texas Coal and Oil recording rather substantial gains.

Rock Island crossed 111 to the highest price ever recorded. Fresh buying also developed in Pittsburgh and West Virginia, Texas and Pacific, Atchison, Norfolk and Western and Louisville and Nashville.

ALL SAINTS' CHOIR VISITS AT WARSAW

Assisted at Special Trinity Sunday Service—Entertained at Tea.

On Sunday afternoon about fifteen members of All Saints' Church choir, with the rector and church wardens, together with those members of the congregation who so kindly loaned their cars, motored out to Warsaw to assist with the special Trinity Sunday services in the Anglican Church there, which is in charge of the rural dean, the Rev. J. T. O'Conor-Fenton. The very pretty little church was filled to capacity and the congregation was deeply interested and inspired by the sermon which was preached by the Rev. J. Douglas Paterson who used the text, Isaiah vi., 1. Appropriate Trinity Sunday hymns were sung and two special anthems by the choir, "Gloria in Excelsis," from Mozart's Twelfth Mass, and "Praise Ye the Father," by Gounod. They also chanted the special Psalms for the day.

After the service the surpliced choir marched down the aisle and formed a line down each side of the steps outside the church, the congregation coming out after them and walking down the steps between the choristers; the whole body of people remained outside in the open while short addresses were made by the clergy and wardens of both churches, also by Charles Lacheur, who said that the idea of city churches visiting and co-operating with the outside and smaller churches was conceived in the mind of R. B. Rogers at a meeting of the Church Synod, to promote helpfulness and good fellowship.

The visitors were entertained at tea by Mrs. Foster, who is a member of the Warsaw Church, and also of All Saints' choir when she is in Peterborough during the winter.

The choir was assisted by their own organist, Mrs. W. A. Logan, and Mrs. P. Hooper, violinist, and Mr. Farthing with his 'cello. The whole party arrived back in Peterborough in time for the evening service at 7 o'clock, and it is hoped that this will be the harbinger of future similar visits.

Real Men Needed In Legislature Says Honorable J. R. Cook

AUTO CASE IS HANDED JURY FOR VERDICT

Plaintiff Claims Damages Alleged To Have Resulted From Barricade.

SAYS NO LIGHT.

Defendant Declares Lamp Was Lighted and Driver Negligent.

The June Assizes finally got under way yesterday afternoon at two o'clock under Judge J. E. McGlade of Cobourg. None of the non-jury cases were tried yesterday, but dates were set for the respective cases in the next three weeks. The case tried was that of Gould and McNamara Construction Company, with Gordon and O'Brien acting for the plaintiff and W. F. Huycke, K.C., for the defendant.

In explaining the case Mr. O'Brien stated that on the 24th of October last, his client, Mr. Gould, was making a trip in his motor car from Buffalo to Peterborough to see his father. On approaching a point on the highway in the County of Durham in the early hours of the morning, where work was being carried on by the McNamara Construction Company, Gould claims that he approached a barrier in the road without a light on it so quickly that he was forced to take the small detour to the right of this barricade with such a speed for a rough road that he turned over, smashing the two wheels of the car, breaking two fenders and the running board, and damaging the paint on the side of the car that struck the ground.

In examination Gould told the court that his car was in good running order, and that he had had it overhauled before leaving Hamburg, near Buffalo. He also remarked that his brakes were in very good condition, and that an ordinary stop could be made without any difficulty whatsoever. Gould claimed, when asked by his lawyer, that he considered the time lost and the damage to the car worth one hundred and sixty-five dollars.

In cross-examination, Mr. Huycke asked the witness if the day was Sunday, how he could possibly claim any time lost. When questioned how he happened to turn over, witness said that coming off the main road, the detour was slippery, and that he had lost control of the car.

T. Burkell, a resident of Durham, and living some hundred yards from the highway and from the detour, told the court that when he had gone out early with his family there had not been any light on the barricade, and that when he had returned no light had been seen there. Ida Burkell, the wife of the former witness, also said that when she was with her husband that night there had not been any light on the barricade.

W. F. Bruce, companion of Gould on the trip, and owner of a garage in Hamburg, when called to the stand claimed that the car, before leaving home, had been in the best running order and that the brakes had been tested and were in good shape.

When asked by Mr. O'Brien what happened after the accident, Bruce said that as soon as he managed to crawl from the car he went to have a look at the barricade and found a lantern hanging on the barricade, but it was not burning. When asked about the condition of the detour, Bruce claimed that the detour was very wet and slippery.

Mr. Bird, defendant, superintendent of the McNamara Construction Company, told Mr. Huycke that the road to the detour was excellent and had not any curves for some distance before striking the detour. When asked what he had seen the next day he stated that the automobile at the time of the accident must have been going very fast, for brake marks on the cement showed that it had slid for some distance and then swung in a quarter circle, striking the rock at the side of the road and turning over.

Bird then drew a diagram for the jury, showing what he had seen and how the car, in his estimation, turned over. Questioned as to the reason of building such a barricade, Bird said that any others they had erected had been torn down by the motorists, so he had instructed his men to put up this one covered with cedar boughs. He also stated that a clerk had been instructed by him to have the lamp lit every night.

In regard to the detour, Bird told the court that the construction company had nothing whatsoever to do with the detour or the building of it.

Cross-examination by Mr. O'Brien caused a heated discussion between the lawyer and the witness, for Bird said that he had seen the wheel marks the next day, and the lawyer asked how he could tell that these were the wheel marks of the Gould car if hundreds of other cars passed there daily. Witness said that he didn't know, and then when asked suddenly by Mr. O'Brien if he could swear that it was Gould's car that he saw, he also answered in the negative.

Mr. Kennedy, a former employee of the Construction Company, was then called to the stand by Mr. Huycke.

Mr. Huycke—Are you acquainted with this section of the highway?

Kennedy—Yes.

Mr. Huycke—Did you see a light on the barricade?

NO PLANE YET SEEKS AIRMEN

Report of Finding Nungesser and Coli Stirred the World Yesterday.

MANY ON WATCH.

QUEBEC, June 16 (Canadian Press).—No aeroplane will be sent out by the Quebec Government to search for the missing French airmen, Nungesser and Coli, until instructions have been received to follow such a course by the French Consul-General in Montreal, Baron Devitrolles. At noon to-day, Avila Bedard, assistant chief of Forestry Service, telephoned to Baron De Vitrolles, telling him that the Government was being urged to send a plane up to the mountains of the north to search for Nungesser and Coli on the strength of the reports of flares being seen and an aeroplane motor heard by a trapper on Monday, May 9, in the neighborhood of the Ste. Marguerite River.

The Consul-General said that it would not be wise in his opinion to send a plane at the present moment as the reports received did not warrant the sending of an aerial expedition. He said that as soon as further definite news was received from forest rangers in the region he would advise his Government and ask what steps must be taken.

Centre of the World.

Quebec was the centre of the world last night, following the report received here yesterday afternoon that the famous French airmen, who have been missing since May 8, had been reported found. The message was received from Edward Blais, an accountant for Price Brothers, at River Bend, by his mother, Mrs. Blais, wife of Captain Joseph Blais, who lives at 27 Mont Carmel Street, Quebec. The message read as follows: "Reported here that Nungesser and Coli were found this noon."

Immediately this was bulletined, with the addition, however, that it was not confirmed. Every effort was then made to get in touch with River Bend to get further details of the discovery. Owing to trouble on the line, it was six o'clock before communication was established between Quebec and River Bend. It was learned from the telephone exchange that while there was nothing definite about the report, the whole population there was talking about it, and the general story ran that Nungesser and Coli had been found alive on the north bank of the Shipshaw River.

This was learned about 6 o'clock. By this time the whole world had its eyes on Quebec. There were telephone long distance calls from New York, Chicago, and cables from Paris and London, asking for news to verify the finding of the two famous aviators. New York newspapers wired that they had aeroplanes all prepared and manned with reporters to come to the Shipshaw. Film companies wired to ask for particulars as they had machines and photographers ready to come up.

Confirmation of the news was difficult to obtain. At seven o'clock, Avil Bedard, assistant chief of the Provincial Forestry Service, received two messages. One was from Eudore Racine, forestry engineer of Chicoutimi. This message stated as follows: "Savard, inspector, reports that observers at towers on rivers Ferland and Mendache saw last night at the height of the Perinbonka River, a flashing light which appeared to be floating on the waters of the river. Instructions issued to the observer to be on the watch during the whole night and to notify immediately if anything further occurred."

This was followed by another message to Mr. Bedard from Bagotville, stating that George Brousseau, trapper, who had just arrived there, reported hearing a machine like that of an aeroplane on the evening of Monday, May 9, the day following the take-off of the White Bird from Le Bourget Field, Paris. The night was very foggy, he said, but while near the Ste. Marguerite River, he clearly heard the throbbing of a motor in the air. A bit peculiar in sound, it seemed to be short of gas or out of order. It was going in a northerly direction, he thought.

AROUND THE CITY

Two men and a mowing machine are engaged at present in cutting the long grass on King Edward Park in preparation for the visit of the Governor-General.

THE FIRST LOAD

This is a photograph of the first load of hard liquor to arrive in Peterborough under the new Act. The wagon is being loaded with "Sandy Macdonald" Scotch whiskey and "Johnnie Walker" (in the case the dray-man is just placing), and "Mitchell's Old Irish," and "Old Jamaica Rum" and what-not.

Although no official information was forthcoming this afternoon as to the opening of the local store for the sale of liquor under the Government Control Act, the internal appearance of the premises, where workmen are labouring in putting the finishing touches to the store, the shelves lined with bottles of liquors, the price-lists of liquors, the numerous sheets of instructions to salesmen, which are to be seen from the doorway, and the presence in the rear of many (empty) cases used in the transport of liquor, all indicate that the long-looked-for day is rapidly approaching, and that the event is to take place on Monday of next week at the latest.

A large consignment of Cosgrave's beer came into the city last night on a truck and trailer. The driver, on inquiring his way to the destination of his load was erroneously directed to the vendor's store. He drove up the narrow lane in the rear of the store, only to discover that he had come to the wrong place. The attempt to back out was fraught with great difficulty, which was increased when the ground gave way under the heavy load, and it was only after considerable effort that the vehicle was extricated from the hole it had made.

The beer was finally delivered without further mishap at the warehouse, the premises formerly occupied by the Peter Hamilton Company on George Street.

George Boucher has been appointed Government representative at the warehouse. L. M. Brooks is the agent of the breweries.

Issuer of Permits.

Joseph Dunkerley has been appointed issuer of permits, and his offices are over the liquor store, in those formerly occupied by the American Consul. Under the Act, the vendor is supposed to issue permits, but to expedite matters, Mr. Dunkerley has been appointed to issue the permits, so that Mr. Bradburn can give his whole attention to the opening of the store and getting it in working order.

Mr. Dunkerley will be in his office from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and from 2.15 until 5.30 every day of the week, and on Saturday night from 7 until 10.

Under a ruling of the Board, no man will be supplied with any more than six quarts at one purchase.

NO BEER BY THE KEG.

TORONTO, Ont., June 16 (Canadian Press). — There will be no sale of beer by the keg in Ontario, D. B. Hanna, chairman of the Liquor Control Board, emphasized to-day when discussing a report that the brewers were projecting efforts to secure sale by the keg, contending this would mean cheaper beer for the consumer.

"The regulations will stay as they are," Mr. Hanna said. Sale by the keg, he believes, might foster bootlegging.

LOCAL BARBERS CELEBRATE TWENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY

Sixty Guests Join in Supper Meeting Festivity at Paragon.

TWELVE LADIES.

Union Practically Decided on Closing on Afternoon of Second.

The Twenty-fifth anniversary of the organization of the Local 402 Journeymen Barbers' International Union of America, was held last night in the Paragon. About sixty guests sat down at the festive board, after which followed a short programme of toasts and songs.

One minute of silence was observed in memory of the late A. Haskill, who was killed in a motor accident near Beaverton last week. Mr. Haskill was a member of the local union for many years and was held in very high estimation by his brother barbers.

Jack Smith, president of the local branch, presided and during the evening music was provided by the Widdess orchestra.

The banquet proved to be the greatest event in the history of the union, and one noticeable thing was that about twelve lady barbers were present, showing that they were taking their active place in this profession.

It was practically decided by the barbers last night that they would close at noon on July the second.

The toast to the lady barbers was proposed by J. Lang, in which he extended a welcome to the ladies to join the union, and was glad to see so many present.

Madame Meriam responded to the toast in a very able style.

The toast to the past master barbers was proposed by A. White, in which he welcomed those who worked for many years at the trade.

This toast was responded to by all the past master barbers present.

Local 402 was toasted by James Lewis, and responded to by H. Gaincy and the International Union was proposed by H. Gainey, and responded to by fourth vice-president Halford of Toronto.

Mr. Halford in his address impressed upon the local union the need of organization, and of having all the barbers of the city members of the union, for "united they stand, and divided they fall."

There were also songs by D. Walsh, H. Cunningham of Toronto, R. Hendry and Jack Smith.

TEXTILE DUTY LARGE ENOUGH

Says Delegation Representing Industry in Britain at Ottawa.

OPPOSES INCREASE.

OTTAWA, June 16 (Canadian Press).—West Riding Chambers of Commerce of England advocated no change in the present preferential duties accorded to woollen and worsted products of the United Kingdom before the Tariff Board today. The brief was presented by J. H. C. Hodgson, who preceded his case with a statement on the efforts being made in Britain to promote Empire trade. Yet, he said, the greatest tariff increases against British-made goods since the war had occurred within the Empire.

Mr. Hodgson took exception to the statements made by the Canadian woollen manufacturers in regard to conditions of competitive industries in the Old Land. The applicants, he complained, used figures of 1910, which gave no correct picture of industry abroad.

He quoted figures to show that there had been considerable growth in recent years in the Canadian woollen industry, while exports from the United Kingdom to Canada were actually less than before. The Canadian industry was more than holding its own.

"The most important industry in the United Kingdom—agriculture—has been in very depressed condition for some years, largely owing to imports from Canada of wheat, etc. If Canada refuses to buy British textiles, the United Kingdom must necessarily be in less favorable position for buying foodstuffs and other com-

HOLD OPEN AIR SERVICE ON JULY 1ST

Ministerial Association To Hold Public Service on Market Square.

REPORTS READ.

Committee To Make Arrangements For Putting on Spectacular Musical Tatoo.

Rev. J. W. Gordon, representing the Ministerial Association, at a meeting of the Central Jubilee Committee held in the Council Chamber last night, remarked that the Association had, at a meeting last Monday morning, expressed a desire to have some form of open-air worship on the morning of the First. Mr. Gordon stated that it would be nice if a short service could be held about 9.30 on the Market Square.

Rev. J. L. Hughes, also representing the Association, said that while there is to be worship on Sunday, he felt that some short service should be held on July first morning to make a suitable start for the great day of fun and sports, and so he urged that such a meeting be held.

It was then moved by R. M. Glover, seconded by W. Turner, that the Ministerial Association go ahead with the idea and hold the meeting on the Market Square on that morning.

Chairman Roland Denne then called on the chairmen of the different committees for reports on progress.

Committees' Reports.

Dr. J. J. Craig, of the Parade Committee, reported that everything connected with his end of the programme is O.K., and a similar report was made by J. M. Greene for the Music Committee.

Claude Rogers has everything fixed to perfection in the water sports, Mr. Denne reported, in the absence of Mr. Rogers.

A. J. Reynolds, in charge of the community dancing, stated that it would have to be called off in view of the fact that an orchestra would charge too much, and that the dancing would cause inconvenience.

Mr. Turner remarked that he had written Mr. Woth in New York and a gentleman in Toronto in connection with a short programme, and that a revue from Toronto could be secured, called the 'Black Bottom Revue,' for an approximate cost of $350.00. This will also include a six-piece orchestra, and will be for the Friday night performance.

In the matter of ground space for the erection of booths, it was moved by Mr. Glover, seconded by Harry Huffman, that Mr. Turner advertise space, for any persons wishing to operate booths or games.

Sunday Evening Programme.

Mr. Greene then stated that he had everything ready for the Sunday evening musical programme in Victoria Park, which is to begin at 8.30 p.m. The Peterborough Rangers Band will be present, and a choir of about five hundred voices. Seats are being secured from Victoria Hall, and the Music Committee expects about ten or twelve thousand people to be present.

Mr. Glover, in presenting his report for the Advertising Committee, said that the committee is getting out two sets of show cards and that a programme will be published in all the district papers and in The Examiner.

Mr. Greene and M. B. Chenhall then presented an idea that was immediately adopted: That of putting on a spectacular musical tatoo. This will be arranged with the different bands and with the aid of the participants in the former programme carrying lighted flares, it will indeed be a spectacle that will be long remembered.

It was moved by Mr. Glover, seconded by C. D. Cook, that the Musical Committee go ahead with this item on the programme.

It was decided that the band in Smith Township be brought in to aid with the music of the celebration.

P. Manning then reported that the Decoration Committee is getting along splendidly, and that the engineers' arch is almost completed.

With such encouraging reports as these from the different committees, the executive feels that everyone is going to get behind the wheel and put this celebration over to the highest peak.

BRAKE TESTS END SATURDAY

Many More Motorists Take Advanage of Kiwanis Activity.

ADDITIONS TO LEAGUE.

Only two days remain in which to take advantage of the facilities offered by the Kiwanis Club for the testing of brakes. Motorists who wish to take advantage of the opportunity to have their brakes tested free can assist those in charge by parking their cars, facing north on the east side of Water Street opposite the testing area.

Taking the cars in the order of their appearance, one of the committee will accompany the driver while the other watches from the pavement the effect upon the car of the application of the brakes. After the test an examination is made and the owner is given a card indicating the adjustments required to put the car in a safe condition.

DRUG ADDICTS NEED CURBING

Peddlers Should Be Whipped as Well as Fined, Suggests Speaker.

8,000 IN CANADA.

TORONTO, June 16. — (Canadian Press.)— Stern action is needed to control the illicit sale of narcotic drugs in Canada, Dr. J. A. Amyot, of Ottawa, Deputy-Minister of Health, said in his address in the public health section of the Canadian and Ontario Medical Associations' joint convention to-day with more than a thousand doctors registered. The joint sessions and various separate sections were in full swing to-day. Dr. Amyott said the seriousness of the drug peddling was widely recognized and some legislators were in favor of drug sellers being whipped as well as fined. "You can't go at it too hard," he added.

Dr. Amyott said there were now 8,000 drug addicts in Canada.

Officers Appointed At Annual Convention Held In Lakefield

Hon. J. R. Cook, Member of Hydro-Electric Power Commission, is Principal Speaker at County of Peterborough Liberal-Conservative Association Convention.

COMMENTS ON MEN WHO HELPED MOULD CANADA INTO A DOMINION

Redistribution of Seats in Provincial Legislature Necessitates Passing of an Amendment To Constitution in Which Organization Changes Its Name.

The annual convention of the County of Peterborough Liberal-Conservative Association was held in the Memorial Hall, Lakefield, yesterday afternoon. Officers and the vice-presidents for the various townships and villages in the riding were appointed.

Hon. J. R. Cook, member of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, was the principal speaker, and he gave a short address which was full of optimism for the future and loud commendation for the men who have passed before, but who helped mould Canada into a Dominion and make her what she is today. It was a real Jubilee address from one who has been in the political life of this province for many years.

Other speakers were Col. T. D. Johnston, ex-M.L.A., and E. A. Peck, M.P.

An amendment to the constitution was passed in which the organization changed its name to the Liberal-Conservative Association of the County of Peterborough. This change was necessary on account of the redistribution of the seats in the Provincial Legislature and the doing away with the riding of East Peterborough in the Federal House.

J. P. Lancaster of Havelock was elected president of the Association and in a short address he made a plea for the Conservatives of the County to become organized and develop more enthusiasm, especially among the women. H. T. Fitzgerald, past president, was nominated, but he withdrew, thinking that in the interests of the Association a new set of officers would be best.

Canadian Patriotism

Hon. J. R. Cook, member of the Ontario Hydro Commission, in his address, put away party politics and gave an address on Canadian Patriotism, and ideals, which was most enthusiastically received, especially at this time when Canada is celebrating her 60th anniversary.

"In looking back, we as Canadians have had 60 years of great progress in which we have made history. The names of Macdonald, Blake, Mowat, Laurier and Whitney are those of men whom Canadians today, irrespective of politics, should be proud. The problems which they were called upon to solve were different than the ones of today, for the country was then poverty stricken and in the eyes of the Old World it was of very little value. But it was in the solving of these problems that this country was knit together into a fair and prosperous Dominion. A railway was built to stretch from the Atlantic to the Pacific and the Canadian nation was born. People left their comfortable homes in the east to go and dedicate those western provinces as a shrine of Canadian ideals. Since the days of Confederation many changes have taken place in the thoughts and ideals of the men and women of this fair land, but that peculiar sense of loyalty to the old Saxon ideals and adherence to old things has held its own.

"I was amazed in the first meeting of the present Legislature to see that 50 out of the 112 were new faces. I simply cite this to show how things change and how quickly men and women pass across the political platform," said the speaker.

Need Real Men

"When you stop to consider that within the boundaries of this province there is a territory as big as any country of the Old World, you see that there is a problem so complex in its character, to almost seem impossible on first view." The speaker then cited the need of electing real men to the Legislature to handle these problems, and he pointed to the election of 1919 and the financial disaster that followed as a result of electing men to the legislative halls who were not capable of giving good government.

"This is a country very new in its history and it has profited much from the mistakes made by the old parties in many of the older countries. I speak as a Canadian citizen who is proud of the history Canada has accomplished, for no country has accomplished more in the span of 60 years than we have." With this Mr. Cook told of some of the legislation that has been put through since he was elected 14 years ago. "There has been enacted the Workmen's Compensation Act, in which the State declared that industry must protect the

GENEVA WOULD SEND WARNING TO RED CAPITAL

Fear Danger of Giving Moscow Impression Europe Forming Against Them.

REACH AGREEMENT.

Inform Minister Activities of Third International Reacting Against Russia.

GENEVA, June 16 (Canadian Press). — The danger of giving the impression in Moscow that Europe is forging a united front against Russia has led the European statesmen now in Geneva to put the brake on the original plan to take formal collective action denouncing Communist propaganda abroad. It is considered likely, however, that Dr. Gustav Stresemann, the German Foreign Minister, will inform M. Tchitcherin, Soviet Foreign Minister, of the high state of feeling which the activities of the Third International are provoking throughout Europe, and warn him in a friendly manner that it is reacting against Russia.

It is understood that Poland, which has been striving to negotiate a pact of non-aggression with Russia, has been vigorously emphasizing the unwisdom of angering Russia by even any appearance of hostility to her. Poland contends that such an attitude would only intensify the Russian national spirit in the same way as did the military interventions at the close of the Great War.

The truth is the foreign ministers of the European Powers are finding the Communist problem the hardest and most elusive of all to solve. Each of them has revealed a state of Communist activity in his own country and together they have gone over ways and means of fighting Communism by methods similar to those used in their homelands.

After a two-hour session the Locarno statesmen last night issued an official communique that an agreement had been reached on outstanding questions or at least methods had been found to solve them.

CYCLONE SWEEPS WEST OF APSLEY

Pieces of Observation Tower Carried Distance of 5 Miles.

APSLEY, June 16. — Reports coming in of destruction caused by a cyclone last Thursday some miles west of Apsley show that its intensity was something entirely new in the history of this district. The Gull Lake observation tower, built on a high rock, rock bolted, and guyed down at the four corners, was lifted bodily and carried 900 feet, some of the splinters of the building being found five miles away, while part of the provisions was found floating on Cold Lake, three miles away. Rocks bigger than a cook stove were torn out of the ground. The cyclone travelled in a narrow path down Cocks Lake, tore out the dam leading into Louck's Lake, lifted Ned Wilson's cottage, and deposited it right side up some distance away. A small island in Cock's Lake, directly in the path of the storm was literally stripped clean of every bush and tree

QUARREL PROVES ANCIENT ADAGE.

By NEA Service

CLEVELAND, O., June 16.—Sam Polas, Sam Lazich and Sam Wachs, all countrymen and all drunk, staggered into a restaurant. "Blood," said one of the Sams, "ish thicker than water." An argument ensued. Blood, insisted the other Sams, was not thicker than water. Finally they undertook to prove it, and when police arrived, Sam Polas had been stabbed in the back. At a hospital the other Sams were informed that the wounded Sam's blood was so thin that he would bleed to death without a transfusion. Sobered, they declared "Blood is thicker than water," volunteeded their veins, saved their countryman's life.

BUTTER WORTH $6,000 FALLS INTO STREAM

Truck and Trailer Break Through Bridge Near Norham in Night.

DRIVERS ESCAPE.

Consignment Was on Way From Campbellford to Toronto Firm.

NORHAM, June 16. — A truck and trailer load of creamery butter purchased from H. M. Carr of Campbellford, which was valued at $6000, and in charge of two employees of a Toronto firm, broke through the bridge at Salt Creek last night while on the way to Toronto. The scene of the accident is about a mile south of Norham.

The men escaped with a bad fright. The front wheels of the truck rested on the farther bank of the creek, while the two vehicles came together as they fell fifteen feet to the bottom several boxes of butter sliding into the water.

The loss has not yet been ascertained, but the butter was insured.

The bridge, it is understood, was condemned about a year ago.

Funerals Are Held Of Slayer's Victims

WINNIPEG, Man., June 16. — (Canadian Press).—The funerals of Winnipeg's victims of the "strangler" whose atrocious crimes, committed Thursday and Friday of last week, have stirred the city to its depths, were held yesterday afternoon.

The youngest victim of the "gorilla," Lola Cowan, aged 14, was buried at 4 o'clock with many of her former playmates attending the funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. Patterson, who was brutally murdered by the same individual on Thursday afternoon of last week, took place at 3 o'clock. So large was the crowd attending the funeral that many were forced to turn away, unable to get seats within the church.

home of the disabled workman. Women have been given the franchis and Ontario led the way in this legislation. The Mothers' Allowance Act provided for mothers with two children under 16 years of age who were left penniless, and later this has been amended to allow mothers with a disabled husband, and mothers who have been deserted to draw allowances. In this alone over $1,000,000 was paid out by the province last year. Highways have been constructed and we find a policy in which the Government pays 80 per cent of provincial highway construction and upkeep, 50 per cent. of county road construction, and 30 per cent of township road construction. Fifteen years ago $800,000 was spent on roads and last year almost $16,000,000 was spent. "The natural question," said the speaker, "Is: Where does the Government get this money? Fifteen years ago the Department of Game and Fisheries collected $100,000, and last year $550,000. Other departments are as follows:

	15 Years Ago.	Last Year.
Lands and Forests	2,000,000	$5,500,000
Auto licenses	50,000	10,150,000
Success tax duty	1,500,000	8,750,000
Corporation tax	800,000	2,750,000
Amusement tax	15,000	2,500,000

In closing, the speaker paid tribute to Hon. Howard Ferguson, Premier of Ontario." Ever since July, 1923, there has not been the faintest suspicion ever fastened upon his government and I believe there ever was a man animated by a more sincere degire to be of service to this province."

"There are bright prospects ahead," prophesies Mr. Cook, for the spirit of our fathrs still remains, and what does it matter what political party leads the way so long as we realize that their efforts are creating a bond of union over this whole country?"

Col. T. D. Johnston, ex-M.L.A.

Col. Johnston thanked those who had supported him in the recent campaign. "Government control is on trial and if it does not work we will not keep it, and let me say, any time we get advanced temperance legislation it will be from the Conservative Government. We have had promises from the Liberal party but there they have remained. It will perhaps not do any harm to sit in opposition, for a Legislature in adversity often helps, and I hope with th new officers we will be able to redeem this riding; for the Ferguson Government is firmly entrenched and honesty will be recompensed in time to come."

E. A. Peck, M.P.

"I had the privilege of sitting with Mr. Cook in the legislature and we have been old friends ever since," said the speaker. Mr. Peck then gave a short resume of the work of the past session of the Dominion parliament, in which he said: "It was short, lasting three months, and much of the legislation passed had been put through on the previous session but was killed by dissolution so some of it required very little debating." He paid a tribute to Hon. Arthur Meighen and said, "This country lost a great statesman when he was defeated in the last election for there is no one in Canada who has a better knowledge of Canadian affairs, and it is a more effective debater. We urged him to remain as leader of the party but he had made up his mind to get out of politics. I do trust that some day he will come back. We selected a temporary leader in Hon. Hugh Guthrie and through him we made a very able opposition during the session."

Mr. Peck described the Georgian Bay canal bill which was killed in committee, thus not allowing a private syndicate to get control of the immense power resources which were not realized when the charter was granted some thirty years ago. In closing he advised the convention to elect very strong township and village officers for the riding is divided in the federal and provincial constituencies.

SOUND WARNING IN BERLIN PRESS

German Correspondents at Geneva Anxious Over Proposed Russian Conference.

DANGER AHEAD.

BERLIN, June 16 (Associated Press).—"Danger ahead," this is the warning sounded in the Berlin press by its correspondents at Geneva in connection with the proposed conference which is to consider the Russian problem.

Disregarding party affiliations, the editorials concur in warning Gustav Stresemann, the German Foreign Minister, that he is in imminent danger of finding himself in the line-up of the anti-Soviet front.

"Regardless of the question whether our relations with Russia are of political and economic value for the time being," says Germania, the Centrist party organ, "they, nevertheless, are of such permanent future importance that we cannot afford to treat them lightly."

"Germany is by no means keen to be counted among those governments which conclude and abrogate alliances and amity pacts under the influence of fluctuating policies."

Vorwaerts, the Socialist organ, welcomes the proposed conference, provided Russia is invited. It believes that it would be an auspicious omen if Germany were permitted to assume the role of mediator.

The editorial warnings lay stress on the Moscow Government's duty to disavow the Third International's machinations in order to facilitate the convocation of a conference which would bring Great Britain and France together.

GOOD BALL GAME TO-MORROW NIGHT

Raybestos and Crescents Play in East Peterborough League.

Raybestos and Crescents should produce an interesting ball game at the exhibition park to-morrow evening in their East Peterborough League tilt. The teams tied on their first meeting, Crescents having to overcome a lead of four runs. All this happened with Casey Masterson pitching for Raybestos.

Billingsley or Mein will pitch for Crescents, and Masterson or Maudsley for the Rays.

Harry Corrin playing right field for Raybestos is setting a good example to the younger players of the league. The veteran has gone to bat seven times in two games getting four singles, three of which scored runs. He drew two passes and lined out to first. In addition to his good work with the stick, Corrin accepted four fielding chances without a clip.

PILES DISAPPEAR

No Cutting or Salves Needed

External treatments seldom banish Piles and for the very good reason that the cause is inside—bad circulation in affected parts, veins are flabby and bowels walls weakened.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send fresh, healthy blood to the raw, sensitive membranes. Internal treatment is one safe method. Ointments and other external treatments can't give lasting relief.

J. S. Leonhardt, M.D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and it has proven successful in thousands of cases — so successful that now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists under a money back guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at McDermid & Jury, and McDermid Drug Store, who will promptly refund the purchase price if you are dissatisfied.

Read the advertisements and then ask grandmother to tell you what people wore and used in her day. The comparison will often show you what a force in modern progress advertising has come to be.

Red Capital Quiet Despite Many Rumors

MOSCOW, June 16 (Associated Press).—Conditions in Moscow, despite many sensational reports, remain quiet. The population appears to be pursuing its usual summer amusements and vocations, the streets and parks are crowded and the theatres and moving pictures are largely attended. Tuesday a boy scout foot race along the boulevards attracted thousands.

The summer exodus to the suburbs is on as usual, and the trains are filled with travellers proceeding to the Crimea, a favorite place for holiday-seekers. Foreigners are arriving daily and no one is hurrying his departure.

While the newspapers periodically sound warnings that the country is facing the prospect of a foreign war, emphasizing the necessity of preparing for such eventuality, especially economically, they have been doing so since the beginning of the disturbances in China. Their warnings appear to attract little attention and there are no evidences of recruiting, drilling or military activity.

OUTLOOK BRIGHT IN CAVAN DISTRICT

Hay Promises To Be Good Crop —Fall Wheat Looks Well.

CAVAN, June 16. — Crops in general are looking well. A few complaints are heard of damage done by the recent heavy rains, such as potatoes, which had recently been planted, being washed out, and furrows cut through some of the fields.

Hay promises to be a good crop. Alfalfa will soon be ready for the first cutting.

Fall wheat looks well and is growing tall, but many farmers think it will not be a bumper crop, as it is thin on the ground, having been killed out in places by water standing and cold, unfavourable weather.

The pasture did not get a very good start this year. The weather was cold and growth tardy in starting; feed was scarce after the unusually long season for keeping the stock stabled, and many farmers had to turn their stock out before the grass had made much headway, consequently in many fields it has been kept pretty closely eaten off.

The suspect, who gave the name of Harry Endsworth aged 33, is held at the Royal Canadian Police barracks at North Portal, a customs port on the United States border. He is held pending the arrival of provincial officers.

REPORT FLIERS FOUND IN CAMP ON SAGUENAY

Lumberman Tells Story of Having Seen Missing French Aviators.

NEAR ROSE DE LIMA.

Fairchild Aerial Survey Company To Despatch Airplane To Spot.

CHICAGO, June 16 (Associated Press).—Captain Charles Nungesser and Captain Francois Coli, the French trans-Atlantic fliers, are in a lumber camp on the south bank of the Saguenay River, near Rose de Lima, in Quebec Province, Elwood Wilson, president of the Fairchild Aerial Survey Company, of Grand Mere, Que., told the Chicago Herald and Examiner last night over the long-distance telephone.

The newspaper said that Wilson told of a lumberman who came out of the woods at noon with a story of having seen the aviators. Mr. Wilson told the newspaper he expected to start an aeroplane for the camp this morning.

Heard Plane Engine.

QUEBEC, Que., June 16 (Canadian Press).—George Brousseau, a trapper operating on the Ste. Marguerite River, a tributary of the Saguenay, reported to Forest Ranger Pouliot, of Lake St. John, yesterday, that on the evening of Monday, May 9, he heard the engine of an aeroplane flying above the Ste. Marguerite River. He was unable to see the plane owing to the fog. It seemed to be short of gasoline, however, said Brousseau, or the motor out of order. The plane followed the course of the Ste. Marguerite River northward.

Brousseau is characterized as "a most reliable man."

There are many aeroplanes, belonging to the pulp and paper companies which abound in that district, flying at all times along the Saguenay and vicinity, and it is not unlikely that the machine heard by the trapper may have been one of these.

Not Confirmed.

QUEBEC, June 16 (Canadian Press).—No word of the safe arrival of Nungesser and Coli, French aviators, on the Shipshaw River has been received by Government officials or lumber companies owning timber limits in the neighborhood. The news of the finding of the fliers telephoned from Riverbend to Quebec yesterday afternoon was discredited in official quarters and thought to be merely a rumor based on the fact that what were believed to be distress signals have been seen in the country northeast of the Saguenay River, which distress signals might have been sent up by Nungesser and Coli, now known to have possessed means of sending up lights.

WEDDING BELLS.

GARBUTT—HILL.

LAKEFIELD, June 16. — The marriage took place quietly on Wednesday, June 8th, at 1.30 p.m., in George Street parsonage, Peterboro, of Doris Edythe, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Hill, of Lakefield, to Elwood Garnet Garbutt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Garbutt, of Douro. The bride, who was given away by her father, was becomingly gowned in a rose beige georgette over satin of the same shade, with hat to match, and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses.

Immediately after the ceremony the happy couple left by motor for Toronto, Niagara Falls, and Buffalo, the bride wearing a beige coat furtrimmed. On their return they will reside in Douro. Owing to recent bereavement in the bride's family, the ceremony was witnessed only by the families of the contracting parties.

Pre-nuptial events included a shower given by a number of friends of the bride at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Kidd on Thursday, June 2nd, and also a miscellaneous shower given by the ladies of Regent Street Church, and the neighbours of Mr and Mrs. Hill who surprised the bride-elect at her home on Bridge Street on Monday evening, June 6th, and spent a happy hour in social intercourse. All united in expressing heartiest good wishes for years of wedded bliss to the young couple, who are well known and very popular in the community. Nearly one hundred ladies were present.

Canada is surpassed only by the United States and Great Britain in per capita wealth.

Mint Works Overtime In Striking Medals

OTTAWA, Ont., June 16 (Canadian Press). — Intensive effort, necessitating night work, the Royal Mint here has already struck 1,200,000 Confederation medals of various models. The majority of those are the medals to be distributed among the children who participate in the Jubilee celebration, practically all of which have already gone forward to their destination to be distributed by the provincial authorities. The Royal Mint is also proceeding with the striking of the gold, silver, and bronze medals which are to be distributed in various other directions. Never since the Great War has the Mint been so busily engaged.

LITTLE SAFETY TALKS

(THIS ONE BY JOSEPH WEARING.)

If you really want to see a person in a hurry, watch any time for a motorist, man or woman, who leaves for church when the clock starts to strike eleven, decides about eight fifteen to go to the movies, or leaves home about twenty after six to keep a dinner engagement at six o'clock. People are always in a desperate hurry over unimportant matters which are left to the last minute. On occasions of this kind all the haste is shown in the few minutes given to driving the car when everything must give way to "getting there" in the quickest possible time. On occasions of this kind no thought is given to the fact that life can be snuffed out quicker than a car can be driven, and also that it is possible to drive from the corner of Charlotte and George Streets to any part of city in four minutes and not exceed fifteen miles an hour. This can be cut down to two minutes by driving thirty miles an hour, and those two precious minutes can be saved by endangering lives apparently not nearly so precious. The only point is this: Is it worth it?

NORHAM NEWS

NORHAM, June 16.—The services in the United church here were conducted on Sunday evening by Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Kingston of Campbellford. Mrs. Scott outlined the work of the Women's Missionary society in a clear and vivid way which appealed favorably to many of the ladies who were present and made them feel that herein lay great opportunities of serving. Mrs. Kingston dealt with the individual lady in the local congregation and in her message made an appeal for active interest on the part of every Christian woman. During the service Miss Meiklejohn sang two solos which were very appropriate to the addresses given and much enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Windover and little daughter, of Rochester, are visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Percy Windover.

Elmer Dixon and Miss Hazel Everson, of Belleville, spent Sunday at the parsonage with Rev. J. F. and Mrs. Everson.

Mrs. Percy Windover has returned from the Peterborough Hospital, where she underwent a minor operation. She is quite improved.

A new piece of cement walk has been constructed from the United church along the shed to the league hall.

Mabel Palmateer has gone for a visit to Buffalo, having accompanied her sister, Mrs. Roy Earl Christie, who has returned after spending several weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Palmateer.

George McCubbin is confined to his bed from a prolonged illness which followed an attack of stomach flue which he contracted a couple of months ago.

The Sunday school and congregation of Meyersburg United church are holding their annual picnic to Presquile Point on Friday.

A GOOD RECIPE FOR DANDRUFF

Nobody loves Dandruff. But thousands endure it, not knowing it can be easily stopped and the scalp kept free and clean by just three minutes daily attention. From any drug store, get 6 oz. Bay Rum, 2 oz. Lavona (de Composed) and ½ dr. Menthol Crystals. Mix together and allow to stand over night before using. Then each morning on arising rub the mixture thoroughly into the scalp with the finger tips or a stiff brush.

Dandruff quickly vanishes under this treatment, itching ceases instantly and hair stops falling out and is made lustrous and fluffy and looks and feels 100 per cent better.

If you want to stop dandruff and save your hair, try this simple home recipe, just as thousands have done and are doing. It is a famous old English formula that is harmless and inexpensive.

SALVATION ARMY BAND IS IN TORONTO AT CONCERT

Chosen To Participate in Massed Festival in Massey Hall.

TWO NUMBERS.

Bandmaster F. W. Robinson Has Spent Much Time on Rehearsals.

The Temple Band will be in Toronto this evening taking part in a Massed Festival in Massey Hall with bands from Hamilton, Earlscourt, Dovercourt, Toronto Temples. Each band has two items, a March and a Selection, to play; these items being selected from a number submitted to the Musical Board in Toronto. The Temple Band will play "Excerpts from the Great Masters, Haydn," an arrangement of works of this great composer, arranged by Brigadier Hawkes of London, England, chairman of the Musical Board at the Salvation Army International Headquarters. The selection introduces three distinct phases of the composition of Haydn and requires considerable technique to give a right rendering. An organ-like opening introduces the first stanza, given to the solo horn with some magnificent band accompaniments. A complete change in style and rhythm is introduced in the second movement, calling for delicate work from all sections of the band. The third stanza opens with a quartet for solo cornet, horn, baritone and enphonium and breaks into a solo for cornet with the quartet repeated and an ensemble movement for the band. The final stanza presents the most difficult to the instrumentalist, for the composer introduces considerable light and shade into this brilliant finale.

The other item to be played is "To the Land of Glory," a festival march by Brigadier T. Ostley of Sweden. This is an entirely different kind of music to the selection. As one would imagine from the composer's nationality the march is Scandanavian in character, in flowing melodies given a highly continental effect by swift changes from minor to major movements, with unique modulations and is a march of a description that is not very much heard in these parts.

The saxophone party will also play an item during the programme: "Sound Forth His Praises," it being requested that the saxophones should play this, being the only item apart from band numbers. With the exception of a march by the massed bands and a vocal item by the 250 bandsmen who will form the massed bands.

Under Bandmaster F. W. Robinson the band has put considerable time into rehearsing these numbers and goes to Toronto prepared to give its best and boost Peterborough's musical assets.

ARE YOU SLEEPLESS?

Some Hints on How to Overcome This Most Serious Trouble.

Some people lie awake for hours before they can fall asleep. Others waken suddenly in the small hours and worry over trifles, while some doze fitfully all night and never feel rested on rising. Sleeplessness is caused by a disordered condition of the nervous system. It means that the nerves are not receiving proper nutrition, and in the quiet of night, when the muscles relax and heart settles down to repair the system, the nerves grow restless and cry out for the nourishment the blood cannot supply.

It is very unwise—more; it is dangerous to rely on narcotics. What is needed is a good tonic to build up the blood. For this purpose no other tonic is so highly recommended as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. This because they assist the digestive organs to take the blood-making ingredients from the food, and so supply the nerves with the nourishment they need. With satisfied nerves sleep comes easily and naturally.

Not only do Dr. Williams' Pink Pills help the nerves. Their main function is to enrich and increase the blood, and as the blood supplies the whole body, new life is given to the entire system. Better sleep, steady nerves, improved appetite, increased vigor—all these can be yours by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Begin them to-day. Sold by all medicine dealers, or by mail post paid, at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CHURCH MEETINGS

ANGLICAN.

WARSAW, June 16.—A most delightful service was held Sunday afternoon in St. Mark's church. The rector from All Saints' church, Peterborough, with his choir and some of his congregation visited the Warsaw church. Rural Dean J. O'Conor-Fenton conducted the service, the All Saints' choir took charge of the music, and sang two anthems, which were a delight to the congregation, as it is but rarely such music is rendered in Warsaw. Rev. Mr. Paterson, rector of All Saints read the lessons, and preached the sermon, taking for his text a clause from Isaian VI, verse one, "I saw also the Lord."

Every word in the sermon counted. A few points were that Isaiah saw a vision, anything great that has ever happened, came about because some one saw a vision. In seeing the Lord he saw himself, realized the difference, and saw the ideal of what he might be.

The rural dean asked the choir and congregation to gather outside after the service and have a short friendly greeting. The choir and clergy remained on the steps. Mr. H. G. E. Choate, church warden, and Mr. Albert Cooper, people's warden, from Warsaw, Mr. Patterson, Mr. Chandler, choir leader, the wardens and some others spoke words of appreciation of the service. The rural dean spoke of the great good their visits should do, not only to the two bodies, but to all of every church around.

UNITED CHURCH.

At the United church before the sermon Mr. E. Hawthorne, who accompanied Mr. Herrington to the conference, gave a few of his impressions. One thing he noticed was the cordiality that accompanied all the proceedings.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

In the Presbyterian church, Rev. Mr. Aitken of Norwood preached; he had conducted communion services at Keene and Westwood. Mr. McClary took the Norwood services. Next Sunday Mr. McClary preaches the anniversary services in Warkworth, and Rev. Mr. Fowler is here.

ANGLICAN

MARMORA, June 15. — Services in the Anglican parish of Marmora were taken on Sunday by Mr. E. N. Grant of Trinity College, Toronto, the rector taking duty in the neighboring parish of Rawdon, where Mr. Grant has been temporarily officiating. The morning service at St. Paul's was particularly bright. Mr. Grant gave a very choice solo, "The Dream of Bethlehem," and with W. M. Lester, Mrs. H. R. Pearce and Mrs. F. S. Pearce, composed a quartette which very effectively rendered "O Sacred Head." Mr. Grant chose as his theme "The Looks of Jesus," taking the wistful look, the sorrowful look, the angry look and the saving look, as borne by the Master. There was a good congregation present.

United Church.

The parable of the selfish neighbor and the unjust judge, the fourth in a series of studies in the parables, were dealt with on Sunday evening at the United Church by the pastor, Rev. C. J. Beckley. He showed the teaching of these parables to be that no prayer is unanswered, and that our part is to pray without ceasing for the coming of the Kingdom.

Tendency to Indulge in Sex Experiments Defended By Minister; Attacked By Bishop

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., June 15 (Canadian Press). — The tendency among the younger generation to indulge in "sex experiments" was defended by Rev. Henry Lewis, rector of St. Andrew's Church at Ann Arbor, Mich., in an address before the National Congress of the Protestant Episcopal Church yesterday.

The speech created a sensation. The Right Rev. John J. Murray, of Maryland, presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church, followed immediately with an impassioned defence of "the sanctity of the home."

Bishop Edward L. Parsons, of California, and two other clergymen also took issue with Rev. Mr. Lewis, one of the latter, however, remarking that the Ann Arbor rector "deserved the Congressional medal for his frankness." Many of the delegates on the other hand were quoted as approving Rev. Mr. Lewis' statements.

THE GRAND JURY'S REPORT.

The report presented by the Grand Jury at the June Sessions amply justified the confidence in the jury system expressed by His Honor Judge McGlade at the opening of the court.

If all the grand juries regarded their responsibilities as seriously and made such a concientious effort to completely discharge their duties, criticism of such bodies would never be heard.

The members of the jury have made a thorough investigation of the various public institutions in the county, and it is gratifying to find that such a close examination has revealed a most satisfactory condition of affairs.

The manner in which these institutions are conducted receives commendation from the Grand Jury and in most cases nothing that would constitute an improvement has suggested itself to the jurors.

There are recommendations in regard to the House of Refuge that should receive the consideration of the County Council, as likely to add to the comfort of the aged inmates.

The suggestion regarding more comfortable chairs is one that appears to be entirely reasonable; the people of the county would undoubtedly like to feel that the old people in the House of Refuge were passing their last days in something akin to comfort.

SHOULD BE FOLLOWED UP.

The brake-testing operation being carried on by the Kiwanis Club as one feature of this week's safety campaign is a very material contribution to safer driving condition, but it should be followed by a checking up by the police that will reach the car owners who have not taken advantage of the testing area.

There are cars being operated in Peterborough with brakes that are far from being in a safe condition, yet the owners are too indifferent or too saving to remedy this state of affairs.

It is obvious that a driver who knows his car is defective in this respect will give the testing area a wide berth and so far this class of motorist is concerned the brake-testing feature, excellent in itself, will be a total loss.

The only remedy is in the hands of the police department.

Frequent checking up of local cars, by police instructed to stop and test automobiles picked indiscriminately from the ranks of passing machines, would undoubtedly weed out, in time, the defective cars and guarantee that the majority at least of the local automobiles are in sound condition mechanically.

EVERYBODY CAN HELP.

Peterborough's mammoth celebration of the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation offers an opportunity for every one to serve in helping to make the occasion worthy of its historical significance.

Societies can help in the parade, the general decorations, and in the concessions at the Exhibition Grounds.

Swimmers and paddlers will be useful in connection with the water sports.

Singers can be of valiant service in connection with the Jubilee chorus of 500 voices.

Merchants can do much by special window displays and by decorating their places of business.

Householders can do their part by decorating their homes as lavishly as possible. Every house should have its flag.

The public generally will be expected to contribute its share by a record-breaking attendance at the Exhibition Grounds on Friday and Saturday and by taking part in the huge service on Sunday night.

Only two weeks remain.

From now on Peterborough should think and talk the Jubilee from morning to night.

It will be the biggest thing in the city's history and as loyal Canadians we should want a share in the celebration.

PETERBOROUGH IS INTERESTED.

Of vital interest to several Peterborough industries and to hundreds of workers in this city is the application made before the Tariff Board yesterday by the Canadian woollen and knit good manufacturers for an increase in tariff as a protection for these industries in Canada.

The claim has been made on behalf of the woollen manufacturers that increased duties would result in greater numbers of Canadians being employed without increasing the cost to the consumers in this country.

The home consumption of cloth is said to be about $40,000,000 and under the present conditions only 30 per cent of this is manufactured in Canada.

Yet the plants now here are capable, without working overtime, of producing 50 per cent of the quantity required, and this percentage could easily be increased did the demand justify such a policy.

In competition with Canadaian made goods are imported clothes made in countries where the production-costs are materially lower and the worker's wages are much less.

Unless Canadian workers are willing to accept the living and wage conditions of these other countries—and nobody in this prosperous land would surely ask them to do so—it is obviously impossible for the Canadian woollen firms to compete against the foreign manufacturer.

Favorable action by the Tariff Board in regard to yesterday's appeal would mean a great deal to Peterborough.

V. SPACEK TAKES A SWIM.

Away back in the pre-Lindbergh days there was, old-timers will recall, a positive mania for swimming across the English Channel. One Gertrude Ederle, a plum pand husky damsel from New York, as the first woman to perform this feat won large quantities of free publicity and considerable cash. Others followed in her wake, with less and less fame and proportionately smaller financial rewards.

The other day the Czechoslovak legation in Paris announced that one Venceslas Spacek, a Czechoslovakian had made a new record for a Channel swim and won a national prize of about $6,000, and the world was impressed not at all. As a publicity stunt it ranked with draping circus elephants in advertising posters. We simply do not care any more who swims the Channel, or why or how, and nothing less than a non-stop round trip will revive interest.

When a thing is done once the edge of popular interest is blunted. The name of none but Ederle is associated with the Channel crossing. Lindbergh's performance was incomparably greater in every respect, but in six months Broadway will not turn its head to see him pass, and those who follow in his lonely path, as will others, will not set the world aflame with emotion and admiration. The difference is that of the pioneer and the imitator.

Probably Venceslas Spacek earned his 200,00 Czechoslovak crows and we hope he collects to the last crown, but the world does not care whether he swam the Channel in ten hours or ten days.—Ottawa Journal.

THE HOLIDAY SEASON.

Canada is being widely advertised as a playground for the holiday season and the most enthusiastic writer of railway and hotel literature can hardly do more than justice to its charms. Its coasts and inland waters provide ample amusement—fishing, bathing, canoeing, sailing. It has forests which are easily accessible, and yet which afford that feeling of wildness and seclusion which is a grateful change from the routine of city life. Its wide spaces and comparative coolness make it increasingly welcome to visitors from the United States.

Opportunities for breathing fresh air and viewing the country have been multiplied many times by the automobile. It is quarreling with human nature to take exception to the exhilaration produced by speed, yet it may be pointed out that pleasure is lost by a too exclusive devotion to the god of speed. There is much to be seen by those who are willing to stray from the highway and take a leisurely picnic meal in some shady nook with perhaps the added charm of a murmuring stream. The pleasure will not be diminshed by consideration for the farmer and other touirsts. A good deal has been said of the ruthless destruction of trees and flowering plants, careless treatment of fires and disfigurement of the scene by paper, cans, bottle and boxes. Leave the place as beautiful as yotu find it, and in forest land be careful to extinguish fires and not to throw away lighted matches. Treat the farmer as a friendly host if you use his land, and enlarge your experience by talking with him.

A holiday-maker ought to come back to his work refreshed in body and mind and with increase power for the duties of life. Roughing it in the bush is excellent for those who are vigorous enough for its somewhat strenuous experiences. The summer cottage is admirable for a family which includes young children. Occasionally it is found that the wife and mother are deprived of the rest they ought to have by preparing too elaborate meals without city conveniences, and sometimes by too many visitors, who forget the additional labor which they impose upon the hostess.

But effort of some kind is essential to enjoyment. Dwellers in summer cottages and hotels sometimes find the time hangs heavily on their hands. Some may be seen on the veranda of a hotel looking bored rather than rested. A good supply of reading matter is a preventive of this kind of weariness. Novels are usually chosen, and they are pleasant companions, but there is no harm in taking also a little solid matter—some of the few books that, as Bacon says, are to be chewed and digested. Serious reflection may be a restful change for those minds in the working part of the year are distracted by business worries and even by amusements offered in crowded centres. Novel scenery has a soothing and healing influence, and it is probable that this is a factor in the enjoyment of the golfer and fisherman, though the enjoyment may be subconscious. He may feel the influence of wood and water and changeful sky, though he may not talk about it to his environment. There may be more of the poet and the artist in the ordinary man than he suspects.

Travel has been rendered easier by the automobile, and happily the benefit is not confined to the rich. We admire the expensive high-powered car, but our hearts are perhaps more cheered by the sight of the cheap and ancient affair in which a whole family of small means takes its pleasure and exchanges the stuffy little house for the open road and the wide spaces. If we may be allowed to parody Gray:

Let not ambition mock their useful car,
Their homely joys and destiny obscure.

Canada and the United States offer an immense field to motorists rich and poor, with few annoyances in the shape of frontiers and customs houses, with a rich variety of scenery an ample opportunities for studying human nature. Travelers have remarked upon the uniformity of life in the United States, as compared with the diversity of language and custom in Europe, and there is some truth in the observation. But human nature is interesting everywhere to those who keep their minds and hearts open by sympathy and insight. Canadians and Americans may come to know each other better than before because of the automobile. We may all take our part in intelligent diplomacy by behaving with courtesy and consideration whether as hosts in our own country or guests in another.—London Advertiser.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, June 16 (Canadian Press).—The foreign trade in Canadian grain continued inactive on the Montreal market yesterday, there being practically no demand from any source.

Owing to the further strength in the future markets for corn and oats yesterday a stronger feeling developed in the local market for the cash article, and prices for corn were advanced 2 cents per bushel, and oats 1½c per bushel. The demand was limited. Car lots of Argentine corn were quoted at $1.05, and American sample corn at $1.06 per bushel.

A weaker feeling prevailed in the ocean grain room market from the Port of Montreal and rates to some ports in the United Kingdom have been reduced 3d to 6d per quarter. The rates to the Continent have also decline 1 cent per hundred pounds. This was attributed to the limited demand of late.

The local and export trade in Spring and Winter wheat grades of flour continued quiet, but values were steady.

A feature of the rolled oats trade was the stronger feeling that developed and prices were advanced 15 cents per bag. The demand was fair. The market for all lines of millfeed was moderately active and values were firm.

The weakness that has characterized the potato trade of late was again a prominent feature yesterday and values were reduced another 25 to 35 cents per bag. This is attributed to the liberal supplies of new crop American potatoes coming forward and the decrease in the demand for old crop Canadian stock. Sales of odd cars of Quebec White B grade were made at $2.15 to $2.25 per bag, and Reds at $1.80 to $190 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk, ex-track.

The egg market continued active and values were unchanged. The receipts were 790 cases.

Prices for all grades of butter were well maintained, but the demand was quiet. The receipts were 717 packages.

The undertone to the cheese market was firm under a fair demand from English and local buyers. The receipts were 4,270 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 16 (Canadian Press).—Corn acted as a magnet yesterday and lifted all the grain markets. Prevailing temperatures and other conditions were still unfitted to hurry along the corn crop and the Missouri official State report said the outlook for corn there is the worst in forty years.

Closing quotations on corn were strong, 1¾ to 2¼c net higher at the day's top figures, with wheat unsettled but showing ¼ to ⅝c gain; oats ½ to ⅞c up, and provisions varying from 5 cents decline to an equal advance.

Some export buying of new crop Winter wheat at 9 cents over September helped to strengthen the wheat market in the late dealings. Wheat clearances for the day totalled 795,000 bushels, Galveston alone clearing 528,000 bushels. Better weather for wheat both northwest and southwest, however, made wheat prices average lower most of the day.

Commission house and foreign buying steadied the provision market despite a sag in hog values.

A Thought For To-day

WHAT IS PHILOSOPHY?

When danger threatens, when real defeat is at a distance, not too near, the philosopher can reason his way out and then he talks loud and long of his triumph over threatening trouble and often convinces the thoughtless that his philosophy is beyond the pale of misfortune.

Philosophy, in itself, can only find the "causes of all phenomena, both of mind and matter", but philosophy does not cure the cause.

Philosophy often helps to lighten the load and brighten the way, but it requires more than philosophy to cure pneumonia.

Philosophy is a mental pill that we taken when the bile of trouble gets foaming, but, even then, pills are more effective.

Philosophy will carry us far from the poisoned arrows of our enemies, but all the philosophy in the world will not stop our hostile foes from firing their shots.

Philosophy is high-hat prose and high-brow poetry on causes, but it produces no certain cure.

A reasonable amount of philosophy is a good thing, but it is not the big thing in life.

Philosophy teaches us to reason, but, when actual danger arrives, the philosopher often forsakes his post and leaves the brunt of the battle to some humble comrade with spiritual strength.

A Different Drummer.

(By Jeanette)

Mrs. Cameron's hand shook. The broom, from which she was extracting a long, stiff straw, waggled uncertainly and slid out of her grasp, the hard handle whacking her right shin-bone as it hit the floor with a thud. If Mrs. Cameron had been a man, she would have sworn. It was a small thing, but it was the culmination of a series of annoying small happenings of that bright May morning. First, the double boiler had burned badly—her new aluminum boiler that she had so proudly brought home last week. Then the baby had broken a china jug, one of the last pieces of her mother's treasured set. It was ugly, this china, with a thickness to its edge and a hardness to its design that brought out the stark colors of the red and yellow roses with undue prominence, but Mrs. Cameron prized it, and the baby's little hands had been well slapped over the misadventure. Perhaps it was the pitiful look of the tiny thing, unconscious of serious wrong doing, that added to the mother's hurt feelings of the morning. And then Benny—

She set her lips firmly and stooped to retrieve the broom. The cake in the oven needed testing and a straw was required for the operation. Rubbing the whacked shin, she picked up the broom and carefully selected a straw of firm, hard texture. Still with the hard line about her mouth, she opened the oven-door and took out the gently browning cake. The pleasant odor filled the little kitchen, that was so pleasantly appointed, with its fresh window-curtains, its spotless white table and its canary bird, singing softly in a glistening cage.

Ellen Cameron was a good housekeeper. There were few to equal her, in the small town where she had been brought up and where she lived and moved and had her being. At the fall fair, that formed a prominent portion of the annual jollifications of the community, her jellies and pastry reigned supreme, and the deftness of her touch in the baking line was undisputed. Her husband and children couldn't complain about their victuals, she often asserted proudly, and the listeners were wont to agree, with, all the while, one of those comfortable mental reservations that found vent, later on, in surreptitious back-fence confidences, something like this:

"It's a pity she hasn't a quieter tongue in her head. Tom and the children don't have much of a life of it, if they happen to disagree with her."

The firm line deepened about her mouth as she replaced the cake and shut the oven-door. She was thinking of Benny, her twelve-year-old son, who would have quailed momentarily had he been within range of her gaze at the moment. But Benny was a mile away, engaged in the blissful occupation of tracing the angular features of his school teacher on the inside cover of his geography book, much to the delight of the five children who sat in the row behind him.

His mother did not sigh as she thought of the incorrigible Benny. She merely set her mouth more firmly, for her regular habit was not one of sighs. She believed in the Divine right of the parent to rule with a firm hand, the firmer the better, and she had no patience with these "new-fangled idiots," as she termed them, who prated about a child's individuality. Such individuality, to her, spelled insubordination, an attitude not to be tolerated a moment in any proper household.

Benny had been just a little worse than usual this morning, and his daily remonstrance over his hour of practise at the piano had been sillier than ever, in his mother's eyes. It was a scant breakfast he had received and a cuff on the ear had been his farewell from his maternal parent, as he set out for school. Benny did not like the piano, but his mother, who had been deprived of the music-lessons for which she had yearned when a small child, had resolved that her children should never lack for such tuition, and practise Benny must, whether he had a mind to or not. He had a taste for drawing, and liked nothing better than an idle hour wherein to make pictures to his heart's content. But to Mrs. Cameron, a picture was something like Peter Bell's primrose, merely a picture, "and nothing more." The enlarged portraits of her father and mother, more than ordinarily hideous, which hung in the parlor, were to her really wonderful creations of art, and far surpassed any "daubs" in paint or water-color.

She shut the oven-door with a bang, and then, with resolute steps, made her way upstairs. The baby, in its cot on the shaded front verandah, cooed pleasantly and the mother stopped for a minute to adjust the covers and to pat the little hands that had been punished for their mischief, a short time before. The tiny thing laughed and bobbed her little white bear plaything up and down. Mrs. Cameron smiled, but her purpose did not relax. She made her way to the little room occupied by Benny and James, and there found the treasured box of smudgy water-colors, under the bed. Drawing it out, she went down the stairs, and out to the yard, where she dumped the box and its contents unceremoniously into the garbage-can. Benny's mind was distracted by this foolishness, she thought. He must practise his music more and be ready to perform well at Miss Cunningham's recital, next month. On a previous occasion of the sort, he had covered himself with disgrace, in his mother's eyes, at least, by being compelled to resort to music for the execution of "Mary's Pet Waltz," while his smaller companions in the class went galloping through their "pieces," aided by memory alone.

The front door-bell rang. A blind peddler stood there, holding in his hand some little white booklets. In the muffled voice of those who dwell in eternal darkness, he proffered his wares to Mrs. Cameron. They were little books of verses and bits of wisdom that he sold for half a dollar apiece, or one might buy pencils or shoe-laces or collar-buttons. Upon these offerings the lady frowned, but she would not turn a blind man from her door. She must buy something from him. The little white booklet would look well on the parlor-table. She gave him the silver piece, and, with a word of thanks, he went his way. She watched him go down the walk, his stick tapping lightly on the gravel, the bright sun shining on his uncovered head. On a sudden impulse, she called him back, and bestowed on him one of Tom's old straw hats, hanging on a peg in the stair-closet.

Yes, the little book looked well on the table that occupied the exact centre of the small parlor, and that boasted already a pile of picture post-cards and a bouquet of stiff wax flowers in a glass vase. Idly, the mother, with one ear ready for the smallest complaint from the baby above, sat down in a wicker rocker and opened the tiny volume. Her eyes travelled down the pages. It was the usual collection of wise sayings, with here and there a four-line verse. One sentence caught her eye:

"When a man does not keep pace with his companions, it may be because he hears the music of a different drummer."

She read it over twice and then she got up quickly. The baby murmured from above. Later, placated by a few minutes of rocking and a fresh bottle of warm milk, she subsided, and the mother tiptoed down the stairs. Through her mind ran the few words she had just read, and, picking up the book, she scanned them once more.

An hour later, the firm line about her mouth just as noticeable as ever, she left her ironing-board to make a trip to the back yard and the garbage can, to retrieve with careful haste the box of smudgy paints. She looked them over, and then went into the house, to lift the stove-lid and deposit the box and its contents in the flaming interior, for Mrs. Cameron never wasted electricity on ironing. She used the real old-fashioned "sad" irons, and heated them in the old-fashioned way, over a wood fire in the kitchen stove. With a satisfied air, she resumed her work.

Tom Cameron came up the grave walk that evening with a subdued air. It was not that he was worried or overtired, but he always entered his home with the aspect of a man prepared for any eventuality. Ellen might be in a fine humor, and then again—well, one never knew. But Ellen sat on the front porch, sewing, and she looked quite peaceful. His brow relaxed. He went to poke the baby's fat cheek and to give its "walker" a little twist, then he sat down on the top step and fanned himself with the evening paper. "It's been a warm day," he remarked, and commenced to look at the headlines.

"Benny," called his wife, suddenly, raising her voice so that it would carry around the side of the house, where Benny and his brother, James were engaged in the pleasantly mournful occupation of burying a dead sparrow.

"Yes, maw," replied Benny obediently, appearing around the corner with the deceased clutched in a grimy hand.

"Go in and practise your music Benny," commanded his parent.

"Aw, Maw," said Benny, "let me bury the bird first. It's starting to smell already——"

"Do as your mother tells you, Benny," said his father, and the little boy, dropping the carcase, scuttled into the house.

"Listen to that, Tom," said Mrs. Cameron, stopping her work and leaning forward to tap her husband on the shoulder. "Listen to Benny's playing. Isn't it awful?"

"Sounds about as usual to me," said Mr. Cameron, absently, absorbed in the printed account of a gruesome murder.

"No, he gets worse all the time, and I've been thinking, Tom, that it might be better to let him take drawing lessons from old Mr. Fenton, and stop his music. When Betty grows up, she can learn to play the piano. And it seems kind of foolish to force him, and spend good money into the bargain, on something he doesn't like."

"All right, Ellen," said her husband, looking up with surprise. "But I thought you were dead set against the drawing lessons."

"Well, I've changed my mind about it. I burned his box of old water-colors to-day, and we'll get him a new outfit on Saturday night. He can start his lessons next week. There isn't much drawing shown at the fall fair, anyway, and maybe he could take a prize later on. You never can tell——"

Benny banged away laboriously. Suddenly, the baby began to cry.

"Benny," called his mother, "that will do. Run over to the store and get me a pound of butter for supper."

The Fire Department

By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS.

THE call of the Fire Department! Everyone jumps to get out of the way, windows are crowded and people follow running. Excitement is afloat. Let's go to the fire! The children are wild to go. Of course they are. Such wonderful red wagons and miles of gushing hose, people breathless and hanging on every move of the fire heroes in slickers and hats! But a fire is no place for children unless they are accompanied by a grown-up and kept out of danger's way. Not only that, but kept from interfering with operations. The firemen and police have plenty to do without watching children at a time when seconds may mean loss of property or life. Explain to the children that the way they can help fight fire is to be quiet and keep out of the way so that no time will be lost because of their thoughtlessness or lack of self-control.

CLANGETY, clang, clang!
Bangety, bang, bang!
Ding! Ding! Ding! Ding! Ding!

"Get out of the way," bangs the bell with a fuss,
"There's a fire in town and this car's in a rush.
We've ladders, and helmets, and nozzles, and hose,
And a screen to fight fire wherever it goes.
Draw up to the curb all you automobiles!
Get out of my way all you hucksters on wheels!
I clang down the street and make people all stare,
I guess it's because of my jolly red air.
I whistle and scream and make everyone run,
Oh, when there's a fire I surely have fun.
The grocers, and merchants, and shoppers and all
Stenographers, bankers, and folks fat and tall,
Go jumping, and scrambling to make way for me
Because I'm the Fire Department, you see!"

Clangety, clang, clang!
Bangety, bang, bang!
Ding! Ding! Ding! Ding! Ding!

'GORILLA' IS BEHIND BARS IN MANITOBA

Arrested Last Night, Escaped, Trailed and Recaptured To-day.

HOUNDS USED.

Broke Two Locks in Making His Way From Jail to Woods.

WINNIPEG, June 16 (Canadian Press).—In wooded country, offering excellent cover for the fugitive, Provincial and Town Police, aided by scores of citizens, armed with every conceivable kind of weapon, searched for the man who escaped from Killarney Jail last night, and effected his capture. Suspected of being "the Strangler," who killed a Winnipeg Woman and girl, the man was arrested at Wakopa, five miles from the international boundary last evening. Fifteen minutes after being lodged in jail he had picked two locks on the door which confined him to the cell and was free again. He disappeared into the bush.

Bloodhounds assisted the police from Winnipeg, Brandon, and nearby points, members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Provincial Police and a posse of citizens in the search.

Shortly after the capture, Chief of Detectives Smith of Winnipeg, in a long distance telephone conversation, stated he was confident the man answered the description of the "Gorilla," who is charged with strangling Mrs. Emily Patterson and 14-year-old Lola Cowan a week ago.

Police believe that the perpetrator of the two crimes in Winnipeg is the same person who is wanted in a score of cities in United States for committing murders of a similar nature.

Surrounded by a cordon of Provincial Police, the fugitive was captured in the woods two miles west of Killarney. He surrendered without resistance. Cheers rent the air when he was safely lodged behind the bars of the jail.

Wore Same Clothes

The Continent-wide hunt for the "Gorilla man" is believed to have ended with this man's capture. The prisoner when arrested was wearing a straw hat and blue overhalls, which agree with the garb the "Strangler" is last reported to have donned. He was haggard and hungry, with a heavy growth of beard and he cowered in fear before the crowd of farmers who had gathered in front of the town jail.

Both Col. Hugh Martin, Commissioner of Provincial Police, and George Smith, Chief of the Winnipeg Detective Force, expressed confidence that the man under arrest was the fugitive who had been trailed throughout Manitoba and Saskatchewan for the double killing in Winnipeg.

The Story of the Chase

A report that a suspicious-looking character was hovering in the vicinity of Wapoka, Manitoba, 18 miles southwest of Killarney was received by the police over the long distance phone from Mrs. Leslie Morgan, wife of a general merchant in Wapoka. A stranger entered the store and asked for a meal and provisions. Her suspicions aroused, Mrs. Morgan seized upon the first opportunity to acquaint the authorities. A few minutes later the suspect was in custody. When questioned by the police he ignored them and slumped into a sulking mood. The prisoner's shoes were removed and two padlocks put on the cell. When the police officers returned fifteen minutes later he had vanished.

The news of the capture of the suspected "Gorilla man" was flashed to Winnipeg authorities, who were about to leave for the scene by special train when the report of his escape was received. A heavy downpour of rain during the night had precluded a spurt to Killarney by motor.

Bloodhounds which have been used by the police in their search for the killer in Manitoba were again brought into action, and the man hunters armed themselves with sawed-off shot-guns, rifles and revolvers to meet the possibility of violent resistance. The fugitive, however, was again captured by the time the reserve force arrived at Killarney.

AUTO CASE IS HANDED JURY

Kennedy—The light was on after 7 o'clock in the evening.

Mr. Huycke—Please explain the barricade.

Kennedy—It was made of the branches of trees put on the wooden standards.

Court adjourned at six o'clock.

Mr. Onions, foreman of the McNamara Company, in his evidence this morning, stated that there was a light placed on the barricade and on the day after the accident he examined the roadway and found black marks going back 126 feet from the barricade, as if made by tires of a car skidding.

Andrew Brown was called to give evidence as to the value of the Buick car. Mr. Brown estimated that it would be worth $550 on the Canadian market.

Joseph Detcher, the mechanic in Brown's garage, told of doing minor repair work on the car after the accident.

Mr. Huycke in summing up the case for the defence, submitted to the jury that plaintiff must show been going more than 23 miles an hour. It was not a new car when he bought it in 1923, and since then it had travelled 32,000 miles, making a total of about 42,000 miles. He thought it was an obvious attempt to get a new car out of the McNamara Company. "The company put a light on it and it was lit, which was all they were required to do." Brooks brought his car to Peterboro the day after the accident, had a few minor fixtures, returned to Buffalo, and drove the car until this March. He asked the jury to consider how far Gould was responsible for his own accident. "I am not going to say he was 100 per cent. but he was 75 per cent."

Mr. O'Brien, in addressing the jury said the highways of this country were free and could be travelled by anyone, and the party in fault of accident has a right to take the consequences. He submitted the McNamara Company was at fault. Two uninterested witnesses came 42 miles, and said there was no light on the barricade. "On this one principle, I stand or fall" he said. "Was sufficient prominence given this barricade so that it would draw the attention of people who travel the road? There was no light, and an accident happened."

"Mr. Gould's total claim is $571 and he is asking $500 which I think is a fair claim. He was justified in expecting the highways to be in good order. He turned off at the detour, and his car was damaged. The man who built the detour was responsible for all damages."

Mr. O'Brien asked the jury to find the McNamara Company wholly to blame, and the amount of damages claimed reasonable.

Judge McGlade, in addressing the jury, said "You gentlemen of the jury are the judges of the facts as you find them in this case. It is the privilege of the trial judge to give impressions, but I shall endeavor not to, and you shall consider yourselves the sole judges. It is not necessary that 12 of you be agreed on a verdict; if only 10 of you are agreed it is sufficient. The first thing you should be called upon to determine, is what has been the amount of the damages done to the plaintiff. It seems to me there are the necessary expenditures in the first place to put the car in running order. Then there is the value of the plaintiff's car at the time of the accident, and then the value after the accident, and what actual depreciation the car has suffered as a result of the accident.

"There exists to-day in the province of Ontario, 'the Contributory Negligence Act.' First, you must find the amount of the damages had their been no fault nor neglect, and then find where the blame is to be laid, or what per cent defendant and plaintiff are to blame for the accident."

Judge McGlade drew to the attention of the jury the statement of the plaintiff that he was offered $500 for the car this spring.

"Gentlemen," said the Judge in conclusion, "the plaintiff is not a native of this country, but this is a British court of justice, and he must be given fair play in every sense of the word."

The case was given to the jury at 12.45 p.m.

TWO DAYS LEFT TO WRITE POEM

Womens' Music Club Competition Closes on Saturday.

Only two days remain for those who intend entering the Women's Music Club competition, which calls for a poem on Canada.

The Music Club is endeavoring to commemorate the local celebration of the Jubilee of Confederation in poetry and song. Two prizes of $5 and $3 are offered to children over 12 years of age, attending the Collegiate, Public or Separate Schools of the city. The poem must be original and must consist of six stanzas of four lines each.

In addition to the monetary prize, the poem taking first prize will be set to music, if suitable, by Miss Agnes Logan and will be sung on some public occasion by a well-known vocalist. The prize-winning poems will also be published in The Examiner.

This is a splendid opportunity for young people with poetic ability to try out their talents in a practical way.

The poems must be sent to Mrs. Porter, 521 Gilmour Street before Saturday night, and a note must accompany each poem, from parent or guardian, signifying it to be the pupil's own work.

NO FLARES STOLEN.

Says Assistant Chief of Forestry Service With Regard To Roberval.

QUEBEC, June 16 (Canadian Press).—Avila Bedard, assistant chief of the Provincial Forestry Service, stated to-day that no reports of thefts of flares from Roberval Air Station have reached him. Even if the theft of flares which has been reported were true, he said, no person would go from one to two hundred miles in the woods to fire them.

Roberval Air Station is about 35 miles from River Bend, from which emanated the erroneous report yesterday that Nungesser and Coli, missing French aviators, were found alive.

WARSAW TRIAL IS CRITICIZED

Assassinator Sentenced To Indeterminate Period Imprisonment—May Be 15 Years.

NO HOSTILITIES.

MOSCOW, June 16 (United Press).—Tremendous indignation was evident here to-day as the result of Boris Kowceda's trial in Warsaw for the assassination of Pierre Voiloff, Soviet Russian Minister to Poland.

The senterice passed, indeterminate imprisonment with a recommendation that the term be fixed at fifteen years' hard labor, was in no way satisfactory. Discontent also was evident regarding the type of court appointed to hear the case and because the court had chosen to regard the assassination as an isolated incident rather than as a part of the "monarchist conspiracy against Russia." The latter view is that taken by Moscow.

The authorities did not see in the situation to-day any danger of war between Russia and Poland. Soviet Russia does not desire war despite the stiff tone of its communications to Poland relative to the assassination.

Moscow was noticeably calmer to-day as the recent wave of arrests introduced by the execution of 20 spies was greatly diminished, if not ended

Factories, however, were being carefully guarded against incendiarism or white terror manifestations. No hostility was evident against foreigners of any nationality here.

Admits Killing.

WARSAW, Poland, June 16 (Canadian Press).—Boris Kowceda, who has been sentenced for the assassination of Peter Voikoff, Russian Minister at Warsaw, admitted to the special tribunal yesterday that he killed the Soviet Envoy, but said he was not guilty of murder. He described the Act as one of revenge for what the Bolshevists had done in Russia. M. Rosengols, formerly Soviet Envoy to Britain, who was a witness of the shooting, said Kowceda exclaimed, "Russia, poor Russia," when he shot Voikoff.

Kowceda said that what he had seen as a boy in Samara had filled him with hatred against the Soviet. Hearing that the Soviet was becoming worse than ever, he had decided to go to Russia, but the Soviet Government refused him a passport. It was then he made up his mind to kill Voikoff.

CHINESE LEADER RESIGNS.

PEKING, June 16 (Canadian Press)—Announcement is made to-day of the resignation of Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo as Foreign Minister and Acting Premier of the Peking Government.

Lindbergh Evidently Gets What He Wants; Flies To Washington At 3 A.M. For Plane

NEW YORK, June 16 (Canadian Press). — Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh sprang another surprise early today when he suddenly decided that he should like to have his own plane, "The Spirit of St. Louis," which he had left behind in Washington on Monday. At 3.05 a.m. he hopped off in a borrowed plane from Mitchell Field, and at 7.57 a.m. was back at Mitchell Field with the other half of his famous "We."

The trans-Atlantic flier was attending a midnight benefit performance at a local theatre in aid of the families of the missing French airmen, Nungesser and Coli. Suddenly at 2 o'clock "Lindy" left the theatre unknown to most of the six thousand in attendance

The Colonel was dressed in full evening clothes, but over this put on a flying suit borrowed at the field, besides helmet and goggles. He arrived at Bolling Field, Washington, at 4.44 a.m. and started back for New York at 5.09 a.m., arriving 2 hours and 48 minutes later.

MUSICAL RECITAL

(By Jeanette.)

There was a large and appreciative audience at the Conservatory of Music last evening, for an exceptionally interesting recital given by Miss Viola White of Bailieboro, Miss Elizabeth Webber and Walter Townsend, pupils of Mr. R. Gliddon, assisted by Arnold Spencer, violinist, pupil of Miss Edwina Palmer, and members of the Peterborough Symphony Orchestra.

The outstanding feature of the programme which was very artistic was the piano concerto one of Mendelssohn's compositions played by Walter Townsend, with Miss Olga Fowler at the second piano and an orchestral accompaniment This was an unusual offering, as a piano concerto with orchestral background, is a novelty in Peterborough and was splendidly handled. Walter Townsend is one of the promising young musicians of the city whose work for years has been watched with interest. His playing of the difficult concerto last night demonstrated just how much energy he had put into its preparation. It was a feat of musicianship for such a youthful performer and was accorded renewed applause at the conclusion.

The orchestra played an opening overture in "Tales of Bagdad," and closed the programme with the rendition of the popular "Banditenstreiche," or "Jolly Robbers" number, giving both numbers with the zestful vim and happy tone which characterizes the playing of this organization, under Mr. R. Gliddon's leadership. The arrangement of the stage, with quantities of massed white and mauve lilacs, added to the attraction of the setting for the fine musical entertainment.

One of the most pleasing portions of the evening's programme was the playiyng of Miss Viola White, Bailieboro. Rendering her charming music from memory throughout, this young musician imparts a delicate atmosphere to her playing that makes it wonderfully absorbing, the "holding" quality being apparent in both numbers rendered, an "Elegie" by Nollet, and a "Valse in E Major," by Moszkowski. Interpretive ability combined with a smooth, melodic tone, are especially emphasized in the work of Miss White.

Miss Elizabeth Webber played one of Chopin's "Nocturnes," and an "Arabesque," by Schumann, with a thorough musicianship and compact, incisive touch that was very pleasing.

The violin music played by Arnold Spencer, with accompaniments by Miss Gwen Donley, was loudly encored The fine singing tone and facile, sure technique of the young violinist, made his renditions interesting in the extreme He played with muted strings, Elgar's "Salut d'Amour," and an encore in a lovely variation of "The Last Rose of Summer

The big rendition of the evening was the concerto, and it is hard to describe the reaction of the audience to such a massive attempt, so adequately handled by the youthful performer, Walter Townsend This young man appears to possess almost every attribute of an outstanding musician except the power and virility which will come with years He has a confident yet unassuming manner, a thorough technical grasp and a wonderful interesting type of fingering that makes his music outstanding With a smooth, unhurried execution, a compact, rounded tone, and a brilliant velvet touch, he plays in the legato manner, his music flowing along in unceasing rhythmic tempo There is an odd liquid cloudiness to it at times that seems to create an overtone to the actual music being played He was able at all moments to interpret adequately the varying movements of this attractive concerto in Mendelssohns flowing, graceful manner, from the bright Allegro opening, on through the milder Andante into the flying tempo and brisk mood of the closing Presto His playing of this number was a fine demonstration of co-ordination between mental grasp and physical interpretation of lovely music The piano playing of Miss Fowler and the beautiful orchestral accompaniment, afforded a wonderful background for the concerto, the combination holding the absorbed attention of the audience throughout its lengthy rendition

An Ex-Buck Private Goes Back to France

Dear Mac:

You will recall that in my last letter I left you in the little estaminet at the corner of the rue St. Pierre. Well, just about here we pass over the invisible old front line, skirt Thiepval Wood, and find that St. Pierre Divion, tiny and obscure, is again raising its little self in the familiar red brick.

Gone is the old timber and plaster farm building which was once the orthodox structure of this area. To that extent, the farmers are better off than before the war, and though it can hardly be said that the latest architectural notions of rural housing have been embodied in these new villages, they are a substantial improvement on their predecessors.

Journeying along this valley, one is struck by the fact that while the treacherous marshes have reverted to a state of peaceful pasture, the trees and bushes are very slow in recovering. On the higher ground, elsewhere on the battlefields, the woods, once blasted out of recognition, are rapidly regaining their normal appearance and dimensions. Here, in the Ancre Valley, the trees and bushes return but reluctantly. Perhaps it is that the shells went more deeply into this marshy ground and disturbed more profoundly the tangled root-growth. Perhaps, too, the gas shells, landing in water and mire, spread their evil poisons to greater effect than they could among the vegetation on the high ground. The Ancre, placid and crystal clear, gives no answer to the question.

Crossing the stream at Bridge Road, one finds a level crossing and a station. Beaucourt Hamel, they call the station, though there is no village of that name. But it is rightly named, for it serves the villages of Beaucourt, Beaumont Hamel and Hamel. Along this line go tearing the expresses which link Lille and Paris. When, a little while ago, Death halted one of these trains, Beaucourt Hamel was, appropriately, his ambush.

In the village of Hamel is to be seen one of the few original Crucifix Corners. The shell-racked cross still stands, but the figure rests propped against its base, sadly broken, while the surrounding trees seem intent upon screening from sight this eloquent symbol of war's devastation.

A little west of the railway, rises a strange building which was not here before the war or during it. Built of logs on a slight eminence, it comes as a great relief from the monotony of new red brick. This is the lodge of Newfoundland Park, and it is a replica of the log cabin of the early settlers of Britain's oldest colony. Here one comes back to the war again, for the Newfoundland Government has chosen as a memorial to its men, to preserve, intact, the trenches about Y Ravine.

HUTS LIKE THIS WERE FAMILIAR SIGHTS TO CANADIANS ON THE SOMME. THEIR COFFEE AND SMOKES WERE MORE APPRECIATED BECAUSE OF THE DISCOMFORTS OF MUD AND RAIN.

The log cabin is the warden's home, and a repository of numerous interesting relics. Billy Brown, the warden, is a giant of a man, a former warrant officer of the Newfoundland contingent.

The warden is proud of his charge, for here are some of the finest specimens of trenches ever dug on the Western front. In places, the British trenches interlock with the German, and here the visitor with no first-hand experience of trench warfare can acquire a fair idea of what the war on the Western front was like.

Between the trenches, the ground is left just as it was in 1918, so far as Nature will permit. But Nature prefers to heal wounds. Long grass waves above the shell holes, new shrubs are springing up, and Nature's hand would gently but firmly cover in the trenches were it not for the continuous efforts of the warden. Entering the trenches, one hears again a sound which more effectually than anything, brings the war back to one's mind. It is the sound of one's feet upon duckboards. Instinctively one expects to hear the whistle of shells, or to have one's name called by a familiar voice from a cubby hole. But the only sound is the rustling of the long grass on the parapet and the voice of a battlefield guide explaining to a group of women visitors: "This is a dugout."

Interesting relics of battle, found hereabouts, have been brought either into the trenches or laid upon the parapet. There is something to catch the eye at almost every step. One relic, however, rests just where it landed, close to the parapet—the skeleton of an aeroplane whose crumpled wings still carry pathetic shreds of fabric. Finger posts at the junctions of communication trenches point the way to Y Ravine where, at long last, peace reigns, and the birds twitter. Close by, a beautiful pink rambler rose throws its embracing arms about the low white wall of a British cemetery. Here rest a gallant company mostly described as "Known to God." Among those identified, one finds frequently inscribed the names of such famous regiments as the Gordons, the Black Watch, the South Wales Borderers and the Inniskillens.

Another cemetery near by is known as Hunter's Post. Nearly all the men buried here were killed on November, 1916, when English troops of the Second Division and Highlanders of the Fifty-first wrenched Beaumont Hamel from the enemy, and held it.

Within the park are three memorials. One is to the Newfoundland contingent, and represents a carribou standing on a high cairn, raising its head and noble antlers proudly over the ground on which so many Newfoundlanders lost their lives.

Not less impressive is the great bronze highlander, mounted on Aberdeen granite, who commemorates the deeds and sacrifices of the gallant Fifty-first. Hard by, a smaller memorial bears the name of one of Britain's most famous "spearhead" divisions, the Twenty-ninth. The associations of the Twenty-ninth with Beaumont Hamel are not very close, but the Fifty-first and the Twenty-ninth were so often united in heroic enterprises that it was thought well to commemorate them in a comradely fashion, side by side, in Newfoundland Park.

"A never-to-be-forgotten day" is the observation which Earl Haig wrote in the visitors' book at Newfoundland Park when he visited it in June, 1925, and his sentiment will be re-echoed by any ex-soldier who has the privilege of visiting this unique memorial.

The attractions of Newfoundland Park trespass recklessly upon the time of the battlefield visitor, but sentiment forbids one to return without at least a passing look at Grandcourt and Miraumont. Although it is good to see these places restored, a sense of disappointment is but natural on finding in them little or nothing reminiscent of the bad old times. The Grandcourt that was has departed, together with the old Bailescourt Farm. The customary red-brick village, a trifle larger and differently shaped, meets the eye, while at Miraumont, whose black and straggling ruins were once the headquarters of fifty different forms of Teutonic devilry, now boasts the largest new building in this area, a big dairy which, nearly completed, is to be conducted on co-operative lines.

In my next letter, Mac, I'll get on to what must be to every man who served with us in those days, familiar ground. Thiepval! Who doesn't know it? And in a picture that I took today I'll show you that the war isn't really so very far in the past after all.

PAUL ADAMS.

There are many possibilities for contamination from the cow to the consumer. Therefore, the activities of our inspectors in connection with the dairy farms begin with the cows. A careful examination is made of the animals, and all those suffering from any disease are excluded from the herd. We do not require the tuberculin test, inasmuch as the exclusion of all cattle reacting to the tuberculin test from our dairy herds would result in a milk famine, and while the procedure of testing the herds and segregating those that react is essential in the interest of animal industry, it is not essential so far as the safeguarding of the milk is concerned. Our inspectors having satisfied themselves of the healthful condition of the animals, then investigate the environment, the stable, as regards ventilation, proper light and air conditions, degrees of cleanliness surrounding the animals at all times; the careful clipping of the hair from the flanks and udders of the cattle, so that they will not constitute a harbor for impurities picked up when the animal is lying down.

Extreme care must be exercised in regard to milking methods. The milkers are required to wash their hands carefully before milking, wiping off the udders and flanks of the cows with a clean damp cloth, milking into a partially covered pail or one in which the opening is just sufficiently large for them to milk into, the object of this being to safeguard the milk as far as possible from surrounding contamination.

The milk is then required to be immediately transferred from the stable to the milk house, which is specially provided and which must be separate from the stable. Here the milk is strained and promptly cooled, and as far as possible held at a low temperature until delivered to the dairy in the city.

Milking utensils must all be carefully cleansed and sterilized as determined by the regulations of the department.

PRESBYTERIANS LOOK FOR GAIN

Grafton and Baltimore Church Members Discuss Ways and Means.

BALTIMORE, June 16.—A very important meeting was held here last night, when representatives of the Presbyterian cause at Grafton met with local Presbyterians to deal with matters affecting both charges.

For some time the Presbyterians at Grafton have been holding services in the Anglican Church, and at Baltimore Sunday School has been regularly carried on at Mason's School in the Scotch Settlement.

The work at these two points is being well looked after by L. H. Burgess, B.A., a graduate of Toronto University, and a student of Knox College. Mr. Burgess is an Ontario boy and took his high school work at Port Hope.

Large representations from both points were present, and the meeting was presided over by the Rev. James Grier, B.A., of Campbellford. The matter of finance was discussed, and it was decided to make a canvass of the Presbyterians at both charges after Mr. Burgess has completed his visits.

There will be regular services every Sunday at both Grafton and Baltimore, and the prospects of regaining much of the ground lost at the time of Union were never better.

"BEECHCROFT" PRIVATE GROUNDS, PORT PERRY

Owing to the ever increasing number of people visiting the gardens at "Beechcroft" Mr. Kent has deemed it necessary to close the grounds on Sundays to the general public. The grounds will be open as usual during the week, on or after, June 20th.

Mr. and Mrs. Kent will appreciate very much if people will refrain from phoning or enquiring at house for permission to enter on Sunday's.

FISH WAS A GOOD SPORT

PRATT, Kan., June 16.—"I'm going to catch a fish," declared a woman visitor at Elm Mills Lake. Friends, scoffing, took her for a boat ride around the lake, waited patiently while she cast, and cast and cast. Finally, discouraged, she hauled in her line, said she was content to give up. Then a three-pound bass leaped from the water, lit on the edge of the boat, and flopped into her lap.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

When Faith and Bob walked up the path again to the little house in Myrtle Street, the triumphant notes of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played on the piano, which Cherry had bought on the installment plan, came tumbling out to greet them.—"Here comes the bride—"

"Oh, I can't face them, Bob!" Faith moaned, her cold fingers tightening on Bob's arm. "They'll tease us and slap you on the back and give us advice—"

"Rotten luck, but we've got to go through with it. All newlyweds do," Bob grinned down at her, but his eyes were full of tender understanding. "They'd be hurt if we ducked out without letting them congratulate us."

When they entered the living room, Cherry jumped up from the piano bench and came running, with her round, lovely little arms spread wide.

"Look at the darlings!" she cried, in her high, musical voice. "Blushing like naughty children caught in mischief. Did you promise to obey this big lummox, Faith? I'll bet you did! You're just the type!"

It was odd, Faith thought helplessly, as she passed from one member of the family to another, how Cherry could blight her joy, dim her radiance, with half a dozen careless words. It was Fay—the girl who had been known as "that wild Fay Allen" and who was now Junior's wife, to whom she felt most akin in those first dreadful minutes of meeting the family as a newly married woman.

"Oh, I know you'll be happy," Fay whispered, her arm about Faith, her hazel eyes brimming with sudden tears. "You're so good and sweet and Bob is such a splendid man. Don't—don't be afraid," her voice dropped even lower and her face blushed, "it isn't terrifying at all, when you're in love."

"That's right! Embarrass the poor children to death with your takings-on," Aunt Hattie scolded them all. "There's a raft of sandwiches and some hot chocolate and tea in the dining-room. Come and get it! Faith'll look less like a glorified saint and more like a human being if she gets something hot in her stomach. Ain't et a bite all day, I'll bet. Come and give your Aunt Hattie a kiss, Bob Hathaway, if you don't think her old mouth's too puckered up!" she invited suddenly.

While she was trying to eat, to please Aunt Hattie, Faith saw "Long" Lane, her recently married brother, draw Bob aside. They stood by the dining room window, talking earnestly in low tones, "Long" obviously the initiate instructing the novice. In Junior's manner was something of the protecting brother, too, as if he were making his sister's new husband understand that she had men folks to look after her.

"Faith, listen! Aunt Hattie's got a wedding cake hid in the kitchen," Joy shrilled. "You got to cut it, Faith! It's white with pink icing letters. Listen, Faith!" she tugged at her sister's sleeve for attention. "Can I sleep with a piece of it under my pillow, Faith? Do you think any boy'll want to marry me when I'm grown up?"

"Of course!" Faith laughed, kneeling and holding the child close against her heart. Again it came to her that Joy's lot was a hard one. She was so much younger than the others, so plain, so intense, so hungry for love and attenunpazljsrtr jthe MWMdzls, so plain, intense, so hungr—Efig h.oMW; and a tion, and none of them ever seemed to have time for her.

"Let me go with you tonight, Faith, to the new house," Joy whimpered, clinging to her sister. "Aunt Hattie scolds me and Cherry picks on me all the time."

"Just three days, honey!" Faith pleaded. "You'll come to the new house on Wednesday. Bob wants me all to himself for a little while. He's my husband now and I've got to obey him," she laughed shakily.

Now that she had uttered the words, had given him his title, had acknowledged the strange new relationship aloud, peace came to rout her fears. She stood up and her eyes, luminous with love, signalled to Bob, her husband, that she was ready to go with him.

They were married on Sunday in the parsonage of the little church on Myrtle Street, the church to which Martha Lane had sent starched, shining-faced little girls and a leggy little boy; the church where Faith had taught a Sunday School class until her mother's health had become so uncertain that her services were required at home; the church where Jim Lane still paid pew rent and tithes, although he seldom attended services.

Oddly enough, Faith wanted none of her family with her when she and Bob exchanged their vows. Possibly it was because she wanted him utterly to herself then, did not want to share that sacred moment even with the family.

Bob did not have his Sunday dinner with the Lane family that day. He was at the new house, arranging the stock of groceries that he had bought, fixing the ice box drain, testing the cocks on the new gas stove, putting a few electric light fixtures in the dining room to replace those the decorators had broken. He and Faith were to go to the new house after they were married, or rather, as soon afterwards as they could manage, for there would have to be a short session at least with the family. Their only honeymoon would be three days alone in the new home—alone with him, three precious days stolen from the family, Faith whispered to herself, as she stood before her old-fashioned dresser, getting ready for her wedding.

"Can I help you, darling?" Cherry came languidly into the room, her peacock-blue chiffon negligee fluttering about her tiny body.

Cherry's trunks, which had been sent with Ralph Cluny's to New York, before his murder on the day that was to have been their wedding day, had been returned to her, released by the district attorney. The magnificent trousseau which Ralph Cluny had bought her was being worn by the wife of another man, a man with whom she had lived but one disastrous night.

"I wish you could have worn my trousseau, honey!" Cherry commented for the dozenth time. "But of course every single garment is miles too small for you."

"I won't need much of a trousseau, really," Faith answered cheerfully. "I never wanted a big church wedding, with all the expense and bother. Will you hand me my dress out of the closet, dear? It is a pretty dress, isn't it, even if I did make it myself?" she asked wistfully.

"It's lovely and it suits you," Cherry told her, throwing her arms about her sister, regardless of the danger of crushing the wedding dress.

"You'll mash all the pleats out of it," Faith laughed, but she held her sister close as she kissed her on eyes and cheeks and bright, curly hair.

Cherry stood back, tears in her eyes, and watched Faith slip her wedding dress over her carefully arranged dark hair. It was smart in its simplicity, an afternoon frock of golden-brown satin-faced crepe, with long, snugly fitting sleeves, a long, bloused bodice, a knife-pleated skirt that fell three inches below her knees.

"Bob's here, Faith!" Joy shrilled, banging on the door. "He's got a bouquet of flowers for you and he's got on a new suit and a flower in his button-hole!"

"I'll be there in a minute," Faith answered. Then, "Cherry, would you mind leaving me alone for just this last minute? I—I—oh, I want to pray!" she burst into tears, turning sharply away from her sister.

MY FAVOURITE RECIPE.

Now that salads are the order of the day, really good recipes for salad dressings will be welcomed. A salad is often made or marred by the piquancy of the dressing used, so that tested recipes are very desirable. Since some prefer an uncooked dressings and other a cooked dressing, we give two recipes, both of which we know will please:

SALAD DRESSING (Uncooked)

2 eggs beaten until light; ½ teaspoon salt; ½ teaspoon mustard; ½ can Eagle Brand Condensed Milk; ½ cup vinegar. Beat the first four ingredients vigorously for a few minutes, add the vinegar, stir well and set aside for a few hours to thicken. Excellent for fruit or vegetable salad. Will keep for weeks. For Russian dressing add Chili sauce to taste.

SALAD DRESSING (Cooked)

½ tablespoon salt; 1 teaspoon mustard; 1 tablespoon flour; 1 tablespoon butter; ¼ cup Eagle Brand Condensed Milk; ½ cup water; ¼ cup vinegar; 1 egg. Mix dry ingredients, add slightly beaten egg, butter, milk, water and vinegar. Cook until thickened. Strain and cool. Whipped Borden's St. Charles Evaporated Milk, or cream, may be added before serving if desired. Yield, 1 cupful.

HE COULDN'T DIE.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., June 16.—Irvin Paul, 41, wanted to die. Dynamite, he decided, was the surest way, so he placed a stick under his head, another under his feet, and lit the fuse. The stick at his feet failed to explode. The other succeeded only in breaking his left arm, cutting his face and body. He will live.

DRESS

The sketch shows some of the cooler sorts of summer shoes. There is one of laced straw bound with kid, one of painted duck bound with colored kid, one of white kid with many cut-out portions for coolness, one of embroidered linen, kid bound, with cross-stitch roses for trimming, one of silk braid and kid, one of orchid suede, with a tongue section that meets the ankle strap, and one of two-toned kid, much cut out, with ankle and instep straps.

Cold feet, literally as well as figuratively, are undesirable at any time of the year, but during the warm and hot weeks of the year it adds much to one's peace of mind and bodily comfort to possess feet as cool as light-weight, airy shoes can produce. Low heels are undoubtedly more comfortable in warm weather than high heels, but low heels are out of the question for the woman who wants to conform to the fashionable silhouette, and never really smart save for actual sports wear.

High-heeled shoes hold the feet in a way that tends to press the toes forward into the toe of the shoe—and this pressure undoubtedly is more acutely felt in warm weather than in cold. The discomfort, however, can be minimized if the vamp of the shoe is fairly short, if the toe is not too narrow or pointed and if the shoe itself is very light. It is especially important to have warm-weather shoes well fitted—they should be close enough about the heel and arch to prevent the foot from sliding forward. A little extra width at the ball or toe of the shoe is desirable. Some women, in fact, always take a wider shoe for wear at Southern resorts and during the summer time than they usually find necessary. But in getting that extra toe comfort, don't make the mistake of getting a shoe that permits the heel of the foot to rub up and down with every step.

The sandal type of shoe—that resembles the Oriental and Grecian sandal not in its scantiness but in being cut out down to the soles at the sides of the arch—is considered entirely appropriate for daytime wear in summer. Many well-dressed women have chosen shoes of this type—high heeled, of course—in beige kid for practical midsummer wear. White kid sandals of the same sort are a wise choice but are more appropriate for resort wear than for the city.

There are ties, pumps and sandals suitable for resort wear made of linen, of silk, of straw and raffia—and kid shoes with cut-out designs on the vamps that serve the double purpose of ornamenting the shoe and providing ventilation.

The important thing to remember is that nowadays there is as marked a difference between summer shoes and winter shoes as between summer hats and winter hats, summer wraps and winter wraps.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

FOR FRIDAY, JUNE 17, 1927

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

Although there is a sinister aspect early in the morning this should be a fortunate day, according to astrology. Benefic aspects are strong as the day advances.

There is a sign read as most promising to persons of strictly practical characters. New fortunes are to be won quickly, the seers foretell.

Writers and other artistic folk may find the sway rather thwarting and depressing, for it is not stimulating to creative thought, if the stars are wisely interpreted.

Banks and bankers again are subject to planetary forces that promise constantly widening power in the world in which they are to be a stabilizing medium.

This should be a lucky day to deal with creditors and to arrange one's financial affairs.

The seers foresee widespread changes in commercial methods, which will eliminate purchasing on time and other methods deemed contrary to true thrift.

Now that the new era is well under way there will be closer relationship between survivors of the old order of things and those who are carrying on, astrologers forecast.

Men of forty or less are to attain fame and success in great numbers as the year advances, astrologers predict.

One of the prophesies is that few who have long enjoyed fame will gain success in the coming months.

The stars encourage secret planning and mysterious methods of promoting big projects that affect the welfare of the nation, astrologers warn.

Intrigue and double-dealing are supposed to be inspired by certain malefic planetary aspects at this time.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have a year of unusual freedom from domestic responsibility.

Children born on this day probably will be clever and amusing but inclined to be careless, especially where dress is concerned.

Sheer Frocks and Women's Hygiene

New way safer—discards like tissue

By ELLEN J. BUCKLAND
Registered Nurse

THAT filmy gowns and women's oldest hygienic problem now go safely together is a fact millions of women are learning.

Old-time sanitary "pads" with their worries and dangers are giving way to the utter protection of a new way called Kotex.

✓ Kotex discards as easily as tissue. Thus no laundry, no embarrassment of disposal.

Five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton "pads," one may now dance, motor, go about for hours with never a doubt. Also deodorizes; thus ending all fear of offense.

Obtain at any store without embarrassment simply by saying "Kotex." Box contains 12. Be sure you get the genuine. Only Kotex itself is "like" Kotex.

KOTEX

No laundry—discard like tissue

The Order of the Golden Fleece is the name of a society formed by sixteen girl students of a Missouri college, each of whom has hair of the color used to flag trains.

A woman appeared before a London magistrate the other day to complain against a neighboring tenant, whom she accused of using her wireless aerial for a clothes line.

The increased use of cosmetics by American women is illustrated by the fact that some retail stores now carry in stock as many as 75 different brands of face powder.

A young woman in Chicago has devoted ten years to gathering photographs of motion-picture actors and actresses and claims to have the largest collection of the kind in the world.

Einstein's Relativity.

There are, I find, three subjects intriguing the inquiring mind these days: evolution, relativity and wonderment at the crazy fanaticism of the southern and southwestern States of America where they will shoot if you do not believe as they do. This spirit was spreading to Ontario but received a check. Nevertheless, the Rev. T. Albert Moore, D.D., brought up the other day a resolution boldly advising the British Government as to China alleging that people expected a lead from their leaders. We are in what our friend John Bunyan would call the slough of childishness and Despond where his well-known character "Christian" floundered for so long. It is a relief to turn from ignorance of this sort to the work of a pure intellect like Einstein's. Such men as he do really believe in science and therefore act accordingly. Nor do they pretend that they know more than science, which, after all, is God, as some people do who would even make Christ Himself toe their mark if they could. Einstein delivered two addresses, launching his celebrated "Theory of General Relativity," one at the University of Leyden, the other at the University of Berlin, and these have now been published. His "theory" turns upon the "ether" that strange gas (so to speak) which is supposed to fill all space as if there was nothing else in space. Of this Einstein himself says: "It appeared beyond question that light must be interpreted as a vibratory process in an elastic, inert medium filling up universal space." In other words, as light was propagated by waves, there had to be something that would carry the waves and they called this "supposed" substance "ether," but about it they do not pretend to really know anything whatever. It is a pleasure, too, to see Einstein's respect for his opponents and co-workers in the same field, whom he does not greet with a deluge of mud and bad temper.

The difficulty these mathematicians are contending with is apparently the reconciling of conflicting properties or qualities of matter without which reconciliation many of the theories which now do such excellent work will ultimately have to be given up. "It may be added," says Einstein, "that the whole change in the conception of the ether which the special theory of relativity brought about consisted in taking away from the ether its last mechanical quality, namely, immobility." (Light-waves, being transverse, can not be propagated through a fluid, hence, the assumption that ether is not fluid.)

Now then, we enter upon the thresh old of Einstein's chief aim, viz., to divorce pure mathematics wholly from physical mathematics which latter deals "practically" with material things. Pure mathematics, Einstein says, are in no way dependent upon anything else for support. "At this point," he says "an enigma presents itself which in all ages has agitated inquiring minds. How can it be that pure mathematics, being after all a product of human thought, which is independent of experience, is so admirably appropriate reason then without experience, merely to the objects of reality? Is human by taking thought, able to fathom the properties of real things?" (Let me at this point draw the reader's attention to how this statement of Einstein's fits in with the idea that the human "soul" is the power given to man of making abstractions or generalizations in no way dependent upon material things, and being that faculty in spiritual sense in man which connects him with the non-material world, and —God.)

Einstein then says: "As far as the laws of (pure) mathematics refer to reality there are not certain, and as far as they are certain they do not refer to reality." This, of course, means that when, as in geometry, we speak of "rigid" bodies we ignore the fact that there are no "rigid" bodies because change of temperature and other ever-present tendencies to change make it untrue to say that any body is "fixed" or rigid in any way long enough to be so described. Yet though this is a logically true and unassailable we find that experience justifies (as in the case of eclipses, for example) the "fixed and certain" calculations made concerning "unfixed" (moving and changing) bodies. He now takes up again axiomatics (mathematics not requiring proof and verification). He gives this instance: "Through two points in space there always passes one and only one straight line." This he regards as an axiom or self-evident truth, incapable of proof and yet true. "Being based upon this knowledge (of what is true)," he says, "which precedes all mathematics the axiom stated above is, like all other axioms, self-evident, that is, it is the expression of a part of this a priori knowledge." (A priori knowledge is based upon principles not deduced from experience, but arising from that extraordinary power of the mind to lay down laws and principles made up out of its own head, so to speak, and not derived in any way from experience or any other material source.) This assertion by Einstein of the scientific validity of a priori knowledge is most surprising. Heretofore (so far as I know), a priori knowledge was put down by scientific men as a sort of faith or guesswork, something that was asserted as true without our being able to prove it or show that it tallied with facts. Let us now see how his "theory of general relativity" (not "special relativity") applies. Hitherto, calculations of all kinds have been made wholly with reference to rigid or fixed bodies, that is as if, at the moment of calculating, the universe stood still in every part while one took its photograph. But this fixity was not true. All statements made about bodies and their relations, therefore, could only be "relative" and not absolute or fixed but only a sort of estimate or approximation. He gives numerous cases of "special relativity" before he launches out into the great generalization of "general relativity." He says (contrasting with the old theory of rigidity): "Thus we may also say I think that the ether of the general theory of relativity is the outcome of xxxx relativation."

The difference between matter and ether, the two fundamentally different things in the universe, are to be reconciled by bringing all things into "relation" with each a state which does not exist scientifically at present, and it would appear that by establishing relationships amongst all things. "The contrast between ether and matter would fade away, and through the general theory of relativity the whole of physics (the universe and all in it) would become a complete system."

In conclusion, therefore, we may say that Professor Einstein has enunciated two principles of the highest scientific and general interest. One is his mathematical, a priori knowledge of the mind derived from no connection in any way with the material universe or its content. The other is the fact that while hitherto no relationship has been scientifically established amongst all parts of the universe as, for example, between ether and matter generally, Einstein has shown that such a relationship really does exist. The electro-magnetic field and matter generally are, or were, supposed to be unrelated, but now it is assumed that the ultimate particles of matter are themselves electricity. All matter or substance is one. It remained, therefore, one might say, only to show that the hypothetical ethe only to show that the hypothetical and matter are also related or of one and the same material. This Einstein has done by the most obtruse mathematical reasoning. The results of that reasoning and the main underlying principles of it are, however, easily understandable. Einstein is an advance on Sir Isaac Newton to the extent that the latter established the push and pull relationship through gravitation of all parts of nature, exclusive of the ether. Einstein brought all including ether into universal "relativity" or harmony. Space, however, yet remains an unsolved problem. That is, "infinite space" does but the expression "curved space," used by Einstein, is the unbounded, yet limited, space of the surface of a sphere. The Einstein theories have just been attacked fiercely by American mathematicians who call them metaphysic, not mathematics.

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story.

By Howard R. Garis

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY'S BIRTHDAY PARTY

Once upon a time Boppy, the little round wooden man who lived in the bungleump with the Wogglejigs, saw Uncle Wiggily turning his pockets inside out and looking around the ground near a stump on which the rabbit gentleman was sitting.

"What's the matter, Uncle Wiggily?" asked Boppy.

"I have lost an invitation," answered Mr. Longears.

"What kind of an invitation was it?" asked Boppy.

"I have lost an invitation," answered Mr. Longears.

"What kind of an invitation was it?" asked Boppy.

"It was some sort of an invitation to a birthday party," went on Uncle Wiggily. "But I didn't have a chance to read whose party it was. The Robin bird postman just handed me the invitation letter and few away. I was reading it, and I got far enough along to know that it was a party invitation but I didn't read whose it was, nor where it was to be given when, all of a sudden, the wind puffed along and blew the letter out of my paw. I've been looking for it ever since."

"I'll help you look," offered Boppy. "But why have you turned your pockets inside out?"

"I thought perhaps the wind might have blown the party invitation into one of my pockets," said the rabbit. "But I guess it didn't. Oh, dear, now I shall never know to whose party I was to go."

"I'll find out for you," offered Boppy.

"How?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"I'll roll myself to your bungalow," went on the little wooden man. "Your wife and Nurse Jane and your forty-leven little bunnies surely would be asked to the same party to which you were sent an invitation. Their invitations weren't blown away. I'll find out from your wife whose party you are expected to attend."

"That is kind of you," said Mr. Longears. "Ha! Ha!" he chuckled. "It's queer to be invited to a party, a birthday party at that, and not know whose it is! Ho! Ho!

"I'll soon find out for you," laughed Boppy, and away he rolled to Uncle Wiggily's bungalow. For the rabbit gentleman was away from it for a time, visiting Boppy, Um and the Wogglejigs in the bungleump.

"I'll wait here until you come back," said Uncle Wiggily, sitting on the stump. "I may have an adventure here."

When Boppy reached the bunny's bungalow, he saw Mrs. Longears, Nurse Jane, Fuzzy Wuzzy and all the forty-leven little bunny boys and girls all dressed in their best.

"You are getting ready for the party, I see," remarked Boppy.

"Yes," answered the lady rabbit. "But where is Uncle Wiggily? We can't have the party without him, and I sent him a special invitation."

"He received it, but the wind blew it away before he had time to read whose party it was to be or where it was to be given," explained Boppy. "So I came to find out for him. Whose party is it?"

"It's Daddicums's birthday party!" cried Scooter, one of the bunnies.

"It is?" shouted Boppy.

"Of course!" squeaked Nurse Jane. "This is Uncle Wiggily's birthday and we are getting up a party for him. Naturally we want him at his own party, so we sent him an invitation."

"Of course!" agreed Boppy, rolling over and over in joy. "Ha! Ha! That's the funniest thing I ever heard of! Uncle Wiggily gets an invitation to his own birthday party and the wind blows it away before he has a chance to read it and he doesn't even remember his own party. Ha! Ha!"

Nurse Jane and all the others laughed and then Boppy rolled away to tell Uncle Wiggily whose party it was. As the little wooden man drew near to the stump where the bunny gentleman was sitting and waiting, Boppy saw the Bob Cat and the Fox sneaking up the hill.

"Where are you bad chaps going?" asked Boppy bravely.

"We are going to nibble Uncle Wiggily's ears," snarled the Fox.

"There he sits on that stump, with his back toward us," went on the Bob Cat. "We'll spring on him before he knows it."

"Oh, no; you will not!" suddenly cried Boppy. "This is Uncle Wiggily's birthday and he is going to a party! He isn't going to be nibbled by you!" With that the little wooden man bounced up into the air. And when he came down he knocked up such a cloud of dust that it blinded the Fox and Bob Cat. And, getting up their noses, the dust made the bad chaps sneeze. Under cover of the dust, Boppy rolled to where Uncle Wiggily sat on the stump and warned him of his enemies.

"Ha! We'll fool them! We'll run away!" said the rabbit. So he and Boppy hurried away while the Fox and Bob Cat were still sneezing and groping through the dust trying to find the bunny, which they couldn't do. "And to think—ha! ha! to think it was my birthday party!" laughed Uncle Wiggily when he was sitting in his bungalow with his family eating carrot shortcake. So he had a lovely birthday party, but the Fox and Bob Cat didn't.

AMATEUR CONTESTANT LEADS IN FIRST HALF OF GOLF PLAY

Jimmy Johnston Shows Dazzling Streak of Shot-making in Comeback.

WAS NEARLY OUT.

Leads Greatest Field of International Stars as Ever Sought Title.

OAKMONT, Pa., June 16. — Harrison R. (Jimmy) Johnston, a stocky, blond young amateur from Minneapolis, pulled himself back from the brim of disaster yesterday with a dazzling streak of shot making that put him out in front alone when the smoke had cleared from the first half of the American open golf championship battle.

All but counted out when he skidded four strokes over par and took 41 for the first time, Johnston displayed the fighting qualities he merits as a world war veteran and former boxer to stage a startling comeback. Deserted by the gallery that considered his chances fast fading, "Jimmy" rallied to blaze his way home in 33, two under par for a 74.

Tacked to the 73 that tied him for the first day's lead, it gave Johnston a two day 35-hole total of 147 to top against a field of internationally famous stars as ever sought the title. It was sufficient to keep him a stroke ahead of his nearest rival, sturdy Gene Sarazen, the champion of 1922 and increase to 6 strokes his lead over the defending champion and Atlanta amateur ace, Bobby Jones.

Right behind Sarazen, with 149 is Tom Armour in third place as a result of the best round of the tournament so far, a flashy 71, that broke the back of Oakmont's "old man par" for the first time in two days of embattled stroking.

Shows fine Form.

Tying Harry Cooper, the Los Angeles star and former Hamilton, Ont., caddy, for fourth place at 150 stood the dapper figure of Walter Hagen, 'on' his game yesterday for the first time as he registered a sparkling 73 on top of his mediocre 77 of the day before and threatening a finish characteristic of the sort that has carried him before to two American open titles and as many British championships.

In sixth place, Harry Hampton, the veteran Memphis pro., who shared the lead with Johnston Tuesday, registered 78 yesterday, after an opening round of 73 for a total of 151. It was a stroke better than the marks of Mehlhorn, who added a 77 to his 75 of Tuesday; Fred Baroni, western Pennsylvania open champion, who jumped from an opening day 80 to a sensational par 72 yesterday, and Leo Diegel, the former Canadian open champion who notched a 74 yesterday that improved considerably on his 78 of the day before.

Jones at 153, was bracketed with the apparently sole remaining British threat, Archie Compston, as well as "Long Jim" Barnes, the 1921 champion, and Eddie Loos of Glendale, Ills., all three of whom did much better than the day before.

Six Remain.

Only six of the invading British team remained in the field cut to 62 players as scores of only 163 or better were declared qualified for to-to-day's final 36 holes, but only Compston loomed as even an outside menace. This long hitting Briton flashed a 74 yesterday after his 79 of the day before, and was three strokes ahead of his nearest countryman, Arthur Havers, who had 156.

Ernest Penfold, former Winnipeg pro., and now playing for Minneapolis, kept well in the running yesterday with an 80 to add to a 79 of Tuesday for a total of 159, while MacDonald Smith, Canadian open champion, added 76 to total 154.

Frank Thompson, former Canadian amateur champion, was eliminated from play yesterday when he turned in a card of 82 and found his total 169, six over the requisite.

Ted Ray, veteran British team captain, faded from his 75 of Tuesday, to a sorrowful 84 yesterday afternoon for a total of 159. The other three British survivors, Geo. Gadd, H. C. Holly and Aubrey Boomer, all barely escaped elimination altogether as they each hung up 162. Charley Whitcombe and George Duncan, each with 164 put themselves out of the tournament.

METZLER MAN OF HOUR FOR WHITE SIX

BY BILLY EVANS

From Main Street in Wichita Falls, Tex., to State Street in Chicago is quite a leap as baseball goes, but Alex Metzler appears to have negotiated it successfully.

Which is just another way of saying that the Lone Star rookie from Wichita Falls has made good as a member of the Chicago White Sox of the American League.

Not only is Metzler one of the few recruits of this year to deliver but, in so doing, he is filling one of the most difficult roles in baseball, taking the place of Johnny Mostil, generally regarded as the greatest outfielder in baseball.

As has been the case with many of the present day stars, Metzler was unearthed by Connie Mack. A batting average well over the .300 mark in the fast-going Texas League caused Mack scouts to recommend his immediate purchase.

Joining the Athletics late last fall, Metzler managed to break into 20 games as a pinch hitter or regular. While showing promise, his batting average of .242 was quite disappointing, since his ability to hit was one of the things the scouts stressed in boosting Metzler.

Failure to win the pennant last season caused Connie Mack to change his plans for this year considerably. During the winter he made several deals which brought to the Athletics those two veteran stars, Ty Cobb and Zack Wheat. Mack also had the brilliant Simmons, the hard-hitting Bill Lamar and Walter French, the speed merchant, making five regular outfielders.

When Metzler reported to the Athletics this spring it was apparent there was little or no chance for him to break into the lineup. No first-year rookie could be expected to pit his ability against such an array of outstanding stars. It looked like a year on the bench, or possibly a trip back to the minors for Metzler for further seasoning.

Then came the Mostil tragedy which provided the break for Metzler, giving him his big opportunity, a real chance to stick in the majors.

Hard pressed for outfielders, due to Mostil's deflection, Manager Ray Schalk of the Chicago White Sox made a hurried canvass of the probable surplus talent on the different American League clubs. It didn't seem probable that Metzler would be carried by Mack and immediate negotiations were entered into for his services. The White Sox finally secured him shortly after the opening of the season.

As a matter of fact, a serious injury to Ike Boone, slated to play one of the outfield positions, helped Metzler to stay in the majors.

A few hours after his arrival in Chicago, he was sent into the lineup, taking Mostil's old place in center, Bill Barrett going back to his original spot in right.

Asking a rookie to fill Johnny Mostil's shoes is making him shoulder a big responsibility, but he hasn't curled up under the burden. Although lacking experience, he is doing a mighty good job and his timely batting has been a helpful factor in keeping the White Sox in the first division.

Metzler is a left-handed batter and takes a good cut at the ball. His specialty is two-base hits. While he wouldn't be rated as a speed merchant, he is fairly fast and appears able to cover plenty of ground. Manager Ray Schalk is hopeful he will prove a fixture. Looks as if he would.

BEARS TREAT LEAFS ROUGHLY

Slugging Match Won By Newark in First Game 10 to 8.

KEYS BREAK EVEN.

NEW YORK, June 16 (Canadian Press).—The Bears defeated the Toronto Leafs in two games at Newark yesterday. The first, a slugging match, was won by the Newark club in the seventh and eighth frames when they scored eight runs to win by the score of 10 to 8. Both clubs used four pitchers. Airtight pitching by Davies, who won his sixth straight game, gave the Bears the second tilt by the score of 7 to 1. Outside of the fifth, when Toronto bunched two doubles for one run, Davies was never in trouble.

The Keys earned an even break against Rochester at Reading, taking the second game, 3 to 2, after losing the first, 4 to 3. Harrison stopped Rochester in the second game after Carts weakened in the sixth inning. Quellich, who had hit safely in twenty consecutive games, was stopped in the second game by Herb Thormahlen and Ralph Head. The Reading outfielder failed to hit safely in three times at bat.

Jersey City and Buffalo divided a double-header at Jersey City, the Skeeters winning the first game, 4 to 3, and then dropping the second, 13 to 0. Singles by Brame and Malone, a base on balls to Fewster and Gaudette's sacrifice fly, fashioned two runs in the ninth and final inning of the first game, enabling Jersey City to come from behind to win out. However, Parks was pounded from the box by the Bisons early in the second game, which was only seven innings by agreement, Buffalo collecting 17 base hits.

Split Double-Header.

The Orioles and Syracuse Stars split honors in yesterday's double-header at Baltimore, the visitors winning the opener, 5 to 3, and the locals the seven-inning nightcap, 4 to 2. Wildness of Guy Cantrell in the opener let in two runs to give Syracuse their lead. The fielding feature of the second game was a one-handed running catch by Hohman in the first frame. He took a header up the incline of the left field fence and rolled back to the ground, but did not let go of the ball.

P.C.C. DEFEAT SEVEN OAKS

Visitors Beat By Score of 16-15 in Poorly Contested Game.

RED FIELDING HERO.

The Peterborough Canoe Company won a closely-fought battle with the Seven Oaks by a score of 16-15, at Central Park last night.

The game was featured by heavy hitting and poor fielding by both teams. Dundas and Cheu were the pitchers and the former had a slight edge on his rival. Fielding features were supplied by Redd and Watkins, while Jack LeBarr also turned in a nice fielding game.

The line ups:

Seven Oaks—Dwyer, cf; LeBarr, 1b; K. Mein, 3b; McDonough, 2b; Board, ss; Cheu, p; Burnett, lf; Corkery, cf; McGraw, c.

Peterborough Canoe—Dundas, p; Murduff, ss; E. Vinette, lf; Ralph, c; Redd, 1b; Darling, cf; Mongraw, rf; Vinnette, 3b; Davis, 3b; Watkins, 2b.

Umpires—LeBarr and Scates.

C.G.E. CLASH WITH 4TH BATTERY TONIGHT.

Th C.G.E. meet the 4th Battery at Central Park at 6.15 tonight, in what should be a good game. Both teams need a win and it should be a good game.

LEAGUE LEADERS HOLD BISONS 7-4

Carmen Hill Wins His Eighth Consecutive Victory For Pirates.

NEW YORK, June 16 (Canadian Press).—Carmen Hill, bespectacled Pirate hurler, won his eighth consecutive game at Pittsburgh, by turning back the Boston Braves, 7 to 4. Hill was touched for 12 hits but was invincible in the pinches until the latter innings, when the Braves scored all their runs. Robertson held the League leaders in check until the fifth when Harris' double and L. Waner's single scored one run. Two more came across in the sixth and Robertson made way for a pinch hitter. Edwards relieved him but lasted only two-thirds of an inning, the Pirates scoring four runs. Goldsmith finished the game. Harris continued his sensational batting streak with three hits.

Turns in 11th Victory.

Charley Root turned in his eleventh victory when Chicago hammered two Philadelphia pitchers all over the Chicago lot for a 12 to 5 win, making it eleven in a row for the Cubs. The visitors were blanked with five scattered hits until the ninth when Root eased up and the Phillies combed six hits for five runs.

The Cardinals observed Rogers Hornsby's return in St. Louis by handing the New York Giants a 5 to 0 shutout. Jess Haines held the visitors to two hits, singles by Roush and Jackson. It was the sixth straight defeat for New York and the tenth success for Haines.

Dazzy Vance took the decision in a pitching duel with Eppa Rixey at Cincinnati, Brooklyn downing Cincinnati by 2 to 1. All the runs came in the seventh, Partridge leading off with a double for the Robins, taking third on Carey's sacrifice and coming in on another sacrifice by Herman. Felix made first on Dressen's fumble and Butler singled to left, scoring Felix all the way from first base. In the home half of the inning doubles by Walker and Critz produced the lone Red tally.

CAMPBELLFORD TRIMS KEENE

Northumberland League Game Ends in Score of 15 to 9.

BIG CROWD OUT.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jnne 16. — A large crowd witnessed the Keene vs. Campbellford hardball (Northumberland League) game on the local diamond yesterday afternoon, which resulted in a 15—9 score in favor of Campbellford.

Keene was keen all the way through the game. They had a good bunch of players, and played with few errors. Failure to connect with the offerings of Ibey alone spent defeat for Keene.

Although Campbellford had a few new men who have had little or no practice at hardball, they made a good showing, the new men playing remarkably well. De Carrol made the nearest approach to a homer, with a three-bagger. T. Ibey, the nightmare of all visiting ball teams, had seven scalps on his belt when the game was over. In one innings when the bases were all full and none down, three batters in succession failed to locate the ball, although close in the vicinity of the bat.

The umpires were Wilmot and Thompson. Mascott of the Campbellford team, Owen Hendy.

Line-up:

Keene.—E. McCarthy, p; C. Robertson and McCarthy, c; M. McCarthy, 1b; N. Fletcher, 2b; M. Robertson, 3b; J. McCarthy, ss; W. Fletcher, lf; F. Whalen, cf; M. Renwick, rf.

Campbellford.—Ibey and Cowell, c; Christie, 1b; Blute, 2b; DeCarroll, 3b; Fox, ss; Blakeley, lf; Cook, cf; Maybee, rf.

Score by innings:

Followers of professional football in England were amazed recently by the announcement that one club manager was receiving $7,500 a year for his services. This is far in excess of the average managerial salary in the British world of sports, though a mere bagatelle in comparison with the sums paid to the major league baseball managers in the United States.

France Leads Ranks Of Tennis Players

WIMBLEDON, England, June 16 (Canadian Press).—A Franco-American final between Rene Lacoste and William T. Tilden in the men's singles in the Wimbledon tournament, which opens Monday, was freely predicted in tennis circles yesterday, although the ink was barely dry on the draw which, for the first time in the history of Wimbledon, seeded the contestants according to a special committee's idea of their ability.

The committee charged with ranking the players, rated the men as follows: Lacoste, Tilden, Borotra, Cochet, Harada, Raymond, Brugnon and Kozelub, in the order named.

France, with Lacoste, Cochet, Brugnon and Borotra, provided exactly half of the number of seeded players, the United States having but one, with Lacoste ranking Tilden.

The women's seeding was as follows: Wills, Godfree, Bouman, De Alvarez, Ryan, Mallory, Heine and Peacock.

CUBS WIN FIRST GAME OF SERIES

Repel Athletics 6-4 To Strengthen Hold on Second Place.

HOMER FOR SIMMONS.

NEW YORK, June 16. Canadian Press. — Chicago repelled the Athletics at Philadelphia yesterday by 6 to 4 in the first game of a series and strengthened the hold on second place. Al. Simmons accounted for all the Philadelphia runs by crashing his ninth homer of the season in the first inning with the bases filled. In winning his twelfth game this year, and the ninth in succession, Ted Lyons limited the Mackmen to four hits and did not allow a hit after the third inning. Only three of the Athletics reached first base on Lyons after the first stanza, and none travelled as far as second. Lyons sewed up his own game by whacking a triple off Grove with two on base in the eighth. The 12 victories for the Chicago pitcher stands as the best mark in the majors thus far. He has been defeated twice.

Only two games scheduled.

Farrell Wins Prize Best Dressed Golfer

OAKMONT, Pa., June 16. — Canadian Press. — Johnny Farrell, Mamaroneck, N. Y., who announced after an 81 Tuesday, that he would concentrate his efforts for the remainder of the open championship play on winning a prize of $1000 for the best dressed golfer, yesterday reached his objective. The prize, given by a clothing concern, was awarded to Farrell by a committee charged with returning the verdict.

Farrell will carry away twice as much as the winner of the championship as "first money" in the open is only $500, although it is worth one hundred times that sum to a pro, winning the title.

COMBINATIONS WITH NON-STARCHY VEGETABLES

There are really no vegetables which do not contain a small amount of starch, but the following list contains less than five per cent: Celery, spinach, string beans, asparagus, summer squash, cucumbers, egg plant, mallow, kale, zucchini, and even small beets, carrots, parsnips, and turnips. The larger and more mature beets, carrots, parsnips and turnips contain as much as eight to twelve per cent of starch, but may usually be taken as non-starchy vegetables.

From my experience and observation, I know that starchy foods are not required by the body at all. All vegetables, however, need a certain amount of starch for their growth, so we are forced to use the starch contained in these vegetables or our diet would be very meager, consisting only of protein foods, such as meat, eggs, fish, fowl, etc. Non-starchy vegetables contain only a small amount of protein, but are rich in all of the organic salts and vitamins, which are so necessary to the different cells of the body in all of the tissues from the muscular to the bony ones. The researches of the vegetarian and raw-fooders have taught us the value of these organic minerals. For several other reasons, they are an important addition to our daily fare. For one thing, they fill up well and thus supply us with bulk, so that we can more easily avoid an excess of the more concentrated foods, such as meats, starches, etc. They also not only combine well with each other, but can be mixed indiscriminately with other starches and proteins. If properly prepared, they are palatable foods and if a second helping of any food is ever desired, it is a good plan to double up on the greens, rather than use an added amount of the heavier foods.

They may be used to satisfy the one with a large appetite, and may be used with any meal which is hard to digest, as their digestion is really quite simple and does not interfere with any other foods eaten. Most people eat too many of the heartier foods and would do well to supply for a luncheon a meal composed of a combination of these vegetables. There are so many ways in which you can use the non-starchy vegetables, but I will give you a blanket rule, which will show you in how many different ways they may be used.

Non-Starchy Rule.—One or more non-starchy vegetable, either cooked or raw, may be used with either one starch or one protein, or with any one other article of food, such as milk, toast or fruit.

C.G.E. DEFEATED LEAGUE SELECT

Clever Soccer Was Shown By Both Sides Before a Good Crowd.

Two goals to one was the score of the trial game of soccer played last evening at King Edward Park before a good turnout of spectators when the C.G.E. boys gained the verdict of the league select.

C.G.E. won the toss and made track for the opposing goal, to be held in check by the defence. Then the forwards of the C.G.E. indulged in swinging the ball from wing to wing that made the half-backs check closely but their forwards lost many chances in near goal. The league boys had the edge on play on midfield tactics and wasted opportunities around goal. Their combination proved very profitable to the C.G.E. men to keep the league custodian busy picking up shots from near and far. Both elevens tried hard to gain the lead near the close of the interval by trying to run the ball through. Half time, no scoring.

Half-Time.

Change of ends took place immediately and resumed with greater eagerness than ever. The league eleven being more prominent when in the vicinity of goal, which was responded with spasmodic rushes by C.G.E. forwards. That was productive of clever play by Lang and Wade inside the opposing defence area, while the full backs offset the onslaught until they had to concede defeat when "wee one" on the right let Wade do the scoring from close in. The losers again had to admit another counter when Hutton's individual play left Wade in a position to increase the lead. There was no further scoring and nothing more of interest, until Bill Curtis picked the inside of the post with a ripping shot. Full time, C.G.E. 2, League 1.

C.G.E.—Griffin, goal; Duthy and Rae, backs; Cameron, Scott and Blowers, halves; Lang, Hutton, Wade, Hotston and Burgess, forwards.

League Select—Fowler, goal; Stan Maker and A. Maker, full backs; W. Logan, Miller and Bromley, halves; W. Curtis, T. McPhate, H. Curtis, Foster and Laidler, forwards.

Referee—J. Warde.

HECKMAN WILL PITCH SATURDAY

Petes and East Peterborough Leaguers to Clash at Riverside.

The Raybestos, Cogs and Crescents will field a smart ball club against the Peterborough Seniors at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon, and Manager Swanston's outfit will have to play real baseball to head off the East Peterborough Leaguers. The game will be called at 3 o'clock sharp, with Umpires Alex. Kay and Edgar Lebarr in charge.

Both teams will be at full strength for the battle, and the fans will see some interesting baseball. It is expected that Heckman will do the twirling for the Seniors, while the All Stars' pitching selection and line-up will be announced to-morrow.

The old argument as to the relative ability of Senior and Intermediate players will add spice to the game, and both outfits can be counted upon to give their best.

MOUNTED POLICE AND CANADA MAKE FOR MUTUAL FAME

"Get Your Man," Famous Slogan, Has Helped Make Force One of Most Famous Known

Canada has made the Northwest Mounted Police famous, but in return the Northwest Mounted Police have also made Canada famous.

Stories of adventure in the ranks of this semi-military and semi-civl body of cavalry have been read with great avidity for many years and these stories have done much to advertise Canada to the outside world.

"Get Your Man" has always been the slogan of the "Mounties" and has made them the most famous law-enforcing body in the world today.

Like the famous Foreign Legion of the French, the Northwest Mounted has held in its ranks men of every social strata—dukes, lords, soldiers of fortune, anybody of fine physique and good reputation who could be depended upon to bring offenders to Canadian justice. To which might be added "the most relentless justice in the world."

Failure Rare

When a member of the "Mounted" takes the trail he follows it to the bitter end. It may take years but he almost invariably gets his man. So vigorously do these police pursue fugitives that in only rare instances has a case been dropped without the alleged offender being brought to trial.

So many stories have been written of the heroic actions of the members of the Mounted—and many of them true stories—that it has become as famous as the Foreign Legion and is feared in that country as much as the lawbreakers fear the Rangers in Texas or the Rurales in Mexico.

The organization of the North west Mounted Police forms the background of "The Flaming Forest," a Cosmopolitan production directed by Reginald Barker and presented by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer at the Capital Theatre today. Antonio Moreno and Renee Adoree have the featured romantic roles in this picture and are supported by a cast of more than twenty celebrated players, among them Gardner James, Oscar Beregi, Bert Roach, Tom O'Brien, Claire McDowell, and little Mary Jane Irving.

AT THE REGENT.

JACKIE'S NEWEST HAS EVERYTHING

"Johnny Get Your Hair Cut" Tells a Thrilling and Interesting Story.

Jackie Coogan, that mysteriously gifted child, has brought to the screen a new characterization which marks the dividing line between the young genius' babyhood and boyhood. The news of the shearing of Jackie's locks was doubtless attended by the tears of his millions of feminine admirers, but they need have no cause for apprehension—Jackie Coogan is not lost to them. The tonsorial metamorphosis of Jackie Coogan is a radiant surprise as you will see at the Regent Theatre to-day where "Johnny Get Your Hair Cut," is being shown for the first time.

The counselors of Jackie Coogan could have selected no finer vehicle for this period of Jackie's career than Gerald Beaumont's vivid tale of the turf. The story follows faithfully the origin of the author which appeared in a national magazine a short time ago. Nothing important is left out and nothing added that lacks in pertinence and direct value.

The story is that of an orphaned son of an erstwhile trainer of thoroughbred race horses. On the death of his father the youngster makes his way across the country in a horse car to the California tracks where he tries to obtain a position as an apprentice jockey. With all the ingenuity of a determined adolescent Jackie works his way into the confidence of "Mother Slapp," a kindly woman who keeps a boarding house for jockeys, and whose only compensation for feeding hungry mouths is tips on the races, which are usually bad ones. He meets Pop Slocum, a derelict of the race track who owns a horse, and the two enter into a pact. The events which lead up to the big race are full of mischief and fun with Jackie ever present on the screen.

The thriling race track sequence—the like of it which we have never before witnessed on the silver sheet, was directed by E. Reeves Eason, the man who was responsible for the chariot race scenes in "Ben-Hur."

In the supporting cast the feminine contingent in the audiences at the Regent Theatre will be especially glad to see their old favorite, Maurice Costello. This thorough thespian was in his youth the idol of the screen, and through the years he has lost none of the fire and brilliancy which marked his beginning on the stage and screen.

Jim Corrigan, who has appeared with Jackie before, Mattie Whiting, Pat Hartigan and others who are well known to movie fans play in support of Jackie. That superior quality of photography which invariably marks a Coogan vehicle is ever present with credit to Frank B. Good, who has photographed the young star for five years.

The production of "Johnny Get Your Hair Cut," was made under the personal supervision of Jack Coogan, Sr., and it is a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer release.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

THEY ALL LEAD HOME

I used to wonder, wonder so,
Where all the roads around us go,
The roads you see from railroad trains,
The city streets, the country lanes,
The paths along the mountainside,
The little roads, not big nor wide—
I used to wonder, wonder so,
But now I think I really know.

Because we never take the car,
To go quite near or go quite far,
However long the ride has been,
But that, at last, the road turns in
To our own house. We drive all day,
Or only just a little way,
And then we drive a little more
And find ourselves at our front door.

I told my father what I thought,
I wondered if he'd laugh or not.
He did, of course—and then did this:
He gave my mother such a kiss,
And threw his hug, and said, "Well, Wife,
She has the right idea of life:
Whatever roads a man may roam,
Or dreams may dream, they all lead home."

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Posing at times as a barber, at others as ATTORNEY DAVIS, a curious man called Vilak has come to the queer little town of PORTO VERDE, in west central Brazil, to help his cousin, ELISE MARBERRY, solve a strange mystery.

Elise, a beautiful American girl, has inherited a coffee plantation and other property adjoining Porto Verde. Several mysterious deaths occur, including that of one of her foremen. She herself has been threatened and warned to leave. Vilak, learning that LINCOLN NUNNALLY, a famous American chemist and once a teacher of his is in South America, sends for him.

Vilak believes that GAYLORD PRENTISS, a mysterious and forbidding man, is somehow involved in the deaths. He tries to visit Prentiss, but is ordered to stay away. Elise's two-year-old orphaned nephew is kidnapped and Prentiss is suspected. Vilak tracks the kidnappers, who are on horseback, and finally he and his companions come upon the child, unharmed and being cared for by a gang of railroad laborers in the charge of one CARLOS D'ALBENTARA.

Vilak tells Elise she and the child must leave on the next boat. He and Nunnally return that evening to reward D'Albentara and his men with some wine. Before they come away, Vilak, through a seemingly accidental all, manages to get hold of a ring which he says he snatched from the finger of D'Albentara's half-breed foreman.

Returning, they hear a man's cries and dash into a clearing in the woods to rescue an Indian from torture at the hands of two ruffians. Vilak is stabbed in the wrist in the encounter.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER XVIII.

Vilak felt the Indian's pulse. "No. Don't worry. He'll be all right in a minute." He brought some water from a nearby pool and dashed it on his forehead. "Amazing what these jungle people can stand."

In a moment the aborigine's eye opened again. He looked about him wonderingly, then pulled himself to a sitting posture and indicated that he wished to rise. Vilak shook his head. But the Indian, notwithstanding the tremendous pain the effort must have cost him, rose to his feet and then dropped to his knees before Vilak and began a violent series of prostrations, alternately beating his cheek with the flat of his hands, then rubbing his forehead against the tip of Vilak's boot.

He continued these movements for five minutes, grunting frenziedly all the while in spite of Vilak's attempts to check him. Then he looked up at his savior with a smile obviously intended to be radiant, but which his animal-like filed teeth made only bizarre. This done, still smiling, he sat upon the ground, curiously examining with his finger the thick mud around his feet.

In a few moments Vilak, though impeded by his wound, had fashioned a rude crutch from a small tree limb, and demonstrating to the Indian how it should be used, put it under his arm.

"We'll take him back to his camp," Vilak said as they moved off in the direction of the road. "Don't say anything about this to Elise. I've tried to frighten her enough when I thought it would accomplish anything, but now that she's agreed to go, there's no use of increasing her worries. Frankly, once I get her out of here I don't intend to let her back. Where things are going to end, God only knows. . . . Will you please not look constantly at my hand and shake your little pellet of a head so guiltily? It isn't your fault, I tell you, that my hand was hurt."

The old man took off his thick glasses and wiped them jerkily. "They might have killed you . . . er . . . killed you . . . But you can count on me . . . I'll never do it again . . . er . . . never . . . Er . . . why did they torture him so?"

"Why do criminals do anything?"

Half carrying the wounded Indian and actually lifting him when they reached bad places in the path, they came to the road again. They had not walked far when they perceived three men coming toward them. As they neared, they saw that the newcomers were three other Indians from the railroad camp. By the way they combed all the dark places along the roadside, it was easy to see that they were searching for their comrade. They received the lost one with excited grunts; the wounded man himself pointed to Vilak and began a renewed guttural declamation. Vilak and the old man walked toward Elise's fazenda.

Elise as usual came forward to meet them. She caught sight of the bandage about Vilak's hand; her thin lips quivered. "You're hurt," she said quietly. "Badly?"

He laughed. "A little cut in my hand. A test tube broke when I was working with it. Nanny has accidents like that every day in his laboratory."

"I don't believe it." Her voice was low but determined. "You were hurt on account of me."

"I'm sorry if my word means nothing to you," he replied. "Nanny can testify whether I am telling the truth. He was there when it happened. Don't give me credit for being heroic, when I was merely being careless. Look and see for yourself, then." He unwound the bandage and bared the wound. The tiny cut did indeed look as if it might have been made by broken glass.

"All right, I'll believe you," she murmured, bright once more. "But it's a nasty wound, just the same. Sure there aren't any pieces inside it?"

"Positive."

"At least let me put a proper looking bandage on it. That one you have is terribly amateurish. I have to have something to keep me in practice or I'll completely forget that I trained for war work."

"Good, if it makes you feel superior."

She departed and returned with some boracic acid and a bandage. These she deftly applied to his hand. "I must keep you in good repair, my esteemed and criminological cousin," she said banteringly. "You're quite valuable to me, even necessary at the moment."

"Valuable or not," he retorted, "the thing in which I'm interested is whether you're getting ready to leave Thursday with Tinky."

"I'll have everything ready by noon tomorrow. After that there'll be nothing to do but to wait two days for the boat." She motioned toward the tiny bed which could be glimpsed in a dark room inside. "I've moved Tinky where I can watch him all the time. At night I keep him in my room, and I'm going to take Hannah out of the kitchen and let her take care of him in the day time for the few moments that I can't be with him. Hannah was my nurse when I was a child and I know she'd let herself get killed before she'd let anything happen to him."

They talked a few moments longer, then Elise retired for the night. The old man, weary and exhausted, followed her example. Vilak, left alone, read for half an hour, strode outside the house and listened intently to the myriad sounds coming from the jungle: the cry of a deer stalked to its death by the sleek noiseless-stepping jaguar; the call of a sleepy toucan roused from its rest by the visit of some nightly invader: the baying of one of the town dogs, gone to the primitive to hunt for its kill.

He was making his customary round of the house and was trying all the doors and windows to see that they were locked—though the precaution seemed futile for the slight material of which they were constructed made them little of a barrier—when he heard a footstep. He looked in the direction of the sound and in a moment saw Schwartz, the fat German foreman, approaching. His eyes glanced curiously at Vilak over their puffy teatags. "Good evening, Mr. Schwartz," Vilak said politely.

"Goot efening, Herr Davis." The foreman's words came in short asthmatic jerks.

"Everything all right on the fazenda?"

"All right, I tinks. You try der doors and windows, Herr Davis?"

"Yes, Mr. Schwartz."

The veins in the German's face glowed as Vilak struck a match to light his cigaret. "Dot is vot I come to do also. I am afraid somebody, somedings maybe comes to bodder her in der night. Somedimes when she closes der house she is not careful, Fraulein Marberry. And ven we have no guns here dot iss not nice. Nicht wahr, Herr Davis?" He grinned.

"Good night, Mr. Schwartz."

The German walked off in the direction from which he had come. Vilak watched his fat body roll past a tree and disappear in the darkness, then took a few more puffs of his cigaret and returned to the house. Undressing, he put his pistol on a table where it would be within instantaneous reach, then crawled into bed. The night passed without incident.

Early in the morning, before the others had awakened, he hurried down the deserted road to his house, put on the clothes he wore as a barber, being careful to conceal the wound on his hand by wearing a coat longer than usual, and walked to the town.

After an hour spent in collecting a few articles in the barber shop, he sought out the lazy, gaudily dressed proprietor of the hotel, and striking his heart forcibly with his hand, explained to that listless individual that he had been seized with a bad fever during the night and was leaving that morning for the mountains of Avilos where the elevation was higher and the climate more conducive to recovery. He might be back in a week, he declared, he might be back in a month; perhaps he might never come back. Perhaps he might even die in the mountains.

The proprietor drowsily expressed a polite wish that such might not be the case and with pleasure accepted the month's rent for the barber shop which Vilak put in his hand. Having thus interred barber Riggs for as long a time as he wished, Vilak returned to the tiny establishment of which he had been the head and sole employe for several months, and was making final preparations for his departure, when he noticed knots of natives gathering in the street, talking loudly and gesticulating in the excited fashion that he knew meant something had happened in the town.

Hurrying out, he strode up to one of the villagers, a barefoot old man with a long beard and a huge pancake-shaped hat of straw which rested insecurely on his hairless head. "What's the matter, Julios?" he demanded.

LUKE AND HIS UKE

FAMOUS TROUBLE MAKERS

These dishes entice the appetite

In June, when the new crop of vegetables is still to come, there are many dainty dishes that will entice the appetite if Keen's Mustard is used to give them relish. Here are some that will delight the taste. In themselves appetizing, they are made doubly so by the use of Keen's. Clip these recipes for further reference

HAM SUPREME

Use a piece of ham from 4 to 5 lbs., cut from the middle of a good sized ham. Rub a paste of equal parts of Keen's Mustard, sugar and water into the ham. Put in baking dish. Pour ½ pink milk in pan and bake in moderate oven. Baste frequently, adding milk as needed. You will vote this "the most delicious ham you ever tasted."

TOMATO CHEESE TOAST

1 tablespoon chopped onion; ½ green pepper chopped; 1 cup canned tomato; 1 teaspoon Keen's Mustard; ½ teaspoon salt; ¼ teaspoon pepper; 1 tablespoon flour; 3 tablespoons butter; 4 slices of bread; 4 slices of cheese the size of the bread and ¼ inch thick:

Brown the onion and green pepper in 2 tablespoons of fat, add the tomato and stew until the green pepper is tender. Add seasoning and drop in flour and 1 tablespoon of butter which have been creamed together; boil until it thickens.

Toast one side of a slice of bread, place the slice of cheese on the other side and toast until the cheese and bread are a golden brown. Pour sauce over toast and serve very hot.

CHEESE PUDDING

2 cups breadcrumbs, 1 large cup grated cheese, 2 eggs, 1 cup milk, ½ teaspoonful Keen's Mustard, 1 teaspoonful salt. Bake light brown in quick oven twenty to thirty minutes.

MOCK PATE DE FOIE GRAS

1 calf's liver (20 ounces); ½ teaspoon black or white pepper; few grains cayenne; ¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg; 1½ teaspoon Keen's Mustard; ¾ teaspoon salt; 3 tablespoons water in which a minced onion has been boiled; ¼ cup liquor from boiling calf's liver:

Cook a calf's liver in salted water until very tender; grind in a meat cutter. Moisten with 2 tablespoons melted butter. Work into a paste with the butter and seasonings. Pack in jars that have been buttered, cover with melted butter and set aside to be used for sandwich filling or to serve on biscuit or crackers for afternoon tea.

ENGLISH MUSTARD SAUCE

1 pint milk; 4 tablespoons flour; ½ tablespoon Keen's Mustard; ½ teaspoon salt; 4 tablespoons butter:

Heat the milk over hot water, cream together the other ingredients, drop them into the hot milk and stir constantly until thick. Serve with eggs, fish, ham or wherever a piquant sauce is desired.

Onions, olives, capers, mushrooms, peppers or hard cooked eggs make pleasing changes in this sauce.

FISH SALAD

1 lb. boiled fish; 2 tablespoons oil; 2 tablespoons vinegar; 1 teaspoon Keen's Mustard; ½ teaspoon salt; 1 cup chopped celery; lettuce; ¾ cup mayonnaise:

Flake the fish while hot, if possible; toss up with oil, vinegar, and seasonings and let cool, add celery and mayonnaise. Dip a large spoonful on to a leaf of curley lettuce and garnish with strips of pimento pepper and with mayonnaise if desired.

ART ASSOCIATION RE-ELECTS MRS. W. BLACKWELL THIRD TERM

Annual Meeting Hears Reports That Show Healthy Advancement.

TEA SERVED.

Mrs. R. Gliddon is Hostess at Conclusion of Business Session.

Mrs. Wm. Blackwell was re-elected for her third term as president of the Women's Art Association, at the annual meeting of the society held yesterday afternoon on the verandah of the Conservatory of Music. The entire slate of officers for last year was re-elected on acceptance by the members of the report of the nominating committee, presented by Mrs. G. E. Porter. They are as follows;

Honorary President, Mrs. Mercer of Toronto; President, Mrs. Wm. Blackwell; 1st Vice-President, Mrs. J. E. R. Munro; 2nd Vice-President, Mrs. F. C. Neal; 3rd Vice-President, Mrs. G. N. Gordon; 4th Vice-President, Mrs. V. Eastwood, Sr.; Recording Secretary, Mrs. F. C. Webber; Corresponding Secretary, Miss Grace Reinhardt; Treasurer, Mrs. H. W. Morphet; Assistant Treasurer, Madame Masson; Archivist, Miss O. Edwards.

The following ladies were also elected as members' representatives at yesterday's meeting: Mrs. E. W. Borbridge, Mrs. J. F. Allan, Mrs. G. E. Porter, Mrs. T. Cruikshank, Mrs. N. D. Seaton, Mrs. A. E. Dixon, Mrs. J. J. Craig, Mrs. J. H. Seels, Mrs. F. Saltman, Mrs. C. B. Adair, and Mrs. V. S. Foster.

Arrangements for the pageant on the first of July were discussed, the association having been asked to participate in this presentation, and various votes of thanks were passed; to Mr. and Mrs. R. Gliddon for the loan of the Wallace Havelock Robb lecture; to Mrs. Munro and Mrs. Porter for taking the places of Mrs. Blackwell and Mrs. Morphet during their absence from the city during the season; to Mrs. H. E. Connolly for excellent work as convenor of refreshments during the year, and to Miss C. Mc-Carthy for press reports of the various meetings of the society.

Reports were given by Mrs. Morphet, treasurer, who showed receipts of $476.53 during the year, including a balance from the previous season of $20.07, and disbursements of $269.43, leaving a balance on hand of $147.10, and by the recording secretary, Mrs. F. C. Webber, whose report was read by Mrs. W. Sangster. This report appears in full later.

Mrs. Sangster also read the minutes of the last annual meeting and gave a list of the possessions of the Women's Art Association, compiled by Mrs. Gliddon, as follows:

Works of Art: Two Cox pictures, "Turnberry Castle" and "Sheep"; "Mercury" statue and pedestal by Miss K. E. Wallis, also "The Goodlie Company of Solitude" by Miss Wallis, a "A Portrait of Miss Wallis" in relief, by Waldmann, purchased by the I.O.D.E.; "Laughing Fisher Boy," property of Miss Hatton; plaster cast of Mrs. Nichols, by Miss K. Wallis; two plaster cast models, "Hands"; "The Laurentians," oil painting by E. McGillivray Knowles; "Danish Timber Ship," water color, and a folio of prints.

There were also several volumes of works on art, various rugs, tables and chairs, and a number of dishes and cooking utensils.

Mrs. B. L. Barns reported for the Art Study Club, showing 28 members with an average attendance of 20 members and a programme of interesting papers given during the year.

Mrs. J. E. R. Munro reported for the Guild of Arts and Crafts, whose four general meetings during the season were featured by addresses and papers on art work, given by Miss C. Edwards, Mrs. P. L. Allison, Miss F. Edwards, Mrs. J. Moulton and Miss Mamie McCarthy.

It was noted that the regular meeting day of the association has been changed from Saturday to Friday afternoon, the Art Association to have the second and fourth Friday afternoons of the month, to alternate with the Women's Music Club, on the first and third Fridays. Mrs. Allan, president of the Music Club, asked that all ladies be requested to refrain from holding bridge parties on Fridays during the season.

After the re-election of officers, Mrs. Blackwell thanked the ladies for their support and co-operation during the past season, and asked for its continuance during the coming year.

Mrs. R. Gliddon served tea to the ladies at the conclusion of the business session. Members present at yesterday afternoon's meeting were: Mrs. Wm. Blackwell, Mrs. C. B. Adair, Mrs. R. FOXLAW WINS.

French Turfmen Shut Out of Ascot Feature To-day.

ASCOT, Eng., June 16.—(Canadian Press.)—Sir Abe Bailey's Foxlaw won the gold cup, one of to-day's features in the Royal Ascot racing programme. M. Jacques Wittouck's Atlay was second and Aga Khan's Dark Japan, third. By his win Sir Abe Bailey frustrated a determined attempt by French turfmen to carry off the prize. Five of the eight starters were French owned.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.

It has been reported that the French Government has officially appointed liquid flame squads in every battalion of its army. If this is true, and France is again engaged in war, it would in all likelihood mean that millions of boys now living would be burned to a crisp by liquid fire. The only solace would be, they would die quickly. This is not so horrible as some theologians ignorantly or wilfully teach, that untold millions of human beings will stay in such flames, writhing in agony, for ever and ever.—M. T. Butcher. 1d-141-6313

Southern Orchestra Delights Crowd

Rye's pavilion was taxed to capacity last night when many dancers enjoyed the music by the "Savannah Stompers," a colored orchestra from the south who have been engaged by Mr. Rye to play on several nights during the summer months. No fault could be found with the music rendered and they proved once more that the colored people are the best exponents of modern jazz.

TEXTILE DUTY

moditites from Canada," said Mr. Hodgson.

"The applicants' description of the present state of Canadian industry would apply almost word for word to the condition of the British wool textile industry," Mr. Hodgson continued. "It is common knowledge that since the ill-fated boom of 1919-20 the British industry has suffered from chronic under-employment. The only exception was a brief period in 1924, due to abnormal demands from the Far East. In December, 1926, there were 12 per cent of workers in dustry unemployed; the latest returns for March give 9.4 per cent; there is a considerable amount of short-time working and in addition there has been a material reduction in the number of workers in the industry in recent years.

"We suggest that the Canadian industry, like the British industry and the United States industry, will not permanently remain in a depressed condition. Indeed, certain reports from Canada and official figures make it clear that already there has been some recovery.

"It appears to us, that the present tariff provides a reasonable measure of protection to Canadian producers," he said.

George H. Woods, representing the Wool Textile Delegation of England and Scotland, then presented a lengthy brief in opposition to the application for increased tariff. Mr. Woods protested against the appellants "using 1910 figures to build up their case." The Canadian industry had made "remarkable progress in 14 years."

"Insofar as the quantity of wool retained is indicative of progress of the wool textile industry, we would suggest that an increase from 20,000,000 pounds in 1913 to an average 26,000,000 pounds in 1922-26 is by no means unsatisfactory," he said.

Toronto Stocks Firm With Nickel Leading

TORONTO, June 16. — (Canadian Press.)—Strength and activity during the first hour on the Toronto stock exchange to-day later moderated, although stocks remained firm. International Nickel was the dominant leader, touching a high mark of 58 3-8. Around noon at 67 3-8 it was a point and an eighth better than yesterday. Active Northern Bakeries after an early advanced receded to 28 3-4, unchanged, but Brazilian finished half a point better at 168. Goodcrham and Worts advanced 3-4 at 57, but Walker after early strength at noon at 52 3-4 unchanged. British American Oil was steady. Seagrams lost a half at 24 3-8.

Amulet Moves Upward On Toronto Market

TORONTO June 16. — Canadian Press. — A strong upward movement by Amulet in heavy dealings was the only feature of interest during this morning's quiet session of the Standard Mining Exchange. Amulet sold up to 218, the noon mark of 215, being ten cents above yesterday. Elsewhere stocks inclined to be easier. Corona eased one at 13 and Argonaut was fractionally lower at 32. Vipond lost 1½ at 94½. Kirkland Lake firmed one at 134. Duprat at 10¼ and Laval at 24 were steady.

Market Makes Recovery More Pronounced To-day

NEW YORK, June 16 (Canadian Press). — The stock market today made a further recovery from the sharp recession of Tuesday with the heaviest buying in the railroad group and certain established industrial leaders. The strength of these issues contrasted, however, with unmistakable signs of forced liquidation in a handful of specialties.

Steady absorption of General Motors, United States Steel, and Baldwin and many of the rail shares gave impetus to the upward trend, carrying more than a dozen issues into new high ground for the year. General Motors reached 203¾, a gain of five points and only fractionally under its peak price for all time. Rock Island got 115 and St. Louis Southwestern touched 86½, both the highest ever attained.

Marconi Share Increase At London Is Mystifying

LONDON, June 16 (United Press) —The recent sharp increase in the price of Canadian Marconi shares on the London Exchange, is causing the greatest interest. The Daily News attributed the rise to the announcement that the shares are soon going to be quoted on the New York Stock Exchange.

WEDDING BELLS.

SLATER—COPELAND.

A pretty June wedding took place on the 4th inst. at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Copeland, Mariposa, near Woodville, when their youngest daughter, Ethel May, and Willard Elsworth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Slater, Peterboro, Ont., were united in holy wedlock by the Rev. G. H. Copeland, of Toronto, uncle of the bride, in the presence of over fifty of the immediate relatives of the bride and groom.

The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Mary Horton, of Toronto, and Mr. Peter R. Kinee, of Sunderland, cousin of the groom, acted as groomsman. The bride was handsomely gowned in white satin, with bridal veil, carrying a bouquet of carnations. The bridesmaid wore a costume of blue georgette and carried a bouquet of carnations. The groom's gift to the bride was a rope of pearls; to the bridesmaid, a silver bar pin, and to the groomsman, cuff links.

After an elaborate luncheon, the bridal party motored to Cannington, where they left by train for Toronto, Niagara, and other points. The bride travelled in rosewood crepe de chene with coat to match.

The young couple received many beautiful gifts, showing the high esteem in which they are held. They will reside in Smith Township, near Peterborough.

City Adopts Angle Parking For George Street

S. Monaghan U.F.O. Holds Annual Picnic At Wallace's Point

J. J. Morrison and Mrs. M. Oper, of Leamington, President of United Farm Women of Province, Were Special Speakers of the Day.

EMPHASIZES THE NECESSITY FOR ORGANIZATION AMONG FARMERS

Says That Farmers Are Lax Along Lines of Advertising Their Wares—Need Co-operation to Make a Success of the Farming Industry.

The annual picnic of the U.F.O. Club of South Monaghan and Cavan was held at Wallace's Point yesterday, on the grounds overlooking the river, loaned for the occasion by the proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. R. Cardwell, who did everything possible to add to the comfort and convenience of those present. The attendance was small, barely two hundred people being present for the programme of speeches, while another hundred or so arrived for the ball games, which were played on the open field, and the dance, which took place in the hall during the evening.

J. J. Morrison, secretary of the United Farmers of Ontario, and Mrs. M. Oper of Leamington, president of the United Farm Women of the Province, were the special speakers of the day. The chairman was William McElroy, president of the United U.F.O. clubs of South Monaghan and Cavan.

Present also on the platform were two representatives of the Peterborough U.F.O. Club—the president, E. A. Scott, and a former county director, W. R. Shields. Both spoke briefly, bringing the greetings of their club.

Organization Needed

Mrs. Oper gave a short address, emphasizing the necessity of organization among the farmers. "Never in the history of the farm industry," she said, "has organization meant as much to us. Never were we confronted with stronger organization in other industries than today. Every organization is tightening and becoming stronger." Referring do the recent merger of some of the larger packing interests, she said: "Stock men and hog raisers are affected by this. You will have a stronger organization with which to deal, with less leniency in its makeup and less liberal contributions than you have had before. You must combat this by strengthening your own organization. Farmers are too prone to be individualists. You would think it strange if you were told that you should have five different picnics in a year, instead of one, but that is what other organizations are doing, when they meet at conferences and luncheons and in other social ways to discuss the furtherance of their interests. Just now, the Bankers' Association is viewing the grain situation and scanning its future with just a little bit more attention than we are giving it ourselves. Farmers do not act when the time is ripe, but growl later when things don't turn out just as they like. This year we are not going to have any more harvest than the country will need. It is a serious consideration, and it is up every farm man, woman and child to look after what is their very own business.

Should Advertise Wares

"We should take a tip from big business in one way. When one looks at the papers one sees page after page devoted to the advertising of its products but we farmers never think of advertising our goods. If we have a few barrels of apples left over at the end of the season, we think perhaps some of the neighbors may take them, or maybe they will rot, or we may give them away. Our farmers are lax along the line of advertising their wares.

"In big business also, the by-products are often made to pay the entire overhead expenses. The women of the farm have a nice sideline in the raising of chicks and turkeys and ducks, but they are not yet well organized to sell co-operatively.

Organization and Education

"In every sort of labour today, there is organization, and after that period comes education, when we get together and discuss the affairs that we are interested in, every man making his contribution to the sum total of knowledge. The best value you can get out of your clubs is the education you receive from communing together in them.

"And co-operation does not mean backsliding or disloyalty or indifference or half-heartedness, but it does mean loyalty and honesty of purpose and equare dealing, and it also means success. Without co-operation our farming industry will ever be handicapped, and our men and women of to-day should start in their own organizations to make co-operation a living sucess."

J. J. Morrison

Mr. Morrison struck a rather pessimistic note throughout his address from the comments at the commencement on the smallness of the attendance, to the gloomy predictions for the future of the farming industry, which marked the conclusion of his discourse.

"It is many years since I was here last," he said, "but at that time the face of the hill was lined with people. Where are they today? I hope they are in good company wherever they are. What has cooled their ardor in the movement? Why did they come into the movement and then leave it? Were they convinced it was a good thing, and if they were not convinced, then they must have come in with some ulterior motive. When a person is really convinced that what they are doing is right, I don't think they should turn their back on what they started out to do. If our forefathers had wavered like we are wavering in this organization, there never would have been any homes here; but they set their faces to it and they never turned back until they had accomplished what they set out to do. They made the homes and they handed them on to us.

"I know that conditions have changed, but we must change with them. Farmers have been raised and schooled in the idea that it is their duty to produce, but when they produced, they failed to realize that every industry in the world has two sides that cannot be separated. There is the production of the product and the marketing of the product. These two can't be divided. Our whole trouble has been that we have never thought of the marketing of our products. Some were simple enough to think that when they took their stuff to market and handed it over to the other fellow, that that was marketing. They would just hand it over to him and ask him what he was going to give them for it. That was not marketing. That was dumping it on the market, and it resulted in all the trouble we have had in our industry. All food products belong to the farmers and we own these by right of production and creation. We hand it over to the other fellow and he weighs it and measures it and values it, and then he gives us what he thinks it is worth, with a little bias on his own side, which is only natural. I would do the same if I were in his place. I don't think farmers are the only honest men in the world. Sometimes, when they get the chance, they are quite tricky. But we are not defending ourselves from the other fellow, and we don't know what it costs to put our products on the market. None of you know what it costs to raise a bushel of wheat or a pound of pork. It has never been

Will Begin Survey On Typhoid Epidemic

WASHINGTON, D.C., June 17. —(Canadian Press.)—Four experienced sanitarians of the United States' Public Health Service will begin on Saturday a survey of the typhoid fever epidemic in Montreal with a view to preventing any spread of the infection to this country.

Surgeon General Cumming, in making this announcement yesterday, said that permission had been obtained from Dominion Health officials for the public health service board to visit Montreal to obtain facts as to the source and extent of the outbreak.

Those who will conduct the survey will be Surgeons L. L. Lumden, J. P. Leak and C. E. Waller and sanitary engineer H. R. Crohurst.

Liquor Still Is Mined To Blow Up Evidence

MIAMI, Fla., June 17 (United Press).—Planted with enough dynamite to destroy all evidence and to kill its captors, a 1,000 gallon moonshine still was discovered in the Ever Glades yesterday, fifteen miles west of Miami by Deputy Game Warden and Constable H. O. Lesseler.

An elaborate system of wiring was connected with a detonating apparatus, when the officer came upon it. Three thousand gallons of mash, a large boiler and several huge vats were among the accessories.

Operators of the still, officials believe, were tipped off, as no arrests were made.

'GORILLA MAN' FACES CHARGES

Strongly Guarded While Women Struggle To Enter Court Room.

SEEMS CRUSHED.

WINNIPEG, June 17 (Canadian Press).—Haggard and unkept, Virgil Wilson, alias Earl Nelson, held by the Winnipeg police as "the strangler," was formally charged to-day with the murder of Mrs. Emily Patterson, 27, mother of two young children, and Lola Cowan, 14-year-old school girl, who last week fell victims to the violence of an imbecile killer. The suspect, who was not asked to plead, was remanded until June 23 for preliminary hearing.

The corridors along which the accused was escorted, were heavily guarded, and the public was barred from the court-room. Wilson was shakled to two detectives, and followed by armed police officers.

The prisoner appeared completely crushed and evinced little interest in the proceedings, glancing up only once in a while as the clerk of the court rapidly read over the indictment.

Wilson was dressed in a grey suit, a light blue shirt and carried several days' growth of beard on his face. His hair had been cut recently, and on the scalp near the forehead were visible several scratches. A swarthy complexion gives the accused a pronounced foreign appearance. He has very powerful shoulders, but his manacled hands were hidden from view.

While the formal proceedings were being carried out, hundreds of citizens gathered in front of the police station and several women tried to force their way past the guards stationed outside of the jail. There was no serious demonstration, however.

The father of Lola Cowan was one of the witnesses of the alleged slayer's brief visit to the court-room. About twenty persons who aided the police in running the prisoner to earth also were present.

The formal indictment read, Wilson was bundled back to his cell, while police directed their attention upon the gigantic task of trailing the movements of the man whom Acting Chief of Police Philip Stark positively identified last night as the "gorilla man," wanted for crimes ranging from murder to petty theft in a score of cities in the United States and Canada.

THIRD DEGREE FROWNED UPON

Supreme Court Sets Stamp of Disapproval on Questionable Methods.

INDIAN CASE.

OTTAWA, June 17 (Canadian Press).—The Supreme Court of Canada today set its stamp of disapproval on any police methods in Canada savoring of third degree—although the term itself was not used. In a formal judgment granting a new trial for Joseph Sankey, an Indian convicted of murder at Prince Rupert, B.C., Chief Justice Anglin said: "We felt, however, that we should not part from this case without expressing our view that proof of the voluntary character of the accused's statement to the police which was put in evidence against him, is most unsatisfactory.

"The statement put in writing by the police officer was obtained by a fourth questioning to which the accused was subjected on the day following his arrest. Three attempts to lead him to 'talk' had apparently proved abortive—why, we are left to surmise. No particulars are vouchsafed as to what transpired at any of the three previous 'interviews' and but meagre details are given of the process by which the written statement ultimately signed by the appellant was obtained."

GERMAN REPRESENTATIVE AT LEAGUE OF NATIONS DENIES BRITAIN MADE ANY OVERTURES

Chamberlain Did Not Ask Passage of Troops in Event of War.

PEACE PLANS.

Amicable Settlement of Difficulties Sought By Members of League.

GENEVA, June 17. — (Canadian Press).—Three steps to preserve the peace of Europe in the present troubled situation have been decided upon by representatives of the Locarno treaty powers attending the League of Nations Council here. The spokesman for the German delegation said to-day Britain, France, Germany, Belgium and Italy had decided to make friendly representations to the Soviet and Polish Governments not to endanger the peace of their countries, to point out to the Soviet that the wholesale executions in Russia were creating an unfortunate impression abroad and to advise both Jugo-Slavia and Albania to adopt a conciliatory attitude and settle amicably the rupture of diplomatic relations.

The German spokesman denied that Foreign Minister Stressemann had been sounded by Sir Austen Chamberlain concerning the possibility of troops passing through German territory in case Russia attacked Poland. Germany, he said, was more anxious about Franco-German relations than about the Russo-Polish situation.

Britain's Denial.

The British delegation likewise repudiated the report that Sir Austen had sounded Dr. Stressemann regarding the passage of troops. However, it is deemed likely that there has been a general discussion concerning the operation of the League covenant and military or economic penalties in the event of any flare-up of war in Europe.

The military contribution by the League states is left to individual members, but it is believed that the day will come when the jurists will be asked to study Germany's exact position in this respect as a League member and to determine whether the Locarno pact particularly relieves her from permitting German territory to be used for the passage of troops which have the League's mandate to maintain peace.

French Occupation Resented.

The Germans, the German spokesman said, were going back to Berlin, deeply disappointed because they had only been able to get vague promises that French troops in the Rhineland would be reduced in number. The Berlin Government, he said, wanted more than promises. It appeared that the population would become incensed at the continued presence of

HAND PAINTED POSTERS SEEN

Kiwanis Safety Committee Shows Work of Best Canadian Artists.

AT EXAMINER.

A very fine exhibit of hand-painted safety First posters is now on display in the south window of The Examiner Office. They are original paintings made by the best Canadian artists that were entered in a nation-wide poster drawing contest held under the auspices of the Poster Advertising Association of Canada. Local students of art and lovers of oil and water colour paintings should not fail to see this excellent exhibit.

The posters are the property of the Poster Advertising Association, and have been loaned to the Kiwanis Safety Committee through the kindness of the local firm, Hodgson & Willison, and Mr. T. Llye Blogg, the secretary of the association.

The poster entitled 'Don't Gamble With Death," that won the cash prize of $1,000, is not included in the list, it being on exhibit in Calgary at the present time. However, a reproduction of the prize-winner may be seen at the east end of the Hunter Street bridge on a space kindly donated by Hodgson & Willison.

The Safety Committee are also deeply grateful to The Examiner for the use of their window in connection with the exhibit.

The public will have ample opportunity to see the posters, as they will remain on view until Monday.

COSGRAVE IN MINORITY SAYS HE CANNOT FORM GOVERNMENT

Will Not Bargain With Opposition For Support in House.

CAUSES DEADLOCK.

Other Parties May Agree on Request That President Carry On.

DUBLIN, June 17 (Canadian Press) —William T. Cosgrave, President of the Free State Executive, has issued a statement that he does not intend to form another Government, on the ground that his party will be in the minority in the Dail Eireann as a consequence of the general election, in which his party received 46 seats, Republicans 44, Labour 22, Farmers 11, and other parties a total of 15.

His attitude is said to be that seeing the President is elected by a majority of the Dail, as his party is in the minority, he and his colleagues will be unable to form a Government without usurping the rights and the duties of the majority, which they have neither the power nor the wish to do.

When Mr. Cosgrave speaks of the Opposition being in the majority, it is said he does not refer to the Republicans, led by De Valera, but to the four other parties who will actually sit in the Dail. Even if the Labour deputies, the National League, and the Farmers acted as a bloc, it is believed he could still count on sufficient independent support to carry on, but the Farmers are considered more likely to ally themselves with the ministry than otherwise.

Mr. Cosgrave, it is reported, does not want to secure their support by any bargain beforehand. The ministry will not take office in "leading strings," and therefore efforts are under way to bring about a general request that Cosgrave carry on.

It is pointed out that this anomalous position must continue, while the Republicans adhere to their determination to stay outside the Dail,

Charlie Chaplin Is Ready To Settle Marital Trouble

LOS ANGELES, June 17 (Canadian Press).—The Times states today that it has well-founded report that Charles Chaplin is about ready to settle his marital differences with his wife, Lita Grey Chaplin, for cash—a million dollars, or near it.

rather than take the oath of allegiance to the King.

PRESS COMMENT.

LONDON, June 17 (Canadian Press). — The Westminster Gazette suggests that President Cosgrave's refusal to form a Government probably will result in the other protreaty sections of the Dail inviting him to resume office.

REPORT CONFIRMED.

LONDON, June 17 (United Press). —The Daily Telegraph's Dublin correspondent to-day quoted President Cosgrave, of the Irish Free State, as saying he would not form a Government, taking the attitude that his party is now in the minority in the Free State—after last week's general election.

Although the Government party has a plurality of three over the Republicans, the Opposition party, it lacks a majority, and could continue control of the Dail only if given the support of a sufficient number of the various independent parties.

WANT OATH REMOVED.

DUBLIN, June 17 (Canadian Press) —Samuel E. Holt, Republican member for the Sligo Division, speaking at a meeting at Carrick-on-Shannon, is quoted as saying:

"If we are admitted (to the Dail) with the oath removed, we are prepared to help the Free State Government function in every way possible, and work for the people of this old nation."

Fading Hope Still Held That Aviators Are Alive

QUEBEC, June 17 (Canadian Press). — Hope of finding the missing aviators, Nungesser and Coli in the Lake St. John district is fading here, but despite the fact that it has been proved the lights seen in St. Germain Township were not flares from the fliers, reports are still coming to hand of lights being seen and appearing to be unusual.

NORTH CHINA FORMS UNION

Marshal Chang Tso Lin is Political and Military Head.

DEFEND SHANTUNG.

PEKING, June 17 (Canadian Press). — Marshal Chang Tso Lin becomes the political as well as the military dictator of Northern China under the new Ankuochun (Northern Alliance) programme which was outlined by his spokesman this afternoon. It was stated that Chang had not yet given his final approval, but that he was expected to do so within 24 hours.

The spokesman said that "generalissimo" was an inadequate translation of Chang's new title, which would include command of both the Army and Navy, and direct responsibility for the Civil Government which now is in process of formation with Pan Fu as Premier.

All the Northern war lords have approved the plan, which awaits only upon Chang's acceptance. They decided it was necessary to have unified command of all the Northern armies, wiping out provincial distinctions between the Shantung, Chihli, and the Manchurian forces and providing a degree of cohesion lacking in the old Ankuochun organization.

The Ankouchun leaders at their conference here, which lasted a week, also decided to defend Shantung Province as well as Chihli against the Nationalist advance, and Generals Chang, Sun Chang, and Sun Chuan Fang were both ordered to return to Shantung immediately and assume command of the troops there which are already hard pressed by Chiang Kai Shek's invasion from the south.

It is admitted that peace negotiations which were under way with Chiang Kai Shek and Yen Hsi Chen, governor of Shansi Province, have lapsed, the Ankuochun asserting that the southerners "did not show the necessary sincerity."

The new Peking Government is expected to be created by mandate of the dictator, Chang Tso Lin.

Council Takes Step To End Existing Motor Bus Licenses

Police Commission to be Asked to Issue Edict Leaving Way Open for Grant of Monopoly Franchise.

BORDER TRANSIT CO. TO MAKE OFFER WITH TWELVE BUSSES AVAILABLE FOR USE

Alderman Greene Makes Suggestion That Central Park be Re-Named Confederation Square in Commemoration of Diamond Jubilee.

The carrying of a motion by Alderman J. M. Greene, seconded by Alderman R. S. Cotton, Alderman Nagle E. Phelan being the only dissentient, asking the Police Commission to cancel all existing motor bus licenses, leaving the Council free to enter into agreement with any company regarding the exclusive franchise of the city, bringing Peterborough one stage nearer the way out of the imbroglio in which local street transportation has found itself since the withdrawal of the cars of the Radial Railway in March; the adoption of a proposal to introduce angle parking in the busier portion of George Street; and notice of motion from Alderman J. M. Greene, calling for the changing of the name of Central Park to Confederation Square, in commemoration of the Diamond Jubilee of the Dominion, were the outstanding features of the business transacted by the City Council, meeting in the Council Chambers last night.

There were present: His Worship Mayor W. T. Holloway, Aldermen R. Denne, J. M. Greene, G. A. Macdonald, W. J. Hancock, M. McIntyre, J. O. Fife, Walter Stocker, R. S. Cotton, and N. E. Phelan; S. A. Armstrong, city clerk; Joseph Wearing city solicitor; R. H. Parsons, city engineer.

R. R. Hall, K.C., presented the case of the Border Transit Company for an exclusive franchise with regard to street car transportation; J. G. Jopling also spoke on behalf of the Cooney & Jopling Company. Mr. Mitchell, president, and John J. McCann, local manager, of the Border Transit Company, were interested auditors.

Addressing the Council, Mr. Hall said that he had learned from Mr. Mitchell that to cope adequately with the street transportation, it was necessary to have at least nine busses with two reserve vehicles and a large car capable of carrying sixty passengers, which would be useful for accommodating the crowds on Exhibition week or when other amusements were on.

Regarding the financial standing of the company, Mr. Hall read a telegram from the Imperial Bank of Canada, in which the bank promised to furnish all necessary information to the Council on request. The members of the company, said Mr. Hall, were officials of the Gotfredson Corporation, a million dollar concern, known everywhere. The company was perfectly capable of carrying out any obligations into which it entered. If satisfactory arrangements could not be made with the Hydro, the Border Transit Company was prepared to build sheds of its own.

Mr. Hall said the street transportation service was even now better than that of the street railway. He pointed out that during the parade of last Saturday, the busses were diverted from George Street to Aylmer Street, thus enabling traffic, which otherwise would have been held up, to proceed and get ahead of the circus procession.

Discussing the methods available of introducing the proposed changes, Mr. Hall said he and Mr. Wearing had examined the situation, and had come to the conclusion that it was within the authority of the Police Commission to cancel any existing motor licenses. They could require those who operated cars containing more than seven passengers to take out a fresh license. Then a by-law could be passed giving the right of operating to any one corporation, and the Council would be free to enter into an agreement with a company.

Mr. Hall intimated that he had had a conversation with Judge Huycke, who had stated that as chairman of the Police Commission, he was sure that any reasonable request from the Council would be acceded to by the Commissioners. The way was clear, so far as the necessary power was concerned. The company would be able to take care of its own obligations.

Answering a question from Alderman Stocker, Mr. Hall said that when the licenses were repealed, the Council could enter into any agreement with any company whatever.

Alderman Phelan thought it might be possible that other companies would endeavour to evade the franchise by issuing tickets to points outside the city limits and taking on and discharging passengers inside the civic boundary.

MANY DRIVERS TEST BRAKES

Record Number Go Over Jumps at Kiwanis Testing Ground.

93 IN LINE-UP.

A record number of motorists presented their cars at the Kiwanis brake testing area yesterday afternoon. Ninety-three cars were tested. In only two cases were the brakes found to be in a really dangerous condition. In a number of other cases the cars stopped within the required limits but slight adjustments were recommended to increase their brakes. Twenty-seven cars were pronounced to have perfect brakes, a condition that speaks well for the carefulness of Peterborough motorists, as well as the efficiency of the local garages. The following had their brakes tested:

PORT OFFICER TELLS BOARD OF SMUGGLING

Royal Customs Commission in Session at Provincial Capital.

LIQUOR IN LAUNCHES

Arrested Man Called on to Pay Political Bribe.

QUEBEC, June 17. — Cigarettes smuggled in on coal barges and liquor run up the Saguenay river on motor launches, were drawn to the attention of the royal customs commission at its opening sitting in Quebec city yesterday. Leon George Gauthier, collector of customs at Chicoutimi, mentioned these facts when giving evidence. He had made only one seizure of liquor, but he understood that illicit importation of both liquor and cigarettes was quite extensive. The preventitve service needed strengthening.

In response to an invitation from commission counsel of persons having information about smuggling, Armand Lavergne K.C., brought up the case of Telesphore Simard, of Chicoutimi, who, he said, was arrested for having liquor in his possession in contravention of the Quebec law. The liquor in question, said Mr. Lavergne, was smuggled and after his arrest by the Quebec liquor commission, a demand was made on Simard to pay $500 to a political friend," in order to secure his release. The money was paid, but Simard was still held, and Mr. Lavergne, acting for Mr. Simard, said he wrote a letter demanding return of the money. Shortly after the letter was sent, Simard was released, said Mr. Lavergne. He thought the commission might be interested in this case, because the liquor, it was claimed, had been smuggled.

The commission devoted the greater part of the day to examination of port officers. Extremely small revenues collected at the Magdalen islands, were commented on, in view of the fact that four customs officers are stationed there. It was explained, however, that these men did preventive work.

MAGNESIA BEST FOR YOUR INDIGESTION

Warns Against Doping Stomach With Artificial Digestents

Most people who suffer either occasionally or chronically from gas, sourness and indigestion, have now discontinued disagreeable diets, patent foods and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestents, and instead, following the advice so often given in these columns, take a teaspoonful or four tablets of Bisurated Magnesia in a little water after meals with the result that their stomach no longer troubles them, they are able to eat as they please and they enjoy much better health. Those who use Bisurated Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know this wonderful anti-acid and food corrective, which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and make digestion easy. Try this plan yourself, but be certain to get Bisurated Magnesia especially prepared for stomach use.

Bones obtained from the kitchen formed the timber for ship models made by prisoners during the Napoleonic wars. Many of these models still exist and are valued at from $1,000 to $5,000.

Reported Byrd May Start Flight To-Day

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N.Y., June 17.—(Canadian Press).—Instructions to Thomas H. Kincade, Wright motor engineer, to make a thorough examination of the motors of the Fokker plane America, gives rise to a report last nigh: that Commander Richard E. Byrd planned to hop off for Paris early today.

The possibility of Commander Byrd starting his Paris flight at 7 a.m. the hour set for Colonel Lindberg's hop off was discussed about the Roosevelt hangars.

Reports from the weather bureau, however, were adverse to an early departure for a trans-Atlantic flight.

SENTENCE PROOF OF INSINCERITY

Moscow Press Comments on Punishment Imposed on Young Assassin.

MOSCOW, June 17. — (Associated Press.)—Describing the sentence imposed upon Boris Koweeda, young assassin of Peter Voikoff, Soviet Minister at Warsaw, as a travesty on justice, the afternoon Moscow press declared that the sentence was a proof of the insincerity of Poland's assurances of good will to the Soviet Union.

The sentence, which was life imprisonment with a recommendation that it be commuted to fifteen years, also was described as proof of England's guiding hand in the conduct of Poland's political affairs.

Rosochaya Gazeta, the first paper to publish news of the Polish court's finding, issued an extra in which it declared that Kowceda had received a ridiculously mild sentence for a hideous crime, responsibility for which falls on the Polish government.

"We fully understand that back of the crime was a hand which not only wanted to deal a heavy blow against the Union, but counted upon using Voidoff's blood to provoke a new war," says the paper. "The decision means that the Polish government is supporting the murderer and that all professions of friendship toward us are false."

TOURISTS ASK FUNNY QUERIES

Veteran From Grafton, Pa., Seeks Information on Fishing Laws.

IN LIGHTER VEIN

Many humorous letters reach the Information Department of the Chamber of Commerce each year prior to the holiday season. The following is one received the other day from a spry old gentleman from Grafton, Pennsylvania.

Our family having rented a cottage at McCracken's Landing, Stoney Lake, for July and August, will you please send me a little information regarding fishing laws in your province? Can I use a Minnow seine 10 feet by 48 inches by ¼ inch to catch bait only? Or a 42 square inch umbrella dip net. I was up there twelve days last July but bought my bait there at that time. Now when I will be there almost two months I would like the fun of catching my own bait. I know that I must get a license as I did last year.

I like to conform with all the game laws every place that I go.

I fish Florida in the winter and my ambition is to get a nice big lunge this summer.

I am only a young man yet, just past seventy-four and enjoy the outdoors best of all. I thank you for what advice you can send me.

LINDBERGH HOPS OFF.

Leaves New York in Plane That Carried Him Across Sea.

MITCHELL FIELD, NEW YORK, June 17 (Canadian Press) — Col. Chas. Lindbergh hopped off at 8.17 a.m. today for St. Louis in the monoplane which carried him in his memorable flight across the Atlantic from New York to Paris. A great crowd lined the runway and a large squad of police had a difficult time keeping the people from the path of the plane.

Col. Lindbergh hopes to reach St. Louis at 6.30 (Eastern daylight saving time) this evening.

Addressing the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce last night. Col. Lindbergh said: "After a few days in St. Louis and two weeks, I hope in Canada or some place like that, I'm coming back to New York to meet some of my old friends."

It was suggested in Ottawa yesterday that Lindbergh be asked to fly from Washington to Ottawa, on July 1.

British To Start a Hollywood At Wembly With Grounds and Palace of Exposition

LONDON, June 17. — Dreams of a London Hollywood, though smaller in scale than the American one, seem near realization. Thirty-five acres of freehold property in the late British Empire Exhibition at Wembly have been bought for $737,500 for the establishment of a film studio, Ralph J. Hugh, Managing Director of British Incorporated Pictures, Limited, announced yesterday.

The property includes the palace of engineering, half the lake and its grounds and half of the "Kingsway" Colonnade and its gardens. The palace of engineering is the largest covered concrete building in the world. It has more than half a million square feet of flooring, and space for shooting thirty films at once.

The filming will begin in January, when it is hoped to produce three feature films a week.

The studio facilities comprise eleven large floors for shooting purposes, with a total area of 277,200 square feet. Another 300,000 square feet in the palace will be used for dressing rooms, offices and stores.

The Air Ministry has reported favorably on the Wembley climate. The palace is situated 110 feet above sea level.

COUNCIL TAKES STEP

Mr. Hall said that this would be a matter for special provision in the by-law. They would have to word the by-law so that ten busses could not be driven through it.

The Mayor's Argument.

The Mayor said that some time ago they had been urged to buy property and pay $50,000 more than it was worth in the effort to provide a system of transportation. He had been told, and they had been told: "It is the duty of the council to provide some means of transportation to carry people to their work." Here they had an offer from a company with nine busses, two spares, and a big excursion bus, without the spending of a dollar of the city's money. The company was even willing to buy property in the city, if necessary.

Asked if anything had been done to bring the Border City Transit Company, and the Cooney and Jopling Company together in an endeavor to strike a bargain, His Worship said he had arranged a meeting with representatives of the two companies, who sought to come to an agreement as to the purchase by the Windsor Company at an arbitration price of two of the busses belonging to the Peterborough concern. As to the price Mr. Perry of the Border Company had suggested that the Reo Company should be asked to decide what the cars were worth, but no agreement was reached on this matter.

J. G. Jopling, who received permission to address the council pointed out that Cooney and Jopling gave transportation service to East City when none other was available. Later they had added a service to the south end of the city. They would be rather crippled if this business was withdrawn from them but they would bear their losses as manfully as possible. He thought that the council would feel better if they used the firm as they would wish to be used themselves. Referring to the suggested arbitration, Mr. Jopling said that perhaps he did not understand the meaning of the word, but he thought that arbitration meant the selection by each of the interested parties of a neutral man, and the two men thus selected would agree upon a third.

The Mayor said the position of the Cooney and Jopling Company was the same as that of a merchant of the city who had failed. Would the council grant to such a merchant $5000? Here they had a citizen a very respectable citizen, one of a company that was losing money. Why were they losing money? Because there was not room for two companies in the city. The council was not responsible for the difficulties in which the company found itself. The council, however, was responsible for the providing of transportation. Here they had a company able and willing to provide it—a company that did not ask a red cent from them.

Alderman Phelan thought that the council should take advantage of the offer of the Imperial Bank to give information regarding the standing of the Border Transit Company. The council was holding another special meeting and the information could be submitted to that meeting. He did not think the mayor's analogy of the failing merchant fitted the situation at all They were proposing to take the bread away from local men who had given a service where none had ever been before.

Angle Parking.

His Worship reported that the Police Commissioners along with the Chief and Alderman Denne, had experimented on George street in consideration of the question of angle parking.

With the exception of Alderman Denne who was opposed they were agreed that some form of angle parking would help to solve the problem on George street. After some discussion, during which Alderman Phelan vainly sought to persuade his colleagues to make one of the side streets the scene of the first attempt, a motion by Alderman McIntyre, seconded by Alderman Stocker, was carried authorizing the preparation of a bylaw calling for the painting of angle parking places on George street, between King and McDonnel streets, the time of parking to be restricted within that area to half an hour.

"Confederation Square."

Introducing his resolution that Central Park be called Confederation Square, Alderman Greene stated that he understood that what is now known as Central Park was at one time a cemetery and he believed that if the soil in some parts was dug up indications would be found to show that such was the case. The name Central Park, he said, did not mean anything to them. He thought that if the change suggested was made, the place would have a name that meant something to them; it would serve to bring home to their children the meaning of Confederation. Alderman Green further advocated the planting of a real Canadian maple tree in the park as part of the commemoration proceedings. Alderman Denne seconded the motion.

Alderman Fife was not impressed by the proposal. He thought it would be wise to leave the name as it was. James Stevenson Park, he said, was still known as Riverside Park, in spite of the official change in designation.

Alderman Cotton liked the suggestion but thought the park would continue to be known as Central.

Supplementing his previous remarks, Alderman Green pointed out that the Jubilee parade would leave from Central Park, which he held to be an added reason for the alteration

Alderman McIntyde did not think it fair to spring such a motion suddenly on the council He was not objecting to the idea, but he thought that the members of the council should have had notice of the matter to give them an opportunity of thinking over it at leisure Indeed he questioned whether the adopting of the proposal on such short notice were constitutional

The City Solicitor, whose opinion was sought, thought that the adoption of the motion would be quite legal

A Breeze

Alderman Hancock said there had been too much of this sort of thing going on in the council The council did things in a hurry, and then felt sorry afterwards

Alderman Denne retorted that the only instance of that sort of procedure was in the case of the market, and that Alderman Hancock was chairman of the responsible committee

Alderman Hancock returned to the attack The matter, he declared, had evidently been discussed by two or three of the council It had been reported to him in the street that two or three of the aldermen got together, discussed proposals and then rode them through They discussed things, while the rest of the council knew nothing about them

Slightly ruffled, Alderman Greene arose to protest He considered that his brother alderman was ill-advised to bring such a charge on mere guess work. He declared emphatically that he had never spoken to a soul on his proposal except to the City Clerk.

Alderman Denne's displeasure was manifest. "Alderman Hancock says two or three transact the business without his knowledge," he said; "perhaps he would know more if he came out to the meetings he was called for."

"I was away from one only," was the defence, "and I was out of Peterborough on business of the city."

Alderman Denne was skeptical. "You will find that I have not missed more than two in a whole year," pursued Alderman Hancock.

Calm was restored by an agreement to treat Alderman Greene's proposal as a notice of motion to be considered at a special meeting to be held at a date anterior to the Jubilee Day; and dove-like peace brooded over the assembly.

Hear! Hear!

Alderman Phelan on behalf of the Finance committee, reported the recommendation of the purchase of an electrically driven multiplying machine costing 575 dollars. The use of this machine would enable the council to print voters' lists and auditors' reports and it was said that it would effect a saving equal to its own cost in a year. Seconded by Alderman Cotton, the recommendation was carried unanimously.

Alderman Greene raised the question of the condition of the signs advertising Peterborough in the neighborhood of Port Hope. The matter, he said, had now simmered down to repainting, relettering and varnishing—which would cast $130. There was also some 4 years' back rental to pay for one of the signs. This amounted to $95. The arrangement was that the Council should go 50-50 with the Automobile Association, but the latter body had agreed to pay $125, thus going one better than the Council, which would require to pay only $100. The motion was seconded by Alderman Denne and was carried unanimously.

Great Guns!

It was intimated that a salute of twenty-one guns would be fired in the city during the Jubilee celebrations. No expense will be entailed to the city. A special officer is to be sent for the purpose of conducting the firing of the salute.

Alderman Greene reported that the work of re-painting the guns of Central park was completed, the cost being $20. Alderman Greene further reported that the Bell Telephone Company had co-operated with the Parks committee by removing a pole which had been situated in the centre of the plot on which the Memorial gates of Nicholls Oval now stand. The Council had agreed to assume the reponsibility of half the cost of re-removal, which amounted to $6.

Agreed.

On the motion of Alderman Cotton, seconded by Alderman Phelan, the passing of a by-law to execute the agreement between the city and the township of North Monaghan in regard to payment by the township for fire protection was decided upon.

On the initiation of the same two aldermen it was agreed to adopt the report of the Utilities Commission, authorizing the installation of two lights on Monaghan road within the city boundary. For the completion of the lighting arrangements of the central section of the city, authorization was also given for the installation of lights on Simcoe street east of Water, one on Queen street and three on Hunter between Water street and the bridge. Permission was also granted for the putting of lights on Victoria Park for the convenience of the two bands and the choir during the Jubilee celebrations.

A hundred watt lamp will be placed on Rink street near the premises of the Canadian Canoe Company and one on Harvey street.

Alderman Hancock introduced a resolution asking the local branch of the Ontario Motor League to make a survey of the approaches to the schools of the city and to erect the usual caution signs to motorists with particular reference to the intersections at George and Murray streets and Hunter and Roger streets.

It was agreed to authorize the Warren Bituminous Company to pave Hunter street from Belmont avenue to Walton street and Park street opposite the Canadian General Electric Works under the same terms and prices as the existing contract.

On the motion of Alderman Greene, seconded by Alderman Denne, the Council adjourned.

WARDEN OBJECTS.

NEW YORK, June 17 (United Press).—The first radio "mass meeting" to seek clemency for a condemned murdered was broadcasted from the studio of WGL last night in behalf of Francesco Caruso, sentenced to die for the slaying of Dr. Casper Pendola.

An attempt was made to have Caruso, in the death house at Sing Sing, listen to the pleadings, which included speeches by his wife and 9-year-old daughter, Lena. But the prison authorities forbade it. Warden Lawes drew the line at radio in the death cells.

FIRE AT WELCOME.

Hen House Destroyed By Blaze Starting From Brooder.

WELCOME, June 17. — Fire destroyed the henhouse and all the contents on Harvey Wallace's farm on Wednesday evening about 5.30. It originated from a chicken brooder At one time it looked as if the barns might go, too, as the roof was on fire in several places, but by prompt action of some of the neighbours, it was put out.

This is the second fire arising from brooders in the vicinity in about a week, as last week Mrs. McCann, near Canton, lost a two-storey hennery and pig house. The contents in this case were about 300 hens, 300 chickens, and 11 pigs. The fire was seen about 3 a.m., and it had made such headway nothing could be saved. There was no insurance.

Denies Having Seen Wreckage of Plane

MONTREAL, Que., June 17. — (Canadian Press).—The report published in a local evening paper yesterday to the effect that the crew of the steamship Swiftwater which arrived here Wednesday, the first trans-Atlantic vessel of the season to enter the St. Lawrence by the Straits of Belle Isle, had passed an iceberg on which there appeared to be some wreckage and marks as of a landing made by an aeroplane, was ridiculed by Captain Davidson, master of the Swiftwater, when approached last evening in connection with the report.

"The only ice we saw was unimportant," commented Captain Davidson. He scouted the suggestion of being so close to ice that any such marks could be seen.

Believe Lights Were Those of Power House

CHUTE AUX GALETS, Que., June 17.—(Canadian Press).—The mystery surrounding the lights that were seen at various hours nightly from Sunday evening last in the township of St. Germaine, north of the Saguenay river, and which were speculatively associated with the missing French aviators, Nungesser and Coli, were explained last night when it was believed to have been established that they were the lights of the power house here. Chute Aux Galets is 35 miles east of St. Germain. It was established beyond doubt that the lights here had been going at the hours stated by several individuals as the time these watchers had seen "flares" and "distress signals" coming from the direction in which this power house lies.

Government Does Not Contemplate Abolishing Stevenson Restrictions.

LONDON, June 17 (Canadian Press). — Announcement that the Government does not contemplate the abolition of the Stevenson rubber restrictions was made in the House of Commons today by Lieut.-Col. E. C. Amery, Secretary for the Dominions.

United Front Would Increase Radicalism

GENEVA, June 17.—(Canadian Press.)—Any attempt to establish a united front against Russia would be foolish and only increase Russian nationalism and radicalism, Gustav Stresemann, the German Foreign Minister told the press representatives last night. He added, however, that the powers had a perfect right to criticize the Communistic activities of the Third International in their respective countries.

Dr. Stresemann declared that such criticism could not offend the Russian government because Moscow had always emphasized that there was a difference between Russia and the Third International.

RUMORED OMEMEE TANNERY MAY OPEN

Believed Negotiations Have Been Going On With American Firm.

OMEMEE, June 17.— Citizens are regaining hope for the re-opening of the Omemee tannery, which has been closed for several weeks. It is reported that an American firm with whom negotiations have been going on for some time are taking it over.

Mr. W. Edwards, the former manager, met the Omemee council at a special meeting on Wednesday, to get the consent of same to run the siding across the road to the tannery. Although nothing definite has been given out, everyone is much concerned over the outcome of it.

IN LILAC TIME.

In Lilac time there comes to me,
With sweet perfume and humming bee,
A memory of the old door yard
With border beds and restful sward;
When spring of youth was in its prime—
And life grew fair, in Lilac time.

In Lilac time, I used to go
To woo a maid I used to know;
And happiness was not a dream,
Nor loveliness just made to seem.
But all the word sang out in chime—
When I wooed her in Lilac time.

In Lilac time, my old eyes blur,
Just for the thought and love of her
Whose hair, with mine has drifted white—
Who smiles across the hearth to-night—
And brings the music for my rhyme,
That bursts anew in Lilac time.

LOCAL BAND PLAYS WELL AT TORONTO

Distinguished Critic Expresses Pleasure at Peterborough Men's Performance.

FINE FESTIVAL

Programme Shared With Combinations from Toronto and Hamilton.

Forty members of the local Army left on the C.P.R. train yesterday by special car, returning home last night, and attended the united band musical festival of the Salvation Army which was held at Toronto in Massey Hall, before a large audience of Toronto citizens.

The programme consisted mainly of selections from bands from Toronto, Hamilton and Peterborough. Those from Toronto were the Temple, Dovercourt, Earlscourt bands.

Over two hundred band members were on the platform besides the officials of the Toronto Salvation Army.

The Peterborough men received round after round of applause from the audience at the conclusion of their selections under the able direction of Bandmaster F. Robinson. E. Garry Alleghan, city editor of the Toronto Telegram, and musical critic, sent Bandmaster Robinson his sincere congratulations on the band's excellent performance.

The programme opened with a congregational song, led by the chairman, Commissioner W. Maxwell, entitled "Stand up and bless the Lord." Prayer was led by Colonel Levi Taylor. Following this Commissioner Maxwell stated that some time ago it was decided to hold this musical festival in Toronto as ones had been previously held in Hamilton and Montreal. He remarked that the large audience present last night showed that such an effort to put on this festival in Massey Hall was not in vain.

Massed Band Selection.

The next number on the programme was a special feature, that of a selection by the massed bands under the direction of F. W. Beer, staff captain and former bandmaster of the local Salvation Army. The selection, "Men of Faith," received great ovation from the audience, and it was certainly a wonderful opportunity for the people gathered last night to hear over two hundred bandsmen combined into one great band play together.

The next selection, "Hallelujah Chorus," from "The Mount of Olives," was given by the Temple Band under the direction of Adjutant B. Coles. This selection was well given under fine leadership.

Applauded By Audience.

A march, "Under Two Flags," by the Earlscourt band, showed splendid training, and this band is very fortunate in having such a competent bandmaster as N. Audoire.

"Haydn," played by the local band, was widely acclaimed by the audience, and the members received congratulations from the officials of the Salvation Army present. A monologue, by Captain Ethel Maxwell, on "The Veil of Life," was set off by the darkened lights of Massey Hall, a purple spotlight being thrown on Miss Maxwell, as she recited the selection that touched the hearts of many present. Following this a selection, "Handel's Largo," played by the Hamilton band. A saxaphone number, given by eight of the Peterborough members, received much applause

A march, "Fighting for the Lord," by the Dovercourt band under Bandmaster Pearce, was perfect in rhythm and was well received by the audience. Another special feature on the programme was the singing of "When I Survey," by the massed bandsmen. "Adoration," by the Hamilton band under the direction of Brigadier Taylor, was a splendid selection.

Peterborough's second selection, "To the Land of Glory," was also well received.

The Bible reading was carried on by Lieutenant-Colonel Branhall of London, England. A vocal duet by Commissioner Maxwell and his daughter was greatly appreciated by all. The Earlscourt band, in a selection entitled "The Voyage to Heaven," was a splendid composition and showed the hard practice of the bandsmen.

A declaration of divisional, subterritorial self-denial was then read by Commissioner Maxwell. The last number on the programme was another selection by the Dovercourt band, "Joy of the Redeemed." Commissioner Maxwell expressed his thanks to the audience for helping to make this concert a great success, by such a fine attendance and the splendid programme was then closed by a congregational song, "I heard the voice of Jesus say."

OLD MASTERS

Ye happy swains, whose hearts are free
From Love's imperial chain,
Take warning, and be taught by me
To avoid the enchanting pain;
Fatal the wolves to trembling flocks
Fierce winds to blossoms prove,
To careless seamen, hidden rocks,
To human quiet, Love.
—George Etherege: A Song.
